Hank Ford Remains at Helm

By HOWARD KOKESH

Duke of Edinburgh Unit ANAF President H. G. "Hank" Ford was given a vote of confidence last Thursday at the nomination meeting as he was returned to office for his third term by acclamation.

The President thanked the members for the trust they had placed in him, especially during the trying time of reservations. He stated that the building committee had stayed well within the budget allocated to them and that they expected to have a ribbon cutting ceremony early in the new year.

W. J. Ford and H. U. Kokesh will serve as 1st and 2nd vice presidents respectively as they were unopposed in their bid for these positions on the executive. Other executive members returned to office by acclamation were: George Christopher, secretary; Gord Brown, treasurer; Al Burnt, beverage chairman; Reg Featherstone, membership chairman and Charlie Doyle as sick and visiting chairman. Cliff Ouderkirk will serve as entertainment chairman for the coming year.

Two positions on the executive will be decided by ballot on Thursday, January 10, 1974. Rod Salter and Dinny Young both seek the position of sports chairman, while Ab Tuck and Doug Stork are seeking the executive position of house chairman.

Weather Could be Worse!

Complain all you want, but remember that today you are lucky. You could be living east of Belleville.

The American east coast and the St. Lawrence river valley are in the grip of a series of storms that will eventually drop approximately five to six inches of snow on the shuddering residents of those areas.

Weather officers at the Canadian Forces Base Trenton say that storm front will miss the Belleville area.

If you are driving east though, you may be in for trouble.

While Belleville will only receive the odd snow flurry during the day, the weather man expects there will be steady snow falls east of Kingston all the way to Quebec City.

The weather here will be primarily sunny and cold. And it should stay that way until another storm swings up from the south east on Thursday.

While temperatures hovered between two above and 14 above zero over the weekend, they are expected to range between zero and 12 above today. Tuesday will see the thermometer fall below zero during the evening and it will only climb to five above during the day.

Winds from the northeast today will gust to between 20 and 30 miles an hour, however, and that will make it feel a lot colder. The weathermen say that the wind-chill factor will make it feel as if it is 20 or 30 degree below zero outside.

Bell Joins Chorus

(From Bell Canada Information Servile)

Bells are the happy sound of Christmas. And, more and more each year, telephone bells, ringing around the world, are joining the chorus of silver bells and jingle bells, sleigh bells and city bells in spreading holiday season cheer.

Last year more than 60,000 ringing telephones in overseas countries heralded holiday greetings from relatives or friends in Canada. That was an increase of more than 16,000 such calls over 1971. The vast majority, some 58,000 went through the Montreal "gateway" office to Europe. The rest passed through the Vancouver "gateway" office to the Pacific and Far Eastern countries.

With a 20 per cent increase in holiday calling expected again this year, the Trans-Canada Telephone System companies and the Canadian Overseas Telecommunication Corporation have been planning for months to cope with the calling rush. For many years now COTC has augmented its overseas calling facilities at the holiday season. Again this year it is putting in as many extra circuits as possible, especially to those countries in which the great majority of calls are placed. However, even with the augmented facilities it is still an impossible task to accommodate all calls on Christmas Day itself.

Special rates apply on Sunday and-or evenings in most of the countries to which the highest percentage of calls are placed from Canada. No special holiday rates apply on Christmas Day itself.

It was a happy day for Danny Durette, 14 months, Saturday when he met Santa Claus at the Foster Parent party in the Kiwanis Centre on Dundas Street. Danny was just one of 33 children who joined their parents at the association's first annual Christmas party. The youngsters each received a bag of candy from the jolly old man and listened to him tell stories about the north pole and the Eskimo children who live there with him.

'Foster' Party Big Success

By PETER GOODSPEED

To most people it would have looked like just another children's Christmas Party. However, there was something different about it.

There were only eight families present but there were 33 children laughing, giggling and asking when Santa was going to come.

Almost all of the youngsters were foster children.

Along with their foster parents they were enjoying the Hastings County Foster Parent Association's first annual Christmas party.

The party, held Saturday afternoon at the Kiwanis Centre on Dundas Street East, was organized by Mr. and Mrs. Andy Durette, of Trenton; Mr. Durette is the president of the foster parent association.

"The Foster Parent Association here is a young organization," Mr. Durette explained." It was founded early in 1973 and, since then, has worked together with the Children's Aid Society in Belleville to try and provide foster parents with a forum in which they can discuss their problems and find solutions. It also allows the families to get together every now and then to have a good time."

UCS Directors to Rotate

The United Community Services board will appoint one of its number to draft a motion providing for a cyclical rotation of directors, in the coming year.

Such a motion would involve a change of service's letters patent and will be brought before the annual meeting in February.

At his regular meeting Thursday, the board authorized the undertaking which, if passed, would see directors serve for terms of one, two and three years.

At present, individuals are accepted as directors for a single term of a year. A director can serve a maximum of five years.

In making the motion, supported by the entire board, social planning chairman, Virginia O'Rourke felt that new directors would benefit from the experience gained by members who have served a full three years.

Alarm Box

Belleville firefighters responded to the following calls during the weekend:

Saturday, Dec. 15, 7:02 p.m. false alarm Hillview Towers.

Sunday, Dec. 16, 4:44 p.m., 39 Frank Street, fuse box fire, no damage.

Sunday, 8:50 p.m. 341 Coleman Street, clothes in dryer, slight smoke damage.

Sunday, 9:34 p.m., 147 University Avenue, garbage fire, no damage.

Plenty To Do

It is something of an old chestnut that in Belleville there is "nothing to do". And for the young especially. A letter to the editor recently said as much.

More and more, it seems to us, Belleville is as pleasant and interesting and stimulating a place as any its size in the province, not to say beyond.

It is scarcely even necessary to list the facilities of every description that fall into the category of educational and recreational for they are surely known to a great many of us.

To cite but one example from the recreational sphere, indoor tennis at the Ben Bleecker auditorium. Available membership for the winter program there was quickly filled and we know of at least one of the city's better players who for that reason just missed out on an opportunity to join.

Then there is the adult program of education and recreation in the schools which we are told is flourishing — and if anything with greater zeal than before. Moreover, a full page advertisement from Loyalist indicated recently what a tremendous role that College is playing in the community, as does a letter from a student appearing on this page today.

Speaking of the college students of our day, the comparisons made by that 20-student delegation from the Soviet Union (The Intelligencer of Dec. 13) makes interesting reading. It seems that in Russia students are more serious . . . there is more getting together for discussions of social issues and little or no sitting around drinking coffee and listening to music, as appeared to them to be the case here.

Soviet magazines bear out this concept of student life, as well as in adult social and political groupings. Yet isn't it ironic that Russia reportedly is concerned about the drinking and alcoholism that afflicts many of its citizens and which is said to be due in part at least to the overwhelming boredom and dreariness of life in that part of the world.

A coffee house can be a stimulating place, for restoration of the thinking processes, for meeting friends, and yes, even for a little political discussion. Indeed it is a tradition n most parts of Europe. And it is harmless.

Meanwhile, nothing to do in Belleville?. It's just not true.

Politics and Civility

In a recent editorial on the question of admitting Chilean refugees to Canada, Montreal La Presse began: "Everything is political. But there are times when human preoccupations can be stronger than calculating politics".

The editorial went on to applaud Ottawa's decision to open the country's doors wider to those in Chile who feel they are in danger and want to emigrate here.

Strange aside this issue, and the warnings about the need to screen any refugees coming here for political affiliations, the editorial's opening lines seem to fit another human situation in politics rather well.

We are thinking of a picture of Primo Minister Trudeau, an engaging smile on his features, talking with Opposition leader Stanfield, prior to leaving Parliament Hill after the Liberals defeated a non-confidence motion in a recent state.

Between them and to one side, her back to the camera, is a dark-haired young woman, a reporter perhaps, but by the look on the faces of the two men, the conversation would appear to have had all the hallmarks of pleasantness. Mr. Stanfield maybe talking after the health of Mrs. Trudeau who any day now is expecting a happy event.

Such encounters are few enough, given the rough-and-tumble of politics, but that they do occur makes for a reminder that in politics, civility can go a long way.

Their Target: The Extremists

National Security Has Become A Major Growth Industry

By RICHARD JACKSON

OTTAWA — Who is "The Enemy" that External Affairs is paying $1,361,158, and Supply and Services $35 million in security services to keep at bay?

The big man, head of General Investigations, one of the two big firms in the Capital handling security matters for the federal Government and the diplomatic corps, settles back behind his small, uncluttered desk in the basement office headquarters in an undistinguished Centretown building, and talks.

"The Enemy" is the extremist, the "socio-economic militant", as the big man defines him who has made General Investigations into a $1 million-a-year industry employing 300 people in three cities, part of a new Canadian "growth enterprise" carrying a payroll of 70,000 and growing an annual $70 million.

"He is no longer on the periphery of things, but getting into the centre," goes on the big man.

"And he is no misfit but out of the Big House and all steamed up in the beer parlor.

"He is well educated, a college grad, smart, public, well-dressed, nicely-spoken, but a blazing militant, all bottled up on some socio-economic cause and ready to blow up the world if he cannot save it his way.

"He is patient. He can wait and work, gathering a security-light circle of his smart unrest, visionaries around him who will carry out the real 'danger man' assignments.

"He is skilled in the art of social camouflage, winning acceptance and even approval of the conformist elements of normal society, while quietly working to stir up dissatisfaction, resentment and unrest, sometimes in the employ of the federal government as an 'animator,' I believe they're called.

"In his more dangerous phase as his fanaticism develops he learns the techniques of explosives, of blackmail, kidnapping and assassination.

"He is a do-gooder gone around the bend, a socio-political criminal.

"And the frightening part of it is that in the earlier stages of his radical development, he is aided by the well-meaning, weak-kneed permissiveness in the Government and the media.

"Let him stage a demo and he becomes the instant TV hero.

"He engineers a sit-in and is a press pin-up.

"Then there is the nationalist terrorist, university - educated, speaking three or four languages, consumed by hatred, dedicated to destruction, ready to cut down an ambassador or a prime minister.

"This type," says the big man behind the desk, "strikes terror into the hearts of governments, and on eternal vigilance and impenetrable security become precious beyond price."

Finally, there is the industrial saboteur.

"He is the one who knows which screw to turn so that the whole production of a plant falls apart."

The threat of all three types is mounting, says the big man, because of what he calls the growing unrest in North American society," and because police security (the police) is pricing itself out of the market, leaving it to private agencies which, while big and getting bigger, have yet to organize nationally and internationally to cope with the rising terror.

Meanwhile on the local and regional basis, how are these agencies, employed by both the federal and foreign governments, coping?

Take an embassy under threat.

"You post your security men around the grounds, set up a patrol of unmarked cars.

"You put in your extra sensor devices that detect the softest footfall in the ground or snow and behind the shrubs.

"You spot your TV cameras with their infra-red lenses — it gives off a yellow and green image, not red, shadow forms like in old movies, to see and monitor them all from inside.

"Then you set up your inside control by which you can lock all doors and windows with one switch like fire-control doors on ships."

But that is not all of it, nor perhaps even really much. Because, says the big man, when you talk about security it becomes less secure, and "The Enemy" does not need that kind of help in escalating violence and terror.

Venezuelan Oil and Politics Now Major Concern

By JOHN M. HARBRON
Foreign Affairs Analyst

Economic reality if nothing else is drawing us closer to Venezuela, one of our important hemispheric neighbors and like us, one of the few surviving democracies in the Western Hemisphere.

The reality, of course, is continued future flow of Venezuelan crude oil into Eastern Canada at the rate it has been imported in the past. About 15 per cent of Venezuela's oil exports — of three million barrels per day, a major single source of income, is shipped to the hungry refineries around Montreal.

Most of the rest of Venezuela's exported oil goes to the even hungrier United States, cut off for the time being from Arab sources of supply.

Our concern is in an event which Canadians totally ignore, the outcome of a Latin American presidential election, in this case the Venezuelan. The candidates, Carlos Andres Perez, candidate of the Democratic Action party and Lorenzo Fernandez, candidate of the ruling COPEI or Christian Democratic party, are front-runners among 12 competing presidential candidates.

At this time of writing, it appears Senor Perez is the winner and the next president of oil-rich and nationalistic Venezuela. He has chimed the victory and said his party which initiated Venezuela's tough oil policy in the early 1960s, will use oil as a weapon.

Well, there is nothing new in that remark or threat since every oil producer, even ourselves is doing so, including the Venezuelans since last fall. Twice since the end of the summer Venezuela has bounced up her price per barrel, the first time a whopping 56 per cent, the second time just before the election by 50 cents more a barrel.

The Arabs of course are using oil as a weapon more fiercely than anyone else. Their cause is purely international than national, to bring Israel back to her pre-1967 boundaries. Venezuela like Nigeria which doubled the price of its oil and Iran which is selling her oil freely are at an incredible $17.84 per barrel, are all doing their thing for apparently nationalistic reasons.

Should we worry there will be a major shift in Venezuelan oil policy toward Canada, that is a switch somewhere else chiefly to the United States, a re-direction ally of the Venezuelans in Latin America?

Ottawa says we should not and so do the Venezuelans, as yet not sure who will be the next president or next key minister of hydro-carbons. And both estimates appear to be accurate.

The reason for saying so is that Venezuelan long-term oil policy is geared to the hydro-carbons reservation law, an instrument of a former Democratic Action government, and maintained by the outgoing COPEI administration. It's a very tough law where the big foreign-owned oil companies in Venezuela are concerned. (Exxon and Shell the same ones we have in Canada).

It calls for the complete reversion by 1983 of all foreign-owned oil company holdings, properties and leases to Venezuelan public and private ownership. Under this law the big foreign outfits in Venezuela are contributing non-tax rebate annual amounts to the central bank against the possibility they might leave facilities in bad shape.

So, wherever is Venezuela's next president does not matter in the context of our concern about Venezuelan oil in Eastern Canada. Oil policy in that republic will inevitably become more statist as we move closer to the 1983 deadline. A "Venezuelan" message Canadian governments could start to heed or implement?

Provincial Succession Duties A Headache

By VINCENT EGAN
Business and Consumer Affairs Analyst
Thomson News Service

When the federal government quit the death tax field nearly two years ago, the move was regarded as a boon to those who come into an inheritance.

Instead, Canadians today face a jigsaw puzzle of provincial succession duties. Any saving in federal estate tax is largely offset by the outlay of time, trouble and legal fees in untangling the various provincial authorities.

Ottawa slopped levyied estate taxes when it introduced the principle that capital gains were to be taxed as earned income. It was a recognition that the two were logically incompatible—and, besides, estate taxes didn't amount to much in relation to the problem of maintaining an army of civil servants to administer them.

Some provinces, sensing a vacuum, moved in with their own succession duties—no two alike. Since then, the three Maritime provinces have had second thoughts, and each has either discontinued, or soon will abandon, the type of death taxes.

But there remains a patchwork of death taxes among other provinces. The amounts collected by the provinces are relatively small, but the legal fees encountered by inheritors often become burdensome.

Example: If the deceased owned stock in a company whose head office is in Quebec and had carpentry includes some of Canada's best known firms) but resides in another province, Quebec's revenue department insists upon receiving a fully completed four-part return of utmost infinite complexity, listing the minutest details of the shares, insurance policies and personal effects that belonged to the deceased. Plus, of course, a certified copy of the will and of the letters of probate.

The sensible solution would be for the provinces to harmonize their approach to succession duties—if not eliminate them altogether—so that a single return would be acceptable to all.

(They have managed to harmonize their policies in other financial areas such as personal administration and insurance, without irreparable damage to provincial pride and sovereignty.)

Until they do, however, those who own a portfolio of investments would be well advised to review them in the light of the succession-duty requirements. In some cases, this could be reason enough to dispose of the stocks.

An alternative, for those whose assets are fairly substantial and diversified, would be to establish a private holding company, to own those assets. Then, on death, an accounting would have to be made to only the province in which the holding company is chartered.

Dec. 17, 1973 —
Leopold II of Belgium died 64 years ago today—in 1909—after a reign of 44 years. His main achievement was the colonization of the Belgian Congo, which he ruled as a personal state. But the Congo Free State was vigorously exploited even after the rule of the Arab slave traders had been broken at vast expense. A British consular report of 1908 said the natives lived in "virtual slavery" and, under international pressure, Leopold transferred hegemony over the Congo to the Belgian government.

1943—Burma became the first non-Communist country to recognize the Chinese Communist regime in Peking.

1918 Sir W. Max Aitken was created Lord Beaverbrook.

Further addition on the energy front: The Arab boycott is also being directed against South Africa and the Portuguese colonies of Angola and Mozambique in South Africa the Shasole oil consortium of Western and American oil companies is the country's principal source of petroleum for the development of mines and agricultural land.

A second chance! A new beginning! What do these words mean to people who for a variety of reasons, never had the benefit of higher education? The handicap of that situation becomes very real when one tries to find employment, and discovers that one of the first qualifications required is "Minimum, Grade 12."

In the days before school buses traversed all the country roads, when a student "Passed the Entrance," now Grade 8, it was considered a major accomplishment. Only if that student wished to become a teacher, or enter some of the higher professions, was any thought given that attendance at high school, especially if he lived in a rural area, everyone did not own a car at that time, and for some, the cost of boarding in the nearest town was prohibitive, particularly for larger families. As a result, many middle-aged people, mothers whose children are now grown and gone from home, or others who for various reasons or commitments were confined at home for a number of years, find themselves in the position of being unable to find any kind of satisfactory employment.

To this end Loyalist College, together with all Community Colleges of this nature, plays a vital role in correcting this unfortunate situation. While it is not easy, especially for those of us who have lived for 30 or 40 years to go back to the classroom as subjects, it most certainly can be, and is being done. With the help of dedicated staff members, and also the individual the feeling that they are especially for him or her as a person, people are achieving goals that, before retiring, they had never even available to them, would have been impossible.

Perhaps some may feel that public money is being wasted on "something who does care, and doesn't want to work hard." If even half are able to find better jobs, and better living conditions, with the result that more income money reaches the public treasury, then it is surely not wasted. Aside from monetary values, the increased self-confidence and increased self respect, the value that can in no way be measured in dollars.

The college offers a very special atmosphere, one from other countries who have come to make Canada their home. They have the opportunity for help in overcoming the language barrier, and for others all Canadians an opportunity to meet these new citizens, and to learn and understand the different backgrounds and cultures from which they come. This in itself is conducive to understanding, and in the world situation of today, anything that can contribute to the cause of peace, no matter how small a measure, is beyond evaluation.

Apart from all walks of life can get to know, and to relate to each other in the atmosphere of learning in a way that would be impossible in any other environment. Then to help each other while being helped themselves.

My impression of Loyalist College is that it is meeting a very real need in today's world and will continue to meet it in the future. Perhaps path I may travel in the years ahead, I know that the help guidance and counselling from all members of the staff will be of inestimable value. Teachers, office staff, cafeteria and maintenance personnel have each in his own way shown what true friendliness can be to someone who has had almost no experience in the business world.

Body of Duck Hunter Found at Presqu'ile

BRIGHTON — The body of George Dalli, missing since an early-November boating accident, was found on Presqu'ile Provincial Park beach Saturday by Swiss Consul General Rudolph Neeser.

The consul was walking along the beach, said a spokesman for the Brighton detachment of the Ontario Provincial Police, when he came across the body.

Dr. Bruce Laughlin, Brighton coroner, pronounced Mr. Dalli dead from drowning. Mr. Dalli and a group of other Toronto men were involved in a boating accident Nov. 3 when their small boat swamped during a duck-hunting expedition.

A second drowned man's body was recovered the same day of the incident.

Mr. Dalli was identified by

Dump Sharing Considered

AMELIASBURGH— A delegation of Wellington village councillors headed by reeve Robert Boyce last week discussed a waste disposal agreement with Ameliasburgh council.

The village had extended a request for shared services because of increasing restrictions at Wellington dump.

Ameliasburgh council has indicated that Wellington village could be served by a once-a-week collection of garbage that would be removed to the Ameliasburgh dump. The offer is now under consideration by Wellington council.

Doctor Beaten, Onlookers Watch

TORONTO (CP) — A doctor who was beaten by three men at a midtown Toronto intersection while passersby watched said Sunday it's thought with all those people around I would be safe.

Dr. Stephen Kiraly, 38, said his car was followed south on Yonge Street Saturday night by another auto and at each stop light three men he did not know approached. Toronto police said at him.

Near the intersection of Bloor Street, he abandoned his car, boarded a bus and asked the driver to get the police.

"He didn't react at all . . . he must have thought I was a crackpot," said Dr. Kiraly.

He fled from the bus and as he ran to a taxi the three men caught him.

They kept screaming to get me on the ground and kill me," said Dr. Kiraly. "I thought I was finished."

As other people caught in the traffic jam caused by his abandoned car watched, he said he reached the taxi and pleaded to the four occupants to let him in but they wouldn't unlock the door.

Dr. Kiraly, who was treated in hospital for an injured eye, cuts and bruises, said, "I couldn't believe it and would never have thought it could happen on Bloor St. . . . it was like the movie Clockwork Orange."

Agreement With Teachers

OSHAWA, Ont. (CP) — Tentative agreement was announced today on a new contract between the Ontario County separate school board and its 385 teachers. The region was among the 18 Ontario school jurisdictions where contract disputes prompted teacher strike threats or actions.

Michael O'Connor, chairman of the teacher negotiating team, said details of the agreement would not be announced until after a ratification meeting Thursday.

Despite the tentative agreement, members of the Ontario English Catholic Teachers' Association in the county said they will support the demonstration at Queen's Park Tuesday to protest the government's emergency education bill.

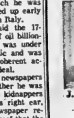
In a letter to parents asking them not to send their children to school Tuesday, the association said the protest had nothing to do with local negotiations "and in no way is directed at the Ontario County separate school board."

That Man Again

Making a whirlwind tour of the Quinte district, Santa Claus stopped briefly at a Picton supermarket. Saturday, as usual, there was a lineup of youngsters to meet the jolly gent — and receive a free treat.

Getty Is Blindfolded During His Captivity

ROME (CP) — The mother of J. Paul Getty III says her son was kept blindfolded during most of his five month captivity and never saw the faces of any of his kidnappers.



Young Getty's mother, former actress Gail Harris, spent all day Sunday with her son in the clinic to which he was taken after he turned up early Saturday in southern Italy.

Police sources said the 17-year-old grandson of oil billionaire J. Paul Getty was under sedation at the clinic and was unable to give a coherent account of his long ordeal.

But two Rome newspapers said he told his mother he was conscious when his kidnappers were cutting off his right ear, which a Rome newspaper received Nov. 10 as proof that the boy was being held.

"They hit me on the head to knock me out, but I felt everything," Getty said. "It was terrible.

"But I will not get a plastic ear made. I don't want to forget this moment of my life."

Just Like 100 Years Ago

Katherine Gingrich, 8, is finding out what Christmas 100 years ago looked like. It was discovered accidentally that College Street School turned 100 years old this year and teachers are combining centennial and Yuletide celebrations. An open-house will be held Wednesday afternoon.

Trenton's College St. School

They Uncovered Centennial By the Merest of Chances

TRENTON — College Street School officials came up with more birthdays than they were looking for this month.

While checking attendance records to establish the age of a past pupil, officials discovered College Street Public School was 100 years old this year — without anyone knowing.

Union School — as it was known a century ago — opened its doors only to have them closed 63 years later with the construction of the larger, present building.

College Street School's present playground was the site of the Union School. The cornerstone filled with a copy of daily newspapers, wheat and a lady bud, was transferred to the existing school.

School principal Don Wishart is taking the attitude late is better than not at all and is shaping the school into Centennial celebrations for the year's remaining month.

He, and staff members, are participating by combining the themes of Centennial and Christmas. Students are actively looking into Christmas of the past, drawing toys and making tree decorations of a century ago.

As a special function, about 30 pupils will visit Hastings County's Glanmore House which currently shows a heritage of Christmas selection of toys.

Wednesday afternoon past pupils of College Street school are invited to attend a special Centennial-Yuletide assembly.

The present-day College Street School opened in 1938. The opening was preceded by a report from T. P. Carswell who summed up the situation before construction saying:

"As we are painfully aware, the improved College Street School (the original structure is still being used, notwithstanding its unsanitary condition and lack of safety."

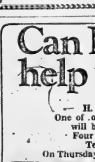
Mr. Carswell is expected to be one of the dignitaries in attendance at the Wednesday afternoon assembly. The Christmas pageant will begin at 1:30 p.m. followed immediately by the birthday party.

Trentonian Is Injured In Crash

TRENTON — A Trenton man remains in the intensive care unit of Trenton Memorial Hospital today after receiving lacerations and fractured ribs in a single car accident Saturday night.

Police said Reuben MacLean was involved on Highway 2 when he hit a patch of ice on the roadway causing him to lose control of his car.

More than $1,800 damage was caused the vehicle when it rolled over.



Constable Roy Nichol of the Brighton detachment of the Ontario Provincial Police investigated the incident. No charge were laid.

Vestry Helps With Funds

DESERONTO — The vestry council of St. Mark's Anglican Church recently had a letter from a northern Canada parish thanking the congregation here for its Christmas card and cash donation. The money will be used to help with the expenses of a Christmas party for young people of the recipient parish. Last year similar gift was used to buy woollen toques for the children and the rector.

A change was made in the plans for Dec. 16 The Sunday school Christmas party will be held at 3 p.m. and the carol service a 4 p.m., followed by a pot luck supper in the parish hall.

Why It's Tough To Fool A Nikon
Ordinary metering systems are fine for ordinary lighting situations. But it takes the Nikon Photomic system to handle special lighting situations and give you the photograph you really wanted.
The Nikon Photomic is a centre-weighted metering system that's far superior to averaging or spot metering systems. It measures the brightness of the entire scene, but gets 60% of its exposure information from just 12% of the picture area (the centre, where your subject is usually located). That's why it's so tough to fool the Nikon Photomic even in back lighting situations. It's tough to fool a Nikon in other ways, too.
● The specially Quilted titanium foil shutter curtain's unequally for accuracy.
● The image in the finder is constantly bright and 100% accurate.
● The film takeup system winds the film in reverse to counteract its curl.
● Mirror and mechanical vibrations are absorbed by a special damping material.
● Motor drives lets you shoot as many as five pictures a second.
Come in this week for a demonstration of Nikon — the photographic system that's as close to foolproof as possible.

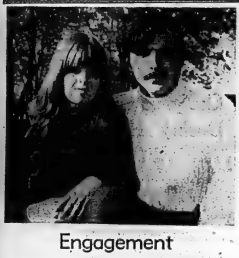
Quinte Cuisine



An active member of the Prince Edward-Belleville Ladies' Club and the Quinte Women's Institute, Bessie Mitchell likes to make this cranberry nut bread for club occasions. Mrs. MMchell suggests that it makes a colorful addition to plates of Christmas cakes and cookies. She and her husband also enjoy the end of a loaf toasted, buttered, with a piece or two of cheese.

Cranberry Nut Bread

1 cup whole cranberries
¾ cup white sugar
3 cups sifted all-purpose flour
4 tsp. baking powder
½ tsp. salt
¾ cup white sugar
1 tbsp. grated orange rind
½ cup chopped walnuts
½ cup green maraschino cherries
2 eggs well-beaten
¾ cup milk
¼ cup orange juice
¼ cup butter or margarine, melted.
Cut cranberries in half and mix with ¼ cup sugar. Sift four, baking powder, salt, and ¾ cup of sugar. Add orange rind and nuts.

Combine remaining ingredients. Add to dry ingredients and mix until just combined. Fold in cranberries and cherries which have been dusted with flour. Turn batter into a greased loaf pan (nine inches by five inches). Bake at 350 degrees for about 65 to 70 minutes, or until a skewer inserted in the middle comes out clean. Slice and butter or frost with icing sugar.

Western Myths Debunked

VANCOUVER (CP) — Sun glints off brass buttons. Men in scarlet tunics, little pill-box hats pushed to one side, ride &c. The Mounties have come to save the Canadian Prairies from violence. All is peaceful for ever and ever.

That is the myth of the Canadian West, No. 1.

Forget it, says Heather Robertson, an associate editor of Maclean's magazine.

"These were not peaceful people. The peaceful Canadian frontier wasn't peaceful at all," she said in an interview here.

"There were riots, strikes, confrontations. The history of police violence is incredible.

"There was bank robbery and bootlegging. If people only realized, but they don't. They've never heard of it. They don't know about the Ku Klux Klan in Saskatchewan in the late 1920s. Who ever got that in their history books?"

"And what about the bold-ups?

"There's hardly a bank in Western Canada that wasn't held up at one time or another during prohibition. These guys used to come up from the States for a day and hold up a bank as sort of an afterthought."

She said whole towns depended on hooting whisky for their livelihoods. "Some people place."

Myth No. 2 of the Canadian West: Farmers, thousands upon thousands of them, are harvesting endless fields of wheat. They love the land and the land loves them. Sunburned, wise and folksy, they drive big cars and some have $50,000 in the bank.

She also exploded that one.

"The history of the West is a history of exploitation," she Heather Robertson. "Exploitation by the CPR, by the banks, by the Eastern establishment. The average farmer has never been given a chance to succeed because of the colonial economic system.

"Not too much longer and we won't have the independent small farmer with us at all.",

She said Prairie towns are dying.

"You can go in some of them and wonder what's holding them together. Life is going on but the town is dead. And despite what we want to think, a lot of them are like Peyton Place."

She feels the West has been ignored.

"Unless the West starts getting a better deal it may be time to talk of separation, of a separate Western Canadian nation. That may be the only solution.

"It is possible, looking at the Hutterites, to see farms operated on a collective basis, on a Maoist system of self-sufficiency including the ownership of stores and industries. Some sort of drastic reform is certainly necessary."

The Winnipeg journalist lives with the people of rural Manitoba to gather information for her newly-published book Grass Roots.

She said people were anxious to talk.

"They'd say 'You don't really want to write about Biggar. They couldn't believe anyone would be interested in them.

"They opened up, most of them."

Heather Robertson, associate editor of Maclean's magazine, explodes myths about Western Canada during an interview in Vancouver. "The peaceful Canadian frontier wasn't peaceful at all," she said. (CP Photo)

Successful Living

When in Doubt, Think of Others

By DORIS CLARK

"I will give you a talisman. Whenever you are in doubt, or when the self becomes too much with you, apply the following test. Recall the face of the poorest and the weakest man whom you may have seen, and ask yourself if the step you contemplate is going to be of any use to him.

"Will he gain anything by it? Will it restore him to a control over his own life and destiny? In other words, will it lead to Swaraj for the hungry and spiritually starving millions?

"Then you will find your doubts and your self melting away."

Mahatma Gandhi

Dear Doris: I am 19, in third year at university. I had planned on being a public school teacher but it seems the number of teachers exceeds their demand.

What about children with learning disabilities? I had thought of training to help deaf children, too. I don't want to spend too many more years in school if it can be helped.

I have been a playground supervisor, have helped lead a C.G.I.T. group and am at present doing volunteer work at a public school.

Undecided

Dear Undecided: There is a heap to do for children with one sort of handicap or another. The field is changing rapidly and you will probably need an extra year of special study once you have picked your own special spot.

Specialists are used to teach handicapped children in nursery schools and public schools, as well as in children's institutions.

Write to the principal of the Teacher's College nearest you; ask what you want to know, and if it looks like your dish, make a personal appointment. You can learn a lot more that way.

Dear Doris: I read in your column that you ask each Al-Anon group to write you.

The Al-Anon Family Groups are a fellowship of relatives and friends of alcoholics who share experience, strength and hope in order to solve their common problems and to help others to do the same. Although an outgrowth of A.A., with the same basic structure, it is a completely separate organization. Alcoholism is now recognized as a family disease which impairs the mental and often physical health of the family as well as that of the alcoholic.

I found my sanity in Al-Anon. There would not be room in this paper for me to tell you everything it has done for me.

Our address is P.O. Box 332, Kingston, Ontario.

As our anonymity is very important to us, I will sign the letter as Secretary, Kingston Al-Anon.

Dear Secretary: I'm glad you have stressed the idea that Al-Anon is a separate organization from A.A., and that it exists to help the families of alcohics, whether or not alcoholic members belong to A.A. in most cases they do not.

Understanding a disease like alcoholism is part of the battle, and when a group shares their knowledge, giving each other the moral support to conduct themselves in a positive fashion -- in what is a very negative situation — this can mean simply everything to a member's peace of mind.

The anonymity is, of course, use of the words Anon and Anonymous. It is nobody's business but the member's own if, there is this problem in the family and he or she is doing something about it. More power to you!

(Doris welcomes your comments and ideas. Write to her, care of this newspaper, enclosing a stamped, self addressed envelope for private reply.)

Christmas Newsletters Boring, Tasteless, Vain

Dear Ann Landers: The best column you ever printed was the one about Christmas "newsletters." Please, Ann, run it again.—Detroit Tiger.

Dear Tiger: Thanks for asking. Others asked, too, so here it is:

Dear Ann Landers: Why do normally intelligent folks take leave of their senses at Christmas time and send out those interminable chronicles of the year's activities to everyone whose name they can spell?

It is the height of egocentricity to assume that anyone, except a few intimate friends, would trade through all that verbiage. I am galled by their attempts to portray glowing pictures of affluence and success. I've taken bits and pieces of several mailings and here's the composite:

Dear Friends: What a great year! Jim was named vice-president of the bank. We celebrated by going to Europe and buying a Mercedes. In addition to his Boy Scout national board work, Jim was named co-chairman of the United Fund drive. He continues as a trustee of City College and is treasurer of Kiwanis. His first love, however, is still conservation, and he is heading up the Committee to Fight Dutch Elm Disease.

"After completing my term as Junior League president, I swore I'd take life easy but I am more involved than ever. I accepted the vice-presidency of the Garden Club and am still active in the D.A.R. I run the bake sale for the Eastern Star again this year and we made $936. I also squeezed in a flower-arranging class offered by the Women's Exchange. Incidentally, I'm president. All this with my leg in a cast. I fell off a ladder while hanging curtains at our cottage.

"Jim, Jr., was elected class president and won letters in football and basketball. He is on the all-state debate team and placed third in the national oratory contest. We were surprised to read in the paper that he had won a $100 U.S. Savings Bond in the American Legion essay contest. Junior has been accepted by both Harvard and Yale. His girl was turned down by both schools and will be attending a small college near here. He may decide to go there, too. If he does, his father will kill him.

"Linda was elected vice-president of her class and was also homecoming queen and a finalist in the regional swimming meet."

And so it goes, Ann . . . until you could vomit.

Next year I'm sending the following newsletter to all the people who have inflicted theirs on us:

"Dear Friends: We've had a lousy year. Bill was passed over for promotion again, so he quit his job. He hasn't lined up anything yet but he is listed with the employment agencies and looks in the want ads every night. In the meantime, he is drinking like a fish. Having him under my feet all day hasn't helped my disposition much, either. Bill, Jr., was defeated for homeroom monitor. He flunked French again and will have to go to summer school to graduate high school. College is out. He can't get in anyplace. Bob (now 16) hasn't had a haircut since July. It is quieter around here because he had to sell his guitar to pay for the repairs on his Honda.

"Mary is protesting something and shaved her head last week. Her father is not speaking to her which is just as well because I think she is deaf from all that loud music.

"My mother-in-law's June visit lasted till August and I am back in therapy. I hope next year is better. It couldn't be much worse. Love, Mary."

TURNS POLICEWOMAN

TURO, N.S. (CP) — Five years as a secretary with the police department in this northern Nova Scotia town convinced Carol Darrington that no one really knows what police work is like until they try it. And so Carol has decided to become a policewoman and has been enrolled in a police academy at Charlottetown. One of about 70 women to apply to the academy this year, she is one of about seven to have been accepted.

Pulling for Gas

Private taxi drivers in Tokyo pull one of their cars during a demonstration demanding that the Ministry of International Trade and Industry supply liquefied petroleum gas (LPG) to fill up their cars. Because of the LPG shortage arising from the current oil crisis, the LPG suppliers are rationing their supply to taxis, most only giving gas to their regular customers. (AP Photo)

Expensive Computer Stands Idle

TORONTO (CP) — The Globe and Mail says in a copyright story that a $1-million IBM computer sits idle for more than half the week at the Liquor Control Board of Ontario's (LCBO) head office while numerous government departments continue to contract out work to other firms using IBM equipment.

The LCBO is paying IBM $240,000 a year in rent for the computer while other departments spend hundreds of thousands of dollars on outside work, the newspaper says.

The government currently is in the midst of reorganizing its computer operations to reduce over-all costs and increase efficiency, The Globe and Mail says.

The government so far has confined its efforts to increasing the capabilities of the ministries of health, education and transportation and communications, the newspaper says, and has ordered three more computers identical to the one used by the LCBO.

The Globe and Mail says there has been no mechanism established within the management board secretariat of the cabinet or the ministry of government services, whereby other ministries or agencies might make use of the spare time on the LCBO computer.

The LCBO uses its machine primarily to operate an order and delivery system and uses it only 10 hours a day from Monday to Friday, the newspaper says.

The Globe and Mail says the board has used IBM computers since 1965 when they were introduced under the LCBO's chief commissioner, G. H. Sheppard who had been chairman of the board of IBM of Canada prior to his appointment by the cabinet in September, 1963. He retired from the LCBO in November, 1970.

John Lucas, manager of systems and programming for the board, said the staff never has attempted to determine if any of IBM's six major competitors can provide a computer that would do the job cheaper, more efficiently or both, says The Globe and Mail.

R. K. Jones, a consultant with Price Waterhouse, told the board he could see no reason why, in the future, the LCBO's computer need could not be fulfilled by the ministry of government services' computer service bureau, the newspaper says.

LCBO officials say this would be impossible as its programs are unlike only on IBM machines and to rewrite them so they might be used on other makes would cost thousands of dollars and cause havoc for a week or more with the LCBO's delivery system.

The Globe and Mail reports the Workmen's Compensation Board and the Ontario Northland Railway are also not making full use of exclusive computers.

The subject of computer consultants is a sensitive one the newspaper says, with many ministry officials reluctant to discuss the subject.

The newspaper says that Warren Beamish, former president of Computel Systems Ltd., and unsuccessful Progressive Conservative candidate in the last federal election against Donald Macdonald in Toronto Rosedale, was paid $8,900 for 9 days of work in interviewing officials of computer hardware manufacturers.

Dying Man Gets MD Diploma

OWENSBORO, Ky. (AP) — David Heath says the medical school diploma he received last week is "the culmination of my life's dream to practise medicine."

Heath, 34, won't be hanging out his shingle. He is dying of cancer and says he's "just hoping to get through the holidays."

He says: "Though I won't be able to practise medicine, I know now that the opportunity was there."

He has been accepted for a semester of supplemental study at the Neurological Institute in Montreal, but he won't be able to take advantage of the acceptance.

The diploma and the "Dr. David M. Heath, M.D." desk plaque under a tiny Christmas tree in the apartment bedroom represent determination and struggle.

Heath says he has known he had terminal cancer since he had an exploratory operation in May to discover the cause of chest and back pains and weight loss. Doctors discovered that he had cancer which had spread so far they were unable to identify the primary source.

He told his fiancee, Janice, that he had thought better of getting married.

"I said I didn't think we should, but Janice felt differently . . . She said she wanted us."

They were married June 17, and Heath says, "If it wasn't for her I might have given up a long time ago."

Two Men Found Dead In Cessna

KIRKLAND LAKE, Ont. (CP)

Two men were found dead Sunday in their light plane about 12 miles northwest of here following a search that began Thursday after the Cessna was reported missing.

The victims were George Tib, 37, and his brother James, 32, both of Englehart, Ont. The plane had been rented from Earlton Airways near Englehart.

Between 300 and 350 volunteers on foot and in snowmobiles took part in the search Sunday along with 12 civilian planes and nine Canadian Forces aircraft.

Temperatures in the area Saturday night were 30 degrees below.

Indian Women Reject Proposal

VANCOUVER (CP) — Delegates to the national Indian rights for Indian women convention want more say for the grass roots—especially women—in formation of Indian policy on proposed changes in the Indian Act.

About 50 delegates during the weekend rejected a working paper on Indian Act revision prepared for the Indian Association of Alberta and demanded a voice for native people across Canada, their chiefs and Indian women who lose treaty status by marrying non-Indians. The convention also voted to seek its own money for research on its own proposals for changes in the act.

Jenny Margetts of Edmonton, western co-chairman of the group, expressed delegates' opposition to the way the working paper was drawn up.

Seek Boost

TORONTO (CP) — Firemen from the city and three boroughs are asking for increases in 1974 wages of up to 19% per cent, seeking parity with Metropolitan Toronto policemen who have gone to conciliation seeking an 18-per-cent increase. The 19½-per-cent increase would raise the salary of city firemen by $2,300, to $14,498, or $6.80 an hour. During the last two-year pact with the boroughs and the city, firemen have been behind by $100 or more.

Mayor Fined

YELLOWKNIFE, N.W.T. (CP) — Mayor Fred Henne of Yellowknife was fined the maximum $500 Friday after pleading guilty to impaired driving. Magistrate Mark de Weerdt added an additional $250 fine after the mayor pleaded guilty to refusing to take a breath analysis test.

Moths Hatch

HOUSTON (AP) — Three exiled Skylab astronauts announced that five gypsy moth eggs hatched Saturday in an experiment aboard the space station.

Astronauts Gerald Carr, William Pogue and Edward Gibson reported that the first of 1,000 eggs in the experiment hatched during the afternoon, about a month before the expected time.

Bourguiba Says Arabs Will Recognize Israel

HABIB BOURGUIBA

TUNIS (AP) — Tunisian President Habib Bourguiba said Sunday the Arabs now recognize the Jews' right to a national homeland in Palestine, "but cannot accept Israel's expansionary, annexationary, Hitlerite policies."

In a two-hour meeting with visiting American reporter, the Tunisian leader went further than any other Arab chief of state in predicting formal diplomatic recognition of Israel and peace between the Arab and Jewish states.

The Arabs are disposed to recognize the state of Israel, to co-operate with it and to exchanges ambassadors, he said. But this recognition was conditional on Israel's return to the lines fixed by the 1947 partition of Palestine.

Bourguiba said a permanent settlement in the Middle East is unlikely in the immediate future because with the government of Premier Golda Meir the Arabs can never make peace.

Bourguiba said presidents Houari Boumedienne of Algeria and Moammar Khadafy of Libya have personally assured him that petroleum supplies would continue to flow without interruption or further cuts, to France, Britain, West Germany, Austria and Italy.

"All they need to do is come with their tankers and fill up."

Micheners Entertain Children

OTTAWA (CP)— Gov.-Gen. Roland Michener was host at his last annual children's Christmas party at Rideau Hall during the weekend and said he was sorry he would not be there for future celebrations.

Gov.Gen. and Mrs. Michener entertained 110 children from the Ottawa Boy's Club Saturday and were presented with a gift of club sweaters.

The children consumed three turkeys, 30 pounds of french fries, 15 pounds of peas, seven gallons of ice cream, a half-gallon of chocolate sauce, 200 pieces of cake, 400 cookies and several gallons of ginger ale and orange juice.

Randall Pushing Monorail System

TORONTO (CP) — Stanley Randall Ontario's trade and development minister for three years until 1971, says he is trying to sell the province a $5-million monorail prototype that will outdate subways.

Mr. Randall, who has established his own consulting firm since he left politics, said in a recent interview he expects word any day from the ministry of transportation and communications which will give him the go-ahead on construction of the monorail on the Steel Co. of Canada 'Ltd.'s Stelco site near Nanticoke on Lake Erie.

"I'm impatient," he said. "I want to start digging holes and get this thing going. I'll sell this proposal to somebody, some government, and I don't care who."

He said the proposal consists of a suspended monorail which hangs from a concrete or steel overhead beam and is capable of operating up to or beyond the capacity of existing subway trains.

MPs' Christmas Holiday in Jeopardy

OTTAWA (CP) — With only five days remaining before the Christmas weekend, holiday plans for MPs are in jeopardy.

Government House Leader Allan MacEachen has said he wants "approval of the emergency energy bill, an oil export tax measure and the proposed election expenses legislation by the end of this week.

He has threatened to work the Commons right after Christmas Day if business bogs down this week. The Conservatives have hinted they may dig in and hammer away at the government's energy bill right through Christmas week.

A government proposal is to extend Commons hours to wind up debate on the three bills this week is making little headway with the opposition parties.

"It won't go over with a big thud," said a spokesman for Conservative House Leader Tom Bell Friday.

Stanley Knowles, New Democratic House leader, said his party is ready to back the suggestion, if necessary.

"But, there's no point in having extra hours if we have to sit between Christmas and New Year's Day."

"We don't think there is any thing magic about Dec 21," said Conservative Whip Walter Baker (Grenville-Carleton), referring to Mr. MacEachen's target date.

It's Parliament's job to consider legislation, Mr. Baker said.

"If it is necessary that in order to consider legislation we have to go over Christmas, I don't think that would be a heartbreaking event for any member of Parliament."

The Conservatives have demanded that the government delay further debate on the energy bills until the federal-provincial energy conference in late January. But, this has been rejected by the government.

Debate is expected to resume today on the energy bill which would establish a board to impose mandatory petroleum allocations at the wholesale level in January, and individual rationing if necessary.

Mud Slide Hits B.C. Town

PORT ALICE, B.C. (CP) — Volunteers using heavy equipment began cleanup operations Sunday after a slide of mud and logs hit this northern Vancouver Island pulp mill community Saturday.

At least two houses were shifted from their foundations by the slide, which stopped Saturday night, and cars were swept from their parking places. Residents of the town of 2,500 said the slide was 150 feet wide and 300 feet long.

Officials said Sunday there were no injuries.

About 35 houses were evacuated, but Mayor John Van der Elst said all those evacuated would be able to return to their houses today.

The mayor said he estimated damage at "a quarter of a million dollars, anyhow."

Dick Fuller, chairman of the local parks and recreation commission, said the slide "started with a loud explosion and there was a series of bangs like claps of thunder.".

At least eight cars were demolished and trailers were strewn about.

Jerry Obszy, a machinist at the Rayonier mill, said: "My car is in somebody's front room right now."

Plane Crashes In Miami Street

MIAMI (AP) — "I had just reached for my nightgown when it sounded as if the whole world exploded," said a resident of the area where a giant cargo plane crashed, killing eight persons.

Eva Thomas, 50, said she was getting ready for bed when she f o u n d engine Lockheed Constellation slammed into the ground across the street.

"I looked out and saw a solid sheet of fire," she said.

The airplane, bound for Venezuela with 21,000 pounds of Christmas trees, crashed seconds after takeoff Saturday night.

The dead included the three crew members.

A federal investigation team planned to comb the block-long wreckage site today, searching for clues to the cause of the crash as efforts continued to learn the plane's ownership.

A recording of the crew's conversation with Miami International Airport gave no indication of the impending crash, officials said, although it showed that the takeoff was delayed 20 minutes while the crew worked on a plane floor that would not close properly.

There also were reports the plane took off without receiving requested maintenance work.

Police identified the crew as pilot William Fox, 48, of Sacramento, Calif.; co-pilot Jesse Flanders, 30, and flight engineer Arthur Rothell, 50, both of Miami.

Victims on the ground included Vincente Iglesias, 41, his wife Maria, 38, and his mother, Theresa, 73.

Vincente's father, Manuel Iglesias, 83, was listed in critical condition with burns over 80 per cent of his body.

Manuel Querol, 62, and his wife Barbara, 60, also were killed when fire from the wreckage engulfed their home.

Police said the two apparently tried to flee from the flames by running into a utility closet.

"We found them there embracing," said police Sgt. Doug Taggerty. "They died in each other's arms."

Old-Age Secret

KRIVI VIR, Yugoslavia (AP) — Shepherds in this eastern Serbian village who are approaching, if not over, the age of 100 swear by the end result of eating sheep's milk that is placed in oval tubes, fermented for a month and then stored on covered wooden plates for a year until it becomes sour and hard.

No Plans For Change In Time

OTTAWA (CP) — The federal government has no plans to recommend that Canada adopt daylight time this winter as a means of conserving heating fuel, Energy Minister Donald Macdonald said Saturday.

Mr. Macdonald noted in an interview that the area is primarily one of provincial responsibility and subject to "local option."

President Nixon signed a bill Saturday putting the United States on year-round daylight time starting Jan. 6. The measure is aimed at conserving fuel oil and electricity.

Mr. Macdonald said some areas of the country might find it "just too much of nuisance to have an hour time difference with the United States" and opt for daylight time.

He specifically mentioned Ontario, which provincial energy minister Darcy McKeough has said may follow the lead of the U.S.

Mr. Macdonald said studies by his department and Ontario Hydro indicate that because of the northern climate, a switch to daylight time in Canada would not result in a great saving of energy.

Orillia (Special)— It was a goal scorer's delight Saturday night as the Orillia Terriers bombed the Belleville Eagles 18-3 in Orillia, avenging their 9-8 loss to Belleville on Friday.

Grant Moore started the ball rolling for the Terriers when he scored at the five minute mark. Kirk Sutherland got a trio of goals in the first period and Dan McCulloch and Dave Street added singles.

Panthers Hand Cats Second Straight Loss

By ALAN TEEWORTH
Sports Staff

"A lack of effort on everybody's part was the way Belleville Bobcat coach Mike Hunter put it after his team lost to the Pickering Panthers, 6-4, last night at the Arena in a battle for first place in the Metro Junior B League. The loss was the first at home this season for Cats.

And for all but about three minutes in the third period that was the whole story of the game, as the Panthers "Outshot, outstudied, outhit, outskated, the whole works over us," as Hunter described it.

The loss dropped the Cats into second place, one point behind the Panthers.

The Cats scored their four goals in the three minutes at the beginning of the third period, two minutes and 30 seconds in the middle of which Pickering controlling the rest of the sloppily played game.

The Panthers started the scoring in the game at 17:37 of the first period, with Kevin Owen firing the first of three goals he scored.

Owen flipped the puck over a falling Bobby Moore after he Pickering star had rifled down from behind by Jim Richardson. Richardson had been covering for Joey Edwards, taken out of the play in the center ice zone.

Sloppy defensive work continued to plague the Cats in the second, as the Panthers scored four more goals.

Reece Fegredo got credit for the first Pickering goal of the period, when his weak wrist shot from the point seemed to deflect off Dave Taylor's skate. Moore had no chance on the goal, being screened on the play, as well as having the puck change direction.

The next goal was a smooth passing play between Pickering's Gary Murphy and Don Dwight, with Owen the author of the goal, scoring after Moore made the initial stop.

The last two goals in the period were of the soft variety. The first off the stick of Owen beat Moore low on his glove side and the puck went over the goalie's shoulder on Murphy's shot.

Bruce Clarke scored Moore for the third period.

Clarke played well, allowing only one goal, by Owen, after an elusive rebound. Owen had waltzed in on a clear breakaway with Pagnello from the blueline.

Belleville's only span of controlling the game came at the beginning of the third period, when Hunter's power play talk apparently did the job.

The Cats looked like themselves for the short period of time, scoring four goals. Cats, the highest scoring team in the league, with over 150 goals in their games so far this season, were held off by Panthers up to that point by Pickering

New Members Join Boosters

Seventeen new members were accepted into the Belleville Bobcat Booster Club last night, bringing the total membership close to 100, according to club publicity director John Faulkner.

The new members paid their $1 initiation fee at last night's meeting of the club at the Wharf Street Debating Club.

The executive was also rounded out last night, with Mrs. June Dainard being elected to the position of Social convenor.

Discussion centered on a friendly membership raise of $5 for the club. The motion was passed.

Possible social events and methods of fund raising were discussed, but both were delayed in the planning stage until the next meeting.

The club will meet Thursday evening at the Wharf Street Debating Club, Front St. South, at 7.30 p.m. goaltender Dave Hulme.

Robbie Foster scored the first Belleville goal with only 28 seconds elapsed in the period, as he combined with Kevin Soares and Mike Watt to put the red light on behind Hulme.

Jim Richardson scored the next goal, the first of two, with an assist by Norm Jones, at 1:47 of the period.

Richardson took the puck from Jones from the faceoff at the back of the circle, firing in the shot before Hulme could get set.

He got his second just 29 seconds later, banging in a loose puck in front of the net for his 26th goal of the season. Jones also received an assist on that marker.

Andy Ricketts rounded out the four goal rally by the Cats, as he executed a perfect up-in and Joey Edwards' shot from the left point.

And that was it as far as Belleville went during the game. Pickering scored their ninth goal at 11:12 of the period, and except for a brief span at the end of the game when the Bobcats pulled Clarke in favor of an extra attacker, Pickering controlled the game.

Belleville, only allowed one power play goal to be scored, but two short handed goals did result from an unusually weak power play on the Cats' part.

The Panthers outshot the Bobcats 37 to 19 in the game, played before about 800 fans at the Memorial Arena.

The Cats next game is Friday night, when they take on the Blues in Bramalea.

SNATCHES RECORD

MUNICH, Germany (AP) — Super heavyweight Rudolf Mang of West Germany snatched 402.6 pounds Saturday night to set a world record for the weight lifting event. Serge Reding of Belgium held the previous record of 401.5 pounds. Mang failed on his first attempt and then accomplished the feat on the second try.

Rollins Pewees Paste Oshawa 6-1

The Rollins' Construction Pewees scored their first win of the season in league play on Sunday, coming up with a 6-1 win over Oshawa, although they weren't so happy on Saturday, dropping a 6-5 squeaker to Peterborough.

Steve Mufina fired two goals in leading the Constructionmen to their Sunday win, with Miller, Kevin Meagher, Mark Crawford, and Tim Soule added the other markers, while Clarence Broekma bagged four assists.

Peter Vanderzwet scored the only goal for Oshawa.

They lost Saturday to Kingston, despite Mofina's two goal performance. Terrance McBrien, Shawn Mulroney, and Broekma were the other scorers, 4th Broekma's coming with just nine seconds remaining in the game.

Gord Allinks, Steve Smith, Roger Ferguson, Steve Larmer, Steve Gerlomy, and Larry Floyd all contributed to the win by Kingston.

The McInroy Maines Minor Bantams were not as fortunate, however, as they dropped both their weekend games, 8-4 to Kingston Saturday, and 11-2 Sunday to Oshawa.

Danny Duffy, Danny Jacques, Steve Flowers, and Mike Bryant scored in a losing cause Saturday, with Duffy and Gary Kelmeny coming up with the only goals in Sunday's game.

The Dixie Lee Peewee Minors suffered the same fate as did the Bantams, dropping a pair on the weekend. They lost to Peterborough 6-2 Saturday, and to Oshawa 11-5, Sunday, at home.

Bob Walling fired two goals to lead the Litlock City team to victory Saturday, with Warren Ferguson, Kevin Casey, Brad Cowan, and Mark Bowie adding the others. Tony Parks and Bobby Wolf scored the only goals for Belleville.

Louis Crawford, Greg Horwood, Tony Parks, Danny Rose, and Bobby Wolfe all contributed Belleville goals Sunday, with Stefano Beirnes scoring the hat trick for Oshawa.

In juvenile OMHA play, the Belleville Western Tire team was defeated by Oshawa 5-3.

Oshawa's Hosta brothers, John and Bert, did most of the scoring for their team as John got a pair of goals and Bert scored three. Dan Kvanak rounded out the scoring for Oshawa.

For the Western Tiremen it was Joe Edwards with two tallies, Mike Watt, Larry Wooding and Ken Just with one goal each.

Performance on Road Gives Hawks a Boost

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Chicago Black Hawks play two types of hockey—one on the road and the other at home.

Their road game was working to perfection Sunday night when they whipped New York Rangers 6-1 in a National Hockey League game, running their unbeaten streak on the road to 11 games.

"We just concentrate more on the road, said right wing Cliff Koroll, who opened the game's scoring at 6:06 of the second period.

"If it's 0-0 after one period at Chicago Stadium, the fans start booing and we open up offensively," said Koroll.

"But when the fans start booing on the road, it doesn't bother anybody."

Most of the booing in New York Sunday night was directed at the Rangers, who had an ill-game home unbeaten streak ended.

Dennis Hull offered another view of the Black Hawks' success out of town.

"When we're away from home, we're the ones who have to open the game up.

And the game did open up after a close-checking, defense-oriented first period. Goals by Koroll, Pit Martin and John Marks gave the Hawks a 3-1 second-period lead.

Dave Rivakow, Jim Pappin and Darcy Rota scored for Chicago in the third period. Ron Gilbert scored for the Rangers.

Ed Giacomin gave up all six Chicago goals. He took over in goal for Gilles Villemure after Villemure suffered a knee injury late in the first period.

In Sunday's other games, Boston Bruins topped California Golden Seals 5-3, Philadelphia Flyers blanked New York Islanders 4-0, Detroit Red Wings out-scored Vancouver Canucks 7-5, St. Louis Blues downed Buffalo Sabres 5-3 and Pittsburgh Penguins edged Atlanta Flames, 2-1.

On Saturday, the Rangers and Toronto Maple Leafs fought to Chicago, tied the Islanders 3-3, Boston whipped Vancouver 7-2, Detroit blanked Pittsburgh 2-0, Minnesota North Stars topped Buffalo 4-3, Atlanta edged Philadelphia 3-2 and Montreal Canadiens trounced Los Angeles Kings 6-2.

goals and 32 assists in 28 games.

It was the seventh straight game in which Esposito has scored a goal and put him 11 goals ahead of his scoring pace of the 1970-71 season when he set a record.

Philadelphia 4 NY Islanders 0

Goalie Bernie Parent stopped 25 shots and picked up his seventh shutout of the season for the Flyers, who stayed one point in front of Chicago in the NHL West Division.

The Islanders lost without the help of defenceman Denis Potvin, top pick in last spring's amateur draft. Reporters covering the Islanders said Potvin missed the team bus to Philadelphia.

Detroit 7 Vancouver 5

Mickey Redmond, a 32-goal scorer last season, snapped a seven-game scoreless streak with two goals as the Wings ran their four-year home record against the Canucks to nine wins and a tie in 10 games.

St. Louis 5 Buffalo 2

Lou Angotti scored two goals within 19 minutes during a four-goal second period that carried the Blues to their victory.

Pittsburgh 2 Atlanta 1

Al McDonough's scored brought his two-season scoring total against the flames to 11, scoring both Pittsburgh goals — the winner with less than six minutes left to play.

The schedule resumes Tuesday night when the Seals are at Montreal the Canucks visit the Islanders and the Kings play at Detroit.

Oilers, Knights Draw Slim Crowd

By GLENN COLE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

The World Hockey Association officials who decided Cherry Hill, N.J., would be a good spot to place the troubled New York franchise should be walking around a bit red faced today.

Since they have been playing out of the 3,000-seat Cherry Hill arena, Knights have had their problems attracting spectators, something that drove the WHA club from Madison Square Garden in downtown New York City.

The Knights have averaged just over 1,000 fans in New Jersey and Sunday, they drew the smallest gathering ever to watch a game in the two-year-old WHA.

Only 874 fans turned up as the Knights battled Edmonton Oilers and the Oilers, leaders in the West Division, came up with a 7-6 win.

In other games, Quebec Nordiques edged Toronto Toros 4-3, Cleveland Crusaders and Houston Aeros battled to a 2-2 tie, Chicago Cougars nipped New England Whalers 3-2, Minnesota Fighting Saints nipped Winnipeg Jets 3-2 and it was Los Angeles Sharks 5, Vancouver Blazers 3.

Saturday, Cleveland edged Toronto 4-3, Chicago dumped Houston 5-2 and Vancouver upended Los Angeles 6-4.

Third-period goals by Jim Harrison and Ross Perkins capped a comeback for be Oilers, who trailed 4-1 after one period but rallied to gie the score 5-5 after two.

Harrison broke the tie with his 15th goal of the year at 9:38 but Perkins got what proved to be the winner 50 seconds later. The Oilers' second win at three in game losing streak for the Oilers.

Nordiques 4 Toros 3

Andre Gaudette celebrated his 28th birthday by firing the game-winning goal at 4:49 of the sudden-death overtime period to give Quebec its win over Toronto.

The win moved the Nordiques into sole possession of second place in the WHA's East Division with 33 points, one ahead of Cleveland and two ahead of Toros.

The loss was the first for the after a win and three ties, and the defeat also snapped a six-game winning streak Toronto had at Varsity Arena.

Crusaders 2 Aeros 2

Veterans Gerry Cheevers of the Crusaders and rookie Ron Grahame of the Aeros put on a goaltending battle before 5,139 fans in Houston.

Cheevers, last year's all-star goalie in the WHA, blocked 38 shots while Grahame, who played college hockey in Michigan last year, kicked out 31.

Cougars 3 Whalers 2

Ralph Backstrom's goal at 14:20 of the third period completed a three-goal rally by the Cougars, who trailed 2-0 going into the final 20 minutes.

The victory was the first for the Cougars at Boston Garden in two years.

Fighting Saints 3 Jets 2

Wayne Connelly's second goal of the game midway through the third period gave the Fighting Saints their win over the Winnipeg Jets before 4,000 at Winnipeg Arena.

Murray Heasley got Minnesota's first goal 30 seconds after the opening faceoff and 22 seconds later, Norm Beaudin tied the score. Ron Snell got the other Jets' goal early in the second period.

Sharks 5 Blazers 3

First-period goals by Steve Sutherland, Ron Walters and Brian McDonald started the Sharks en route to their fourth consecutive win on home ice and their seventh in the last 10 outings.

Jockey's Record –503 Winners

Selects Edge Bruins

VANCOUVER (CP) — Victor Schalimov scored two goals and set up the other as Moscow Selects edged New Westminster Bruins 3-2 in an international exhibition hockey game Sunday.

The Bruins, bolstered by players from other Western Canada Hockey League teams, gave the Soviet side a good battle throughout the game and scored the first and last goals of the contest.

Both goals were by players from Calgary Centennials. Jerry Holland gave the Bruins a brief 1-0 lead when he scored after just 15 seconds of the first period, and linemate Mike Rogers scored a power-play goal with 6:06 left in the game.

Anatoli Kartaev scored the other goal for the Selects.

The Moscow team, after spotting the Bruins the early lead, came back and dominated play for much of the first 13 minutes of the opening period and emerged from the period with a 2-1 lead.

Schalimov tied the score at 1:21 of the first period when he took a loose puck at his own blueline, split the New Westminster defence and beat goalie Larry Hendrick from close in.

Kartaev's goal came with the Selects killing a penalty to Mikhail Titov after some sloppy work by the New Westminster defence.

Sandy Hawley Keeps His 1973 Resolution

LAUREL, Md. (CP) — Whatus next for Jockey Sandy Hawley? He passed his stated goal of 500 winners for a single season Saturday with four triumphs, giving him 503 from 1,894 mounts.

The Whitby, Ont., native broke Bill Shoemaker's 20-year-old world record of 485 winners in a season Dec. 6 at Laurel racetrack after winding up with 478 victories on the Ontario Jockey Club circuit.

Well, there's always No. 500 and, of course, a possibility of a few more.

"Barring suspensions or an injury, I believe I can hit 515 or 520 by the end of the year," said the 24-year-old Hawley who won No. 500 aboard Charlie Jr. in the third race Saturday.

Charlie Jr., the second favorite, pulled away from 11-to-10 favorite Gray Idol in the stretch and romped to a 5¼-length victory. The winner paid $7.80, $4.20 and $2.80.

"I kept looking for the grey horse (Gray Idol) . . . to make his run at us in the stretch. The grey horse never made his appearance."

Later, Hawley won the fourth with Cockpit, the seventh with Ghost Train and the ninth with Ambi Hule in the ninth. Cockpit paid $7.60 for the win, Ghost Train $7.40 and Ambi Hula $4.60.

Hawley's New Year's resolution last January was that he'd ride 500 thoroughbreds to victory in 1973.

"Yes sir," Hawley said from his Laurel motel. "That 503 got.

Hawley, who has earned purses of more than $2 million (10 per cent of winning purses go to the jockey), also has had 204 second-place finishes and has been third 194 times—including a third in the second race at Laurel Saturday.

Thoughts

What about 1974?

"Well, that depends on whether we get a bid to ride in California. We liked the brief look we had of tracks like Santa Anita, but it's not definite whether we'll move there or return to Canada."

Hawley, now living in Mississauga, Ont., will likely ride in the United States next year if he hooks up with a top trainer.

"We plan to keep riding until the Laurel meet ends on Dec. 21. Then we're going to Bowie when it opens on Jan. 2. We'll ride there until March 15 and then take a holiday."

A tournament Sunday may have given Hawley an unexpected day today. Track officials decided Sunday night to close Laurel today.

With the meet season ended at most North American tracks, there are few other tracks, at which Hawley could ride today the Laurel victory total.

Statistically, Hawley sports a winning percentage of 28.6 this year and 25.6 since his career officially began in 1969. He won four races in 1968 but only had 36 mounts as an apprentice.

Shoemaker's best one-year percentage was 28.8 set in 1953 when he set the world record of 485 wins with 1,683 mounts.

"I think we're going to take it a little easier next year. By taking it easier, I mean we're going to ride the same number of days and going to ride six or seven horses a day," said Hawley.

"There are no special goals, at the moment, for next year. We'll let someone else shoot for the 500 mark.

"I really think it's worth it. I feel great to be able to reach the 500 mark. I feel now that I have accomplished something and I just have a great feeling."

THIS RECORD UNWANTED

ATLANTA (AP) — Cold, windy weather kept fans away from Atlanta Stadium Sunday as Atlanta Falcons set a team record for no-shows when 34,703 ticket-holders chose not to attend the National Football League finale against New Orleans Saints. There were only 34,147 in attendance at the game, won by the Falcons 14-10 on a 37-degree weather with blustery 18 mile-an-hour winds from the north.

O.J. Tops 2000 On Final Day

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Oakland Raiders are in the National Football League playoffs for the sixth time in seven years.

One reason they made it is that they were ready when Denver Broncos coach John Ralston gave it the old college try with a trick play he used when he coached at Stanford University.

And while things went wrong in Denver's bid for its first playoff berth, everything went right for Buffalo's O. J. Simpson in the Bills' 30-14 victory over New York Jets.

Simpson became the first man to rush for 2,000 yards in a single season—and he even picked up two yards after the game was over when NFL statisticians re-checked and found an error.

Denver was trailing 14-10 in the third quarter of the game for the American Conference West title at Oakland and was without starting quarterback Charley Johnson, who was injured.

Ralston ordered a run off a fake punt on 4th down and the ball on the Denver 48. The play was stopped for no gain, and Oakland moved quickly for the clinching touchdown in a 21-17 victory.

"We were ready for it," Oakland coach John Madden said of the fake punt.

"We remembered that Ralston used that play for Stanford against Ohio State in the Rose Bowl three years ago and got away with it. The Broncos have used it three times this season."

Three other teams gained the playoffs on the final day of the regular season.

Cincinati Bengals outlasted Houston Oilers 27-24 to win the AFC Central; Dallas Cowboys blasted St. Louis Cardinals 30-3 to win the National Conference East and Washington Redskins topped Philadelphia Eagles 26-20 to earn the NFC wild-card berth.

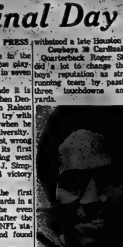
Next weekend's playoff pairings are:

—Saturday: Washington at Minnesota Vikings, the NFC Central winners, who trounced New York Giants 31-7 Sunday; and Pittsburgh Steelers, who beat San Francisco 49ers 27-16 Saturday, at Oakland.

—Sunday: Cincinnati at Miami Dolphins, the defending Super Bowl champions and AFC East winners, who blasted Detroit Lions 31-0 Saturday, and Los Angeles Rams, NFC Western and 26-7 winners over Cleveland Browns Sunday, at Dallas Cowboys.

In other final-day action, At Knute Falcons edged New Orleans Saints 14-10, Kansas City Chiefs trounced San Diego Chargers 23-6, Baltimore Colts nipped New England Patriots 18-13 and Green Bay Packers downed Chicago Bears 21-6.

Bills 34 Jets 14



The two yards fanzi in the re-check gave Simpson 200 on 34 attempts, making him the first man to gain at least 200 yards three times in one season in NFL history.

Bengals 27 Oilers 24

Cincinnati built a 27-10 lead with Ken Anderson throwing three touchdown passes, including 77 and 66-yard hookups with Isaac Curtis, and then withstood a late Houston rally.

Cowboys 30 Cardinals 3

Quarterback Roger Staubach did his bit to change the Cowboys' reputation as strictly a running team by passing for three touchdowns and 252 yards.

O. J. SIMPSON

Redskins 26 Eagles 20

Running back Larry Brown gained a total of 162 yards and caught three of four touchdown passes thrown by Bill Kilmer, who went to hospital after the game with stomach pains.

Vikings 31 Giants 7

Fran Tarkenton's clutch passing and two interceptions, which led up touchdowns, helped Minnesota win in a snow storm at the Yale Bowl in New Haven, Conn.

Packers 27 Bears 14

John Rowser scored one Pittsburgh touchdown with a 71-yard run after intercepting a pass by John Brodie, who played his final NFL game.

Dolphins 31 Lions 10

Bob Griese bit Paul Warfield in the end for touchdown passes in the first half.

Rams 26 Browns 17

John Hadl passed for two touchdowns and David Ray kicked four field goals as the Rams overcame to finish with a team-record 130 points. The Rams finished with a 12-2 mark, their best ever.

Falcons 14 Saints 10

Atlanta, which had beaten New Orleans 62-7 in the season opener, won this time on Eddie Ray's two one-yard touchdown runs.

Chiefs 23 Chargers 6

Ed Podolak, Jeff Kinney and Wendell Hayes scored touchdowns on short runs and Jan Stenerud kicked four field goals for the Chiefs.

Colts 18 Patriots 13

Baltimore's Marty Domres and New England's Jim Plunkett each passed for two touchdowns in a driving snow.

Packers 21 Bears 6

Green Bay's Jerry Tagge threw his first two touchdown passes as a pro and John Brockington rushed for 142 yards.

CRICKETER TAKES PILLS

SYDNEY, Australia (AP) — Sid Barnes, 57, one of the great of Australian cricket, was found dead by his wife in their suburban apartment Sunday. Police said he was found "with a bottle of tablets in his hand." He played in 13 test matches and averaged 70.5 runs in tests against England. He was also a spectacular close-in fieldsman.

LONDON (Reuter) — The governing body of British football decided Sunday that regular league and cup play would go on as scheduled despite the power crisis gripping the country. The Football League management committee decided at an emergency meeting that "the show must go on," but added that the program could be extended to the end of June if necessary to take care of rescheduled matches. Since a ban on floodlighting crowds have dropped substantially with a resultant loss of revenue for many clubs.

Raiders Gain Share of Lead

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Two weekend victories finally have given Nepean Raiders what they've been seeking all season, a chunk of the Central Junior Hockey League lead.

By beating Gloucester Rangers 5-3 Saturday and Pembroke Lumber Kings 6-4 Sunday, the Raiders pulled even with Smiths Falls Bears, who lost 7-5 to Gloucester Sunday.

In the fourth weekend game in the six-team league, Rockland Nationals stirred in the league cellar with a 7-5 victory over fifth-place Brockville Warriors.

The Rangers stand third and the Kings fourth in the league.

Mike Eaves scored twice in each game for Nepean getting support Sunday from Terry Chiasson, Dorken, Kyle Smith and Sid Tanchak.

In the Saturday loss, Gloucester scorers were Dave Dixie, with two goals, and Dan Anderson.

In their Sunday victory, the Rangers got two goals from Steve Dawe, and one each from Mike McDuffe, Larry Parks, John McNaught, Dixie and Bruce Reid.

Smiths Falls scorers in that game were Terry Fournier, with two goals, Gary Nicholls, Des Allen and Brian Johnson.

Scoring in the Pembroke loss to Nepean were Peter Hinsky, Randy Rich, Terry Woernke and Randy Burnum.

At Rockland, the Nationals got two goals each from Gilbert Lecavalier and Louis Lortie and one each from Gary Young, Jean-Pierre Menard and Marcien White.

Brockville scorers were Bob Summers, Bob Mitchell, Rick Bordeleau, Doug MacLean and Dave Rowe.

Next scheduled league action is Tuesday when Pembroke is at Rockland.

GAUDAUR DENIES RUMOR

TORONTO (CP) — Commissioner John Gaudaur said Saturday night that a report Halifax is getting close to a Canadian Football League franchise is new to him, adding that there have been no "concrete" talks recently with anyone in Halifax. He was commenting on a story by Hugh Townsend, sports editor of the Halifax Chronicle-Herald, who said an informed source told him the CFL is "unbelievably close" to establishing a team in the city.

Allmand Praised For Parley

OTTAWA (CP) — For Warren Allmand, the verbal bouquets at the end of a federal-provincial conference last week are a fitting end to a generally successful first year as federal solicitor-general.

And the fact that the conference on corrections, the first in 16 years, was classified Friday as a success by provincial ministers from across the country must stagur well for the minister who was appointed from the Liberal backbench only last November.

An added success for the relatively obscure Montreal lawyer has been his ability to defuse much of the criticism that surrounded his department when he took over from Jean-Pierre Goyer.

Mr. Allmand is a bouncy man who seems in motion even when sitting down. He displays a sincerity that not even opposition members can question.

He is a sharp contrast to Mr. Goyer, repeatedly criticized by the opposition and thoroughly disliked by men in his own department, which has responsibility for the RCMP, parolee and penitentiaries.

Mr. Goyer would answer his Commons critics in a manner that would engage some opposition spokesmen while Mr. Allmand shows a diplomacy and a desire both to inform and to correct a situation.

Some provincial ministers were lavish in their praise last week, complimenting Mr. Allmand for calling the conference to hear their views and for his belief in the need for provincial consultation.

They liked his philosophy, close to theirs, on the need for co-ordination within the whole justice system ranging from treatment of young offenders and hardened criminals to rehabilitation, protection of the public and diversion of offenders from the prison system.

But the ministers also indicated they will wait to see if his sympathy for many of their points of view turns into concrete action.

Bluestein Held in Shooting

TORONTO (CP) — David Stillman, 56, of Toronto is in critical condition in hospital after being wounded by two or three gun shots.

Max Bluestein, a Toronto businessman and long-time friend of Mr. Stillman, has been charged with attempted murder.

Police said they arrived at the Bluestein residence Saturday night and found Mrs. Bluestein comforting a man in a car in the driveway.

The man had three bullet wounds, although police believe he was hit by two shots—one passing through the body. A fourth shot hit the front door of the Bluestein home.

A police official, said the two men had been close friends and that Mr. Stillman was president of a club owned by Mr. Bluestein.

However, police refused to comment on the shooting except to say they did not believe it was connected with a bomb attempt on Mr. Bluestein's life two months ago.

Two truck drivers noticed four sticks of dynamite dangling from Mr. Bluestein's car as he drove into a shopping plaza Oct. 31. Police bomb experts dismantled the bomb which one police official described as powerful enough to "blow Mr. Bluestein and his car 15 or 20 feet in the air . . . in pieces."

Stanfield Accepts Crown Oil Company

OTTAWA (CP) — Opposition Leader Robert Stanfield says he does not think a Crown-owned oil corporation is essential, but he could live with one.

Mr. Stanfield, interviewed on the CTV program Question Period broadcast Sunday, says he does not regard "a fully Crown-owned corporation as essential to the development of Canadian resources."

"But I don't object to this if it's done in a way that doesn't create an impression of uncertainty among private investors, which affects any beneficial effects or new money that the Crown corporation might put in."

Prime Minister Trudeau announced earlier this month that the government would set up a national petroleum corporation to take part in oil exploration, research and development.

"The national petroleum corporation is not of importance in the immediate future with the exception of the role of buying offshore oil . . . we go along with that, that's necessary," said Mr. Stanfield.

Mr. Stanfield said the key issue in national oil policy is the question of price.

"The sensible way to approach this whole problem is to follow the procedure that Mr. Macdonald said he was going to follow initially-develop a policy in association with the prov inces.

Little Effort Made to Boost Mass Transit

By CHRISTOPHER CARROLL
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Although many metropolitan areas in the United States are offering discount fares, free rides and extra service to encourage the use of mass transit vehicles instead of cars, few urban centres in Canada are taking the same steps here to save fuel.

A Cross-Canada Survey by The Canadian Press shows that, with the exception of Toronto and Montreal where publicity campaigns have increased the number of mass transit riders in the last few years, few transit companies are making special efforts to get people out of their automobiles.

In Vancouver, Calgary, Edmonton, Winnipeg, Regina and in the Atlantic provinces, transit authorities said nothing was being done to either encourage passengers or save fuel.

In Vancouver, British Columbia Hydro said it was not taking any energy-saving steps at all, since it was not anticipating any fuel shortage. They said the city bus fleet was essentially electric-trolley, not gas or diesel, and a fuel shortage would not affect the company.

In Edmonton, the transit system is saving fuel, but is it not a result of efforts to save energy. The city-owned transit system has been on one strike since Nov. 29 and a spokesman said there is no indication of an early end to the walkout of the 680 transit workers.

The spokesman said the enforced savings by the transit system amount to $233 a day on electricity to operate its 87 trolley buses, but that it meant much heavier use of cars by city workers who normally use buses to travel to and from work.

In Winnipeg an advertising campaign dealing with energy conservation has been launched. However, a spokesman said any schedule changes will be directly related to public demand for service.

Thomas McKim of the Halifax transit company said no steps have been taken recently because of the energy situation, but he said there has been a lessening of auto traffic in the city and a corresponding increase in the use of city buses.

He said the transit system turn down the thermostat in the garage and servicing areas. He said the city routes have been cut back because of the fuel situation, or rising costs.

There is no problem in Prince Edward Island because there is no intercity public transportation.

In Ontario, neither the Hamilton transit system nor the London transportation commission have taken any steps to encourage greater use of facilities to save energy.

A spokesman for the London Transportation Commission said however, the company can handle up to 40 per cent more passengers and that plans include expansion of the system.

In Toronto, James McGaffin, assistant general secretary of the Toronto Transit Commission (TTC), said the TTC has done quite a bit in the last few years to encourage people to ride public transit facilities.

Bound Bodies of Four Are Found in Detroit

DETROIT (AP) — Police sought to learn Saturday if the gangland-type slayings of two men and two girls were related to the drug trade.

Bodies of the four were found lying face down, gagged and tied, on the floor of a building which police said was used as a motorcycle club headquarters.

Police said a substance suspected to be narcotics was found in the slaying area but he gave no further details.

All four had been shot in the back of the head with a shotgun. Their bodies were found shortly after 3 a.m. Saturday.

Police identified them as James Hill, 32; Larry Spears, 23, Michelle Hilbert, 21, and Regina Simpson, 23, all of Detroit.

GM Workers Ratify Pact

TORONTO (CP) — The 22,500 United Auto Workers (UAW) at seven General Motors of Canada Ltd. plants have voted 85 per cent in favor of accepting a new three-year contract.

The ratification vote, concluded during the weekend, followed a tentative agreement reached Dec. 8 between the company and union.

Two plants in Windsor and others in Toronto, London, St. Catharines, Oshawa and Ste. Therese, Que., all voted to accept the new pact, Jerry Harfield, GM public relations official said Sunday.

A group of picketers march in front of Parliament Hill. The group from the Cowansville RCA plant is protesting the plant shutdown and are asking the government to place a higher tariff on certain television tubes imported from Japan which are competing with those manufactured in Cowansville 60 miles south of Montreal. About 200 people are being put out of work by the plant shutdown. (CP Photo)

Boston Tea Party Is Interrupted

BOSTON (AP) — Re-enactment of the Boston Tea Party, the spark that fired the American Revolution, was proceeding in fine style Sunday, the 200th anniversary, when modern-day protesters moved in with the issues of 1973.

Thousands of persons gathered at the Congress Street Bridge at Boston Harbor, several hundred feet from Griffin's Wharf where the Dec. 16, 1773, tea party took place; despite freezing temperatures and Boston's first snow of the season.

An establishment group, Boston 200, was providing a mimed re-enactment of the actual tea party, with actors on a replica of the 18th-century British ship Beaver tossing empty chests into the icy water, when rowboats of members of the People's Bicentennial Commission converged on the harbor waving signs reading "Impeach Nixon" and "Put the heat on the oil companies."

The Commission's boats were turned back by Coast Guard cutters and harbor police.

Then, as the British ship was tarred and feathered and he was hung in effigy, while voices on a loud public address system blasted major oil companies for causing the energy crisis.

A small contingent from the Disabled American Veterans, painted and dressed as Indians, had kicked off the afternoon's activities by boarding the ship and tossing empty crates overboard. The Boston Indian Council showed up to protest what they terr.ed a defamation of Indians, but there were no incidents.

The day's activities were peaceful, if noisy. In the only incident, militia groups

A dummy of the president from Concord and Lexington, camped at one end of the bridge, left in a huff when the PBC crowd stormed into their area.

Boston Mayor Kevin White, asked if he thought confusion was running rampant, said: "I'm in city hall every day. This is not a hell of a lot different."

Everyone! Join in the spirit of a very Happy Holiday with friends, family. For the pleasure of serving you, our heartfelt gratitude.

BIRTHS

WALLACE — Jim and Sheryl (Bonter) are pleased to announce the birth of their son Timothy James on Friday, December 14, 1973 at Belleville General Hospital. A brother for Tammy.

IN MEMORIAM

HAMMOND — In loving memory of a dear husband, Bob, who passed away December 18, 1971.
Thinking today he may give the not forget.
Sadly my heart is sore and lonely,
I have to bear a night or a morning only.
Sometimes I cry, sometimes I laugh,
But a day of it I forget not.
As my heart lies sad and broken,
As it does each year and day,
Memories return of loving moments gone by.
Time will not heal memories lost,
Time is marked by with Janice.

Four Killed

FLINT, Mich. (AP) — Four men were killed and eight injured, three of them seriously, in a shootout between two motorcycle clubs at a party early Sunday morning.

Police said the incident took place at the headquarters of the Flint Fly-In Wheels Motorcycle Club and involved another motorcycle group from Pontiac.

Police interviewed 40 to 50 witnesses and suspects, and a 26-year-old Flint man and a 22-year-old Pontiac man were being held.

Canada's Growth in '73 Is Biggest in 17 Years

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada's economy appeared likely to wind up 1973 with its biggest expansion in 17 years when all the figures are in, and seemed poised for further strong gains in the new year.

But the forecasts were clouded by the sharpest inflation in 22 years, a still troublesome rate of unemployment and the spectre of serious shortages of imported fuel in the East.

Latest figures from Statistics Canada showed the gross national product, the total of all the nation's private and government spending, increased 7.3 per cent in 1973 alone over the corresponding period of 1972.

The figure represents real growth after deducting for inflation, and if carried through the fourth quarter at about the seven-per-cent annual growth rate predicted by the government would be the best year as 8.4-per-cent rise in 1956.

The third-quarter GNP was running at a seasonally adjusted annual rate of $129.1 billion.

Prime Minister Trudeau's Liberal government, under heavy political fire from the Conservatives on economic issues, reported a survey showing strong business expansion plans for 1974.

Most economic forecasters put 1974 growth prospects at about 5% per cent, considered to be fine with long-term expansion expectations. Those included the Economic Council of Canada, the Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce and a panel of economists queried by the Conference Board of Canada.

However, some analysts, including the conference board itself, foresaw a slower growth of little more than four per cent.

Some thought energy shortages might reduce it further. But the conference board, a major economic advisory organization, and Finance Minister John Turner agreed that many people were reaching too sharply to threats of fuel shortages.

"We just don't think the impact will be all that significant," said Arthur J. Smith, president of the Conference board.

"Canadians, I often think, are more inclined, when they see a silver lining, to become overly preoccupied in searching for a dark cloud to go with it," Mr. Turner said of worries over energy, inflation and the international trade picture.

The inflation was the worst since the early Korean War year of 1951. Living costs in November were up 9.3 per cent over the previous year, with sharply rising food prices 18.2 per cent higher.

The government dismissed Conservative demands for wage and price controls as a cure worse than the disease. Instead it provided bread and milk subsidies plus greater assistance to the poor and aged. It urged farmers and manufacturers to increase production to meet heavy demands and help stabilize prices.

The total consumer borrowing of Canadians climbed above $46 billion, up some $5 billion in one year, and the government boosted interest rates substantially to ease inflationary spending pressures.

The Bank of Canada raised its interest rate to chartered banks five times in six months to 7¼ from 5¼ per cent. The banks in turn increased their lowest interest rates for their best customers to nine per cent. That meant ordinary citizens were paying 10 per cent or more on new home and auto loans and even higher rates on many small loans.

"Because of the booming Canadian economy, demand for loans is exceeding the capacity of the banks to generate funds and is also accentuating inflationary pressures," said Bank of Montreal in announcing the latest interest increase in September.

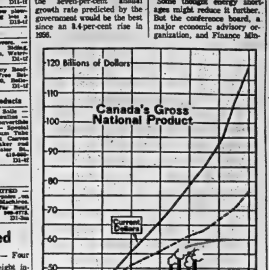
A key Ottawa banking source, who declined to be quoted by name, said the performance of the Canadian dollar in 1973 was quite stable in comparison with the ups and downs of many other world currencies.

But this source declined to forecast 1974 prospects because of uncertainty over the world oil shortage.

Most of the year the dollar was within 1¼ per cent of the United States dollar, either above or below it, and was approximately at par in December.

Employment in the past year's bustling economy rose substantially — 400,000 to a total of 8,823,000 at latest report in November. But unemployment rate dropped a full percentage point to 5.6 per cent of the labor force, seasonally adjusted.

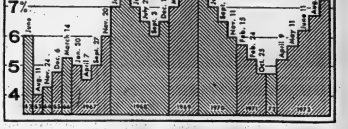
But in one of those hard-to-explain statistical situations, the actual number of unemployed last year was 511,000, 9,000 during the same period.



The principal reason was that nearly as many people entered the labor market seeking jobs as there were new job opportunities. This is a development that frequently occurs in a booming economy. It attracts many more people to seek jobs than a period of slower economic growth.

While many of he new job holders were young persons finishing their education and going to work for the first time, there was also an increase of 100,000 in the total of working married women whose husbands also held jobs.

The finance minister was put on his Parliamentary griddle by the Conservatives over reports of shortages of both skilled and unskilled workers at a time when there were more than 467,000 unemployed. The answer they received was that those unemployed frequently do not fit the requirements of available jobs and often the jobless workers were in one province while the job openings were in another.

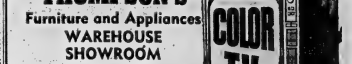


Government officials said the answer is more job training and incentives to encourage the unemployed to move to areas that need workers.

Conservative comments critical recent expansion of unemployment insurance benefits as encouraging some unemployed to continue to stay home.

GNP Rises

The Gross National Product, the total of all Canada's private and government spending, increased 7.3 per cent in the first nine months of 1973 over the corresponding period of 1972. Statistics Canada reported. The third quarter GNP was running at a seasonally adjusted annual rate or $129.1 billion and $78.5 billion in terms of 1961 dollars. (CP Newsmap)



Bank Rate Ups and Downs

The Bank of Canada raised its interest rate to chartered banks five times in six months to 7¼ from 5¼ per cent. The banks in turn increased their lowest interest rates for their best customers to nine per cent. That meant ordinary citizens were paying 10 per cent or more on new home and auto loans and even higher rates on many small loans. (CP Newsmap)

A passenger in the Akey auto, Victor Akey, also of RR3 Picton was admitted to hospital along with the driver.

Damage arising from the accident, which occured around 4:50 p.m., was estimated at $3,800.

Reappraisal Requested

Belleville utilities commissioners have instructed manager Neil Britton to bring in two appraisers to provide a value estimate of the present utilities offices on Front St.,

Nextyear, new offices will be occupied on the southeast corner of Sidney and College Sts., adjacent to the existing service centre. Tenders for construction were received earlier this week. The old building will likely be sold.

The commission felt an appraisal of present facilities, made some six years ago, was outdated. A request from the Parking Authority for a cost commission in request for new

A letter to the commission indicated the authority had discussed the utilities site as a possible location for parking structure. These discussions are still in the preliminary stage.

Fares To U.S. Not Unusual

It is a strange business. A cab driver never really knows what type of passenger he will pick up next and in a lot of cases he never even knows where he will be headed for in an hour or so.

Thursday, two Central Taxi drivers found, themselves taking their fares to Detroit and Buffalo.

It doesn't bother the cabbies much, though. They say it happens all the time.

Thursday's trips were emergency runs to the Ford motor plant in Detroit and to the Chrysler plant in Buffalo. The fares were not people but spare-time cables from the Stewart-Warner company in Belleville.

The long haul fares are nothing unusual for the cab company, Bill Moreau, of Central Taxi, explained.

"We usually make a trip into the States every week or so," he said. "When the companies need some equipment before their next shift starts, they usually arrange to have a cab rush down there with it."

Woman Hurt

MARMORA (Special) — A Lindsay woman was treated and released from Belleville General Hospital Friday following a single cap accident east of Marmora on Highway 7 near the Marmoration Mines Road.

Helen Hope was alone in her car at the time. Damage to the vehicle was $2,500.

Alcohol Factor In Polyneuritis

By G. C. THOSTESON, MD

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Would you write about polyneuritis, a variety caused by alcohol? I have been troubled with it for four years. Now I have not used alcohol for a month, and notice a slight improvement in my legs and nerves. I have been taking a vitamin-mineral supplement for about a month.—R.N.

Neuritis, of course, is inflammation of a nerve. Polyneuritis is inflammation of several groups of nerves, multiple troubles instead of trouble along a single nerve trunk.

Alcohol, naturally, is only one of many causes of polyneuritis, but it captures its share of victims, although not quickly. Injury when it does start, it quite commonly takes a matter of weeks or months for it to be the amount of misery it is capable of causing.

We say it "pursues a variable course," meaning that there is no particular pattern to the severity that can be predicted for any given patient. Generally speaking, the nerve damage produces numbness, tingling and pain first in the feet, then spreading up the legs and thighs.

The cause is thought to be primarily vitamin deficiency, particularly the B1 vitamin, along with a high carbohydrate diet—that is, a diet rich in starches but lacking foods that provide other necessary nutrients.

The disease does respond to proper treatment—which is abstaining from alcohol, and adopting a balanced diet helped along with vitamins. A high-potency mixture of vitamins and minerals is commonly prescribed in cases like yours, as well as other conditions requiring vitamin-mineral supplements.

In your case, after four years you have quit alcohol and started catching up on your vitamin needs, and you are noticing a "slight improvement."

That's to be expected. Don't look for rapid improvement, because treatment usually has to continue over a period of several months.

One word of warning (which may not be needed in your case, but is also needed in other cases). Some folks, once the polyneuritis has been subdued, think they can go back to drinking again.

They can't. That's an invitation to start the trouble all over again.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I am past 74, in good health, but drink about a quart of milk a day. I have been told (not by a doctor) that I will get too much calcium and it will cause kidney stones. Is this true or false?—K.S.

A few persons who are subject to kidney stones of the calcium type have to limit calcium intake because of that. But most folks, on the contrary, are more likely to get too little calcium. Even if they get more than they really need, the body just discards the excess.

If you haven't shown any tendency to have kidney stones for 74 years, there's absolutely no reason to think that drinking milk will start causing them now.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I am in my early 50s and had a hysterectomy and ovaries removed five years ago. Shouldn't I be over my change of life by now? The doctor has me on hormones. At times I get very depressing moods. Is this naturall—A.C.

Removal of the ovaries causes "surgical menopause" or change of life. Your hormone treatments has been to replace the hormones no longer being supplied by your ovaries. Depression, in some cases, is due to a need to change your hormone dosage or to some other factor is something I cannot answer at this distance. I suggest discussing it with your physician.

Science Policy Useless

HALIFAX (CP) — Dr. Gerhard Herzberg, one of Canada's leading scientists, says a national science policy in Canada would be of no value because scientists can control neither their discoveries nor their uses.

Dr. Herzberg is the senior research scientist of the National Research Council in Ottawa and winner of the 1971 Nobel Prize for chemistry.

No one is wise enough to formulate a science policy which would not lose coherence almost immediately because of new discoveries, he said in an interview during a visit to Dalhousie University.

Scientists, politicians and laymen all have different ideas about how science should work and how it should be financed, he said. Those who include science should be aimed at improving the economy or utility to realize the difference between science and technology.

They also fail to realize that scientific discoveries valuable to a nation's economy were rarely made for that purpose.

Electricity, a valuable today, was only an outgrowth of discoveries made more than 100 years ago by Michael Faraday, he said.

The point is that pure research — basic science — must be supported rather than attempts to select research that would be useful technologically, he said. All technological developments are based on some scientific discovery, and the pursuit of science is the pursuit of excellence.

Dr. Herzberg said canada has many good young scientists. Give them the funds to do something and they will do something important."

Oswald: "Sports writers point out that footballs take funny bounces. As bridge players we might point out that cards take funny ways to distribute themselves. For that reason bridge will never be an exact science.

Jim: "Occasional unusual midpoint team competition shows this. Even the greatest players in the world are likely to find themselves flying blind to a big hand, no idea as to what they should do."

Oswald: "Here is a hand from a recent team game. The bidding is that at table one. East opened one club because his 19-point hand was too big for a no-trump. South pre-empted with four diamonds. West who was allergic to being shut out tried five clubs. East thought a while and made a brilliant pass and South completed the auction by also passing.

Jim: "It was the right decision based on the principle that a man who pre-empts should fail just that once."

Oswald: "It also was the right decision from the result standpoint. The ace of clubs, a diamond ruff and the ace of spades gave the defense the first three tricks and a 100-point profit. The bidding started out the same at the other table but South made the mistake of continuing to five diamonds. He doubled (chiefly from fright) and South had to go down two tricks."

Teachers Seen As New Force For Change

TORONTO (CP) — A new social force has been unleashed by teachers resisting the government's bill seeking to ban teachers resignations, Stephen Lewis, Ontario New Democratic Party leader, said Sunday.

Speaking at the NDP provincial council meeting, he said that the teaching profession will never forget what the government is trying to do to it. He said in the future, teachers will no longer easily range themselves on the side of authority.

"They have learned almost overnight the value of collective action," Mr. Lewis said. "This is the first step to social change among the single most influential group in the province."

The government should save face and withdraw the emergency bill, the NDP leader said. Teachers also are resisting a second government bill on permanent rules outlawing mass resignations as a bargaining tool and imposing compulsory arbitration.

He said that Premier William Davis, in one respect, "deserved a vote of thanks because he has unified the teaching profession and established an awareness that would normally take a decade to develop."

Mr. Lewis predicted that teachers will in future more easily side with students and other groups resisting authority. "Both in and out of the classroom this dispute is going to have far-ranging effect," he said.

Meanwhile, Michael Cassidy NDP member of the legislature for Ottawa Centre, told his council that "for the first time, it is politically acceptable to talk openly about slowing the growth of Toronto."

He said during a panel discussion of land use in Ontario that it was no longer necessary to be concerned about reactions of residents of the Toronto region when planning for the north and eastern regions of Ontario to have a bigger share in the province's growth.

"The people of Toronto want a halt to growth or at least a slowing down of it as much as the people of the north and east want to share in growth," Mr. Cassidy said.

The council recommended that the next full-time organizer hired by the provincial office be fluent in Italian and have specific responsibility for ridings in which Italian - speaking voters form a large part of the electorate.

Oberardo DiSanto, member of the NDP provincial executive, said in some ridings the ethnic vote makes the difference and that "if we don't begin to attract the postwar immigrants now, the second generation will be hard to win."

Teachers' One-day General Walkout Appears to Be Effective

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

A one-day walkout called among Ontario's 105,000 teachers disrupted classes in hundreds of schools today in an attempt to force withdrawal of emergency government legislation on teachers' contract demands.

Mid-morning checks indicated some schools remained open but that in many more there were not enough teachers on hand to hold classes.

Student attendance was low, in general. Many school authorities had notified parents to keep students at home because of the impending boycott.

The move was a protest against Bill 274, now before the legislature, which would submit contract demands to binding arbitration and outlaw the teachers' device of mass resignations to support their claims. About 7,000 teachers have submitted resignations.

Focal point of the demonstration was a mass rally at Maple Leaf Gardens in Toronto, where organizers said they looked for between 25,000 and 40,000 to be on hand, followed by another mass turnout at Queen's Park where the legislature was in session.

Mass rallies also were scheduled in Ottawa, Windsor and Sudbury.

Walkout chairman Neil Doherty said in Toronto he believed between 90 and 95 per cent of Metropolitan Toronto teachers were joining the walkout. At least one teacher had been designated to remain on duty in each school, and in general around the province the principals were on hand.

Education Minister Thomas Wells met Monday night with the six presidents of the Ontario Teachers Federation and its five affiliates in a 11th-hour attempt to avert the walkout. It failed.

In the legislature Monday, a New Democratic Party bid to place a motion of non-confidence in the government over the controversial legislation was ruled out of order Monday by Speaker Allan Reuter.

The sudden move by the Speaker appeared to stop, at least temporarily, opposition attempts to prolong debate on the bill, which nullifies threatened teacher resignations in January and commits teachers and school boards to compulsory arbitration.

Premier William Davis lashed out at the opposition and indicated his government will not back down from the position that it has a responsibility to see that the school system functions, "and that includes tomorrow (today)."

Outside the legislature, Mr. Lewis said the motion could not be reintroduced.

"I was irritated by the ruling and completely disagree with the (Speaker's) interpretation, but we had no opportunity to debate the matter," Mr. Lewis said.

However, he said his party will continue its fight against the legislation during the budget debate, and said the government is prolonging the issue by postponing the debate on reading of the bill.

Government House Leader Eric Winkler surprised the opposition Monday by indicating the government wanted to return to the budget debate rather than continue discussion on the teachers' bill. . .

Arab Terrorists Hunting Shelter

BEIRUT, Lebanon — Arab terrorists searched for a haven in the Middle East today in their hijacked West German jetliner.

The plane was last reported at Kuwait.

After a night of terror at the Athens airport, during which they were reported to have murdered five hostages, the gunmen took off with what the pilot of the commandeered Lufthansa Boeing 727 said were 12 hostages.

Behind them the terrorists left a wounded hostage and the body of one of their victims.

The hijackers were reported to have killed the five hostages early by one in the jet at Athens to back up demands for release of two Palestinian guerrillas held by the Greeks. But only the one body was seen.

The Lebanese government refused to let them land in Beirut early today and they put down in Damascus, the Syrian capital.

One of the hijackers was given first aid at the Damascus airport's dispensary and the plane took off after a two-hour stop, during which it also picked up fuel and food.

The terrorists then flew to Kuwait, where the plane landed despite apparent attempts by authorities of the Persian Gulf sheikdom to keep them out, a Lufthansa spokesman said in Frankfurt.

The commander of the Syrian air force had appealed repeatedly for release of the hostages in Damascus, but the hijackers refused.

In Athens, the plane's Dutch pilot, Capt. Joe Kroese, had told airport authorities his co-pilot was dead. Later, Lufthansa said the co-pilot was alive and that a member of the ground crew in Damascus had spoken to him.

The hijackers' victims included at least 20 persons aboard a Pan American World Airways jet they firebombed on the runway at Rome's Fiumicino airport early Monday afternoon and an Italian policeman they shot and killed during a fusillade at the airport.

At least half the fatalities in Rome were believed to be Americans.

Before the plane left Athens, police said the hijackers threw the body of one hostage off the plane. It was first reported to be that of an Austrian stewardess. But an Italian embassy spokesman said it was that of a man, a Rome airport worker.

The injured man released by the guerrillas was an Italian policeman, the spokesman said.

Earlier, the Greek state radio reported there had been 18 hostages aboard the plane: three crew members, a stewardess, five Italian policemen, two Italian customs officers and an airport worker.

The terrorists left Athens after the Greek government refused to release two Black September guerrillas arrested for a machine-gun attack last August at Athens airport. Greek officials were not swayed by the hijackers' threats to kill their hostages and blow up the plane if the two were not released, Athens said.

The pilot of the Lufthansa jet told the Athens control tower the Arab terrorists had informed him in Arabic that Later, Lufthansa said the plane set course for Cairo then changed to turn toward Beirut.

Lebanese authorities immediately closed the Beirut airport to all traffic. Cars were placed on all the runways to prevent the plane from landing without permission.

One of the 30 victims of the Pan Am fire bombing, a 29-year-old American girl named Bonnie Dressell, died today, Keller home address was not known.

The number of terrorists aboard the Boeing 727 jet was variously reported as three, four and six. They bargained by radio with representatives of the Greek government in the control tower for the release of two Black September guerrillas who were captured Aug. 5 after they killed three persons and wounded 55 in a machine-gun attack at Athens airport.

The Greek government at first agreed to free the two guerrillas—El Arid Shafik, 22, and Khantouran Palaal, 21—and had them brought to the control tower. But after 18 hours of negotiations, a government spokesman announced: "We have decided the two terrorists must be brought to trial."

Diplomats from 44 Arab countries and from West Germany came to the airport to assist in the negotiations with the gunmen.

The leader of the hijackers told tower monitors during the night that there were six women and two children aboard the plane. But the police said they knew of no children and only three women, all Lufthansa employees.

Lufthansa officials said they knew of 18 hostages in addition to four crew members aboard the plane when it left Rome. They were six Italian policemen, an Italian airport worker, two other Lufthansa employees and an Ethiopian Airlines mechanic.

Airline Workers Seek Action on Guerrillas

LONDON (Reuter) — The International Transport Workers Federation (ITF) announced today that it is seeking an immediate meeting with airline pilots to consider joint action following Monday's Arab guerrilla attack at Rome airport.

The ITF represents 350,000 ground and flying staff around the world.

The meeting ITF seeks is with the International Federation of Airline Pilots Associations (IFALPA).

An ITF statement said the attack in Rome was a senseless and indiscriminate massacre adding a "new and terrifying dimension to the problem of politically motivated air piracy."

It criticized governments for not taking concerted action, including international sanctions, at the conference on air law held in Rome last August and September.

The statement also criticized the ineffective and haphazard way in which security precautions are being implemented.

Syria Decides To Shun Parley

DAMASCUS (Reuter) — Syria has decided not to take part in the Geneva peace conference opening Friday, an official source here said today.

The source said the conference would lead to endless discussions and weaken and push into the background the basic issue of complete Israeli withdrawal from the Arab territory it occupied during the 1967 war.

The source also declared that the Geneva talks would fail to resolve the issue of Palestinian rights and would only turn its attention to side issues.

He said this conclusion was reached as a result of contacts with Egypt and State Secretary Henry Kissinger of the United States who held more than six hours of talks with Syrian President Hafez al-Assad and Foreign Minister Abdel-Halim Khaddam here Saturday.

Bomb Injures Forty

LONDON (Reuter) — A car bomb exploded in London today injuring at least 40 persons, two of them seriously, and damaging buildings and shops nearby.

The bomb went off as office workers were pouring into government buildings in the street where the car was parked a few hundred yards from the houses of Parliament.

Eyewitnesses said the car exploded in a sheet of flame which scorched other vehicles parked nearby and blew out windows along the street.

The blast brought fears that the outlawed Irish Republican Army has begun a new campaign of terror against the British capital.

Police said Scotland Yard has received reports that a number of leading members of the violent Provisional wing of the outlawed IRA have travelled to London from Belfast during the last two weeks.

Rescue workers said most of those injured in today's blast were suffering from cuts, bruises and shock.

Wounded in the capture were two policemen and Janette Dawson, wife of the bank manager, who was brought to the bank by the bandits along with husband, Wally Bache.

Most Schools Closed for Day

Most schools in Hastings and Prince Edward counties were closed today as teachers joined a province-wide walkout.

Fourteen of the public elementary schools were running today as were three separate elementary schools. All eight public high schools were open, but classes were suspended as the handful of students in each settled down to individual study. The 77 students who turned up at Nicholson Catholic College were dismissed.

All bused students in both areas were sent home at 9.30 a.m., an arrangement made yesterday when administrators feared insufficient staff would be present to supervise them.

Technically, no schools were closed. The principal and one teacher, designated by the staff to handle telephone calls, remained until closing time.

Public elementary schools that continued to function were: Cundiffon (with all five teachers in attendance) Foxboro, Douglas H. Aikins, Tyendinaga, Bayside, Marmora St. in Trenton, North Trenton and Prince Charles in Trenton. Sir Winston Churchill (Belleville) Prince of Wales and Queen Elizabeth, also in Belleville, Earl Prentice and Marmora Senior in Marmora and Madoc Public School. No elementary schools were operating in North Hastings.

The three separate elementary schools running were St. Joseph's in Belleville, Holy Name of Mary in Marysville and Our Lady of Fatima in Belleville, which had 10 pupils and closed at noon.

Separate school superintendent E. J. Hewitt reported that 24 of the 185 staff members with his board were on duty this morning. Of the 4,000 pupils, 660 showed up at school. After the 24 staff students were sent home, 82 pupils were left in the three schools. At Nicholson Catholic College, eight teachers in addition to the principal and one designated staff member were present.

Those schools that dismissed pupils early in the morning did so because there was inadequate staff on hand to supervise them.

In Prince Edward county, only the schools for the retarded was running.

School for the Deaf continued normally with all staff.

At BCI, 300 students turned up at 9 a.m. and 10 were sent home on buses to Amelianburgh. About a dozen staff members were present and offered extra tuition to the students.

At Quinte, 14 teachers in addition to the obligatory two were striking, paralyzing the co-op about 25 students. Bayside had three or four teachers volunteering to work, Trenton also five, Moira three or four and Centennial none.

Except at BCI and Quinte, about 25 to 30 students were present. One principal said that those high school students who attended today were those concerned with scoring a perfect attendance record. It has not yet been decided whether or not pupils who didn't attend today will be marked as absent. One principal said he would be opposed to registering his pupils absent. No action on this point is a board decision.

Elementary schools in Frontenac, Lennox and Addington and Northumberland were closed or operating with skeleton staffs.

A Whole Bus to Himself

This morning's walkout by teachers in Belleville brought on an added holiday for area school children. At BCI five school buses waited in front of the school before returning about 8.30 a.m. (Grade 10 BCI student Ron Cox waits for his bus to head back to Carrying Place. Ron said he planned to do some skating today when he gets back. His bus driver Peter Turner said that now he doesn't have to worry about coming back in the afternoon to bring the students home. There were four students in his bus altogether, quite different from the 50 to 60 students he usually carries.

Patrick Assumes Trenton Mayoralty

TRENTON — Dr. R. W. Bob Patrick will take over the mayoralty of this town in the new year.

Councillor Patrick confirmed this afternoon he will succeed Mayor Duncan McDonald, who last night formally resigned.

Councillor Patrick, a town dentist, said he was chosen to fill out the remaining year of the mayoralty vacancy at last night's council meeting.

Mayor McDonald last night officially resigned from his post, bringing to a close 15 years of public service here.

In a brief letter to council read by the deputy clerk, the mayor said there was little he could do about the situation and that he didn't want to leave his position. But a job transfer to Ottawa left him little alternative, he said.

Mayor McDonald made his resignation intentions known several week ago, But it was not until last night that the subject was dealt with in council.

Councillor Bob Patrick, first to respond to the mayor's letter, said it was with regret that council would implement the resolution to accept the resignation and commented "no one knows what time is involved in the mayor's job."

There was virtually no talk of a replacement for Mayor McDonald the only comment coming from he mayor himself when he said he would be available weekends to help the incoming mayor, whoever he might be.

Inflation Swells Bill For Upkeep of Parks

TRENTON— Town council last night authorized acceptance of a $28,000 contract for maintenance of town parklands.

Marvin Baker, a representative of the board of parks management, told council the figure was $8,000 greater than the bill for the same work last year — and double the bill of the previous year. She said the board - - concerned over the escalating prices - - preferred to have council's approval before going ahead.

In a multi-page report, the board outlined its position to council and said there were only three alternatives to acception the contract. These were to tender the board - - except "proposals" or set up their own department to handle the work.

Bos and Son have been retained to do the work over recent years and justified their rates at an earlier, caucus meeting with the board.

Council told Miss Baker, secretary of the board, to take the contract with Bos and Son and that the board be empowered to investigate the possibility of setting up a civil department itself, to handle the work.

Miss Baker said it would not be feasible to set up such a department this year. But she added that Parks and Recreation director Denn Gettas be supplied with an assistant. This assistant, she said, would ease his workload which presently has the directorship of parks and recreation and the secretaryship of the Community Gardens.

The resolution passed by council authorizes payment and makes official its residents to increase the parks budget to handle the added cost.

Cheese Prices Up

Central Ontario dairy farmers are beginning to reap the benefit of higher milk prices as a result of sharply increased wholesale prices for cheese in the last few weeks.

At the Ontario Milk Marketing Board cheese exchange in Belleville the average price for cheese last week was 78.7 cents per pound for white cheese and 82 cents for colored cheese.

Three weeks earlier, the average price for white cheese was 72.5 cents a pound while the colored commodity selling for 72.8 cents.

Arnold Johnston, of the Belleville cheese exchange, said the price rise in wholesale cheese prices started in October and has since been on the upswing.

Cheese milk prices are based on the sale of cheese at the cheese exchanges.

As a result, the price paid for cheese milk went up in November and was again increased at the first of December.

An increase in cheese consumption together with declining stocks as result of decreased production was given as the reason for the higher price.

Mr. Johnston said that for the first nine months of the year, cheese production in Central Ontario — from Warkworth to Harrowsmith — was down by about 14 per cent or approximately 2.5 million pounds.

Only a increasing imports, caused by a sharp decline in exports has kept the Canadian supply and demand of cheese in approximate balance, exchange officials say.

The Ministry of Agriculture and Food estimates that cheddar cheese production will be 185 million pounds in Canada this year, down 3.8 per cent from last year's 192,171,000 pounds total.

Hees Asks About Alert In Norad

OTTAWA (CP) — Confusion was compounded by confusion Monday but the result appeared to be that Canadians were not involved in the Oct. 25 alert called by the United States North American air defence system.

Defence Minister James Richardson told reporters there may have been some Canadians at the North American Air Defence Command (NORAD) headquarters in Colorado Springs, Colo., involved in the alert for a time, but they were withdrawn later.

He said this after telling the Commons that neither Canadians nor NORAD were involved in the alert.

But armed forces sources insisted that NORAD was not involved in the alert, only the Continental Air Defence Command of the United States, which shares the NORAD headquarters and has the same communications system.

Responding to questions from George Hees (PC—Prince Edward Hastings) and others, Mr. Richardson and Prime Minister Trudeau insisted that neither Canadians nor NORAD were involved in the worldwide alert called by the U.S. because of fear of the Soviet Union's Middle East intentions.

$15 Million Makes Picton Company Among Biggest

Major Expansion at Cement Plant

By MARGARET HAYLOCK

PICTON — Lake Ontario Cement Company Ltd. has announced a $15 million expansion program for its plant here.

Company president W.M. Bateman said yesterday that largest date for completion of the new installation, a Kiln producing 850,000 tons per year, will be in late 1975. The present kiln capacity of the Picton plant will be doubled and it will become one of the largest cement plants in North America.

The $15 million program is the second stage of a long term expansion plan for the plant. Earlier this year LOCI initiated the first stage of the program with a $6 million capital outlay. This was to install two new mills and improve related facilities to increase cement manufacturing capacity by approximately 20 per cent.

Mr. Bateman noted that runin tests now are in progress with this equipment.

The new plant is operating at full capacity with record shipments to Canadian and United States markets in the coming year anticipated," he said.

With the addition of the new large kiln the latest technology will be employed. A four stage pre-heater, clinker cooler and related dust-collection, fuel preparation and materials handling equipment will be included. The kiln will measure 12 feet in diameter by fourty at Picton.

Mr. Bateman has stated that the debt financing being arranged to underwrite the second stage of the expansion program will involve no dilution of equity.

A director of the LOCI, Picton mayor H.J. McFarland shared yesterday's announcement with enthusiasm.

"I would be amiss if I did not take this opportunity of thinking the warden of the county, reeves and deputy-reeve and county council who have worked so faithfully with us," he remarked.

"Mr. W.H. Evans, chairman of the board and Mr. W. M. Bateman president, and all the directors have done a wonderful job in projecting ahead for the future... and the requirements of industry."

The mayor, in Toronto for conferences, yesterday placed a telephone call to his Picton office to speak with reporters following the LOCI's expansion announcement.

He said that the new program will mean increased employment in Prince Edward County at one of the most modern cement plants in the British Empire."

Probationers Keep School Open As Teacher Walkouts Hit Trenton

TRENTON — While schools across the province closed today as teachers protested government legislation, North Trenton School carried on as usual.

Murray Workman, school principal, told The Intelligencer more than 70 per cent of his staff showed up for work today.

All other Trenton schools were crippled by teacher walkouts. Most schools sent students home by 9.30 a.m.

Mr. Workman said at least half his staff is working on a probationary teaching contract, "working to complete their teaching certificates."

"The risks are larger," he said for these people so they can. "They would tend to lose more than a day's pay."

All other school principals — with the exception of Prince Charles Public School — reported three to four staff members showed up.

Ron Sleward, vice-principal of Prince Charles said, "we didn't make a statement yesterday and we aren't making a statement today."

The walkout is expected to last one day with teachers back in their rooms Wednesday.

Ratify Contract With McFarland

Members of the United Steelworkers of America have approved an agreement reached in contract negotiations with H. J. McFarland Construction Co. Ltd., James Brown, union district representative reports.

Employees ratified the contract, providing a wage increase of one dollar and fifty cents per hour over 24 months. There were also improvements in vacation pay, life insurance and other fringe areas.

The base rate was increased from $3.05 to $3.16 and truck driver rate from $3.80 to $5.30 during the life of this agreement. The present agreement expired November 30th and settlement was reached without the need for conciliation services.

Town Aids Day Centre Awaiting LIP Word

TRENTON— Careful not to create an ongoing municipal handout, town council last night agreed to keep the Grace Day Care Centre running for three months, allowing for further application for federal funds by the program's sponsors.

The project ran out of Local Initiative Project funds Nov. 30, and Grace Church is operating on a voluntary basis and with some help from Grace United Church.

A spokesman for the group told council last night it had been approached by parents, requesting closing of the centre. The project is said to need $13,000 annually to continue operation.

The original request was that council subsidize the project for six months. By that time it was expected the sponsors would know whether more LIP funds were on the way.

Councillor John Boom, calling himself the devil's advocate asked why council should not provide three months subsidy and the sponsors speed up the machinery in getting federal word.

Council endorsed the three-month extension on municipal funds with the proviso that this was to be a one-shot affair.

Council earlier looked into the questions of taking over the centre which caters to 17 children. It was mentioned at that time Belleville was currently working on a program and that Trenton should approach the county before taking any firm action on its own.

While the sponsors knock on federal doors for LIP funding, the town will pay $620 a month to keep the operation going. About 15 more children are on the waiting list.

Both Grace Church and Hastings County, in an attempt to arrange a day care centre for the area, are looking provincial subsidies.

The province has set up funds that would take care of 80 per cent of the cost for each child proved to be in "need." Need is determined through a means test completed by the parents.

Wednesday Makes Friday As New Area Club Opens

Wednesday will be on Friday at the Blue Suede Shoe next week. No, nobody's changing around the days of the week, the Christmas season is hectic enough without further complications.

To open Quinte's newest night club, Blue Suede Shoe, promoter and manager Ken Williams has booked the Wednesday rock band that's making it big in Canada.

Wednesday's album, "Last Kiss", has sold over 100,000 records across the country, one of few groups in Canada that have reached the figure equivalent to a smash hit in the United States.

The Oshawa based four man group will be at Tobe's County Gardens Friday, Dec. 28. The over-18 club, just former manager of Belleville's Sands of Time, is geared to young adults. The scout will lean heavily towards rock.

William hopes his new club will start off with a bang during the holidays. Wednesday has recently returned from New York, where the band worked the Four Seasons with the Toronto based Lighthouse. They played at the Grey Day Ball at the Royal York in Toronto.

In February, the group has an American tour lined up and is currently planning one in Europe.

The band, together for three years, is expected to release its first album within the month.

On drums is Oshawa's Randy Begg. From Toronto, comes bass guitarist John "Joe" Dufok. London, England, native Paul Andrew Smith takes on the acoustic guitar and the keyboards. Also from Oshawa is Michael O'Neil on electric guitar.

Inflation Swells Bill For Upkeep of Parks

TRENTON— Town council last night authorized acceptance of a $28,000 contract for maintenance of town parklands.

Marvin Baker, a representative of the board of parks management, told council the figure was $8,000 greater than the bill for the same work last year — and double the bill of the previous year. She said the board - - concerned over the escalating prices - - preferred to have council's approval before going ahead.

In a multi-page report, the board outlined its position to council and said there were only three alternatives to acception the contract. These were to tender the board - - except "proposals" or set up their own department to handle the work.

Bos and Son have been retained to do the work over recent years and justified their rates at an earlier, caucus meeting with the board.

Council told Miss Baker, secretary of the board, to take the contract with Bos and Son and that the board be empowered to investigate the possibility of setting up a civil department itself, to handle the work.

Miss Baker said it would not be feasible to set up such a department this year. But she added that Parks and Recreation director Denn Gettas be supplied with an assistant. This assistant, she said, would ease his workload which presently has the directorship of parks and recreation and the secretaryship of the Community Gardens.

The resolution passed by council authorizes payment and makes official its residents to increase the parks budget to handle the added cost.

Cheese Prices Up

Central Ontario dairy farmers are beginning to reap the benefit of higher milk prices as a result of sharply increased wholesale prices for cheese in the last few weeks.

At the Ontario Milk Marketing Board cheese exchange in Belleville the average price for cheese last week was 78.7 cents per pound for white cheese and 82 cents for colored cheese.

Three weeks earlier, the average price for white cheese was 72.5 cents a pound while the colored commodity selling for 72.8 cents.

Arnold Johnston, of the Belleville cheese exchange, said the price rise in wholesale cheese prices started in October and has since been on the upswing.

Cheese milk prices are based on the sale of cheese at the cheese exchanges.

As a result, the price paid for cheese milk went up in November and was again increased at the first of December.

An increase in cheese consumption together with declining stocks as result of decreased production was given as the reason for the higher price.

Mr. Johnston said that for the first nine months of the year, cheese production in Central Ontario — from Warkworth to Harrowsmith — was down by about 14 per cent or approximately 2.5 million pounds.

Only a increasing imports, caused by a sharp decline in exports has kept the Canadian supply and demand of cheese in approximate balance, exchange officials say.

The Ministry of Agriculture and Food estimates that cheddar cheese production will be 185 million pounds in Canada this year, down 3.8 per cent from last year's 192,171,000 pounds total.

DANGER OF WRONG PRICING

Ed. McKinney
A. E. McKinney Realty Ltd.
Knowing human nature, there is a good chance that you will put the wrong selling price on your home if you arrive at it yourself.
You may price it far above its fair market value because of sentimental attachment, expenditures you have made, or by heeding a well-meaning friend's advice. A home remaining on the market for months due to over-pricing, frequently becomes a "White Elephant". It eventually sells for a much lower figure than it would have brought originally — had it been priced realistically.
On the other hand, you might under-price it because of unfamiliarity with the local market. This would be financial folly. Your safest bet is to list your home with a reliable Realtor who will help you price it correctly from the start and sell it for the best price, and with the fewest problems.

Teachers on Warpath

The one-day strike called for today by teachers throughout Ontario has hurt students by its open opposition to the near-hysteria that has accompanied the teachers' response to Government legislation aimed at warding off strike action in January.

If we are to believe Education Minister Wells, the teachers have resorted to the methods of the mob.

The definition word on mob action was presented some years ago by the well-known Ulster author St. John Ervine. "All changes for the better," said Ervine, "are made, first, in the minds of individuals. A case could, I think, be made for the belief that all changes for the worse start in the mind of the mob. The mob is a weak and brainless thing, subject to panic and emotion, and easily dominated by empty eloquence."

Nobody is accusing the teaching profession of being weak and brainless — but recent days have certainly brought forth their quota of emotion, not to say empty eloquence.

Nor is there any encouragement to the public in the spectacle of teachers chanting in unison: "Wells resign . . . Wells resign . . ."

Mr. Wells may have played his cards badly, but the sight and sound of the chanting teachers calls to mind other examples from the pages of history which bear little resemblance to the functioning of democracy in its true light.

No one disputes that teachers' rights are at stake, but let them continue to act within a democratic framework. That way, in the long run, their cause will be better served.

Sporting Diplomacy

The Chinese as most people know are a whiz at the fast and exciting game of table tennis, a mantle they seem to have taken over from the British and Europeans of 20 years or so ago. Then it was players like expatriate Hungarian Victor Barna, Richard Bergmann and England's Johnny Leach who ruled the tables.

Now it is the Chinese who for the most part are top dog. Remember those heady days of "ping-pong diplomacy" not so long ago when Canadians and American teams went to China and learned a thing or two from the masters.

But hear the latest on these east-west exchanges. Canada has been saving face in recent days thanks to that old standby, hockey. We beat the Russians a while back, and now a western team, the B.C. Thunderbirds, has been showing the flag in China and scoring victories over home sides.

The Chinese by all accounts played gamely — and who knows but one day they could be as good as any — but for the moment it has been Canada all the way in these friendly encounters.

The main thing is, the game, and if east and west are closer together today we can thank some subsidiating activities as table tennis and hockey.

Classes as Usual

A letter has been received from the staff of Tyendinaga public school which is too late for publication in letter form today. In essence, however, the letter expresses concern over the government legislation which it says is designed to limit the human rights of teachers in Ontario . . . making a sham of the collective bargaining process. . .

For all that, classes are continuing today as usual at the school, "since we believe a suspension of services will only deny our students their democratic right to an education."

The Tyendinaga school thus sets a good example where the students are concerned and, furthermore, lives up to the school motto that "to learn is to progress."

The Rural Parts

Driving in the countryside around Londale at the weekend was to see those chaste old Christmas card scenes come to life. Snow covered pines . . . a view from the bridge over an ice-coated Salmon River . . . steep slopes and valleys and farmyard scenes. Londale itself, rural Ontario at its most picturesque — where even the futuristic in the guise of a home on a slope overlooking the dam, shaped like a balloon, or if you like, the U.S. pavilion at Expo 67, blends quite well with the living Canadiana. And not to mention rural roads well-sanded for the rural dweller and city slickers who happen along.

Some Embassies Protected Round the Clock

Security Is A Multi-Faceted And Growing Industry

By RICHARD JACKSON

OTTAWA — So External Affairs is spending $1,361,158 on security, but that is only a fraction of the federal Government's total security bill.

External spends its money on safeguarding its properties and personnel to; plug such leaks as those of Ambassador Alexander Ross' dispatches from Chile to the New Democrats and others who have no business seeing them, and to provide at least some token protection for foreign envoys in Canada and the Capital.

The big security job for the Government is handled by the Supply and Services Department, with Col. R. J. A. Digner in charge, running a $35 million operation, employing some 6,000 through five special divisions one of which carries the chilling name of "Emergency Preparedness."

The way the world is going, Col. Digner knows that security is one of the new "growth industries," currently costing Canadians, both in the public and private sectors, some $70 million while providing jobs for 70,000.

Col. Digner's Security Services Branch specifically is the Government's "contracting agency in the rapidly expanding business of protection."

Understandably, he is not exactly keen to chat about it on the flatin even since you start talking about security — it becomes less secure.

But it is special diplomatic security — and External Affairs is involved in only a very small part of it — that captures the real interest.

When a foreign embassy — say that of one of the Arab states, or Israel, even Ireland, or perhaps one of the South or Central American republics — feels in peril, External Affairs will have the RCMP lay on some security.

Mounties in plain-clothes, parked in unmarked cars or strolling around the area, set up a security screen.

But often the embassy fears it is not fine enough.

Or the peril appears to have passed.

The demonstrators have gone home — tension with another country has eased — hate-mail falls off — no more bomb threats by phone — the pressure, wherever it has been felt has let up.

And the RCMP partially or totally dismantles the security watch.

But the home government is still a little concerned, and perhaps the ambassador on the formerly troubled scene here in the Capital is not entirely satisfied that the situation is quite as cool and stable as it might appear.

So one or two security organizations which specialize in diplomatic-security is called in for consultations.

There are some 13 security firms operating in the Capital, but Universal and General investigations share the bulk of the diplomatic business.

They provide security at three levels — minimum, medium, maximum — and at prices that range from a few to many thousands of dollars.

Talk to the chief of General Investigations and discover his men are not gumshoes, but former RCMP, Ontario Provincial, and military police earning good, five-figure salaries.

There are the cars, the communications, the guns, the administration costs, the price of peril itself — is there much on — or is the danger level low?

These men are trained professionals who have the background, education and training to make security — now a highly specialized business — a respected and well-paid career.

"The big boys" says the chief of General Investigations, "don't come near us. They have their own people, the Americans and the Soviets, and more than enough of them that you're not going to get anywhere near the Embassy or their diplomatic residences unless they know you and want you.

"We do business with the smaller countries that cannot afford to maintain a 'standing army' around their overseas diplomatic establishments."

There are some embassies that have this security protection 24 hours a day, 365 days a year.

It is not just for cocktail parties, or to keep wild-eyed demons at bay, or even just for times of bomb threats, hi-jacks and kidnappings involving their home governments.

It is continuous and expensive and it could cost an embassy buying maximum saturation security into the hundreds of thousands of dollars a year.

You never see it all. You see only the "token" car and hear the radio-chattering as you walk by, the signal to trouble-makers of more security around. And that you don't ever see.

The Vagaries of Unemployment Insurance

By VINCENT EGAN
Business and Consumer Affairs Analyst
Thomson News Service

Will unemployment insurance abuses lead to the downfall of the Trudeau government and a new election?

That's what one Liberal cabinet minister—Jack Davis—would have us believe. But don't bet on it. . .

The point that the environment minister made in a speech in his Capilano riding was that the government would forge ahead in 1974 with legislation to plug loopholes in the Unemployment Insurance Act, the New Democrats would vote against the government, and that would bring on an election.

"The act must be amended to re-organize and tighten the administration of the unemployment insurance program," Mr. Davis told his constituents.

It's likely that he found, as did a great many other politicians during the election campaign of late 1972, that voters were complaining bitterly about the minority of UI recipients who draw benefits in preference to taking jobs.

Against this background, the minority Liberal government introduced Bill C-156 last Jan. 15, 1973, to refuse benefits to anyone who lost a job because of misconduct or who "voluntarily left employment without just cause", and then quit no reasonable steps to fill a suitable job vacancy.

That hardly sounds like oppressive legislation. It's clear that is intended to set up penalties for the people that the UI plan is intended to serve—that is, legitimate job-seekers.

But the NDP refused to support Bill C-156, and the Liberal government did the NDP's bidding in order to remain in office—and not for the last time.

Even now, despite what Environment Minister Davis may say, there is little or no chance that the Trudeau government will proceed with its still-pending amendments to the Unemployment Insurance Act, at the risk of losing the NDP support that keeps the Liberals in office.

The government finds it easier to levy an additional 4% payroll "premium"—a tax, to describe it more accurately—on every employed Canadian, as from the beginning of 1974, for unemployment insurance.

Those who put in eight weeks on a job will continue to enjoy the right to stay home and collect unemployment benefits for up to 51 weeks—as long as they are not seen to be abusing the UI plan so blatantly that they attract the attention of Manpower Minister Robert Andras' benefit-control officers.

The Trudeau government may think it is taking the course that is dictated by political reality, in leaving loopholes unplugged and thus retaining the support of the NDP.

But it might very well discover, if it consulted its own members, that voters are more likely to turn against politicians who lavish the taxpayers' money on an irresponsible minority.

Teachers Show Growing Militancy

By DON O'HEARN
Quee's Park Bureau
Thomson News Service

TORONTO — The school teacher legislation is widely regarded here as the most potentially explosive issue of the Davis administration to date.

It is generally conceded that not even the energy tax controversy of last winter bred the sense that this question did and there are the to-be-expected predictions that the government through its actions may have dug its grave.

Such assessments, of course, are premature.

They are emotional and are inspired essentially by the people opposed to the action.

For the most part they have been made in heat and inspired by partisanship.

Most particularly they tend to ignore that there could be a considerable section of the public, perhaps the majority, which agrees with what the government has done.

While I believe that the government has shown both courage and leadership. . .

In support of this belief it is to be remembered that the public service has agreed with the government's restraints on collective bargaining.

That it has tended to feel Queen's has much fat in our educational system, and rejected the government for cutting deep on this.

Also there has to be considerable question of the strength of the public image of the teaching profession today.

As it has become more and more organized it also has become more and more militant and there could be a kickback from this.

To a good many people teachers and police, have probably just somehow don't seem right.

Finally there probably will be people who will recall that teachers were in effect trying to break the law by adopting a stratagem which would give them in form a right to strike which the law has taken away from them.

In other words the government could come out of the situation much better than many people think.

Xmas—New Year

Statutory Holidays Hassle

Peterborough Examiner

All this talk in Ottawa about the naming of a new statutory winter holiday is interesting. It has stimulated a flow of suggestions from Canadians across the country who have proposed everything from Groundhog Day in honor of a brown, furry creature to National Rip-off Day in honor of federal policies.

In the meantime, however, we stumble through another year confusing and chaotic Christmas holiday.

Christmas is no problem most years. It can fall on a Monday, Thursday or Friday without causing any difficulty. Every once in a while, however, it falls on a Tuesday or Wednesday and we're left with a couple of weekdays we don't know what to do with.

Different firms are tackling the problem in different ways. Some have been overcome with the Christmas spirit and are declaring down for an entire week. Others are imitating Parliament and are demanding their employees show up on time Monday morning. And half somewhere in between.

The result, at least in Peterborough, will be next best thing to staggered working hours — staggered weekend days. Some poor wretches will be dragging their snowsuited bodies to the bus stops while other lucky souls luxuriate in their dime off.

As if the Christmas holiday weren't bad enough in itself, we also have to contend with New Year's Day the next week. New Year's, lacking any ability for the original thought, chooses to occur on the same weekday as Christmas inevitably. Christmas chaos is repeated.

The do-as-you-please system of granting Christmas and New Year's holidays is both unfair and inefficient. Scrooglas businessmen will get much benefit from their show of strength. Spare Mondays and Fridays could solely be sitting around sipping coffee and talking about what was done or what will be done on Christmas or New Year's Day.

And the employees doing the sitting-around-talking will face a nightmare of chopped-up work week: two days off, one day on, two days off, two days on, two days off, one day on, two days off and two days on.

The amount of work done could be put in an envelope and mailed as a minimum weight air letter. It's not worth it for the businesses and it's unfair to employees who have to watch their colleagues in other industries having fun.

Surely we need some sanity in Christmas holidays. If we can't make Dec. 25 fall on a convenient day each year by juggling the calendar; and if we can't seem to shift Christmas to a non-traditional, less-crowded day, the least we can do is tie the benevolent and fair.

It's a small thing to do, to ensure by legislation that all workers whose services are not essential get a break on those spare Mondays and Fridays. And it's a thing that would make thousands more unencumbered working people happy.

Ratepayer Claim Denied

Busing Issue in Deseronto

Editor
The Intelligencers

Concerning an article that the Deseronto Ratepayers Association, had printed in the Quinte Buyer's Guide Nov. 29, 1973.

It stated in the article that the Deseronto Ratepayers Association discussed the overcrowding of the buses which transport high school students from Deseronto to Napanee several weeks ago. The article stated and "It was understood that a petition had been signed by concerned parents and the bus drivers and was to be given to the Ratepayers".

Carl Martin who is owner and operator of the bus line that the Ratepayers Association had not contacted him concerning the matter and furthermore would be nor any of the present drivers had signed their name to any petition. When several students were asked if they had signed any such petition, all of them said that they had not signed.

Four buses go to Deseronto each school day morning. Three return from Napanee in the afternoon. Each bus has a seating capacity of 68. The other bus is a 72 passenger and is insured to carry this many students.

If there had been any overcrowding it is due to the fact that at the beginning of the school year the students crowded into one end and left the back empty.

Through a survey taken this past week it was found that only from 38 to 56 students ride each bus in the morning. A considerable number of students ride home in the afternoon. Many of the students prefer to hitch hike home or ride with a friend. Therefore is not needed and would be a waste effort to have it on the road.

Mr. Martin, who is one of the Deseronto to Napanee and Napanee to Deseronto bus drivers, himself highly complimented the students of Deseronto for their behavior and conduct while riding the buses. He said of the 1,100 students who ride his bus line each day the Deseronto students were among the best of the bunch and gave him no problems.

The article the Ratepayers Association printed gave false information and created false impressions.

Focus on LIP Grants

Editor
The Intelligencer

The riding of Hastings is in danger of being drowned in the flood of LIP grants that are being shed by its federal member, Mr. Jack Ellis, in the matter of LIP monies destined for use locally.

Mr. Ellis makes the point that most of the monies available seem to be going to Liberal constituencies. He is probably right in this observation. But wouldn't things be just the same if the boot were in other? At least the people in the provinces are in no doubt as to who gets the favors. It's called Tory party.

"For I know that my redeemer liveth and that he shall stand at the latter day upon the earth. — Job 19:25

That is the voice of confidence. Happy is the man who has the same confidence. He ever liveth to make intercession for us." He said, "I shall return."

"My voice shalt thou hear in the morning O Lord: in the morning will I direct my prayer unto thee, and will look up." — Psalm 5:3

How wonderful it would be if we could all wake up talking to the Lord and do so sleep talking about Him. "Seek ye the Lord while He may be found. Call ye upon Him while He is near."

Turkey Producers Finding Their Take Almost Doubled

TORONTO (CP) — Sports promoter Irving Ungerman has a lucrative side—raising turkeys.

At the prices birds are fetching this year, the manager of boxers Clyde Gray and Georges Chuvalo may be tempted to stay down on the farm.

Ungerman's situation is typical of the 255 producers in Ontario. Twenty-pound turkeys are earning them $10 each compared with $5.50 last year.

This means an increase of more than 80 per cent in the cost to consumers—a 20-pound bird will cost $5.20 more than in 1972, when average price was 45 cents a pound. This year it's 83 cents.

For pre-basted turkeys, the price is 85 cents a pound this year compared with 54 cents last year.

These prices are the highest for turkeys in more than 20 years, and contrast sharply with those of several years ago, when the going rate was 31 cents a pound.

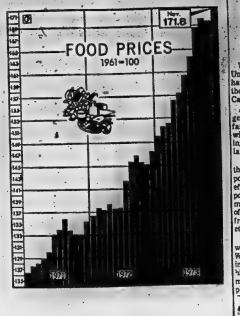
The picture isn't that rosy for the farmers because feed costs also have risen to $225 a ton from $103.

Stores are able to sell turkeys for 68 cents a pound even though they pay 68 to 70 cents a pound for them.

The reason is that the birds are used as "loss leaders" to attract business, with the idea that customers will pick up other more profitable food at the same time.

Teamsters Continue Supermarkets Strike

DETROIT (AP) — Teamsters threatened today to continue their walkout at five supermarket warehouses in defiance of union leaders and a federal court order.



Bargaining continues in the dispute, which sent more than 2,000 warehousemen and drivers to the picket lines just after midnight Sunday night.

Union leaders called off the strike in response to a temporary injunction prohibiting the work stoppage issued by U.S. District Judge Thomas P. Thornton.

Union members paid little heed to the court order, except to pull down their picket signs. Union leaders now classify the strike, authorized last week, as a wildcat.

Industry lawyers argued before Thornton that the walkout would cause "irreparable harm" to the supermarkets and about 4.5 million shoppers.

The strike, if it continues, will affect the inventories of retail stores which sell more than 80 per cent of the food products in the Detroit area. Industry sources said inventories would be a critical state of shortage" if the strike lasts more than two or three days.

U.S. Poor Will Suffer Most From Land's Energy Crisis

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States energy crisis will have an enormous impact on the poor, says Health Secretary Casper Weinberger.

A 16-page report by Weinberger's health, education and welfare department says the poor will suffer most from the growing shortages resulting from a lack of fuel.

Weinberger, speaking about the report Monday, said the poor in particular will feel the effects of reduced purchasing power brought on by unemployment and inflation and the lack of health services resulting from transportation and budgetary restrictions.

In an interview, in his office, which he keeps at 80 degrees, Weinberger said he anticipates increased demands for welfare, higher welfare payments and more social services as unemployment and inflation take hold next year.

He said he will encourage states to watch carefully for a possible need to raise welfare payments to help disadvantaged families cope with such things as rising prices for home heating oil.

Ontario Welfare Rates Will Rise

TORONTO (CP) — The Globe and Mail says Ontario's 183,000 welfare recipients will receive an average five-per-cent increase in their allowances Jan. 1.

The new rates would give a single man on municipal welfare an average $149 a month up from the $131.76 level set last October, the newspaper says.

A family of two adults and two children would receive between $283 and $330, with payments varying because of different housing, heating and food costs.

There currently are 80,000 people on general welfare assistance, the albert-term municipal assistance, and 83,000 others aided by family benefits, the provincial welfare plan.

Family benefits cases are long-term recipients unable to work and include deserted mothers, the disabled, the blind and the elderly, the newspaper says.

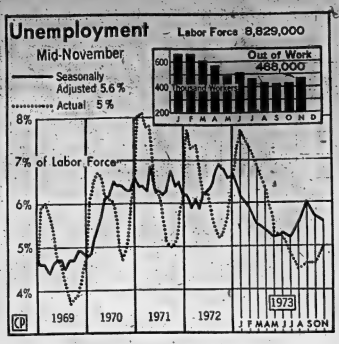
Committee Gets Bill On Energy

OTTAWA (CP) — The Liberal-Conservative deadlock on pre-Christmas Commons business hardened Monday, leaving the prospect of a normal holiday break more remote than ever.

Despite second-reading approval of the energy bill Monday night, chances of a compromise on a Christmas recess seemed bleak.

Both the Conservatives and the government said it is up to the other side to decide if the House will get a Yuletide breather.

John Reid, parliamentary secretary to government House Leader Allan MacEachen, said the Liberals are firm in their demand that three bills pass before any recess.



"The last time I spoke with Mr. MacEachen, he was still adamant. He told me we might even sit Christmas Eve."

The three items the government wants passed quickly are the energy bill, a bill to tax crude oil exports and the election expenses bill. It also wants to deal with the Senate amendment to the wiretap bill already passed by the Commons.

The emergency bill, establishing an energy allocations board now goes to committee for detailed study and the Conservatives say they will insist on thorough and lengthy committee review.

Tom Bell, Conservative House leader, said outside the House he expected this will require about two weeks, effectively wiping out a Christmas break unless the government caves in on its demand.

Mr. Reid (Kenora-Rainy River) said in an interview there is no question of the Liberals weakening. If the opposition co-operated, the energy bill and the rest of the legislative package could be hustled through the Commons by Friday, four days before Christmas.

Unemployment Declines

The seasonally adjusted unemployment rate edged down in November to 5.6 per cent of the work force, Statistics Canada reported Tuesday. The unemployment rate was down from 5.8 per cent in October. The actual number of unemployed rose 39,000 to 468,000 last month, but Statistics Canada figured it as a drop when seasonal factors are considered.(CP Newsmap)

Old Gravel Pits Proving More Valuable Than New

TORONTO (CP) — There are 900 acres of cleaned-out gravel pits in his riding that are more valuable today than when they were producing gravel, Donald Deacon (L—York Centre) said Monday.

He said persons outside his riding are "eyeing a 15-year contract to actually get more money out of those gravel pits" from allowing people to dump garbage in them—than they would have got out of the gravel that came out of them."

Mr. Deacon made his statements in the legislature while asking the provincial government to show some leadership in the research of converting garbage to energy supply.

The MPP said the potential threat from Toronto garbage to the water supplies of communities north of Toronto was great.

Garbage should be used for energy rather than dumping it in communities like those around the city, Mr. Deacon said.

He said plants converting garbage to energy have been built successfully in other countries.

"It is time this government assumed the responsibility, seized the opportunity and built these plants which others have built successfully, have operated successfully, have made use of the resource of garbage in a way that makes sense in today's time of energy crisis."

Negotiations Are Resumed On Wiretap Legislation

OTTAWA (CP) — Negotiations have resumed in the hope that wiretap legislation may be passed at this session of Parliament.

Justice Minister Otto Lang has submitted a compromise to the Progressive Conservatives on a controversial point rejected by the Senate last week. He hopes the Opposition and the Senate can agree on it and avoid a Commons-Senate confrontation.

The Senate amended the legislation to remove a provision under which the subject of a legal wiretap must be informed by a provincial attorney-general within 90 days of the bug being removed.

It took months of debate and negotiation for the Commons to agree to the bill, which outlaws all private wiretapping and restricts police use of it.

Ron Atkey (PC—Toronto St. Paul's), one of the chief Conservative negotiators when the bill was being discussed, has indicated he personally could accept something like Mr. Lang's compromise.

Mr. Lang is suggesting that the provision rejected by the Senate be replaced with one saying the judge who authorized the police wiretap could determine when a wiretap subject is to be notified. The judge would do the notifying himself and might delay it in cases of continuing investigations.

It appears that any compromise on Canada's first anti-bugging legislation may have to be achieved without the New Democratic Party. However, with enough Conservative support the minority Liberals would not need any help from the NDP.

"It is more important to abolish the Senate than to have a privacy bill," Stuart Leggatt (NDP—New Westminster) said in an interview Monday night. He is the party justice spokesman.

He said the bill was amended by a "non-elected Liberal Senate."

Stanley Knowles (NDP—Winnipeg North Centre), who has long sought abolition of the Senate, attempted to have the House move a motion Monday rejecting the Senate amendments. He failed to get the necessary unanimous consent to present the motion.

The 30-day notification clause, inserted originally in a Commons amendment by Mr. Atkey was opposed by Toronto Police Chief Harold Adamson when the bill was before the Senate's legal and constitutional affairs committee last week.

Any Commons bill changed by the Senate must be returned to the lower House.

The Senate rejected the notification clause despite a provision that an attorney-general could have asked a judge for permission to delay the notification. Chief Adamson said this was not enough and that continuing investigations would be hurt.

Mr. Lang apparently is seeking to discover from Mr. Atkey whether an amendment can get through the House.

The Conservative caucus considered Mr. Lang's compromise Monday night and Mr. Atkey said he would talk with

A Statement of Concern By The Teachers of Hastings County

Let's be clear we are not happy about any idea of "walking-out" but recent unjust legislation by the Ontario government leaves us in an untenable situation.

1. WHY DO WE PROTEST THIS LEGISLATION?

The legislation, an amendment to the Ministry of Education Act, does the following:

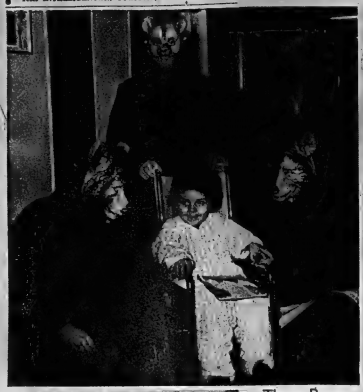
A. It infringes on the civil rights of teachers by limiting our ability to resign from teaching positions we find unacceptable.

B. It removes the right of mass resignation from several groups of teachers after they have already legally exercised that right.

C. It imposes possibly harsh fines upon individual teachers even though they may be acting as an integral part of a collective bargaining process.

D. It affects not only teachers. This amendment will have an adverse effect on the general position of any employee in his collective bargaining and it also has implications for the civil rights of an employee in his contract with his employer

E. Other labor and professional groups recognize the dangerous precedent set by this legislation and have publicly announced their support for the teachers. Among these organizations are:
The Canadian Labor Congress
The Canadian Union of Public Employees
The Ontario Medical Association



2. WHAT DOES OUR PROTEST MEAN?

A. By taking this stand now against arbitrary and unjust action resulting from the Ontario government's mismanagement of educational finances, we hope to advance our cause for educational quality in the schools and financial justice for teachers.

B. Our protest is not directed against the Hastings County Board of Education, the Hastings and Prince Edward County Roman Catholic Separate School Board or the students of Hastings County.

C. Any walkout must be put in perspective. Since 1945 mass resignations by teachers have resulted in the loss of less than a month of school days. This exemplary record of restraint hardly merits the sledge hammer legislation of the Government.

The Christmas Puppy

It's such a nice idea, getting a puppy or kitten for Christmas. You can imagine the look of delight on your children's faces when they see a little furry creature peering out of an over-size stocking on Christmas morning.

The fun they'll have with the kitten under the tree .. or racing around in the snow outside with the pup. The family "togetherness" of choosing a suitable name. Will it be Cuddles or Spike or Spot?

Pleasant imaginings, without a doubt. But be sure to take a realistic look into the future as well, and think about what's going to happen to that pet this winter.

Training a young animal is a rather nasty matter of puddles and newspapers all over the floor any time of year. But you can guarantee yourself more work, and your pet an unpleasant time, by trying to convince him to "go outside" during the blizzards of January.

A growing dog needs plenty of exercise, and unless you have an especially hardy family, you're going to have trouble getting the children to take Rover for a walk when it's five below.

The matter of going for walks can often be a dodgy issue all year long, and you should be absolutely sure that your family is willing to take on the responsibility of exercising the animal before you surprise them on Christmas morn.

More than one mother has discovered that the business of feeding and brushing and walking the dog is left to her after the novelty of having a pet has worn off. Even cats, those most independent of creatures, need a lot of care and love when they're young, and mom is more than likely going to be the one who gives it.

As long as parents are willing to take over these duties there's no problem. But if neither the children or the adults are diligent by the time spring comes, they have a very unhappy and badly trained pet on their hands.

A number of these animals end up in the Humane Society pound, victims of human thoughtlessness.

In order to prevent this kind of needless suffering the Canadian Council for Animals' Welfare suggests careful consideration before buying a pet.

A number of these animals are Christmas pet.

Bringing an animal into the excitement of a home during the holidays is definitely not a kindness. The pet is apt to be easily upset and confused, and off to a bad start with the whole family.

The council recommends that for younger children you give a cuddly toy instead of a squirming kitten that could be injured by inquisitive hands.

For children who are old enough to look after their own pet — at least eight years old — a little note on Christmas morning, promising a doggie in the spring, might be the happiest and most humane thing to do.

Will the puppy get as much loving care after Christmas time?

Kittens seem like perfect presents, but think carefully before you give them to your kids.

Three Bears Visit Children

The pediatrics ward at Belleville General Hospital resounded with song and laughter yesterday afternoon, as Christmas festivities took place. Several students from the Loyalist College Early Childhood Education course presented a program for the children, and visited those patients who couldn't leave their beds.

Linda Payne, Loyalist student and volunteer worker at the hospital helped organize the entertainment in which she played the part of Goldilocks. The three bears were Sharleen French (Papa), Mary Jane Tierney (Mama), and Marion McParlant (Baby). In the photo above, they visit with Ricardo Costa, who is recuperating from the burns he suffered in the November fire on Front Street.

People and Events

The Quinte Division Council of Girl Guides of Canada recently held a combined meeting and training day at Trinity United Church in Napanee. More than 70 Guiders (Girl Guide and Brownie Leaders) participated enthusiastically in the training session, learning songs, games, crafts and gaining information. The training was decidedly successful as well as enjoyable and a camp training was suggested for March or early April. Commissioners were asked to talk to people in their districts with a view towards having them become interested in training so that some day Quinte Division would have their own trainers. Trainers from other divisions had volunteered their time to make this session in Napanee possible.

Argument For Additives

TORONTO (CP) — Food additives have been much-argued about recently in the light of new concern about nutrition, the naturalness of food and about the removal of some additives as potentially harmful.

The word chemical, used in connection with food and additives, has become a worry word for many people.

Ernest Steele, as president of the Grocery Products Manufacturers of Canada, says that should at from one point of view, all food is a collection of chemicals.

He says without additives to preserve food, today's mass marketing would not be possible. Standardization that ensures that products have the same qualities every time they are used depends on additives. Additives are used for flavor and color. They are also used to forcefully foods when nutrients have been lost in processing.

Additives are derived from many sources, some natural, some laboratory-born.

The use of additives of every kind is governed by federal regulations. General policy on fortifying is not to add nutrients to foods that they normally lack.

There are three main methods of obtaining additives.

Some are components of unprocessed foods. Lecithin, an emulsifier, is found in soybeans and corn.

Some are modified natural foods, derived from natural sources, but chemically altered to perform a specific job. For instance, starches that act as thickening or emulsion-holding agents must be modified to maintain the desired viscosity. Starch in a limited capacity to withstand temperature changes, and without modification could not be used satisfactorily in products such as salad dressings.

The third category of additives includes those created or synthesized in laboratories to fill special needs.

Colors additives include both natural and synthetic varieties. Some of the natural ones are turmeric, saffron and beet red. A synthetic is annatto red.

Emulsifiers are used to disperse one liquid in another, such as oil in water. They keep salad dressing smooth and improve the freezing quality of desserts and ice cream. They are listed on packages as lecithin, mono-and diglycerides.

Stabilizers and thickeners include gum arabic and carrageen. They retard the settling of particles in some liquids, keep frozen desserts and sauces smooth, and maintain the consistency of spreads, icings, gravies and pie fillings.

Preservatives are used in pickling and smoking foods. Salt, sugar, acids and sodium benzoate are used as preservatives to prevent unwanted wild yeasts, bacteria and moulds.

Anti-oxidants are used to prevent the browning of food that occurs when oxidation activates certain enzymes that break down fats and diminish vitamins. They include such chemicals as butylated hydroxyanisole.

Acidulants are used to give a tang to fruit, candies, soft drinks and beer, and include malic and citric acids, both of which occur naturally in fruits.

Successful Living

Rules for Baby Sitters

By DORIS CLARK

1. Never underestimate the intelligence of a child-from one month to 15 years.

2. Win his affection.

3. Don't talk down to him-talk with him.

4. Be interested in what he has to say; give him time to talk to you.

5. Learn his interests - school, TV programs.

6. Discuss his routines with his parents: "Does he have a saking for sna sonsense he travel with but, who knows, she may be wanting a Christmas adventure too!

We need to keep ourselves open to new adventures and new friendships all life long. One of my friends said we should make at least one good new friend every year as we grow older.

I think we should be ready for new adventures in our eighties and not so blessed hangup on cultural proprieties that we can't enjoy the differences we find that might be new "pearls of great price."

Confidential to Have Nearly Made It: You need a copy of our newest leaflet, "Graduation Etiquette", which tells about invitations, who to ask, what gifts are suitable, how to acknowledge them, what to wear, the ceremony and after, the date, the married graduate, and the toast to the graduate among many other details.

Send along 25 cents and a large, stamped, self-addressed envelope and you'll glide smoothly and poised through all the fanfare.

If you do use cranberries, Mrs. Wronski points out, you'll want paper or something to catch them so they don't squash on your rugs or walls.

Another bell game is called find the bell. Players sit in a circle on the floor around one player in the middle. He counts to 30 with his eyes closed while the players in the circle pass a bell around behind their backs, ringing it while they do. When the counter reaches 30, the player with the bell must sit, holding it quietly, and the person who is it tries to guess who has it. If he does, that player takes his turn in the circle.

I Spy With My Little Eye, and a variation called I See Blue, are possibilities. In I See Blue, the child selects an object that can be seen by all players, and whispers it to the leader. He then says, I see blue, or yellow or whatever color the object is, and the others try to guess what he's thinking of.

In Indian chief, one child is named the scout. He goes out of the room while the other players choose a chief. The chief leads them in actions such as clapping, waving, holding an ear, and the scout tries to guess who the chief is.

When the children do not all know one another, Mrs. Wronski says she has found it helpful to have them introduce each other.

In one game each child hold the hand of the child on his right and whisper his name and school grade to him. Then that child introduces him to the others."

She says there are many other games, such as Blind Man's Buff, Simon Says, a hiding game based on Cobbler, Cobbler Mend My Shoe. There are a number of books describing and dating the games, available in libraries.

Fashions: Playing Straight

NEW YORK (CP) — "Fashion is playing it straight again," says Eleanor Lambert in her spring forecast for the American designer showings for the press.

The keynote is simplicity with attention to details.

The jeans generation has ended. People no longer want to look alike and poor. Individuality is the theme now.

There is a return to a suggestion of the Maxmen look. A dressy blouse slightly over a belted waistline or a jacket may be worn with a tie.

The jeans generation has There also is volume or bigness.

As Oscar de la Renta put it: "The fashion idea of the silhouette is to fullness at the top."

Sometimes it is a slightly widened shoulder, or a cape-type sleeve or a loose full top over a slim skirt or a deep (but not full dolman) sleeve.

Many coats, dresses and skirts have a wrap look and pleats are popular.

Old-Fashioned Christmas Games

TORONTO (CP) — Every year, children are invited to a small, old house, to share an afternoon with some cheerful young ghosts of Christmas past, and play the games they played.

The Toronto Historical Board puts on a party in its Colborne Lodge, once the home of John Howard. The decorations, the food and the games re-create the atmosphere of 120 years ago when the Bowagis' young nieces, Ellen and Eliza, came to visit.

Nan Wronski, who organizes the party, says many of the games still are familiar to children. For that occasion she chooses a few that have proven fun, and are safe to play in a small room among antiques.

One game is called ring the bell. Hang a small holly wreath from the door frame, and a small bell inside the wreath. Players line up and try to hit the bell with cranberries or small cotton balls. But be one who hits it the most times wins.

Ann Landers

Foster Child Needs Love and Respect

Dear Ann Landers: You asked for a letter from a social worker who might want to tell "the other side." I refer to the complaint from a foster parent who had unwittingly opened her heart and her home to a kid that should have been in schools for the retarded, institutions for the emotionally and mentally ill institutions."

Many foster children who need placement have been traumatized, abused, neglected or suddenly orphaned. The already upset child placed in an alien environment is expected to adjust, follow new rules and behave himself. These children often feel rejected by their own parents and are angry and hurt.

Admittedly, we social workers, in desperation to find a placement, do not always give a complete picture of the child's past behavior. We realize we must explain most of the child's problems or he will eventually have to be moved o another home and face another rejection. What we fail to tell the complete story, it is because we don't want to spoil the child's chances for a fresh start before he has apt opportunity to put his best foot forward.

It is essential to remember that most children are normal and have the inherent physical and emotional needs of normal people. The foster child may be more demanding because his needs have been unmet, but he deserves nevertheless to be treated with dignity, a little love and understanding can go a long way to help him in a battle where the odds are stacked heavily against him.—Marieke Fortenberry, Hampton, Va., Social Service Bureau

Dear Friends: I have been inunda'ed with letters from social workers from every state in the and am immensely pleased with the calibre, tone and compassion of these selfless people.

I am glad the foster children at Hampton have someone like you to speak in their behalf. My thanks and best wishes to you.

Dear Ann Landers: My husband died three months ago. He was a dear man and I miss him terribly. The condolence cards began to arrive almost immediately. I don't wish to appear ungrateful, Ann, but I was amazed at the number of people who don't know that a widow should not be addressed as Mrs. John Doe. She is Mrs. John Doe.

It is bad enough to have lost the man I love. Please, dear friends, don't take his name from me, too.—Mrs. John Doe

Dear Mrs. John Doe: Thank you for wri ing. Perhaps I can help. Don't remind me every time that when they write to a widow, it is considerate to remember her husband, as well. She needs to know that he has not been forgotten. When you address a divorcee, however, don't remind her. Leave her ex out of it. She is Mrs. Jane Doe.

Provinces Prepare For Energy Parley

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

East and West, provincial premiers are warming up for hot debate at the federal-provincial energy conference planned for Jan. 22-23.

Nova Scotia's Premier Gerald Regan said Monday the federal government has the major responsibility to "alleviate the unacceptable energy situation" in the Atlantic provinces.

He, Richard Hatfield of New Brunswick and Alex Campbell of Prince Edward Island attended a meeting of the Council of Maritime Premiers Monday.

Later, all three rejected a suggestion by Prime Minister Trudeau that the provinces reduce their sales taxes on gasoline as a means of easing high prices.

Premier Regan already has said he will press for a federal subsidy on fuel for the Atlantic provinces at the January conference.

The three premiers said in a statement Ottawa "has almost totally ignored Canada east of Montreal in its planning and proposed solutions to the difficult problems of supply and the rising cost of oil."

Gasoline and oil prices have risen sharply in Quebec and the Atlantic provinces. They get the bulk of their crude supplies from Venezuela.

Canada west of the Ottawa Valley gets its crude from the western provinces, particularly Alberta, and Premier Peter Lougheed has said he expects further confrontations with Ottawa over its energy policy.

Alberta is opposed to the extension of the federal freeze on crude oil prices to the end of the winter and to the federal export tax on crude.

Before proroguing last week, the Alberta legislature approved a bill to control oil production in the province as well as prices and tax rates.

Saskatchewan's legislature also is pushing through a bill which would control oil prices and profits, regulate wholesale prices and transfer legal title to oil rights from private companies to the province.

J. A. Armstrong, president of Imperial Oil Ltd., said Monday the proposed legislation likely will affect the petroleum industry's future and impair "Saskatchewan's attractiveness to every type of investor. . . ."

In a telegram to Premier Allan Blakeney, Mr. Armstrong said: "The interest of the citizens, the businesses and the economy of Saskatchewan strongly suggest more investigation before the enactment of such far-reaching legislation."

In the Commons Monday, second reading was given the government's energy allocation bill. It would permit the government to set up an energy allocation board to begin petroleum product rationing at the wholesale level in January. The board also would be able to recommend cancellation of existing environmental laws and regulations.

Canadian in Arabia Checking on Oil

OTTAWA (CP) — A Canadian diplomat is in Saudi Arabia trying to find out whether Canada is on that country's oil-embargo list, Energy Minister Donald Macdonald told the Commons Monday. He said reports from Saudi Arabia are "conflicting."

The Saudi Arabian government has said Canada is not on the embargo list, but the Arabian-American Oil Co. (Aramco), the major shipper in Saudi Arabia, has said the embargo does apply to Canada.

Mr. Macdonald said the Canadian ambassador accredited to Saudi Arabia, Jacques Gignac, is trying to clarify the situation.

He told reporters later that the Irving Oil Refinery at Saint John, N.B., has been the only Canadian refinery to receive crude from Saudi Arabia since the embargo was announced earlier this fall, but it was not known when the shipment left the country of origin.

Both Imperial Oil and Gulf Oil Ltd. are affiliated with Aramco, but he said no efforts have been made to clarify the situation through those companies.

"It seems to be the best thing is to go to the government."

Waves Slap Gently At New Seawalls

AMHERSTBURG, Ont. (CP) — Lake Erie waters slapped gently against the breakwall Dick Geiger had just completed in front of his lakeshore home.

"It wasn't like this one year ago," said Mr. Geiger who moved permanently into the home three years ago.

In November, 1972, Lakes Erie and St. Clair vented their fury in the first of three storms that caused an estimated $23 million damage to shoreline property.

"See that home," said Mr Geiger, pointing to a neighbor's new two-storey house. "The storm last year broke through the front and gutted the inside of the house.

"He finally had to tear it down and rebuild on the same foundation."

Mr. Geiger said the water came up two feet around his house and the waves were breaking against his front windows. "If the windows had broken, we would have been washed away."

Property owners along this stretch of beach, 25 miles south of Windsor, Ont., spent the summer building new breakwalls or reinforcing existing structures.

After the November storm, the Essex County Relief Fund paid out $151,000 in damage claims. Floods last March and April brought claims of $300,000.

The senior governments set up programs to help property owners and municipalities repair the damage and build new protective structures.

Two of the programs involve loans to property owners and municipalities and a third, 90 per cent paid by the two senior governments, is aimed at protecting agricultural lands.

The municipalities so far have asked for $2.4 million in loans for building seawalls, dikes and other flood preventive works.

The program to protect about 11,000 acres of agricultural lands in the county and Pelee Island may involve $16 million.

The city of Windsor recently applied for a $75,000 grant, mostly for sandbags. The Emergency Measures Organization said about 140,000 sandbags have been issued to municipalities and another 100,000 will be stockpiled.

In addition to the assistance programs, most homeowners have dipped into their own reserves or banded together in an effort to shore up their defences.

Mr. Geiger said many of his neighbors got together to build breakwalls. One neighbor got a tractor and went around the area spreading new soil that elevated the ground level by two feet.

He said the breakwalls won't stop another flood, only lessen the effects.

Les Woodhouse, a neighbor, said last year 15-foot waves tore out a section of 50-ton rock "and bounced it around like a pebble."

Mr. Woodhouse, who moved to his retirement home seven years ago, had to borrow $1,500 to rebuild his defences.

He said he didn't have to evacuate last year, but his home was turned into a coffee shop for neighbors paddling up to the front door on their way to safety.

Stewart McLean is a real estate agent who moved to the lakeshore three years ago. His front yard is 10 inches deep in sand washed up by the waves.

He didn't have to evacuate his home, like most of his neighbors in the subdivision near Harrow in the south part of the county, but had to use a motorboat to get around.

He said he sent his family to higher ground and stayed around to prevent looting.

Mr. McLean said the flooding has lowered property values. He has had lakefront homes on the market for six months, the same homes that would have been sold within days two years ago.

"Sellers are asking for the market value of their homes and buyers just won't pay the price," he said. "But memories will dim and there will be a good market again."

Mr. McLean and other homeowners believe the only solution to flooding is a breakwall several hundred feet off shore. They also know it is too costly.

Mr. Geiger had eight drivein restaurants in Detroit. They were getting robbed so often he gave up operating the incidents to police. He finally sold his last $37,000 business for $10,000 cash, moved to Canada and started a painting and papering business.

He said his new lifestyle has brought his family peace of mind. "There is a special feeling you get on the lakeshore. There just isn't anything else like it."

The United States lakes survey centre in Detroit said water levels in Lakes Erie and St. Clair are five inches lower than last winter's record levels. But there was still the danger of flooding with both lakes nearly two feet above the long-term monthly averages for November.

Dick Geiger puts the finishing touches on a new breakwall he built to help control flooding at his home on the shores of Lake Erie near Windsor, Ont. During storms and flooding in 1972 and 1973 water came up two feet around his house and waves were breaking against his front windows. (CP Photo)

12-Volume Novel Fascinates

LONDON (CP) — One of the few works of post-war English literature which, it is felt, will become part of history is nearing completion. The Music of Time, written by Anthony Powell, is a 12-volume novel of which the first volume was published in 1951 and the last is expected out in 1975.

The Music of Time is an intricate study of the social history of 20th-century England and is written in such a way that to get the full value of the work, one must start at the beginning and go right through to the end despite the attractiveness of individual volumes.

What Powell has been doing from the start is not to draw a picture of the whole of society but an enormously exact and detailed one of a tiny corner of that society that he knows well.

Starting with A Question of Upbringing and, so far, through 10 more volumes, The Music of Time is the world as Nicholas Jenkins, Powell's narrator, sees it.

Like Powell, Jenkins was educated at Eton and Balliol, Oxford; like Powell, he married an earl's daughter—the novelist married Lady Violet Pakenham, the sister of the Earl of Longford; like Powell, he has been a novelist, a literary journalist and a soldier. But it is essential to point out that Powell is not writing a concealed autobiography. What he has done is to build a novel around the structure of his life.

Powell has created some wonderful characters, and nearly all of them are English. Most are upper middle class. He introduces some startling individuals.

Take, for example, Pamela Flytize, an appalling nymphomaniac who became for a while Lady Widmerpool, or X. Trapnel, the tipsy scrounging novelist whose genius somehow never was recognized, primarily because he never took enough trouble himself. Trapnel is fairly solidly based on the late Julian Maclaren Ross, short-story writer extraordinary and bar-room conversationalist supreme.

While Powell is a remarkable creator of character, he is not widely recognized as one of the great writers of the present age.

His canvas is small and it is possible to feel excluded from his world, to feel that the jokes are private and that you are attending a party where you know no one.

The prose is elegant and fastidious, but always unhurried.

Those who are devoted to Powell's writing are waiting anxiously to know how The Music Of Time will end. The only thing to be expected about it is that the end will be unexpected and Powell will not let on what this is to be.

He is essentially a quiet man, a private man, though one who relishes gossip. He will be just about 70 when the final volume appears.

Old Tires Can Help Trees Grow

GUELPH, Ont. (CP) — The idea of using discarded auto tires to aid in the growth of fruit trees doesn't seem at all unusual to Prof. B. J. E. Teskey of University of Guelph.

He says Canadians throw away more than two million used auto tires yearly which are not recycled because no one has found a use for the cotton cord in the rubber or a cheap way of extracting it—until now.

Prof. Teskey, of the department of horticultural science at Ontario Agricultural College said scientists at the college have found the cord can be extracted for use as a mulch for fruit trees, a loose material placed around the stalks of trees to protect the roots.

He said the product, which reduces heat and produces moisture for the trees, has been tested for five years and now is ready for use.

Tests have shown the tire mulch has no toxic qualities and is a "good and safe material."

He suggested the extraction process could produce rubber for recycling and the cotton cord could also be used for padding furniture, cheap clothing and insulation.

With the increasing world price for rubber, this process will be important both from conservation and recycling standpoints, he said.

Guards Mark Time

There'll be no pay raise for Belleville school guards — at least until Ontario's minimum wage is highpr.

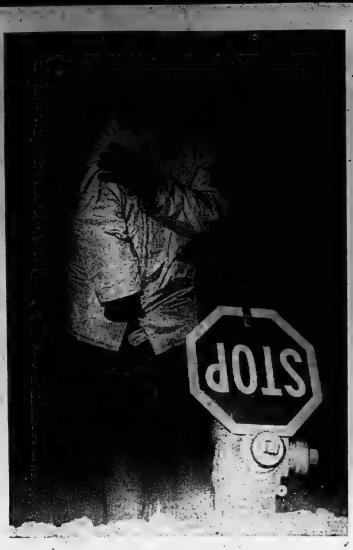
By next January, the city's school guards will earn $32.38 week. City council decided on the increase from $30 two months ago.

Monday night council approved in principle the recommendation of city manager Albert E. Elliott that no further raises be given the guards.

"Future increases should occur when, and if, the minimum wage is increased," said the report.

Meantime, there's an excess of applications for the jobs which, nine years ago, earned $15.

With women now acceptable as guards, city hall can expect even more applications, said Mr. Elliott.



Turbos On Track

After two months of test runs the Turbo trains operated by Canadian National Railways passed through Belleville Monday - - right on schedule.

The Turbo trains carried passengers on regular runs between Montreal and Toronto.

The trains, scheduled to pass through Belleville on its way to Montreal, arrived at 8.55 p.m. Monday, all of about two minutes to pass through.

The Turbos first introduced in 1968 have been plagued by development problems and false starts.

Minimum Wage Duty

Pay for crossing guards like Thomas Johnson, 74, will reach $32.38 a week next January. City council last night accepted, without comment, principle that future increases continue to be tied to minimum wage rates.

Claims 'Insidious Secrecy'

Young Attacks Bay 'Cover-up'

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

A Bellevillan who has repeatedly been a protagonist in environmental issues now claims he has a document that links Belleville General Hospital to "insidious secrecy" over alleged Bay of Quinte contamination.

Clarence Young told city council Monday night he will confront BGH's board of governors with the "revelations."

As a one-man delegation to council, Mr. Young aimed at:

— the "indifferent and inefficient enquiry" of Environmental Minister James Auld;

—Sid Meeks and Public Utilities Commission chairman Gerard O'Connor for shared "complacency" over the "reliability" of the environment ministry.

— all local authorities in general for "passing the buck" instead of taking curative action on environmental problems.

Mr. Young did not reveal the contents of the letter he said was written in March 1972 from the environment to Walter Todd, recently resigned BGH chief engineer. He will present a brief based on the letter to Friday's hospital board meeting.

With the brief he hopes to establish "official evasion and lack of concern" by ministry and hospital involving Bay of Quinte pollution — and "the insidious secrecy that surrounds these issues."

Mr. Young also referred to a BGH industrial neighbor — Mead Johnson Canada — here, he said, he discovered an all new page in an area he had "constantly" about flowing dye tests the next day, the company ordered further tests until all trouble sources were closed off - - an act that drew commendation from Mr. Young.

Mr. Young's criticism won't deter him from seeking out sources of pollution.

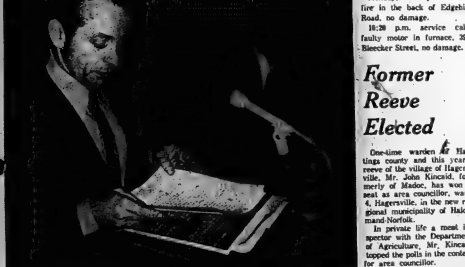
"People like myself have to develop thick skins," he told council, "in order to shrug off the smug and complacent insults... when we make any unpleasant revelations, about sources of pollution or the people causing them...

Ald. Meeks said councillors would appreciate any instance of pollution being brought to their attention.

"I didn't think any members of this council care much about it," said Mr. Young.

"Oh come on, now," retorted Mayor Robin Jeffrey, "I think we've shown our interest. ...Let me assure you there isn't one member of this council that isn't concerned with pollution."

She said city hall receives notices by mail "at least once a week" on local complaints being investigated by provincial authorities.



Alarm Box

Belleville firefighters responded to the following calls for assistance during the 24 hour period ending at 8 a.m. Tuesday:

Monday, 4:03 p.m. - brush fire in the back of Edgehill Road, no damage.

10:39 p.m. service call, faulty motor in furnace, 390 Bleecker Street, no damage.

Pollution Claim

Bellevillian Clarence Young goes before city council Monday night to talk environmental issues. Mr. Young claims he has a letter from the provincial government showing "lack of concern" by Belleville General Hospital over alleged Bay of Quinte pollution.

Pretty Poinsettias Could Kill

By PETER GOODSPEED
Staff Reporter

They look pretty; they are part of the Christmas tradition and they are deadly.

Mistletoe and poinsettia plants are probably the most common splashes of red and green that decorate Canadian homes during Christmas, but, according to local doctors, they are also high on the list of house plants that poison people.

Though reports on severity vary, poinsettia leaves and stalks, and mistletoe berries have been reported poisonous if swallowed.

A report from Geigy Agricultural Chemicals Ltd. claims that one leaf of a poinsettia plant can kill a child and that both children and adults have died from eating the berries of mistletoe.

Dr. James E. Nelles, a Belleville pediatrician, advises parents to keep these plants out of the reach of very young children.

If a parent suspects that his child has eaten the harmful parts of these plants, they should contact the emergency ward of the Belleville General Hospital, Dr. Nelles said.

County Votes Against Admitting Belleville

By ROY PEACOCK
Staff Reporter

Members of Hastings county will oppose any restructuring of the county to provide for an upper tier of local government to include Belleville and Trenton.

This was made clear Monday following caucus discussion of the municipal reform committee report which councilmen turned hands down a motion by Bancroft Reeve Jack Hatin recommending that the county policy favor restructuring to include the two urban areas not now part of the county administration.

Instead, council members approved the committee report which recommended a reduction in the number sitting on county council together with an increase in the number of shared municipal administrative responsibilities with Belleville and Trenton.

Tweed Reeve Barbara Allen, Chairman of the Municipal Reform Committee said this would already happen in 1975 as the provincial government has approved the county proposal bill which in January 1975 will reduce council membership to 29 members from the present 47.

MACKENZIE BOWELL

Bowell Birthday Celebrated

Bellevillians are being asked to recall one of the city's most distinguished citizens — Mackenzie Bowell.

City council was told Monday night the Hastings County Historical Society plans to publicly observe the 150th anniversary of Bowell's birth Dec. 27.

The event will be staged at one of the newer city public schools—named after the onetime prime minister.

Among other events, there'll be a keynote speech by historian John Foster.

Printer's apprentice to publisher (The Intelligencer), small-town politician to prime minister (1894-96), Bowell was the most spectacular public figure to come out of Belleville.

Even his political demise was dramatic. A John A. Macdonald successor, he confronted the historically thorny Manitoba school question. but his cabinet rebelled and Bowell became the only Canadian prime minister forced from office by his own political party.

For its program, the society plans a history exhibit.

Earlier this year the municipal reform committee brought in a proposal of amalgamation of county municipalities as a means of obtaining greater administrative efficiency.

The proposal for ahalgamation was circulated to all county municipalities for consideration and comment.

Twenty-two replies were received with only three municipalities clearly in favor of the proposals. Six others were clearly opposed and the remaining 13 qualified their replies.

Reeve Allen said the general concensus was that most municipalities would favor amalgamation if it became necessary but favored retaining as much as they were presently constituted.

As a result the committee was not recommending adoption of the amalgamation proposals at this timem.

At the same time the committee was unanimous in its desire to retain present county boundaries and stated any attempt to split the county should be vigorously opposed.

It is felt that the northern municipalities of the county need the southern industrial tax base in order to maintain their standards of service," the report stated.

Equally important is the south's need of the north with its wealth of recreation facilities and natural resources.

"The historical and traditional unity of the county must be preserved. It has served the people well and with little modification shall continue to do so in the future."

Mrs. Allen said Hastings has an enviable record of cooperation with the separated municipalities of Belleville and Trenton. She said the committee was proposing that Belleville and Trenton be asked to appoint representatives to meet with the council re membership early in 1974.

MORE

Mrs. Allen said it was generally felt by those in authority that the province's plan for regional government for this area had been changed. These plans had been replaced by proposals for restructuring the municipal function to include the separated towns and cities.

Mrs. Allen said there were four alternatives facing the county.

These were: 1. The formation of a new regional government which was now considered unlikely.

2. Restructuring of the county to provide for an upper tier of local government to include Belleville and Trenton.

3. Reduction of the number of constituent municipalities to 12 members together with an increase in the number of shared municipal administrative responsibilities with Belleville and Trenton.

Private Camp Owners Seeking Equal Pay

The new provincial policy of admitting senior citizens over 65 to Ontario's recreation parks and camping grounds is discriminating against private operators of such facilities.

This was the complaint Monday to Hastings county council by Wollaston township deputy reeve Buddy French, operator of a camping park at Coe Hill, who said he had lost about $1,500 this year because of the provincial policy.

He said he knew of one Belleville senior citizen that had left home with his trailer in May and had lived free all summer at provincial camping sites returning home in October.

Mr. French said he had no objection to senior citizens receiving this favor but felt private resort operators should be reimbursed.

He introduced a recommendation asking that senior citizens be granted free admission to private camping parks with the operators being reimbursed by the province.

Council passed thercommendation and the request will be forwarded to the province.

Former Reeve Elected

One-time warden of Hastings county and this year's reeve of the village of Hagersville, Mr. John Kincaid, formerly of Madoc, has won a seat as area councillor, ward 4, Hagersville, in the new regional municipality of Haldimand-Norfolk.

In private life a meat inspector with the Department of Agriculture, Mr. Kincaid topped the polls in the contest for area councillor.

Mr. Kincaid was reeve of Madoc village for several years about two decades ago and served as Hastings warden in 1953. His brother Kelso now deputy reeve of Madoc village.

Monday the former Madoc resident was on a brief visit to the unite area and renewed acquaintances at county council.

No Action Taken Against Hearse Use

Hastings county council has taken no action on a request from Marmora village objecting to the sale of old - funeral coaches to private individuals for use as a private car.

Marmora village council said that in some cases the method of advertising used by funeral coaches is casting serious reflection on funeral directors.

The village council objected to the improper use of the coaches as private vehicles. It asked for provincial action to prohibit sale and use of such vehicles to other than legitimate funeral directors.

Village Deputy Reeve Grant Arthur moved concurrence in his council's recommendation but Madoc township Reeve Cecil Woods and Tweed Reeve Barbara Allen felt the county could be overstepping its jurisdiction.

"If funeral directors couldn't sell their used coaches what would they do with them?" asked Reeve Woods.

He argued that this would be a form of dictatorship.

Reeve Allen took much the same line stating that in her opinion a used funeral coach was no different than a used planel truck.

Bancroft Reeve Jack Hatin, an undertaker by vocation noted that while funeral coaches might become outdated few of them actually have high mileage, and were still good for years of highway use.

He suggested that funeral directors themselves police the sale of used coaches, making sure all lettering and interior drapes are removed before they are sold.

Overnight Parking as Illegal as Ever

Not all Bellevillians seem aware overnight street-parking is illegal.

And city halls' traffic committee is to have another look at parking rules.

The need to keep the streets clear — in summer for sweeping, in winter for plowing — was restated at city council Monday night after a letter from a Nesbitt Ave. man who signed himself W. Zinck.

Mr. Zinck's letter was prompted when he suddenly got a ticket Nov. 28 outside his home—where he's been parking overnight for six years. He had figured since he wasn't on the paved roadway it was no offence.

However, council was told the entire road right-of-way applies — including a shoulder.

Mr. Zinck felt if police were told to lay down the law on an ordinance which had not been enforced "for years," they should have first issued warning tickets — or advertised.

Ald. Ben Corke said the suggestion was a "valid point."

Mayor Robin Jeffrey said police do the best job possible and "if your street gets missed you're just lucky."

Ald. John Slack pondered if the traffic committee could look over the parking bylaw and "see if people can park on certain streets in summer."

West Dundas Speed Limit Up

Maximum speed on the new four-lane — and primarily residential — stretch of Dundas St. West will be increased.

City council Monday night approved recommendations from its traffic committee that included a 35 mile-an-hour limit on Dundas from the city limits to within 500 feet of Bay Bridge Road intersection. The limit has been 30 miles.

The same report also won approval of traffic lights at Victoria and Herchimer avenues.

Three Buy Tree

Three students bought a tree, and three brought the tree home. At least to their home-away-from-home, their grade seven language arts class at King George Public School. Larry Cannon, 12, and Beth Revoy, 12, hold up the front end of their bargain while Tom Burtt, 13, brings up the rear. The students took the morning off from their classroom chores to search for the Christmas tree at the Quinte Mall last week.

Another Title For Magnussen

By IAN MacLAINE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Karen Magnussen may have problems getting dates, but she has no trouble catching votes.

The striking blonde from North Vancouver, B.C., 1973 world figure skating champion before turning professional, today was named Canada's top female athlete in a poll of sports writers and broadcasters conducted by The Canadian Press.

She received more than double the number of points of her closest rival, 1972 winner Jocelyne Bourassa of Shawinigan, Que.

Miss Bourassa edged Ottawa runner Glenda Reiser for second spot with Jo-Jo Carriere of Quebec City, winner of two synchronized swimming silver medals at the world swimming championships, a distant fourth.

Twenty-year-old Miss Magnussen won the compulsory figures and compulsory free skating at the world championships at Bratislava, Czechoslovakia, in March as she toppled arch rival Janet Lynn of the United States.

Shortly after her victory, on her fifth try, Miss Magnussen turned professional with Ice Capades for a reported $100,000 a year over three years.

Karen, says she has an uncomfortable feeling that boys are already a date her.

"I think they are really shy of me, the skater," Karen said in an interview. "I think they're frightened of the life I lead. . . .

"And I think, generally, most people tend to think all celebrities are snobby."

Snobby she isn't. Grace and charm have always been a Magnussen quality, whether signing autographs for kids or giving interviews with news media personnel.

The blue-eyed skater, who made her first public appearance as a snowflake at age six, picked up 99 first-place votes and 322 points overall. She was named in 110 of 132 ballots.

Miss Bourassa collected 65 firsts and 159 points to 124 points and five first-place votes for Miss Reiser.

A first-place vote was worth three points, a second two

Gordie on the Move

SANTA ANA, Calif. (AP) — Gordie, Howe is proving that age is no barrier to proficiency. At 45, hockey's master right wing is leading the way for Houston Aeros. Five straight two-assist' games in the 1973 week of World Hockey Association play moved Howe into the top 10 scorers for the first time this season.

He passed Winnipeg Jets' Bobby Hull in the scoring race on Dec. 15. As the Aeros moved to within two points of Western Division leading Edmonton Oilers Howe had six goals and 27 assists for 33 points. Hull has 31 points on 19 goals and 13 assists.

Leading for the second straight week is Toronto Toros' Wayne Carleton, a seven-point week left him with 46 points, four in front of Edmonton's Jim Harrison.

Steve Sutherland of Los Angeles Sharks increased his league leading penalty minutes total from 95 to 107, while New England Whalers' Al Smith, third in the goaltending department a week ago, moved to the top.

He has a goals against average of 2.76, followed by Don McLeod of Houston at 2.79, Eddie Wakely of Winnipeg and Jack Norris of the Oilers, both at 3.05.

Karen Magnussen—Heads the Poll

Goldsworthy, Esposito Zero in on the Target

MONTREAL (CP) — While centre Phil Esposito of Boston Bruins continues to score goals at a pace that threatens to topple records set almost 50 years ago, right winger Bill Goldsworthy of Minnesota North Stars today is threatening to become the first 200-goal man (of a post-1967 expansion team.

Goldsworthy scored five goals in Minneso's three games last week and added three assists to vault into a tenth-place tie with left winger Richard Martin of Buffalo Sabres in the individual scoring race.

Goldsworthy and Martin each has 37 points, but trail Esposito by 29 goin's. The North Stars rightwinger's 21 goals tie him with Boston's Ken Hodge as runner-up to Esposito in the goal-scoring column, and gives him a total 177 goals since picked up by Minnesota from Boston in the 1967 expansion draft.

Prior to moving to the Stars, Goldsworthy had six goals with the Bruins giving him 183 in National Hockey League play. His lowest goal total in the last four seasons was 27 last season.

It took Goldsworthy 29 games to pass the 20-goal mark, equalling Martin's record of last season, which is the fastest any post-1967-team player has broken the 20-goal barrier. This season Martin has 19 goals in 29 games.

But neither Esposito nor Goldsworthy will be able to improve on their personal records tonight when only three games are scheduled.

California Golden Seals visit Montreal Canadiens in one game, while Vancouver Canucks are at New York Islanders and Detroit Red Wings entertain Los Angeles.

Meanwhile, Esposito remains five goals ahead of the goal-a-game pace Maurice (Rocket) Richard had with Montreal Canadiens in 1944-45 when he scored 50 goals in 50 games. The Rocket had 29 goals in his first 28 games, compared to Esposito's 34 goals.

Bobby Hull, now playing-coach of the World Hockey Association Winnipeg Jets, had 27 goals after Chicago Black Hawks first 26 games in 1965-66, but Hull had missed four of those games because of an injury. He scored 31 times in his first 28 games that season, which were Chicago's first 32 games.

Bathgate Fights Fire With Fire

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Vancouver Blazers sent out a call for a decker to cure their World Hockey Association ills Monday, but found out the hard way requested will need medical attention of his own.

Vancouver coach Andy Bathgate, alarmed by the rugged tactics of Los Angeles Sharks, had sent for 6-foot-4 Serge Beaudoin, who was toiling with Roanoke Rebels of the Southern League, hoping the rugged rearguard would provide the tonic the Blazers needed.

But Bathgate will have to find some tough boys in his own lineup. Beaudoin broke his arm Sunday night and is on the sidelines for a month.

The Blazers and the Sharks meet tonight for the third time in four days and Bathgate says he is concerned about the physical attacks promoted on his players in the battle of the have-not clubs.

Blazers are last in the league's Western Division, four points behind the Sharks. Vancouver had won the first of three consecutive meetings between the two teams, 8-4 in Vancouver Saturday, but lost 5-3 to the Sharks Sunday in Los Angeles, leaving Bathgate perturbed.

The cause of his concern was an injury to leading scorer Danny Lawson who suffered a gash above the eye that needed stitching when he was struck by the stick of Los Angeles defenceman Jim Watson.

Now Bathgate wants his players to step up their attack.

"It's easy to send out butchers," said Bathgate. "If they want to play it that way, then we'll fight fire with fire.

The second period saw the Yardmen take a 2-1 lead, on the other Hayman marker, but Kingston came back in the third, to keep the teams deadlocked, on a goal by Bob Moses.

The Work Load Doesn't Bother These Goalies

By NEIL CAMPBELL
Canadian Press Staff Writer

A little hard work never hurt anybody.

Especially, it appears, goaltenders in the National Hockey League.

That's the lesson Bernie Parent of Philadelphia Flyers and Tony Esposito of Chicago Black Hawks have been teaching this season to coaches intent on pensioning their goalies.

The Flyers and Hawks have by far the best defensive records in the league this season.

And both clubs have depended almost exclusively on their first-string goalies—Parent and Esposito.

That's the way Esposito likes it. A couple of years ago, he even complained because the Black Hawks didn't play him enough.

Parent, who returned to Philadelphia this year after a hockey tour that took him to Toronto Maple Leafs of the NHL and Philadelphia Blazers of the World Hockey Association, is off to a sizzling start.

Parent says the close-checking Flyers have made things easier for him. A goalie gets less work and so is less tired, he says.

"With Philadelphia, I get maybe five or six tough shots a game. When I was with Leafs, it was more like 13 a game."

Not since George Hainsworth of Montreal Canadiens led the league with a 0.98 mark in 1928-29 has a goalie finished a season with a goals-against-average better than 1.50. Parent had after the weekend.

The Philadelphia goalie has a chance at a shutout record Hainsworth set in that same 44-game season. He has seven in 26 games, a pace that would give him 26 for the season. Hainsworth had 22.

The losers in Philadelphia and Chicago have been the spare goalies.

Mike Veisor has played nine minutes for the Hawks and Bob Taylor 51 minutes for the Flyers. Both clubs have played 28 games.

While the Flyers and Hawks each were betting on a single goaltender, the hot-and-cold Detroit Red Wings decided to try out their fifth goalie of the season.

The Wings sent rookie Terry Richardson, who has a 5.33 goals-against-average, to their Virginia farm team in the American Hockey League and called up Bill McKenzie.

In a front-office shuffle, Los Angeles Kings announced the appointment of Jake Milford to fill the general manager's job left vacant by the resignation of Larry Regan.

General manager Bill Torrey of New York Islanders found time Monday to straighten out the status of rookie defenceman Denis Potvin, who missed the first few days of training camp.

Torrey said Potvin will be back in uniform for tonight's game against Vancouver Canucks.

"I have taken whatever action I felt was necessary . . . and the issue is closed," said Torrey.

Tonight, California Golden Seals play the Canadiens in Montreal and the Kings are at Detroit.

May Appear in Court

HAMILTON (CP) — Dennis Vervegaert of Vancouver Canucks is expected to appear in court Dec. 28 on a charge of possession of stolen property.

Vervegaert, his brother, Peter and Jeff Casner, all of Grimsby, Ont., were charged in September.

Peter Vervegaert and Casner appeared in court and were remanded to Dec. 28 on the charge involving a boat and motor belonging to a St. Catharines, Ont., man.

James Gayder, Niagara regional deputy chief of police, said Monday he did not know if Dennis Vervegaert had been issued with a summons.

He said he had been told by Inspector Jim Moody, the head of the region's criminal investigation bureau in St. Catharines, that the hockey player would appear in court Dec. 28.

The Canucks are due to play a National Hockey League game against New York Rangers that night in the United States city.

An arrest warrant was issued for Dennis at the time of the incident, but it wasn't served.

"If a guy is in Vancouver and has a charge and if it's of a minor nature we are not going to spend $500 or $600 to get him back if there is a chance he will be coming back on his own, Gayder said.

Police have estimated the value of the boat and motor at $3,500.

Vervegaert is expected to be in Grimsby Dec. 21 for what town council has proclaimed Dennis Vervegaert Day.

Dennis Vervegaert Day, played Junior B hockey for Grimsby Peach Kings.

RECORD STANDS

MONTREAL (CP) — The United States Trotting Association has confirmed that the North American record for the most victories in one season by a harness racing driver comprising at a single track still belongs to Gilles Gendron of Montreal, with 232 wins at Blue Bonnets last year. Recently there had been conflicting reports of other drivers setting records, Jimmy Allen with 185 at Saratoga and Yvon Pelchat with 197 at Jacques Cartier.

NICE DAY'S PAY

BALTIMORE (CP) — Quarterback Johnny Unitas, demoted to the bench by San Diego Chargers eight weeks ago, was in the stands here Sunday to cheer for his former Baltimore Colt team-mates. Based on his two-year contract with San Diego at $250,000 annually for a 14-game schedule, Unitas earned $17,857.14 while watching the Colts and New England Patriots in a National Football League game.

MOD SCOT HONORED

NEW YORK (CP) — Jackie Stewart, the Scot who retired as world driving champion, was named Monday the 1973 Sports Man of the Year by Sports Illustrated. Stewart, 34, was the first auto racing driver to be so honored since the award was inaugurated in 1954.

WEEB LEAVES FIELD

NEW YORK (AP) — Charley Winner officially took command of New York Jets Monday and immediately began making plans aimed at reviving the sagging National Football League team. "The first thing I plan to do is get together with our talent department to see . . . what we need," he said. Winner replaced his father-in-law, Weeb Ewbank, as Jets' coach, a move announced before the season began. Ewbank retains his post as general manager. The Jets wound up a dismal 4-10 campaign Sunday with a 34-14 loss to Buffalo Bills.

Faces Operation Wednesday

Marlies' Needl Hopes To Return to Hockey

TORONTO (CP) — Greg Needl, who suffered an eye injury in a hockey game earlier this month, will have the eye removed Wednesday.

In a statement released Monday night, his father Norman said doctors felt complications might arise unless an operation was performed.

The statement, released through Toronto lawyer Alan Eagleson, said Greg hopes to return as a player.

Needl, 18, was playing for Toronto Marlboros when he was injured by a hockey stick during an Ontario Hockey Association Major Junior A game Dec. 8 at Kitchener against the Rangers.

Eagleson talked to Paul Henderson this evening and he told Paul that he was sure he would be back playing again quite soon," the statement said.

Eagleson said Needl told Henderson, who plays for Toronto Maple Leafs of the National Hockey League, that he hoped to be back with the Marlboros this year.

"My wife and I are very saddened by this tragedy but we know our son and we know he won't give up," he statement said.

"We are sure he will be involved in hockey because he loves the game so much."

Eagleson said the Marlboros had offered to spend whatever is necessary on research to device protective gear which would permit Needl to play.

He noted that several players have continued their hockey careers after losing an eye.

One of them, Tommy Burlington, played in the American Hockey League for several years and later was a member of an Owen Sound, Ont., team that won the Allen Cup.

Needl is still going to school, Eagleson said, so his future isn't limited to hockey. He has one year of junior eligibility left.

The stick that injured Needl was carried by the Rangers' Dave Maloney, who drew a major penalty. Maloney later expressed regret, saying that the injury was an accident.

While Needl says he plans to resume his hockey career an eye injury so far has kept defenceman Keith Mackie out of the National Hockey League.

Mackie was struck in the eye by a deflected shot when he was playing for Edmonton Oil Kings in the 1972 Memorial Cup final.

He played for the Kings in 1972-73 and was drafted by Vancouver Canucks of the NHL, but NHL president Clarence Campbell ruled that his vision is not good enough to permit him to play in the league.

Mackie is experimenting with a new type of protective helmet he hopes will permit him to play.

Shaver's Preparation Gets the Job Done

TORONTO (CP) — Figure-skating is a full-time job for Ron Shaver.

The 21-year-old Cambridge, Ont., resident practised seven hours a day for the eight weeks before he finished a surprising second last week at Moscow Skates.

"I began sessions in Denver, Colo., during the spring, continued in London, Ont., during the summer and returned to Denver for more training during the fall," he said Monday in an interview.

"I need those training sessions to build up power. I worked harder during the eight weeks prior to the Moscow Skates.

"You try to time it so that you reach your peak at the competition."

Shaver, who skates out of Stoney Creek, Ont., has had the best year of his six-year career this year. He finished second in the Canadian senior championships and eighth in the world championships.

But Shaver says his success at Moscow was a pleasant surprise.

"The Russians are far superior for anyone else in free skating," he said. "So I didn't think my chances of placing high were good.

Shaver finished with 229.56 points, less than two points behind Vladimir Kovalyev of the Soviet Union.

He couldn't overtake the lead Kovalyev had built in the compulsory figures part of the competition, worth 40 per cent of the total mark.

Tass, the official Soviet News Agency, said Shaver, "brilliantly executed the free competition with three-turn jumps and all of them were performed faultlessly."

Shaver plans to take a little time off, then begin preparing for the Canadian championships in Moncton Jan. 29.

"My main goal is to represent Canada in the '76 Olympics" he said.

"But at this point I'm going to start training again for the Canadian championships and the 1974 world championships in Munich."

Walt Frazier Lifts Knicks

HOUSTON (AP) — Walt Frazier scored 29 points and helped New York Knicks survive a third-quarter rally for a 109-97 National Basketball Association victory Monday night over Houston Rockets.

It was the only game scheduled in the NBA and American Basketball Association.

The Rockets, who lost their fourth straight game, never led until a three-point play by Mike Riordan gave them a 58-56 advantage at 6:46 of the third quarter.

But the sharpshooting Frazier followed up with a basket that tied it and Phil Jackson hit two straight and the Knicks never trailed again.

Guaranteed Income Debate Lies Ahead

OTTAWA (CP) — Welfare ministers began munching through a platelet of social security reform proposals in 1973 but they left some of the thickest-skinned yet potentially most satisfying delights for 1974.

With relative ease federal and provincial ministers agreed on increases in family allowances and Canada Pension Plan (CPP) benefits and contributions. The federal government took action to boost old-age security payments.

In the new year, the controversial questions of a guaranteed annual income for those unable to work and income supplements for the working poor will be discussed.

In February the third in a series of federal-provincial ministerial meetings will be held to thrash out reforms suggested in a 14-point federal program unveiled last April.

Meanwhile, welfare officials on inter-governmental committees have been trying to eliminate some of the prickly problems presented by a social security overhaul.

Likely to overshadow their efforts will be the recent suggestion from the Economic Council of Canada that rising costs of social services are helping to fuel inflation.

Last April the ministers agreed that the federal plan, presented to them by Welfare Minister Marc Lalonde, was an "appropriate basis" for a social security overhaul. They also approved increased family allowances.

In October, at their second meeting, the ministers turned to CPP amendments and the Canada Assistance Plan. They decided to tie pension benefits to cost-of-living increases, eliminating the previous annual two-per-cent limit, and approved increases in both payments and contributions.

The provinces also won from Mr. Lalonde a commitment that the federal government will contribute 50 per cent of costs to certain universal welfare plans. These may include nursing care, day care and dental care for children.

Left relatively untouched by the ministers so far, yet considered a major policy question by the federal government, is an employment strategy that would try to provide the poor with income through jobs rather than through welfare.

One of the 14 points in a federal paper on welfare policy notes that a reformed social security system should remove disincentives that might discourage the jobless from taking advantage of job or training opportunities.

The paper suggested community employment programs that would provide useful work for those unemployed for extended periods.

The ministers will also tackle a proposal that supplements be paid to those who are making inadequate income because of family size or low-paying or part-time work.

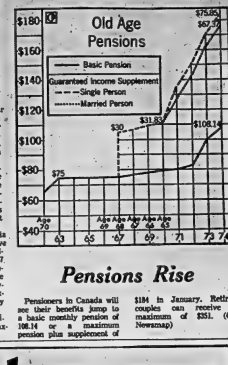
For those unable or not expected to work because they are heads of single-parent families, disabled or not employable because of age, lack of skill or time out of the labor force the ministers will consider provision of a guaranteed annual income.

The federal and Manitoba governments are sponsoring a joint guaranteed annual income test in that province. Officials will study the effect of guaranteed money on a selected number of families.

The social security reform proposals were first announced in the throne speech last Jan. 4, when the federal government endorsed a general philosophy that would allow the provinces more say in federal programs.

When Mr. Lalonde announced the 14-point plan he offered the provinces the opportunity to vary social programs subject to adherence to minimum standards set by Parliament.

For family allowances the federal government proposed an average of $20 a child each month with a minimum payment of $32. The allowances were to be made taxable.



Most provinces have adopted the flat $20-a-month proposal to go into effect Jan. 1. Some, including Quebec and Alberta, have taken advantage of the chance to vary benefits according to family size and age.

Pensioners will see their benefits jump to a basic monthly pension of $108.16 or a maximum pension plus supplement of $184 in January. Retired couples can receive a maximum of $351.

The boost in old-age pensions comes from an increase to $100 from $82.88 in the basic benefit and two quarterly cost-of-living adjustments. The quarterly changes were approved by Parliament this fall.

Recipients of the Canada Pension Plan will also receive retroactive cost-of-living adjustments dating back to 1967 while maximum monthly benefits will go to $166 from the present $90 in 1974. The government is aiming at a maximum CPP benefit of $250 by 1980.

Employee-employer contributions will rise to a maximum of $106.20 in 1974.

Pensions Rise

Pensioners in Canada will see their benefits jump to a basic monthly pension of $108.16 or a maximum pension plus supplement of $184 in January. Retired couples can receive a maximum of $351. (CP Newsmap)

Plan Accepted

Most provinces have accepted the federal government's flat $20-a-month family allowance proposal to go into effect Jan. 1. The government proposed an average of $20 a child each mon h with a minimum payment of $12. The allowances were also to be made taxable. (CP Newsmap)

Deseronto Personals

Mr. Thompson has accepted the position of Minister for the Quinte Pastoral Charge which includes Deseronto and Melrose United Churches, starting with the first Sunday in January. Robert Thompson, who is still in training for the ministry, has agreed to accept the position until June by which time it is hoped that a permanent minister will be available. This charge has been without a minister since the resignation of Rev. William Hendry last August. Following the Candlelight service on Sunday, at which both junior and senior choirs will perform, there will be a social hour in the church hall to give the congregation an opportunity to meet and speak with Mr. and Mrs. Thompson. Atlantic Canada Enjoys Something Like a Boom

By MARK PEDERSEN

Atlantic Canada swept through 1973 on the closest thing to a boom the region has seen in years.

Most economists were optimistic growth would remain steady in 1974 but looming in the background was the fear the energy crisis could knock the wind out of the economy by depressing principal markets, particularly in the east-ern United States.

"Any change in our natural markets hit us," said Cliff Marks, director of the office of the economic adviser in New Brunswick.

Ironically, the energy cloud had a silver lining for the Atlantic region, sparking new interest in exploration for untapped oil and gas reserves of the East Coast of Canada. Nova Scotia still sees an offshore petroleum industry as the card which could put the province on its feet economically and the other three Atlantic provinces are no less enthusiastic with the prospect of new exploration off their coasts.

Premier Regan urged Ottawa to proceed as soon as possible with pipeline to carry natural gas from Sable Island. The sedimentary basin — areas which ages ago were covered by great shallow seas — contain the country's proved and potential reserves of natural gas, crude oil and coal, according to the Geological Surveys of Canada. (CP Newsmap)

Federal Energy Minister Donald MacDonald even went as far as to say the National Energy Board and his department were examining the possibility of laying a deepwater pipeline to a mid-water buoy station off Nova Sco'ia where crude oil could be picked up by tankers.

Because of the energy crisis, Ottawa might go against its usual practise of waiting until reserves are well defined.

Premier Gerald Regan said the plan wasn't practical because the reserves weren't mapped but he urged Ottawa to proceed as soon as possible with a pipeline to carry natural gas from Sable Island.

G. Campbell Eaton of St. John's, Nfld., chairman of the Atlantic development council, an advisory body to the federal department of regional economic expansion (DREE), foresees new growth in the coming year.

"I'd be quite optimistic the demand for resource products is going to be quite high and this would again bring the usual spinoff," he said.

The 1972 indicators told a story of strong and steady recovery from the slowdown of the late 1960s and early part of the decade.

Public and private investment in Nova Scotia during 1973 was expected to top $776 million, up 23 per cent. It was expected to reach $566 million in New Brunswick, up 18 per cent and $88.1 million in Prince Edward Island, up 21 per cent. There was expected to be a slight decrease in Newfoundland, down to a still-healthy $584 million.

The value of factory shipments in the region will probably be up 20 per cent by the time the final statistics are calculated.

Farm cash receipts were $128 million during the first six months of the year, compared to $99 million during the same period in 1972, while the value of fishing landings increased 11.9 per cent during the first six months.

Pulpwood production increased 47 per cent during the period, newsprint production jumped 17.4 per cent and port cargo at Halifax, Saint John, N.B., and Belledune, N.B., increased 23 per cent.

The labor force grew to 740,000 during the first eight months of the year, a 6.3-per-cent increase, but unemployment remained high with an average 71,000 workers looking for jobs.

Shaheen Natural Resources of New York gave the Nova Scotia and Newfoundland economies a shot in the arm during the year.

A wholly-owned subsidiary, Newfoundland Refining Co. Ltd., opened a $200-million refinery at Come-by-Chance about 100 miles west of St. John's.

In Nova Scotia, the Shaheen company awarded the contract for construction of a $223-million refinery on the Strait of Canso to an Italian company. Work was expected to get under way in the spring of 1974.

A second new industry for Newfoundland, a $200-million linerboard mill at Stephenville, employs 400 but there have been warnings from Labrador Linerboard Ltd., the Crown corporation which runs the mill, that some downtime can be expected during 1974. The mill makes cardboard packing material.

The company is uncertain about its wood supply.

Construction of a $200-million New Brunswick Electric Power Commission thermal plant at Coleson Cove near Saint John continued through out the year and the New Brunswick Development Corp.

searched for a partner to build a proposed deepwater port and oil facilities nearby.

There was an impressive 65-per-cent increase in Prince Edward Island's most important economic indicator, farm cash receipts during the first six months of the year.

Potato prices were high throughout 1973 and the prospects for Island farmers in 1974 appeared bright.

Space Benefit

Space Emphasis Switched To Exploitation by U. S.

WASHINGTON (CP) — The United States, after 15 years of space exploration, is switching the emphasis to space exploitation—making the knowledge it has gained work for the benefit of mankind.

But while there may be no more manned visits to the moon or any other heavenly body in the immediate future, the men of NASA insist they still have stars in their eyes.

The year 1973 ends with three U.S. astronauts floating in weightlessness and working in the silence of space. On earth, preparation was going ahead in the Soviet Union and the U.S. for the first joint space mission—co-operation in space to parallel a growing detente on land.

In 15 years, the U.S. has sent up 29 manned flights. There have been nine moon-vicinity flights and six moon landings. Twelve men have stepped out of space ships to walk or ride on the moon.

Now, the National Aeronautics and Space Administration will try to consolidate the gains made in space technology.

Dr. Christopher Kraft, director of the Johnson Space Centre, says the public is not as interested in the space program as it once was. But it would not be correct to say people are becoming apathetic.

"It's not that this nation has become blase in this regard. It's just that space has become commonplace, like the automobile has become commonplace, and I don't see anything wrong with that."

It was Kraft who said there are still those at NASA who dream of interplanetary manned flight.

Speaking philosophically, I feel that eventually such missions may become extremely important to mankind because we may find we are not the only place where human beings live."

Dr. Thomas M. Donahue, University of Pittsburgh physicist, says future space flights may disclose life on Titan, one of the huge moons of Saturn.

Donahue is head of a scientific team appointed by NASA to design a $700-million spectroscopic experiment for a "grand tour" of the outer planets which NASA hopes to conduct later in the 1970s.

He says life on Titan is one of many findings which may be in store for scientists exploring the outer planets—Jupiter, Saturn, Uranus and Neptune.

"Most interesting is the indirect indication of the presence of a large quantity of nitrogen on Titan," Donahue says. Nitrogen is sometimes produced by the actions of micro-organisms from animals.

"Where there is nitrogen, one suspects bugs. At any rate, our curiosity has been highly aroused."

And there are plans to orbit a huge space telescope that will give man a look at the stars 100,000 times better than he can get through the murky atmosphere of earth.

One area in which space technology may lead to important innovations is manufacturing. Right now, the three astronauts orbiting in Skylab are experimenting to see whether it is feasible to manufacture products in the perfect vacuum of space.

Already the micro-miniaturization developed for the space program is being adapted to everyday use. Technology in the development of lifetime heart pacers is one example.

Through space development has come an electronically controlled knitting machine which can change patterns in a matter of minutes—a chore that formerly took days. There is a computer-actuated anti-skid braking system under development for large highway transports.

And NASA is working on projections for a low-pollution gas-turbine engine for automobiles.

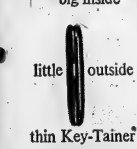
As for the coming years in space itself, there is the Apollo-Soyuz Test Project, a 10-day link-up in space between Soviet and U.S. cap sules that is set for the summer of 1975.

After that, NASA chiefs say, there is a possibility of a joint U.S.-Soviet mission to the moon.

Deseronto Personals

Mrs. Beryl Herman, of Deseronto, is a patient in Kingston General Hospital.

Mr. and Mrs. Arnold Barkley, and daughter, of Odessa, and Albert Walker of Deseronto were supper guests of Mr. and Mrs. Don MacMinn of Deseronto over the weekend.



Members of the Deseronto Red Cross and guests met at the home of Mrs. W. C. Cochrane on Wednesday night, December 12. There was an exchange of gifts after a supper.

St. Mark's Anglican Church, Deseronto, will be holding their regular Christmas Eve communion service at 10.30 p.m.

Mr. and Mrs. A. Sanderson and Sue Hayden, of Port Hope, were weekend visitors of Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Hunter and family, of Deseronto.

Champagne

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario liquor store clerks are presenting customers with their merchandise wrapped in bright blue plastic bags, but not in celebration of the holiday season. Strikes have created a shortage of the customary brown paper variety.

Interest on Pinnacle Bridge More Than Cost of Structure

It'll cost more to pay the interest on Belleville's new Pinnacle St. bridge than to actually build the major traffic artery across the Moira River.

Estimated cost of the bridge, to start next year, $468,375. Estimated interest on a 20-year debenture loan to pay the bill, $468,158.

"We could build two bridges, because he interest is more than the cost o-," reacted Ald. Stu Meeks in city council Monday night. The councillor originally had asked city treasurer Frank Morrell to figure the financial statistics.

Ald Meeks' pondered the feasibility of paying for such major projects out of current budgets. Ald. Keegan warned against capital budget programs might be necessary.

But Ald. Ben Corke said the theory of debenturing — which affected nearly every Large municipal undertaking — was to spread the cost more equitably among more users.

Ald. Roger Porter warned to build such a project with current taxes would be a backward step. Inflation would mean interest rates on other schemes which would be deferred.

Interest rate on the new bridge debenture issue is estimated at 8.75 per cent.

City manager Albert Elliott said municipal expansion, as much as possible, should be based on current revenues. Yet a "delicate balance" had to be struck between assessment —major source of local tax funds — and what must be built for a community.

He also warned against future inflation driving interest rates even higher.

Council Lays Groundwork For Dundas East Widening

City council Monday night helped set the scene for a workstart on a major project — widening of Dundas St. East from the city's core.

Council approved a package of land acquisition bylaws for property required in reconstructing the two-lane Highway 2 link from Front St. to Bleecker Ave.

At the same time it deferred any expropriation proceedings on a series of lots.

Ald. Paul Russell's recommendation was that expropriation be tabled until past the deadline for any public meeting by a provincial government agency. This would give the city more time to amicably attempt transactions with owners of the 14 lots.

The various approvals involve all property slices needed for the widening project, Albert Elliott, city manager, said last week.

Wilbur Purcell, city engineer, said the project should be under way some time next year.

The business properties of two councillors are in the affected zone. Both Ald. Stu Meeks and Ald. Ben Corke said they formally declared their interests as dictated by law — when the issues were raised.

Ald Meeks' and his family will get $2,500; Zegouras Bros. Ltd. $1,500; Irish Properties Ltd. $4,087; Mr. and Mrs. Charles Steven, $1,075; Mr. and Mrs. L. A. Daugherty, $750.

Ald. Russell also recommended council pick up its option on property owned by Gulf Oil for $6,155.

Wrong School In picture

In a picture in The Intelligencer Saturday of pupils singing at the Four Seasons Hotel, the school was incorrectly identified. The 45 singers were from Prince of Wales School.

Big Increase In School Use

DESERONTO — This town has seen a marked increase in the use of the school building, at night here by the public, states principal Al Camelford. In his latest school newsletter.

It is not uncommon for the school to be in use 6 or 7 evenings a week. Currently there are 15 groups using the school facilities on a regular basis. Six of these groups are affiliated with a night school program. The enrolment in this program has risen to 76 students. The area of the school in greatest demand is the auditorium. It is in use 6 days a week.

Sidney Intersection Creates Some Concern

Anxiety for safety at the newly-widened Sidney St. and Moira streets intersection were voiced Monday night in council.

Now widened to a four-lane thoroughfare with traffic feeding from a nearby new railroad overpass, accidents seem to be mounting at the spot.

There are no traffic light's at the big new intersection. But, would lights even improve the accident rate, wondered Ald. George Zegouras.

Both he and Ald. John Stock noted the problem: a widened creation's feeding traffic from an area that's industrialized, has many homes, some schools.

There have been four "severe" accidents since the recent widening, said Ald. Zegouras —and - - for a pedestrian - - it was that much more difficult to cross a four-lane road.

The concern feeds the problem with cars sometimes "travelling at quite a speed". The surprise variable is the intersection, he said. It's a 30 mile-an-hour zone.

Mishaps with "unreasonable" causes are not taken into account when provincial traffic officials assess the needs for traffic lights, said Mr. Purcell. Even intersections with lights are not accidents free.

Value of Walkathons Questioned by Writer

Are walkathons any longer the best feat for finding the bills of good causes?

The question was raised Monday night in city council by a Trenton-area resident.

In recent years walkathons have become almost as numerous as feet — in fact, wrote, G. G. Armstrong, RR 2 Trenton, they seem "a terrific waste of energy ... a nuisance are for (those) asked to sponsor the walkers.

The Armstrong solution: A jobaction.

Plenty of homeowners, industries, have nuisance jobs for which workers are hard to find — hedge-cutting, painting, cleaning attics, basements, yards.

"Would it not be much more realistic," says G. G. Armstrong. "If those who volunteer for the walkathon go around and solicit such jobs for which they would be paid by the hour and ...

Thinking about it, city councillors asked city manager Walter Elliott to bring in a report on the suggestion.

Snow Dumped On Same Site

Belleville once again this winter will dump its street snow in the same place as last year — on vacant land south of Farley Ave.

Wilbur Purcell, city engineer, confirmed the site had been renewed when queried Monday night in council by Ald. Stu Meeks.

Funding Hockey Trip Would Set Precedent

Getting a hometown hockey team in an out-of-town big-time tournament is nationally popular — scalp costly.

City council was told Monday night transportation costs to take Belleville's Pee Wee Majors to Sault Ste. Marie winter carnival will be about $900.

The letter from manager Gord Miller did not outrightly ask a city hall grant.

Ald. Stu Meeks said the team after its own fund-raising, would need about $400.

But Alderman Mayor Robin, a city grant might set a precedent that could not be ignored if other teams came calling.

There were other "possible sources" of financing, she said, and council agreed to let the mayor herself talk things over with the team's manager. Choir

County Is Filling Administration Jobs

As result of recent resignations by Hastings county administrative personnel, appointments for a new deputy clerk-treasurer and a new administrator at Hastings Manor were approved this week by county council.

One of the resignations was that of Donald E. Lougheed, deputy clerk-treasurer for the past six years who will be leaving early in January to accept a position with a new area municipality west of Toronto.

Mr. Lougheed had been retained as treasurer for the Central Hasting area of the new regional municipality of Halton.

His position with Hastings county will be filled by Harold Mason, director of finance at Belleville General Hospital for the past seven years. A native of Western Ontario, Mr. Mason is a chartered accountant with previous experience with the Ontario Hospital Services Commissop.

Another new appointment is Glen Whitehead as administrator at Hastings Manor, the appointment to take effect on March 1 next year.

Mr. Whitehead, who has been at Hastings Manor in an assistant administrative capacity for several years, will take over the position of Kenneth Yorke, long - time administrator. Mr. Yorke had tendered his resignation, effective early in the new year.

Your Horoscope

WEDNESDAY, DEC. 19

By BERNICE EDDE OSOL

Aries (March 21-April 19) Is it? You'll be tempted today to show more consideration toward an outsider than to one you should at home.Hurt feelings will result.

Taurus (April 20-May 20) You can impress others only if you put out the effort expected. Glib answers and a pleasant personality won't cut the mustard.

Gemini (May 21-June 20) Put realistic values on work or service performed for another today. You'll be disappointed if you expect more than you should.

Cancer (June 21-July 22) Be very careful not to offend an old friend by giving more attention to someone new, while slighting her.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22) Family responsibilities will fall more on your shoulders than your mate's. You may be miffed if he takes things too lightly.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Your priorities will get a little mixed up today. Outside demands will keep you from work you should be doing.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Today you'll be both prudent and impractical. In one area you will exercise sound judgment. Later, you'll waste what you've gained.

Scorpio (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Try not to let sentiments influence your thinking today. If you do, it will neither benefit you nor one you're trying to help.

Sagittarius (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Although you will see and understand things as they are, optimism will replace common sense. Your ideas will suffer.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) You'll have to be firmer than usual with one who borrows but doesn't repay, or return things you lend him.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Something you've accomplished and are proud of should be left to speak for itself. Embellish your deed and lose admirers!

Pisces (Feb. 20-March 20) Be sure to give credit if you use another's ideas. Above all, don't try to claim them as your own.

Unionists Annoyed At Leader

TORONTO (CP) — Frank Amis, business manager for local 308 of a cement finishers' union, was confronted Monday by union members, angered by testimony before a royal commission last week which indicated he and his wife have received small gifts of union funds in the last 14 months.

The men, members of the Operative Plasterers and Cement Masons International Association, said they decided to oust Mr. Amis following a unanimous vote of 200 of 300 members present.

However, police intervened and an officer was stationed outside Mr. Amis's office.

Mr. Amis decided to vote to oust him took place Sunday. "We discussed internal finances," he said.

Tony Martino, the deputy organizer of the Sunday meeting of the local's 600 members, said any comment to the press "would not benefit the members at this time."

Union members were angry over testimony before the Ontario investigation into crime in the construction industry that disclosed Mr. Amis had received $54,200 in union funds and his wife, a secretary, had received $17,000.

"Sure, the men are mad at me after that publicity," Mr. Amis said Monday. "It's a hell of a lot of money but I didn't get it."

He said his salary as the local's business manager was the same as that of a cement mason foreman—$7.35 a hour.

"I get some overtime and I often have to work Saturdays, ..."

Mr. Amis said his own income records and those of his wife are being audited now.

Mr. Amis said many of those outside his office were not union members.

Spacemen Grow

HOUSTON (AP) — The Skylab 3 astronauts have grown up to an inch or more in height and lost some inches around the waist since they left earth 22 days ago, a space doctor said Monday.

Astronauts Gerald Carr, William Pogue and Edward Gibson have all grown between three-fourths and one and three-fourths inches since they were launched into space Nov. 16, medical studies show.

Indian Dies

IPPERWASH, Ont. (CP) — The semi-frozen body of William John Manitowabi, a 17-year-old resident of the Kettle Point Indian reserve, was found Sunday in woods on the reserve near this community about 50 miles northeast of Sarnia. Police said cause of death has not been determined.

Coins All Sold

OTTAWA (CP) — Postmaster-General Andre Ouellet told the Commons Monday that advertising contracts—awarded without calling tenders—for publicizing the new Olympic coins, were given to firms on the basis of their competence.

He said the results were justified by the fact the new coins are sold out.

Spying Denied

QUEBEC (CP) — Gilles Neron, director of the Quebec government's Archives and Documentation Centre, said Monday that reports that his group is involved in espionage work are "completely false."

The Montreal daily newspaper La Presse said in a front-page story Saturday that the 12-man operation set up two years ago is a secret security agency involved in documentation and counter-espionage work and reporting directly to Premier Robert Bourassa.

"The story is full of errors and it's ridiculous," Mr. Neron said in an interview Monday. "We are not involved in any kind of spying work."

Deny Charge

SARNIA, Ont. (CP) — Local RCMP and city police have termed completely unfounded allegations by the Le Dain Commission report on the non-medical use of drugs that there is a small network of heroin users in this city.

Sgt. Ed Dornan, head of the RCMP here, said Monday he was surprised to learn that Sarnia was mentioned in the commission's final report.

Sgt. Dornan disputed the report's contention that Sarnia was among smaller Ontario cities including London, Windsor, Fort Erie, St. Catharines, Stratford and Chatham where heroin use had developed recently.

"I don't know where they got such an idea," the RCMP officer said. He cannot recall a single seizure of heroin here, nor does he know of a single heroin addict.

Reaction Mixed

OTTAWA (CP) — The annual report on the status of women got a mixed Commons reception Monday.

The report, tabled by Labor Minister John Munro, outlines government steps to date to achieve equality for women.

Conservative spokesman Gordon Fairweather (Fundy-Royal) suggested the government might advance the cause of equality better "with fewer pamphlets and more evidence of action."

New Democratic Party spokesman Grace MacInnis (Vancouver-Kingsway) applauded the chronicle of government achievements but said there still are many problem areas left untouched: abortion laws, day-care provisions, the position of Indian women who marry non-Indians, family-planning programs and the position of women with respect to citizenship and immigration law.

Too Early

OTTAWA (CP) — It would be premature to change the government's economic policy because of the energy situation, Finance Minister John Turner said in the Commons Monday.

He told Conservative Leader Robert Stanfield the energy situation may have a negative effect on the economies of Canada and its trading partners but it is too early to measure their effects.

Mr. Stanfield asked whether the government has examined the impact of the energy crisis on trading partners and whether economic forecasts and policies should be changed to meet new situation.

"Our policy is still the appropriate one," Mr. Turner said. He repeated his position that the economy is operating "at or near capacity."

Seek Controls

TORONTO (CP) — Private companies that promote entertainment activities by donating some of the profits to charities may come under provincial control, John Clement, minister of consumer and commercial affairs, said Monday.

Replying to a question in the legislature by Ian Deans (NDP—Hamilton — Wentworth), Mr. Clement said he personally deplores it "where the name of a well-known local organization is utilized by a boilershop operator" to gain sympathy.

Two Jailed

COBOURG, Ont. (CP) — Two Barrie, Ont., men who went on a one-day crime spree in November, involving holdup and abduction, sentenced Monday to a total of five years each in penitentiary.

Wallace Alexander Chase, 24, and Daniel Leroy Turner, 11, pleaded guilty to two charges of armed robbery, two of abduction and one charge of car theft.

Court was told that on Nov. 18 the men held up a service station on Highway 400 and forced the attendant to accompany them in their truck.

On Highway 401 east of Toronto, they released the attendant, abandoned their truck, stole a small car, held up another service station and abducted another attendant, who was later released unharmed.

Chase and Turner surrendered to police in Toronto, the next day, court was told.

Sales Halted

OTTAWA (CP) —Nine cosmetics have stopped their sales of 0.25-milligram digoxin tablets, a medicine used to stimulate heart muscles, the health department announced Monday. The tablets represent about 10 per cent of total digoxin sales in Canada.

Tablets manufactured by six Canadian companies were not adequately absorbed into the blood stream, the health protection branch said following tests at Toronto General Hospital.

The absorption rate was between 46 and 60 per cent, while the branch's acceptable rate is 80 per cent.

Britons Heave Sigh of Relief

LONDON (CP) — Treasury chief Anthony Barber has put an unprecedented brake on government spending and clipped the wings of the spendthrift while giving an unexpected reprieve to the majority of Britons braced for a Christmas budget of dire austerity.

The general public reaction today was a collective sigh of relief.

But politicians and commentators—for a variety of reasons—lamented that the much-feared budget did not go far enough toward healing Britain's gravest economic crisis since the Second World War.

Nevertheless, Barber, chancellor of the exchequer, reluctantly put on ice the Conservative government's long-cherished plans for growth with his whopping £1.3 billion ($2.88 billion) slash in public spending that will hit defence, education, health and other vital projects.

But for most, the budget delivered Monday to a restive and divided House of Commons came as an anti-climax after days of press predictions of biting taxes and other restraints in the current climate of power cuts, strikes and shortages.

"Britain went to the Barber yesterday," says The Sun, "and came out without a haircut."

Although many of Barber's moves made sense "it made no sense at all to be chicken-hearted about the freeze on pay and prices that Britain had braced itself for," says The Sun.

"Welcome though this reduction in public spending is in its own right," says the Conservative Daily Telegraph, "it seems to have little relevance to the immediate problem."

The Times found "surprising" Barber's failure to make any significant tax increases.

In advance, the press had generally predicted increased income tax, increased taxes on tobacco, liquor and luxury items and a tight limit on money for tourist travel abroad.

The Opposition Labor party had called for food subsidies and a wealth tax to help create a "more just" atmosphere for negotiations with coal miners, train drivers, power-station engineers and others seeking to crack the Phase 3 wage restraints of the anti-inflation program.

Instead Barber made public spending his main target while also clamping down on credit-buying and imposing a heavy tax on property speculators and developers.

There also will be a sort of "supertax" on the better-off who already pay a surtax on incomes of more than £6,000 ($14,000) a year.

Barber, saying the crisis "is the gravest situation since the end of the war," put most of the blame on the coal miners whose overtime ban has cut coal supplies by 40 per cent, and the train drivers' whose similar action has delayed coal deliveries to power stations.

Food Prices Board Called Ineffective

OTTAWA (CP) — The Consumers' Association of Canada (CAC) today charged that the food prices review board is ineffective in aiding the public.

In a brief presented at a public board hearing, the association said "the major intention in setting up the board was to take pressure off the federal government," but it has failed to take hard action and has ignored many problems it should be investigating.

The brief attacked the board for "its academic approach to the food prices problem" and demanded immediate action to help consumers by in-depth investigation of retailing prices.

"If it does not act now, it will be seen as just another ineffective and evasive exercise perpetrated on the public by a government which has no commitment to the consumer interest in Canada."

The board is assessing the board's retail food stores survey, carried out earlier this year. That study found a number of cases of possible legal action against food retailers.

Second Reading Given

Teachers' Protest Fails to Delay Bill

TORONTO (CP) — The provincial government's controversial teachers' bill was given second reading Tuesday night only hours after a crowd of more than 25,000 gathered on the legislature grounds to voice their opposition to the bill.

The legislation provides for compulsory arbitration in 16 jurisdictions in the province if contract disputes are not settled by the end of the year and nullifies threatened mass resignations by the almost 8,000 teachers involved.

The bill was given approval in principle by a 63-to-33 margin with both the New Democratic Party and Liberals opposed. It still faces a tough struggle before receiving third reading and royal assent.

Tuesday night's vote came after a long and bitter debate in which Speaker Allan Reuter repeatedly had to call for order.

Education Minister Thomas Wells, who wound up the debate, said the legislation is "a responsible bill of a responsible government and responsible men and women in this legislature will support it.

"You're going to reap a whirlwind this spring for which this was simply an antidote," said NDP Leader Stephen Lewis.

Earlier, Attorney-General Dalton Bales defended the legality of the bill, saying the mass resignations submitted by the teachers were "a threat, sham and were being used as a bargaining technique.

"This bill is illegal and it is going to be challenged in court and you might as well know it," shouted James Renwick (N D P—Toronto-Riverdale), a lawyer.

Aubrey Golden, lawyer for the Ontario Secondary School Teachers Federation (OSSTF), said earlier Tuesday that the teachers may ask the federal government to disallow the bill as unconstitutional and a violation of civil rights.

Most of the province's 105,000 teachers joined the one-day walkout, shutting most classes for the day.

The biggest show of opposition to the bill took place in Toronto where more than 15,000 shouted for the resignation of Education Minister Thomas Wells in the jammed Maple Leaf Gardens and later on the steps of the legislature.

All seats in the Gardens were filled before the rally began at noon and about 5,000 others stood outside in 10-degree weather to listen to teachers' executives, politicians and labor leaders over a loudspeaker system.

Liberal Leader Robert Nixon and Mr. Lewis drew applause as they expressed their parties' support for demands that the proposed legislation be withdrawn.

Mr. Nixon told the rally that teachers are doing their duty by walking out.

Vernon Copeland, a Toronto school board trustee, drew the loudest applause when he said he will begin a campaign for mass resignations by school trustees across the province if the legislation is passed.

The demonstration drew to a close with teachers shouting for Premier William Davis to reappear.

Lifeboats Sighted

Liberian Vessel Sinks in Pacific

VICTORIA (CP) — The Japanese container ship Golden Arrow, hampered by high winds and heavy seas, searched this morning for survivors from the sunken Liberian freighter Oriental Monarch.

The Liberian freighter sunk beneath 30-foot waves at about 1:15 a.m. PST today, while a Canadian Forces Argus aircraft circled vainly overhead, unable to see if the 40 officers and crew members had abandoned ship.

Two lifeboats and a raft were reported floating in the area, about 350 miles northwest of here, buffeted by winds of up to 70 knots and tossed by the high waves.

The rescue centre spokesman said there were flares being fired from at least one of the lifeboats.

"That's a good sign that there's someone alive and kicking down there," the spokesman said.

The life raft was in the water when the Argus arrived on the scene about five hours before the Oriental Monarch sank and no signs of life have been reported from it.

However, the search and rescue spokesman said most life rafts have a canvas top, which would prevent the crew of the Argus from spotting anyone in it.

Two other vessels, a Japanese freighter and an unidentified Russian ship, also were close by the scene and were to aid in the search for survivors.

The exact cause of the sinking remained in doubt.

The Oriental Monarch's death throes began about 4 p.m. PST Tuesday when it radioed that it was taking on water in its engine room and was foundering. I called for all possible assistance. Communication between the stricken vessel—bound to Japan from Portland, Ore. with a load of grain—and the rescue centre was difficult.

The ship's captain, still unidentified, reported that the vessel had lost its main power source and had switched to auxiliary power. It could send messages, but apparently was not receiving any.

Minister Refuses Oath

TORONTO (CP) — A United Church minister, who refused to swear an oath on the Bible, was found guilty in provincial court Tuesday of misconduct arising from a picket line disturbance at the Artistic Woodwork Co. plant in North York. Rev. John M. MacInnes, 46, of Toronto said he wanted to affirm. He would hold the truth rather than swear an oath because he had too much respect for the Bible to see it "used as a fetish."

Arab World Condemns Bloodshed by Terrorists

CAIRO (Reuter) — The bloody Arab-Israeli attack in Rome Monday aroused widespread condemnation Tuesday within the Arab world.

Even the Palestinian guerrilla leadership denounced the attack, in which at least 30 persons were killed, saying it could not have been the work of true Palestinian militants and that it harmed the Arab cause.

Salah Khalaf, a leader of the Fatah guerrilla group, said the attack "harmed innocent people, runs against the Palestinian people's interests and does not fall within the framework of our struggle."

Many Arab heads of state and much of the Arab press also assailed the assault on a Pan American jetliner at Rome's Fiumicino Airport.

The newspaper Al Ahram, which usually reflects the thinking of the Egyptian government, commented that it would have been far better if "those who go about harassing civil aviation and killing innocent people had joined the honorable October war which restored Arab dignity."

The newspaper also hinted that the guerrilla attack was aimed at torpedoing the Middle East peace talks in Geneva.

The Lebanese press, which generally reflects a wide range of Arab opinion, also denounced the attack, saying it did a disservice to the Palestinian cause.

The English-language Daily Star said: "The Palestine revolution stands to gain nothing and lose a great deal by the kind of carnage that a few sick men have left behind in Rome and Athens."

The paper said the resistance movement should track down the perpetrators and punish them.

In Algiers the Algerian radio denounced the attack and the hijacking of the Lufthansa jetliner as "a mad odyssey."

Kuwait Is Silent On Fate of Five

KUWAIT (CP) — Kuwait officials gave no indication today what they will do with five Palestinian terrorists who killed 32 persons in a two-day spree at airports in Rome and Athens.

The five guerrillas flashed V-for-victory signs and said they were proud of what they had done as they were taken in handcuffs Tuesday night to a military air base for questioning. They freed 12 hostages unharmed and then surrendered after flying here in a hijacked West German jet.

Officials of Lufthansa, the West German airline, said the Kuwaitis promised the terrorists safe passage to an undisclosed destination, but Kuwaiti officials said the surrender was unconditional.

The guerrillas killed 30 persons by firebombing a Pan American jet Monday at Rome's Fiumicino airport and shot an Italian policeman to death. They killed another Italian among their hostages in Athens and threw his body out of the plane.

But reports from the plane that four other hostages had been killed were false, concocted by the guerrillas in a futile attempt to get the Greek government to release two Black September terrorists awaiting trial for murder, a

Governor of Maine Denies Threat to Cut Oil Pipeline

OTTAWA (CP) — Energy Minister Donald Macdonald said Tuesday he doubts that Maine could cut off the crude oil pipeline between Portland and Montreal.

He told the Commons resources committee the pipeline probably lies beyond the powers of the state government.

The minister was commenting on a report that quoted Maine Governor Kenneth Curtis as suggesting the state might use the threat to force Canada to supply traditional customers in Maine.

Mr. Macdonald said he checked earlier in the day and was told that Mr. Curtis made no such statement.

"The office of the governor denied any threat."

A number of Maine customers, including at least one border pulp mill with a large percentage of Canadian workers, have been cut off from traditional Canadian oil supply sources because of shortages in Canada.

John Stabback, a national energy board member, said it might make sense to continue supplies in some cases. But the board, which controls oil exports, was hamstrung by a legal provision that allows exports only when products are surplus to Canadian needs.

Terror Bombings Feared

London Faces IRA Christmas

LONDON (Reuter) — London faces the prospect of a Christmas time wave of terror bombings by Irish extremists following blasts in the city which injured 63 persons.

The casualties came from three bombs which went off in different parts of London Tuesday and police suspect the Provisional wing of the Irish Republican Army was responsible.

Fears that they marked the start of a terror campaign were hardened by a statement issued from Dublin in the Irish republic by the IRA Provisionals, who for years have been waging violent action against British control in Northern Ireland.

"Pressure on the enemy will be maintained on a number of fronts over the Christmas period," the statement said.

The first blast, caused by about 20 pounds of explosives planted in a stolen car, came outside a government building in Whitehall during the morning rush-hour and left 52 persons injured by flying glass and debris.

It was followed by a parcel bomb explosion Tuesday night in a nearby postal office and another car bomb which blew up outside a prison in north London. Eleven persons were injured in those two blasts.

Then early today, a fourth bomb shattered a fashionable shopping centre in the Hampstead district of North London. No one was injured.

One Liverpool police arrowwording so is that the bombings mark the start of a revenge campaign for the killings last month in England of nine IRA Provisionals.

They had been charged in connection with two central London car bombings last March in which more than 240 persons were injured.

Eight of those jailed, including sisters Dolours and Marian Price, were sentenced to life imprisonment and the ninth got 15 years.

The Guardian newspaper quoted an IRA sympathizer in London as saying that Tuesday's bombings were "a Christmas box for the girls."

Strict Rules Recommended To Increase Deer Herds

Permissive payment of wolf bounties, the outlawing of dogs in deer hunting and passage of "buck law" legislation by the province are among recommendation favored by a Hastings county special committee to aid the decreasing deer population.

The above recommendations were included in the report of the county deer preservation committee tabled at this week's county council session.

The report, along with its seven recommendations, was adopted by councillors following lengthy clause-by-clause discussion.

Other recommendations in the report called for the bear hunting season to co-incide with the deer season, that laws against poaching be enforced to the milimum and that the Ministry of Natural Resources be requested to provide more winter deer yards with more food placed in such yards for the difficult winter months.

Committee chairman Frank Graham, Reeve of Wollaston township, said a questionnaire submitted to all councils, listed seven possible causes for the decline in deer population.

The answers were fairly unanimous and collectively suggested the solution was to control the taking of deer.

Most people questioned felt that hunters and wolves were equally to blame for the declining numbers of deer. Poaching or illegal hunting was another problem, often done with lights during the hours of darkness and, in the light of deer management, was claimed to be the height of insanity.

Many deer shot by poachers are only wounded and slowly die an agonizing death, it was stated. Feral lei for this type of lawlessness should be heavy enough to completely discourage the practice.

Dogs running at large were held to be responsible for a share of deer killing especially in areas where deer congregate after the snow falls and after lakes and ponds become frozen.

Killing of fawns and does should never be allowed unless the deer range is populated to capacity, it was stated.

"The answer is to stop killing of does and fawns now" said the report.

The committee was not convinced that starvation or lack of food in the winter was a major factor in the decline of deer. Neither did the committee feel that reduction of the deer season would have any significant effect.

The committee recommendation to rule out the use of hunting dogs met with disfavor among several councillors, who said that dogs added to the sport of hunting and help find many wounded deer.

One councillor arguing for the continued use of dogs was Madoc Deputy Reeve Kel Kincaid who suggested that only the hunting season for two or three years might be an alternative measure.

But Mr. Graham said the committee felt it was necessary to make it more difficult for hunters to get deer.

He said the hunter must be prepared to sacrifice something to help bring back the deer population.

"We cannot continue as before," he said.

Other councillors questioned the buck law recommendation and asked how hunters would be able to distinguish between does, fawns and bucks on short sight when they were racing through the woods.

To this Mr. Graham replied "If they have horns they are bucks."

Prince Edward Councillors Talk One-tier System

PICTON — Prince Edward County council has unanimously supported a motion seeking a draft plan for restructuring of municipal government from the Ministry of Treasury, Economics and Intergovernmental Affairs.

Council's county government committee met in Toronto recently with ministry representatives in a preliminary discussion of the reorganization of local government in Prince Edward County.

Chairman of the county government committee, Robert Boyce, said that, because of Prince Edward's unique geographic condition, it seems suitable for a one-tier government system.

Reeve Boyce last night told councillors that the implications of a county government were stressed by yesterday's fire that gutted Wellington arena.

Through mutual aid, two fire departments were on the scene and ice-making equipment in the arena was saved. The reeve estimated that $150,000 was salvaged in the building and equipment because of the unified action of the fire brigades.

Take 2

The motion seeking a draft plan noted that ministry representatives would be present here periodically. They would meet with township councils, boards and individuals to fully appraise them of the ramifications of such a change in local government."

County councillors have considered re-organization of local government within the county for the past five years. A brief outlining this proposal was presented to the provincial government and to local sources.

The spirit of county-wide co-operation was underlined when the chairman of the Picton arena commission contacted reeve Boyce to offer any spare ice time to Wellington arena users.

Sophiasburgh reeve Georges Foster said during his term as warden in 1969 he had supported the concept of one-tier government.

Bloomfield reeve Allan Anderson emphasized that his village would insist on representation in a one-tier system. He did not feel that his municipality had retained full representation when county school boards amalgamated and was against repetition of such a change.

Reeve Boyce assured him that representation by population would be the likely basis for a one-tier system.

The Bloomfield reeve added that his municipality had lost its boundary when the school board amalgamated. Two trustees from Bloomfield-Hallowell sit on the board but both could be elected from Hallowell township.

James Bird, reeve of Picton, urged support for a draft plan. He said action must be taken to retain Prince Edward's identity. He predicted if this is not done the county would be "swallowed up" following the next election.

Warden Thompson, noted that council's delegation to Toronto had been told that should a one-tier system be developed in Prince Edward it would represent the first instance in Canada where a county went under this form of local government.

Woman Heads Welfare

PICTON — "A Picton woman, Evelyn Beaumont, has been appointed welfare administrator for Prince Edward County.

A senior employee with the Prince Edward county services department Mrs. Beaumont has been acting administrator since the death of Anne Nielsen last summer.

Mrs. Beaumont has been appointed on a six months probation period at a salary of $18,-888 for the balance of 1973 and the year 1974.

Council Aids Cheshire Home

TRENTON — Council this week decided to help with completion of the Cheshire Home for the handicapped in Belleville.

A Home representative of the home met recently and explained that due to increased costs and the need for an elevator the home was in need of about $4,000.

Trenton council, after talking with representatives of Belleville's council decided Monday night to contribute a requested $800.

Progress Was "Significant" For County During 1973

PICTON— A year of action and progress in Prince Edward was reported in county council Tuesday night in retiring warden Russel Thompson.

He noted in 1973 a county planner, Riazuddin Ahmed, had been hired to prepare an official plan. This draft outline has already been publicly presented.

The Prince Edward County museum was opened last summer and property has been purchased for additional space and future expansion and the preservation of "a rare and valuable exhibit of early life in Prince Edward County."

Warden Thompson said that new industries have been attracted to the county and employment, consequently, has increased.

A sod-turning ceremony was held at the site of the new county home for the aged, a $1,700,000 project. It is scheduled for an opening in late 1974.

Council is now involved in a county waste disposal study and consultants have prepared a report for presentation soon.

"For 1974 I am expecting completion of the new county home, expansion of the county museum and surrounding property, a decision on county waste disposal, continuing improvements of roads and other projects as they come along," said the warden.

"Whoever is our new warden will keep things moving and I predict a good year for the county of Prince Edward in 1974," he added.

Other councillors in turn reviewed activities in 1973 and generally agreed that significant progress had been made.

Two Killed In Napanee Area Mishap

NAPANEE — An accident claimed the lives of two persons Tuesday in Ontario No. 1, just north of Highway 401.

Dead are Bryce Sherwood, 48 of Centreville, and Bernice Blanchard, 36, of Enterprise.

The two were killed in a headon collision. Driver of the other car was Thomas Harvie, 31, RR 7, Napanee, who was uninjured.

$2,200 Damage

MASSASSAGA— A two-car collision on the Massassaga Road Tuesday resulted in a total of $2,200 damage.

Both drivers— Robert Fagan, 42, of RR 2, Picton, a teacher at Prince Edward Collegiate Institute, and Marsha Fraser, 17, RR 1, Belleville, suffered face cuts.

GEORGE HEES

Hees: Still Waiting For LIP

TRENTON — Nothing has been approved and nothing turned down according to Prince Edward-Hastings MP George Hees commenting Tuesday on Local Initiative Programs for his riding.

As Mr. Hees put it: "No hits, no runs, no errors ... We just have to wait."

He said he has been in daily contact with Manpower Minister Robert Andras, seeking information for constituents with LIP grant requests.

While he had no idea how much the area would be getting "there'll be blood and guts to pay for if we don't get anything," said Mr. Hees.

He was responding to a comment passed at Trenton town council Monday where he was quoted to have said there would be no LIP funds for the riding.

He said recommendations had been made but there is still no final word.

Local Manpower officials have heard nothing of LIP acceptances and say they are being contacted daily for information regarding applications. Calls are being referred to Toronto LIP coordination offices.

According to a recent report from the Conservative Research office, Prince Edward-Hastings was to receive some $70,000 in funding.

A Manpower spokesman here said all projects submitted to the federal government ask for total funds in excess of $300,000.

Blame Torch Thawing Pipes

Fire Guts Wellington Arena As Youngsters Due to Skate

By MARGARET HAYLOCK
Staff Reporter

WELLINGTON — Fire gutted Wellington arena Tuesday afternoon, less than an hour before school children were scheduled for ice time.

The blaze was ignited by a propane torch that had been used by the arena caretaker to thaw frozen pipes in a washroom, said Otis Bowerman, Wellington-Hillier fire chief.

The alarm was answered by the Wellington-Hillier fire department and Bloomfield-Hallowell firefighters who managed to save the west end of the building. The arena's ice-making machine also was salvaged.

Chief Bowerman said that, as yet, there is no estimate of damage.

Robert Boyce, Wellington reeve, told Prince Edward County Council that prompt action from two fire departments prevented total loss of the building. He said that through a Mutual Aid system, the fire Departments had saved the base of the building and the ice machine, an estimated equity of $150,000.

He said that volunteer firemen fought the blaze expertly despite near-zero weather conditions. One firefighter who fell was unable to get up without help because his uniform had frozen solid.

Approximately 400 children from Ameliasburgh, Wellington, Hillier and other adjacent communities were registered in a minor hockey program at the Wellington Arena.

Reeve Boyce said the Picton Arena Committee has volunteered to study its schedule for a possible offer of any free ice time to Wellington area skaters.

The Wellington arena was built approximately 63 years ago and was operated successfully in the village.

Presentations To Warden

PICTON— Prince Edward County warden Russell Thompson Tuesday night was presented with the traditional gavel of office by council at the close of his term.

The inscribed gavel was presented by Sophiasburgh reeve George Foster.

Avis Head, deputy - reeve North Marysburgh, presented the warden with a wrist watch.

Bancroft Woman Dies, Family Hurt in Crash

BANCROFT — A 41-year-old Bancroft woman was killed, and her husband and three daughters admitted to hospital Tuesday, after a car-truck collision on the South Baptiste Lake Road, five miles north of here.

Dead is Jean Isabel Woodcox, 41, RR 2 Bancroft. She was a passenger in the car driven by her husband, Norman Woodcox, 51.

The Woodcox car was involved in a collision with a tractor trailer which was westbound on Highway 61. The driver of the truck was King Wood, RR 2 Burnt River.

Provincial police here said Mr. Woodcox was admitted in serious condition to hospital in Peterborough, while his six-year-old daughter Phyllis was transferred to Toronto Sick Children's with serious head injuries.

Two other daughters, Emma 9, and Shirley, 17, were both admitted to hospital in Peterborough with cuts and bruises.

Predict $26,000 Surplus

TRENTON — According to town treasurer Brian Fagan the town is right on target with its 1973 spending.

With one month to go 92 percent of the budget is spent.

He said there were some departments behind in budget allocations but there were extenuating circumstances. In the case of the fire department, this year's major expenditure was purchase of a new truck. The money will not be spent until the truck arrives.

Mr. Fagan said the town had $32,000 to cover snow removal costs this winter—a total he felt would be adequate.

During questioning of the budget it was found $4,000 of the regular $20,000 allocation to Centennial Park development was still unspent following the summer's work.

Mr. Fagan indicated it could be placed in the reserve fund.

A surplus of about $26,000 was forecast for the end of the year due largely to increased provincial grants to the town that were not anticipated at the last budget time.

Why Have We The Teachers Of Ontario Asked Premier Davis To Withdraw The Emergency Legislation Embodied In The Bill 274?

1. It retroactively deprives teachers of the right they have already exercised the right to resign.
2. It threatened the civil rights of a large number of Ontario citizens.
3. It is premature and interferes with negotiations already under way or nearing conclusion.
4. It undermines established relations between teachers and the school board which in the vast majority of instances are positive and constructive.

Youthful Interest

Recently we published an exchange of letters between Prime Minister Trudeau and Sherri Ackerman, a Sir Mackenzie Bowell student, on the subject of inflation and the energy crisis.

The Prime Minister's letter reflected his interest in young people as well as a desire to explain Government policy in these matters.

The rising generation of course is more conscious of politics and politicians than ever before. As Montreal La Presse noted recently "everything is political . . ." In other words, virtually every action, taken at whatever level, and in whatever sphere, has a commensurately motivating influence on the lives of others and on everyday affairs.

In recent days we have received a number of letters from students of a local high school. They reflect a wide area of interest and contemporary subject matter, from the energy crisis and the new airport head tax to the merits of artificial Christmas trees.

A Frankford student for instance writes in connection with the energy crisis and notes that she finds herself turning off lights more readily these days.

Among the very young interest in the political process is also keen. In Germany a press officer in the Chancellery in Bonn has compiled a selection of children's letters and drawings received by Chancellor Willy Brandt and published them in book form. Of thousands Mr. Brandt has received since his election in 1969, eighty are included.

The Chancellor seems to have more than average charisma where the youngsters are concerned. As one observer put it: Undoubtedly every statesman gets letters from children. Perhaps, though, Mr. Brandt (who has three sons of his own) gets more than his share. He has at times a certain fatherly, gentle manner that seems to attract young girls and boys.

One eight-year-old lass even addressed him as "Dear Will (incorrect spelling and all), tossing aside the usual formality enjoyed by adults in Germany when addressed by the younger folk.

A ten-year-old lad, his eye on a topical subject, came out with this gem . . . wishing Mr. Brandt a happy Easter, he asked if the "price balloon" would come down.

As Ari Linkletter called a celebrated little book in the same vein: "Kids say the Darndest Things."

Little Change

In the course of a recent visit to Kingston, his first journey of any consequence since official pleas to motorists in Canada to slow down and save gas (not to mention lives), a city motorist, travelling at speeds of 55—60 m.p.h., found himself being passed regularly.

Some cars were travelling at high speed — like 80—90 m.p.h. — which is much as anything indicated that little has changed. Any initial attempt to reduce speed, as a result of Government pronouncements, has likely passed into motoring limbo.

There was one noticeable exception on this trip: a fairly late model car, a sizable one too, and from Quebec of all places. It was on 401 near Napanee and the woman driver was proceeding at exactly 50 m.p.h.

This was far from being the ideal definition of Quebec drivers, male or female, and for that reason all the more effective an example of what is expected of drivers these days.

Hijacking Horror

When jet planes were being hijacked to Cuba with alarming regularity perhaps only a handful of lives were lost. There were a few such incidences, but by and large the worst that happened was a brief deal of inconvenience to a lot of people.

In the last couple of years however, the Palestinian Arab guerrilla movement has elevated — or should we say, debased — hijacking to a new level of horror.

If pilots call for worldwide strike action as a result it would be the least that might be expected of a people against the growing hazard to life and limb. Innocent people are dead this Christmas time because of the psychopathic actions of a few terrorists, who despite condemnation by their own people despite condemnation by their own people are also causing unfold harm to the Arab cause.

Books Score Lack of Identity and Purpose

The Concept of a Rudderless Canada Ripe For Takeover

By JOHN D. HARRON
Foreign Affairs Analyst
Thomson News Service

Two books by two Toronto Tories are on the market and are likely to stay there for some time, like several other new books under that timeless heading of "whither Canada?"

Alan Heisey's paperback The Great Canadian Stampede, published by Griffin House, Toronto, is not getting the same hullabaloo or publicity as Richard Rohmer's hardcover Ultimatum, from Clarke, Irwin and Co. Ltd., also of Toronto.

Nevertheless both authors in their inimitable ways, Heisey mainly by writing his theme the way he says it among his friends, or radio and TV and in speeches, Rohmer through the medium of a political novel, are setting their ideas across.

Heisey sub-titles his book "the rush to economic nationalism right or wrong," with his case being made very strongly throughout for "the wrong."

He starts on hard and strong by quoting an alarmingly large number of prominent Canadians who do their best to write off Canada as a separate identity and have an easy time doing so. These include his current competitor for space on the country's bookstore shelves, Richard Rohmer identified chairman of the Ontario Royal Commission on Book Publishing who says, "We have no national purpose, none at all that I can see."

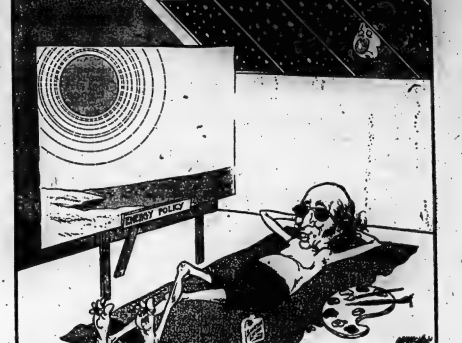
Mr. Rohmer will soon want to forget such remarks if he really means what he says in his three books on the Arctic, Ultimatum being the latest, and in his technical speeches to Canadian professional and political audiences on the north.

Rohmer's newest book deals with the possibility of an ultimatum of invasion from an American president of the near-future to a Canadian prime minister if we do not guarantee energy exports to the United States. In fact as the book ends, the American military invasion is about to begin.

Heisey's book on the other hand ends with a hard-hitting quote from Mordecai Richler on the futility of chauvinism and nationalism about rekindling "the preferred nationalistic crutch."

The Heisey book is supremely selling better than the Rohmer paperback and, if so, much of the reason has to be the fascination of his theme with the energy crisis of the day.

The Heisey basis that we have only benefitted from continentalism and that we should lie down with it somewhat is not popular in Canada. And it becomes less so as the 1970s go by.



The author's main fault is his blind spot about the nationalistic trend which rose during the 1960s especially among left-wing political and student groups in Canada, the growing fears of the expanding multinational companies here and around the world.

Rohmer appears to be operating on the gamble that he will again woke up to concepts of destiny by renewing their fascination with the dangers of last frontier and with it a renewal of their sense of nationhood. You might call his book a 1967 revisited."

Both men have political ambitions, both on the Tory side of the national political scene and both reportedly as candidates for the nomination in York Scarborough riding now held by Liberal Robert Stanbury, a middle to upper class area where he has been a little right-of-centre.

Have Heisey and Rohmer written their books as introductions to renewed political campaigns?

Whether content is not openly or knowingly partisan. In fact they severely contradict each other in the major areas of defining Canadian nationalism. It is the authors who are becoming more politically partisan every day.

Registered Retirement Plan Deadline Feb. 28

... By VINCENT EGAN
Business and Consumer Affairs Analyst
Thomson News Service

Until the end of February, most Canadian taxpayers can take advantage of a major tax concession.

It's called the "registered retirement savings plan," which allows you to defer income tax on some of your earnings by putting them aside until some future time of your own choice.

This device has been with us for several years, and most Canadian taxpayers are probably aware of it, at least vaguely.

The figures show that most people use the plan effectively, however, do so toward the end of February, as the deadline approaches. But there could be a good reason, especially this year, to invest in a registered retirement-savings plan early—and putting it in your advantage to do so at all.

First, a short refresher on the way the registered retirement savings plan works:

—You are allowed by law to invest up to 20 per cent of your income, to a maximum of $4,000 a year, in an individual savings plan of your own. The money must be turned over to a trustee, such as a trust company, mutual fund or life insurance.

—If you participate in a pension plan where you work, the amount you may invest in a registered retirement savings plan is arrived at by subtracting your contributions to your employer's pension plan from $4,000 or 20 per cent of your income.

—If you do not participate in such a group pension plan, you may invest the full $4,000 or 20 per cent in a registered retirement savings plan of your own.

You won't have to pay 1973 income tax on whatever part of your 1973 income you invest in a registered retirement savings plan.

But you will be subject to income tax on it when you decide to take the money back from the trustee—which can be any time you choose (up to age 71) and in the form of a lump sum or an annuity.

Most investors would probably wait until retirement age, then take their money back in the form of an annuity. In that way, both the income and the tax on it are spread over one's retirement years, when the need for income is greatest and the tax liability would probably be less.

If you decide to use this tax-delaying technique for part of your income, the time to make an eligible investment is the 14 months from Dec. 1, 1973, to Jan. 1, 1973, and Feb. 28, 1974.

You may not yet know the exact amount that you are eligible to invest, but most taxpayers would be able to make a close estimate now.)

Much depends on your judgment of the outlook for stocks and bonds between today and Feb. 28, 1974. Both markets have gone through a traumatic wringing-out in recent weeks and months.

If you are among those who believe that the markets are oversold and that a rebound in prices is unlikely, then this would be the time to make your investment in such a plan.

But on the other hand, you agree with those who foresee further unchecked declines, then you would postpone your investment as long as possible in order to get a greater value for each dollar you put into a plan.

A 1973 amendment to the Income Tax Act authorizes trust companies to issue income-averaging annuity contracts for guaranteed term of up to 15 years.

This allows you to spread out the income (and the tax on it) from such sources as net taxable capital gains, employee profit-sharing plan benefits, lump-sum payments related to superannuation or life office, to long service, and so on.

One final note: When you invest in a registered retirement savings plan through certain types of trustees, there is no sales commission to pay.

Before you invest in a plan, be sure to ascertain how much commission, if any, will be taken off the top and how much of your money will be invested on your behalf.

Hassle Over Computer Contracts

By DON O'HEARN
Queen's Park Bureau

TORONTO — There has been a great deal of controversy about the government and computer contracts.

From the prominence given the dispute by some sections of the press and in the house there could be an obvious suspicion of skullduggery in the dark doodling.

While this is possible, of course, as anything always is in politics, the computer issue would seem to be highly overrated.

What happened as this observer knows, and commented on in the past, was that government, as did the commercial world generally, went a bit computer-overboard.

As with each department first came out, or yo-yos, they were the thing everyone had to have.

Mr. Wrigley's department decided they simply had to have one.

And a good number of government departments bought them, to whatever degree they could get away with.

There wasn't any attempt until years later to achieve a co-ordination of computer services between all branches of government, which was the practical way of approaching the problem.

Most of the original services bought therefore were of a more or less similar nature, and it happened IBM had the most ideal equipment for this type of service.

The consequence was that IBM got practically the entire government business.

Later when there was a move to co-ordinate all services IBM was the dominant equipment and the basis from which they went to adding to it.

This statement the government has made since the controversy broke, however, IBM officials doesn't have a monopoly.

In fact other companies positively are being considered and definitely will end up with some of the government business (which now amounts to many millions).

And pending other information it would appear that the government was that too many people were eager to rush into something new.

This can happen in government!

Return to Wood and Coal ?

Ottawa Le Droit: - Shall heating with wood or coal once again become common?

It return to the system of coupons or wartime ration tickets a possibility?

The statement by Energy Minister Donald Macdonald are too sprinkled with timid explanations to dissipate our worries.

As we are in the presence of a temporary crisis which could disappear with the return of peace in the Middle East?

Or are we faced with serious situation capable of being permanent?

We are left with the impression that the government is groping in the dark and that it was taken by surprise. All policy relative to fuel and energy in a country with a cold climate such as ours should get long-term consideration.

However, this policy has never been drawn up in a precise manner. For the moment, we resort to short-term measures which will hit the poor more than the rich.

What strikes us the most in this wave of exaggerated pessimism, caused not only by the Middle East conflict but by the eventual exhaustion of black gold reserves in the world, is the absence of reassured energy planning.

We expect 50 per cent of our national production to the U.S and we import 50 per cent of our supplies from elsewhere, always through the oil companies which, despite the agreements and contracts, can direct their oil reserves towards other destinations using "circumstances beyond their control" as an excuse.

And we are without defence — because of the scarcity and wait-and-see policy of governments in industrialized countries.

Better management of our natural resources, a more severe control over oil companies, in a country which produces sufficiently to answer its own needs, would not have stopped the Arab states from using the oil weapon in their fight against Israel, but would have assured more warmth in our homes and brighter tomorrows.

Response to Energy Crisis

Editor
The Intelligencer

As I read your article "Oil Allocation Board Planned" I became aware that Canada really is at the stage of a crisis.

Although the crisis has not hit full force, I think that people are finally becoming aware of it. Everywhere I talked to people say, "It's not all that bad," and I believed it until I read your article.

If the crisis should hit I think it could be overcome by a joint effort. I think Canada has been spoiled all these years. We have wasted our natural resources.

Although the crucial period has not begun and we hardly feel it, I find myself turning off lights, shutting windows, and closing curtains, hoping that by doing my part I will conserve energy.

(MISS). BARBARA WILHELM.

Lights and Energy Lack

Editor,
The Intelligencer,

As I drive around Belleville at night I cannot help noticing how many residences are darkened at this festive time of year as they unselfishly contribute their share to voluntary conservation of the energy crisis.

By the same token the offenders stand out blatantly against the night skies, especially The Four Seasons which looks lovely but is wasting energy by the amount of kilowatts I wouldn't care to hazard a total of. Also, I notice apartment dwellers and a few Dundas homes joined in the spirit of the season in a show of misused energy.

I trust you have passed my husband in dispensing with 100 watt bulbs and dropped furnace-temperatures to 55 at night.

On behalf of all Belleville citizens who are voluntarily conserving, please help so we don't join the United States and Britain in receiving what now flows so freely for a few cents a day. As a child I remember post war Christmases and they were not funny. We have more energy than any other country in the world, why waste it.

Christ was born in a dark stable with only God's star to lighten the sky. Why do we need so much light to remember Him. One star would do. It was good enough then and it should be good enough now.

Petroleum Corporation

(Ottawa Journal)

Neither is it for me sorrow is the proposed national petroleum corporation worth setting at a cried about. Yet some dreamers are gleefully hailing it as the answer to Canada's oil industry problems and others are angrily denouncing it as the doom of free enterprise in the oil industry.

What a waste of energy! They are at least wait until a bill to establish the corporation is introduced into Parliament next year, along with more details of the proposal.

It is fatuous nonsense to imagine a national oil company springing full blown into existence — or to fulfill operational exploration and development company next year. It is dangerous nonsense to imagine that the first steps taken in that direction would deserve high priority.

Ulster's Mini Factories

Ulster Commentary

Mini-factories complete with trained workforces are on offer throughout Northern Ireland. And the Ministry of Health and Social Services had launched a campaign to get people to take them over for commercial production purposes.

The mini-factories — first in the United Kingdom — are, in fact, new-style factory units. But they are training units with a difference. For while conventional training puts the emphasis on giving skills to the individual, the new system puts it on giving skills to the group.

The idea is to create compact units whose training can be speedily adapted to that required for turning out a product on a commercial basis. And the overall object is to attract businessmen or anyone with an idea for commercial products to take and go into production.

Ulster has a further step forward in the Government's campaign to improve the Province's unemployment situation.

Eleven units—they are known as integrated workforce units—have been established in towns throughout the Province and five more are planned.

Half Frost Estate Goes To Trent

PETERBOROUGH (CP) — Trent University has announced it will receive about half of the $1,000,238 estate left by former Ontario premier Leslie Frost, who died May 4. About $300,000 will become part of Leslie and Gertrude Frost Canada Studies Foundation, established by the former premier in 1969 to further studies in Canadian history. The university also said in a news release Tuesday it will receive many of Mr. Frost's personal papers, a notebook pierced by a bullet that wounded Mr. Frost during the First World War, his summer home on Sturgeon Lake, near Lindsay, and $20,000 to maintain it.

People Like Junk Mail

OTTAWA (CP) — You may call it junk mail, but the post office says the odds are you are not at all annoyed by the unsolicited advertising the postman delivers. A post office news release Tuesday said a national survey shows that two-thirds of the 1,000-household sample said they like some of the advertising, particularly coupons, catalogues and free samples. The post office gets 70 per cent of its revenue, $70 million, from advertising.

Plan Hearings

OTTAWA (CP) — Hearings on Bell Canada's latest request for higher telephone rates will be held in Ottawa, Montreal and Toronto, the Canadian transport commission said Tuesday.

Wells Is Praised By Old Teacher

TORONTO (CP) — Education Theresa Wells, who has shouldered the brunt of criticism over the government's controversial teachers legislation, received the support Tuesday of at least one member of the teaching fraternity and another former member.

"Tommy Wells is doing a fine job," said 94-year-old Lelia Jones of Toronto who had been Mr. Wells's kindergarten teacher.

Miss Jones recalled Tuesday night the education minister "was a fine little boy . . . I remember him well."

"I phoned his secretary yesterday and told her I had great pride when I heard his voice on television.

"I think he's doing a wonderful job, but he has a big problem. I did many things outside my teaching hours and never thought of getting an extra penny. I don't understand what's happening now. Teachers are expecting just too much.

"But I know Tommy's fair."

Major Food Retailers Defend Their Industry

OTTAWA (CP) — Representatives of major food retailers defended their industry Tuesday as the food prices review board held its first public meeting on the results of its food store survey conducted in September.

Spokesmen for Loblaws, Dominion, A and P, Safeway, Steinberg's, the Retail Council of Canada and smaller operations were unanimous in denying charges of unethical and misleading sales practices.

The board's report, issued last month, condemned misleading merchandising tactics, including double-price stickers on products, confusing prices and sizes and unavailability of items advertised on special.

The board indicated that its survey of 1,005 stores across the country turned up 198 cases where legal action may be taken, but there was not enough specific and detailed evidence to prove offences in court.

Industry spokesmen were unanimous in denying that retailers use such tactics. When such cases occurred it was a matter of human error, they said, because large operations employ thousands of people and had a high turnover rate.

Board commissioner Grant Thompson conceded that errors can happen, "but it is quite a coincidence if the same errors keep happening time and time again."

A. C. Abbot, president of the Retail Council of Canada, found the entire tone of the report offensive and called it a "brutal denunciation of the industry."

Britons Consider Leaving

LONDON (CP) — There has been a "fantastic pile-up" of recent enquiries from Britons toying with the idea of emigrating to Canada in the wake of the growing crisis here, but so far there has been no sharp increase in actual emigrants.

A Canada House spokesman suggested that the rash of enquiries may herald a notable increase in the New Year, particularly if the critical economic situation continues, but it was too early to make a prediction.

Water Heater Converted To Fireplace by Artist

FORT COLLINS, Colo. (AP) — Peter Davidson rescues rusted water heaters and converts them into hanging fireplaces.

He finds 'horseshoes and welds them into plant holders.

Fan housings discarded in a dump are fastened together for brightly-colored totem or storage area.

Tin cans come together in a dazzling arrangement of cubbyholes.

Davidson, 30, is an artist of recyclables and the sentiment above his home in Rist Canyon near here is a place where the discards of society are transformed into decorative and useful objects of art.

"I like the idea of taking something no one else could find a use for and turning it into something useful," says Davidson.

Using gas and electric arc-welding equipment, Davidson turns out work with a rough-hewn, natural quality.

"There's not enough organic material in homes nowadays," says Davidson, who came to Colorado from New York in 1968.

"There's so much stainless steel and plastic and it's so unfeeling and cold. That type of decor tends to dehumanize people."

Davidson's home is a showcase for his functional and natural art. Hanging near the kitchen table is an aquarium made from a huge distilled-water bottle. In the living room is a hanging, swinging chair made of leather and wrought iron.

In the same room is a series of lofts. A large piece of wood forms the highest stress point for the syndrome of ladders, lofts and cantilevered beds. The wood, carved into a eagle's profile is high, both in color and weight, and heavy iron chains accent the design.

In every corner is Davidson's touch — river-worn rock mounted in a rug-like steel setting. The walls are decorated with assemblages of "found objects"—pieces of cork and driftwood.

Tie manufacturers suggest that women who choose ties as gifts should take more time when picking them. The tie should be chosen to compliment a man's personality as well as the suit and shirt. (CP Photo)

Tie One On At Christmas

MONTREAL (CP) — About 18 million worth of ties will be sold during the holiday season and many of them will end up in dresser drawers, says Charles Lazarus of Park Lane Neckwear Co.

Mr. Lazarus said in an interview this is because about 70 per cent of the ties are bought by women as last-minute gift ideas and women just do not spend enough time choosing the tie to suit the man.

"A tie must be picked to compliment the suit and shirt it is to be worn with to create a complete fashion image.

"It should also suit the personality of the man for whom it is being purchased."

Mr. Lazarus said many women use their own taste when purchasing ties and pick what they like, not what their men will like.

"That's why there are so many jokes about the Christmas ties and why so many of them end up in dresser drawers."

He said most women like to imagine their men dressed like the models in magazine ads and "it just doesn't work out that way."

What suits a tall husky man won't suit a shorter, slender man and this applies not only to ties but also to shirts and suits.

Mr. Lazarus recommends women concentrate on the suitability of the tie rather than whether it washes and wears well.

"Most ties today are of polyester fabrics that wash and wear well anyway."

Exposure of neckwear fashions on color television has had a certain influence on the buying and was responsible for much of the success enjoyed by the bow tie last season, he said.

However, he added, because of the large size of the bow ties—narrow ones are out—this fashion caters mainly to the 18-32 age group "just out of jeans and into business, but not yet ready for the tie image."

He said the bow tie had reversed business in this youth market.

Although brown tones are popular this winter, the tones and patterns may differ from region to region across Canada, according to the type of people living in each area.

"We'll send a small neat pattern in one type of brown tone to Vancouver and an enlarged version of the pattern in another type of brown to Quebec City."

As for prices, Mr. Lazarus said that despite the "oil scare" which will drive up prices on synthetic fabrics, mainly derived from oil, prices will not rise substantially.

Communication Necessary

By DORIS CLARK

High on the list of practices making for a good marriage comes Communication, with a capital C.

There should be no end to communication. The young people who have grown up in different households cannot help but see life differently. Even if it is a choice between going to a dance or staying home with TV it is only common sense to state reasons why. And it is positively urgent that partners in marriage keep on explaining them selves to each other, about everything that comes up.

One marriage counselor even advocates the "dialogue day," of "fighting time" for every young married couple, an opportunity to get off their chests the things that frustrate or struggle a man's image.

Talking over things they care about should be shared joy, and can get to be quite wonderful. One young wife I know says, "My conversations with John are the best part of my day every day. He is wonderful when it comes to helping me to understand him; and encouraging me to explain myself, when he is puzzled about something."

The opposite to this is, of course, to keep things to yourself. Even when it hurts the most inside, don't bottle things up, just "to keep the peace".

Dear Doris: It is amazing how many lonely widows there are!

Let's be honest: Someone like us who led a very full social life, loved dancing, etc., could not find happiness in hobbies, church groups, the only things that are suggested to us. If one goes to a club there are at least six women to each gentleman.

Please do not misunderstand me. I am by no means man-mad, all I wish is to meet a gentleman for occasional companionship, so that one does not always be the "wall flower". I myself am 53 and, may I add, a young 53, but I am told men in their 50's now are looking to the younger women. I guess this is true.

None of this sheer loneliness would be, if only our youngsters tried to recall the love and devotion that was lavished on them and yes, sacrifices too; but they, at least a few, seem as though they want to forget we exist and that adds pain to our loneliness. We don't ask for repayment, only love and consideration.

God knows our generation gave it, sometimes in return for a poor childhood of our own.

Needing Consideration.

Women's Calendar 'Herstory'

SASKATOON (CP) — A summer research project has turned into a potential Christmas present for the women on your list.

It began last summer when five young women undertook research to produce a Canadian appointment calendar based on the history of women. They have managed to mark all but 16 days of the year with an event of note to women.

They have illustrated the calendar with photographs, drawings, quotes of by and from Canadian women. Some are well known, some anonymous.

The five call themselves the Saskatoon Women's Calendar Collective. They worked for three months on funds from a L.I.P. grant. They searched archives, did personal interviews and, in the end, discovered so much material, they say they couldn't use half of it. They now are considering doing a book on Prairie women.

Their calendar has been published by the Canadian Women's Educational Press.

Ann Landers
Take Gifts Off Your List Just Give Spontaneously

Dear Ann Landers: Our family consists of seven children, eight grandchildren, five sons-in-law and three parents. This seems to call for an annual outlay of 22 birthday gifts, 22 Christmas gifts and five anniversary gifts. In addition, there is an average of two showers a month—either a bridal shower or a wedding shower for a member of the family or the daughter of a good friend. Then there are the people at work retiring, moving away or celebrating some occasion that calls for "chipping in" for a gift.

Add them all up and you have 80 gifts a year. Eighty attempts to select something for someone who probably has more of everything than he needs and can use. Also, the day of the 25 gift has passed. You can't get anything worth giving for under $5.

Do you believe in the gift-giving is necessary to show people we love them?—Fed Up

Dear Fed: Cut out all the gift-giving for one year and instead buy gifts for no occasion when you feel like it, or when you run into something that seems like an appropriate gift for someone you want to please. This won't be easy but you'll feel better once you've done it. (You'll be surprised at how few people will give a hoot.)

Dear Ann Landers: You have a lot of advice for people who don't want to drink, but whose friends keep trying to push cocktails on them. How about some help for those who are fighting The Battle of the Bulge?

I've been trying to lose weight for a year. My doctor says I must get rid of 20 pounds. But it's almost impossible.

Whenever I accept a dinner invitation, the hostess presumes me to try this and try that. She says she made it special for me. It's always a rich dish loaded with calories. Give "taste" and my willpower is shot.

Is there a solution to this problem?—Hippy Helene

Dear Hip: Yes. Eat at home. Tell your hostess you'll come after dinner, not before. Or orders. Then do it. Some people can resist anything but temptation. So—don't go near it.

ROSLIN — The Roslin Young In Heart held their Christmas party last week in the United Church Hall. After the dinner, local Girl Guides and Brownies provided a program under the leadership of Laurie Martin and Joan Reid.

St. Paul's Anglican Church in Roslin held its annual Christmas tree service last Sunday evening. Rev. V. F Earle was chairman of the program, presented by various Sunday School classes.

LIP and OFY Funds Misspent

OTTAWA (CP) — Auditor General J. J. Macdonell says auditing on about 28 per cent of more than 3,000 Opportunities For Youth (OFY) projects approved last year reveal cases of maismanagement, poor book keeping and questionable use of funds.

In his first annual report, tabled Tuesday in the Commons Mr. Macdonell noted that financial records and documents for 189 of the 827 projects his office attempted to audit were un available.

A number of projects simply did not pan out, after thousands of dollars had been handed over to their organizers.

A youth program in Toronto was given $10,523 of a $14,547 grant before OFY officials cut off funds "because of the lack of interest shown by group members and because some participants had falsified survey reports to indicate work done which in fact had not been performed."

An $11,220 grant to a Saskatoon drop-in centre was cut off less than two weeks before the scheduled closing date because an OFY officer felt "the majority of the participants appeared to be doing little or no work."

A grant for a summer camp for underprivileged children at Marmora, Ont., was used to hand out more money in salaries than authorized.

On Manitoulin Island, a project member was given $350 to open a bank account as his name to avoid the need for two signatures on withdrawals. Although he claimed all the money was spent on the project, $9,000 to restore historic ruins and to run a community theatre, he was unable to account for more than $46.

'I'm Hell of a Rich Man' But P.M. Won't Name Assets

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau warded off questions Tuesday about his personal finances with a series of good-natured retorts culminating in the statement: "I'm a hell of a rich man."

The exchange with reporters came after he tabled in the Commons conflict of interest guides for public servants.

After saying that if public employees do not meet the disclosure requirements "God will know about it and I suppose the press too," the prime minister was asked about his personal assets.

He said he has divested himself of all shares and has placed his assets either in bank accounts or in a blind trust over which he has no control.

Asked about the amount of assets involved, Mr. Trudeau replied: "Why don't you just assume I'm rich?"

He then was told that President Nixon, Opposition Leader Robert Stanfield and David Lewis, leader of the New Democratic Party, have disclosed their financial worth.

"Did it help Nixon?" he asked. "Do you trust Stanfield more than you did before?"

Pressed by reporters to put a figure on his wealth, the prime minister said flippan ly, "Let's say it's $100 million." Later, he amended his estimate to "about $200 million."

As a parting shot, Mr. Trudeau proclaimed: "Let's say I'm a hell of a rich man and the laws I make should be watched closely."

Trudeau Believes His Talks Taped

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau said Tuesday he does not record telephone conversations in his office but feels he has been recorded while visiting other heads of state.

Replying to questions on the CBC television program Some Honorable Members, he said he does not think President Nixon's taping of conversations was an exceptional situation.

"I have, in visiting many heads of government or even ministerial offices abroad, realized that it was likely that I was being recorded . . . you know, so very often they make you sit in a certain place where you have the impression it's because they want it to be recorded.

"I see nothing wrong with that."

Meanwhile, Mr. Trudeau said that in the next election campaign he "may be more impassioned and a little less rational."

In the last campaign he tried to speak the language of reason everywhere, "but this isn't good and I don't think it got through to the people very much."

He used to think it would be sufficient "to put a reasonable proposition to a person . . . but that's obviously not true."

"Nine-tenths of politics," including proceedings in Parliament, "appeals to emotions rather than to reason. . . ."

Holiday Fun

With school children getting an unexpected holiday yesterday while teachers stayed away from classes, the time was right for pre-Christmas winter fun. Skating, hockey and tobogganing were the order of the day. Four members of the Nolan family, Kirk, Lynn, Kim and John didn't have to attend classes at Prince Charles School as they spent yesterday afternoon sliding down the slope opposite the Four Seasons Hotel on sheets of red plastic.

Three Reeves Will Run For Top County Post

The 1974 Hastings county warden ship race will be three-way contest, it was indicated Tuesday.

The vote will be during the first meeting of 1975 council.

At a noon luncheon at the Sun Luck Gardens, with Hastings MPP Clarke T. Rollins, as host, Tweedy Reeve Jack McKenzie, Reeve William S. McCrae of Hungerford and Reeve George Lyons of Deseronto all announced their intention of running for the top council post currently held by Reeve Horace Casey of Thurlow.

And all three aspirants were unanimous in their desire to see county boundaries remain as they are, stating they would vigorously opposed any change.

Reeve McCrae has been a member of Hungerford council for 11 years; Reeve Lyons has served on both Deseronto school board and council, while Reeve McKenzie's service to his municipality extends back more than 20 years, first coming to county council in the late 1940s.

Reeve McKenzie was emphatic in his feeling that the county should never be broken up, and stated that if Belleville and Thurlow wanted to become part of the county "they should ask us -- not us ask them."

Reeve Lyons said there was no way he would want to see county boundaries change but suggested the future could see (administrative) changes within the county.

"You can't hold back progress," he said.

The last Hastings county wardens from Deseronto was the late Alonzo Dayden back in 1911. Farraday township hasn't had a warden since 1865 when the late Walter Wiggens had the honor. The last warden from Hungerford township was former Reeve Harold Varty in 1952.

Quinte Boards First to Report

The head-counting efficiency of local school administrators, both public and separate, was proved here yesterday.

Both boards were, as far as can be determined, the first in Ontario to report on the status of school staffing on the morning of the province-wide teachers walkout.

By shortly after 10 a.m. Tuesday both boards knew which schools in their system had sufficient staff to carry on operations.

The Hastings county board of education had 14 of its 53 elementary schools running. Three separate secondary schools were.

All eight public secondary schools were technically open with from 25 to 200 students each. The public board estimated today that about 20 per cent of elementary teachers, most of them probationary, were in school and 25 per cent of elementary pupils registered.

The Hastings county situation is believed to be the first to reach Canadian Press in Toronto as part of a county-by-county provincial round-up on the strike situation.

The public school board found that it taken from 1½ to two hours depending on the availability of telephone lines, for four superintendents to contact 53 schools.

With 18 schools to poll, the separate school board could offer precise figures. It had 21 teachers and five principals on duty; 640 pupils had registered and 82 had remained at three schools.

About 40 secondary school teachers from the south of Hastings area went by bus to Toronto to join the protest march on Queen's Park. Judy Carty, communication officer for the Hastings division said others went by car and a bus is believed to have gone from North Hastings. The OSSTF division paid for the bus.

Daylight Saving Opposed

Separate school trustees are opposed to Ontario joining the United States in bringing in daylight saving time in January. Clocks will be put forward an hour as an energy-saving technique.

But Rev. Louis Casartelli of Maynooth says daylight saving time in the winter will increase energy use in Canada.

School buses now start their runs at dawn, he said. When daylight saving comes in, buses will start, and, in some cases, complete their runs in darkness.

Kent county board of education had circulated a resolution saying daylight saving would be detrimental to the safety of children who would be out on the road in pitch darkness.

The separate school trustees supported the resolution.

Trustee Bert Garrett of Trenton asked if the board could open its schools a half-hour later in the morning when daylight saving time comes into effect.

Superintendent E. J. Neville said legislation now states that schools cannot be opened later than 9 a.m.

VON Appeals for Municipal Aid

The Victorian Order of Nurses is seeking larger grants from Quinte district local governments for next year.

The reason: A projected $13,000 1974 deficit for the home-nursing service that is now operating on a shoestring" and cannot pare its operations now in demand in three Quinte counties, says VON president John Briscoe.

Belleville city council Monday night read a letter signed by Mr. Briscoe asking for a $7,000 grant -- up $500 from the 1973 city allocation.

Similar letters have gone to all other municipali ties served by the VON in the Quinte district -- an area of demand bigger than ever, said Mr. Briscoe Tuesday.

A central VON principle is to meet need where it exists. In recent years this has seen tremendous broadening of its client considerations. Started in Belleville in the early 1920s, the Quinte VON today serves throughout Hasting and Prince Edward counties and part of Northumberland.

As such it has become a "really versatile," Mr. Briscoe said.

Its 1974 budget is projected at $15,000 to pay for an operation that includes eight full-time nurses in the three counties. During 1972 they made 15,600 home visits. By November this year alone the total had increased to 19,400. Belleville has 29 per cent of the case load, said the VON president. Belleville General Hospital's Home Care Program in the district makes much use of the service.

"We have reached a point of no return," says Mr. Briscoe. "We cannot really cut services. The branch operates on a shoestring now."

Transportation is among the problems for a service that depends on mobility. For its eight nurses it has only five aging automobiles. The balance is struck by paying mileage to the other nurses using their own cars.

In Belleville, the Kiwanis provides free head office accommodation, while Trenton quarters are shared with a public health nurse. In rural areas, the VON women "work out of their own kitchens," said Mr. Briscoe.

A visit from a VON nurse customarily costs $8.40, Mr. Briscoe explains. Mr. Briscoe, many of its calls are to help people who fall into a grey social area: They have enough money not to qualify for automatic free social services. Yet they cannot always afford to pay premiums or VON calls.

The service gets some "quite scary" charitable donations and "considerable" assistance from the Belleville United Community Services, says Mr. Briscoe.

Nonetheless, it is still pinning its hopes on the municipalities to make up the deficit for 1974.

The financial problem is aggravated by the fact much of VON administration is voluntary.

"And when you're a voluntary organization, $13.00 is quite a bit of money," said Mr. Briscoe.

If the municipalities don't help make up the deficit "I quite frankly don't know that we can do," said the VON president.

Separate School Teachers Will Be Docked Day's Pay

Hastings and Prince Edward county separate school teachers, who joined the province-wide walkout yesterday will be docked a day's pay.

However, the separate school board here at its regular meeting last night decided against waging a letter to the Ontario English Catholic Teachers' Association, chastising its members for their action.

All but one trustee voted in favor of withholding a day's pay from striking teachers. John Granville, a teacher at Prince Edward Collegiate Institute, abstained.

Superintendent E.J. Neville said each teacher would be docked one 200th of his salary. Teachers are paid on the basis of a 200-day year.

Trustee Zdenek Kvarda, introducing the motion for a letter of censure to the teachers' association, said he had been in sympathy with the teachers and regards Bill 274 as unethical. Teachers struck yesterday to protest the bill, which makes the traditional right to resign at Christmas illegal.

But Mr. Kvarda objected to the teachers' methods of protesting and said he can't support the action of the local teachers against this board.

"We have had good rapport with our teachers," he said "I am disappointed in our teachers and we must show some regret that they violated an agreement made in good faith."

Trustee Michael Collins supported Mr. Kvarda's stand.

"The teachers may try to tell themselves the strike wasn't against us," he said. "The action was against us, the children, parents and taxpayers."

Trustee Louis Casartelli said the province-wide strike set a precedent "and if we sit quietly by and accept it we don't know when the next occasion will be."

Austin Scott of Trenton led the opposition to the letter. He said the walkout was a province-wide and "it would be difficult to single out teachers to take part.

"We can't look at it (the walkout) as disloyalty to ourselves and our students," continued. "Our teachers are a dedicated lot."

Rev. Walter Hamilton of Picton supported the letter for another reason.

"This is a mess the government got itself into. Let it get itself out," he said.

The motion was defeated.

Teachers here were warned before the walkout that they stood to lose a day's pay if they supported their federation by walking out.

The elementary school teachers, both public and separate, who supported the walkout but who were desirous of not to go to school to supervise and answer telephones, are contributing their day's pay to their federations funds to fight Bill 274.

Members of the Ontario Secondary School Teachers' Federation who supported the strike but were required to be at school are making a contribution in the charity of their choice.

Each school board across the province, as the teachers' employees, will have to decide whether to pay striking teachers or withhold a day's salary.

When North York teachers earlier went on a one-day wildcat walkout, its board paid salaries as usual.

Hastings county board of education will not meet until Jan. 14.

UCS Agencies Will Get Less

United Community Services participating agencies will receive far less money from United Way coffers than each has requested for the coming fiscal year.

Ted Kelly, agency review committee chairman, said this morning that collectively the 13 agencies have requested $174,000 for 1974. Presently UCS contributed dollars are used to defray agency operating expenses.

This year, we've received far less than $140,000," said Mr. Kelly, speaking of money collected during the annual fund drive. "It's also a far cry from what they all want."

Last week, chairman, Elinor Sisson, projected a 1973 campaign total of $115.00, 25-000 short of the $140,000 goal, and $6,000 short of funds collected in 1972.

"We're going to have to portion out funds," said Mr. Kelly, Thursday, he hopes the UCS executive and the agency review committees' six liaison personnel can meet to discuss the 1974 allotments.

"We're going to say here's what we've got, here's what they want, and here's what we're going to give them," he said.

The committee has been reviewing agency budgets for the past three weeks. Last night, the committee met with YMCA representatives. the last agency to be processed.

Assault Costs $200

A Belleville man was fined $200 Monday after he was convicted in provincial court of having assaulted a Thurlow gas station attendant last October.

Robert Raycroft, of 411 Dundas Street East, was arrested by the Ontario Provincial Police Oct. 16, when he was charged following the attendant at Kimble's Gulf station on Highway 14 in Thurlow.

Raycroft told the court yesterday that he had been drunk at the time and had got into a fight with the attendant after he had been refused permission to ride a motorcycle that was in the shop for repairs.

When police arrived on the scene, they found that Raycroft had turned a counter over in the service station's office and saw him trying to kick the attendant whom he had knocked to the ground.

Raycroft pleaded guilty to the charge when he appeared before Judge J. L. Clendenning yesterday.

Choir Tours City

Part of St. Michael's Academy junior choir made its final choral singing visit to Belcrest Villa Nursing Home Monday.

The 18-member group completed its tour of Belleville senior citizen residences yesterday.

Already the group has brought Christmas cheer to residents of Hastings Manor and Victoria Lodge. The group is part of the 55 student, grade five and 6 junior choir.

Principal Gordon Sprout said the group had intended to make more trips but unforseen circumstances prohibited this.

Busy VON: Joan Murphy Reports

Plastics Firms Feel Oil Pinch

By JIM SMELLE

The impact of the energy crisis has reached far and wide, affecting everything from pleasure driving to Christmas tree lighting.

One lesser known effect of the situation has made itself felt in the plastics business. With Belleville's plastics companies raw materials such as crude oil, polyethelene and nylon all agreed the situation is tight.

At Allied Chemical Bob Aiken, general manager, said the situation is going to be tight for a year or so.

"Any plastic resin is tight now. But we're not suffering," he said.

"We just don't have it to flow around now. It won't affect our operations here," he said "We just have to be careful who we sell it to. By careful planning and economizing we can get through to the other side."

"Our business deals with nylon resin but the plastics is tight in every plastic. This tight situation can be good for the industry in that we can't afford to waste anything," he said.

"We notice our competitors not only in Belleville and in Canada, but in Europe, are experiencing the same situation. It's world-wide," commented Mr. Aiken.

"We're doing out best to ride it out. We're picking up our key accounts and our key markets and being careful not to waste anything."

At Union Carbide the basic raw materials in their business is crude oil, the energy source most affected by the world shortage.

"We've been noticing materials getting tighter and harder to get. It has caused us, some difficulties and may cause us more in the future," said business manager Robert Zalkowitz.

"I think anything to do with oil is going to become tighter in the future," he said. "There aren't enough oil refineries to handle the needs in the world", he said.

Mobil Plastics doesn't foresee any problems in their business in the next 12 months and possibly longer.

"Our basic deals with nylon resin but the plastics is tight in every plastic. This tight situation can be good for the industry in that we can't afford to waste anything," he said.

"We notice our competitors not only in Belleville and in Canada, but in Europe, are experiencing the same

Attendance Record May Be Forfeited

It is still unknown here whether or not pupils who stayed away from school Tuesday because of the teachers' walkout will be marked absent.

Superintendent E.J. Neville said the separate school board told trustees last night that he will have to contact the ministry of educa tion for an opinion on the subject.

Mrs. Lillian O'Connor, separate school board chairman, said she would hate to see children lose a perfect attendance, record "for something that is not their fault.

"Some children take perfect attendance seriously because it is a competitive thing in the schools," she said.

Mr. Neville said some schools had no bothered to take attendance Tuesday morning.

Marr Smith, public school board chairman, said before the strike that the attendance issue was a board decision.

Advice had been sought from Bill 9 of the ministry of educa ion in Kingston, but no firm answer has yet been given.

Separate school trustees are opposed to Ontario joining the United States in bringing in daylight saving time in January. Clocks will be put forward an hour as an energy-saving technique.

Polar Bears in Belleville?

Well, not quite, but there is one made of wool what else know — on Coleman Street. The polar bear was made in about a half hour by 13-year-old Bonnie Griffith, in front of her house. Here she poses with her creation Bonnie didn't take part in making the polar bear but didn't mind having her picture taken with it. The cold temperatures we are experiencing now have helped to turn the snow polar bear into an ice one.

Goose for Christmas

There's one Belleville-area household that'll be having a Canada goose for Christmas — and for most of next year.

In fact, the goose is the latest addition to a flock that now counts 18 ducks and geese.

The birds are being held temporarily for various injuries at the small conservation pond behind the home of George Woodhouse, captain in the Belleville fire department with a deputy game warden with the natural resources ministry.

Among his conservation contributions as a deputy has been the care of crippled birds, found suffering various injuries in open country.

Mr. Woodhouse and fellow deputy Gary Little tend the birds until they recover.

The latest feathered patient under scrutiny by both men is the Canada goose brought to the conservation area by military wildlife officers a few days ago.

It is suffering a leg injury — believed caused by a gunshot. In some cases amputation might be called for. But because of the weight of a Canada goose—the current specimen is estimated around 18 lbs. — manoeuvring on one leg becomes awkward, explains Mr. Woodhouse.

Instead, they hope the wound will cure without amputation.

In the meantime, the goose will join the rest of the flock of injured and recovering birds until they recover.

It counts time to fly south, some time in late fall 1974.

And while it's a labor of love, such care has suddenly become more costly with the recent sprouting of world grain prices.

For instance, to keep the latest-arrived Canada goose in corn and grain could run as high as $7 a week, Mr. Woodhouse estimates.

Ontario Welfare Benefits Increased by $31 Million

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario government announced Tuesday major increases in welfare benefits to the needy that will cost $31 million in 1974-75. Rene Brunelle, minister of community and social services, said the increases will lead to an income security system in the province.

The new benefit levels—once representing increases of more than 25 per cent—will affect about 92,000 people on general welfare assistance and more than 150,000 receiving family benefit allowances.

The government, in the current fiscal year, will pay out about $95 million in general welfare aid alone.

The new changes and revisions, announced to the legislature by Mr. Brunelle, update the needs test for those who require homemaker or nursing services, making them more generous. Mr. Brunelle said this will have the effect of increasing both the subsidies for these services, and the number of those eligible for daycare expenses.

Mr. Brunelle said the changes, coupled with recent federal improvements in old-age security benefits and modifications in the Canada Pension Plan, are "moving us towards an income security system which will adequately meet the needs of the people it serves."

The minister aid of the $31 million, the province will provide about $20 million, the remainder coming from federal programs.

Among those affected by the new provincial initiatives are the elderly, the handicapped, deserted mothers, single and foster parents and those who receive the federal baby bonus.

To cheers of the opposition benches, Mr. Brunelle said the province will turn over the entire baby bonus of $20 a month per child to parents, instead of regarding as earnings in computing provincial income tax.

Ottawa recently increased the baby bonus to a flat $20 a child.

Opposition members had expressed fears the province would attempt to exploit the increase by counting it as part of a family's earnings for income tax purposes.

Ontario's so-called family benefits program is intended to help the disabled, the blind, widows, deserted mothers, the unemployable, and families of husbands in jail.

Mr. Brunelle said family incomes under the family benefits programs will increase by 30 per cent or more by Jan. 1.

For example, a deserted mother with three dependent children who received $382 in December, 1972, will receive $394 after the restructuring, an increase of 36 per cent.

A permanently unemployed man, married with three dependent children who received $333 in December, 1972, will receive $440, an increase of 32 per cent.

Increases are also provided for persons and families receiving short-term general welfare.

In this category, a mother with three children, who formerly received $304 now will receive $340.

Or, a married couple with three children now will receive $413 instead of $333.

U.S. Air Carriers Refused Fuel Here

OTTAWA (CP) — Some United States air carriers have been refused fuel in Canada while Canadian airlines have had similar problems in the U.S., Transport Minister Jean Marchand said Tuesday.

Several U.S. airlines have had fuel requests rejected and there may be more such incidents, he told John Reynolds (PC—Burnaby-Richmond-Delta) in the Commons.

Outside the House, he said he has been told that Quebecair's normal fuel allotment in Canada has been reduced by one-sixth by suppliers. But he did not know whether this would affect flights.

Some U.S. carriers were finding it hard to get fuel in Canada because they had no contracts with petroleum companies here.

"We will have to have some kind of understanding," Mr. Marchand said.

Used As Fertilizers

MBABANE, Swaziland (AP) — A government news release called upon the nation "to stop indulging in the foreign practice of committing ritual murders with the wrong belief that parts of the human body can increase agricultural production. . . ."

Hints to the homemakers

Is there a difference in food value in different cuts of meats? Price and cut has absolutely nothing to do with nutritional value.

The difference will vary with the quantity of fat and bone. The smaller quantity of fat and bone the greater the amount of edible lean meat. More lean meat means more protein, more minerals and more vitamins.

QUESTION:
Is fish better for you than meat —Is fish really brain food?

ANSWER:
Another old wives tale—there is no such thing as brain food. However, people who eat fish are wise because fish is high in protein too.

NOTE: TO SAVE— Buy a large cut chuck roast of beef. Divide it for cooking in these ways.
(1) Use the rounded boneless end for stew.
(2) Use the centre with the round bone for a good pot roast supper.
(3) Slice the remaining piece lengthwise into 2 large or 4 smaller Swiss steaks.

NEXT WEEK—All about stew.

A family eats the right things when they're served in an interesting way. Part of their enjoyment is the enjoyment you get in preparing food tastefully.

'Killer Track' Being Paved

SYDNEY (Reuter) — The notorious "killer track" of Australia's unrelenting outback is being asphalted out of existence.

Already about two-thirds of the 328-mile dust trail have been turned into a modern highway and the remainder is being slowly improved.

The infamous Birdsville Track was opened a century ago when Birdsville, in the southwestern corner of Queensland, was a flourishing cattle town. Rustlers who found they could not sell their stolen stock in that state opened the track as they herded cattle down to South Australia.

Intense heat and lack of water were the killer elements. In summer the heat is so fierce at times that even the tough outback birds will not take to the air.

The old track began at tiny Birdsville and then meandered southward between two of the most inhospitable desert areas on the continent.

It wound its way through the 13,000-square-mile cattle station of Clifton Hills and from there through aboriginal areas with names evoking the sound of the desert wind, like Coroorillanie.

The aboriginals kept their most poetic names for the sinkhole billabongs or water holes.

The largest lagoon along the track has been named Callyamurra and the largest artesian bore in the area is called Cannawillicannina.

No one knows how many people have perished on the Birdsville Track—travellers have been disappearing without trace since the opening of the road by the cattlemen.

Last December a family of four survived after being bogged for 12 hours in the sand 36 miles from Birdsville. They did so by covering their car with blankets for insulation and resting in the car without moving while the temperature climbed to 131 degrees.

After dusk the car was dug out and the family returned to Birdsville.

On New Year's Day, 1964, the bodies of five members of a British immigrant family were found 45 miles from Birdsville. The family had travelled 270 miles towards the little town before their car sank in sand. They were found by search planes 12 miles from the car and only two miles from water.

The track is equally inhospitable when rain comes to the area. The sand turns to clinging mud.

This part of the continent is an area of extremes. After a seven-year drought, Birdsville is at present having a glut of rain.

As late as March, 1971, a sign at Marree, at the southern end of the track, pointed north saying: "Birdsville Track—Impassable to all vehicles".

But since then giant graders and road-laying equipment have moved slowly towards Birdsville. At the same time the telephone line has crept towards the town from Brisbane.

Tweed District Personals

A Christmas Cantata "Carol of Christmas" by John Peterson, will be presented at Pine View Free Methodist Church in Cloyne, Wednesday, December 19 at 8.00 p.m. directed by Jane Mosier. the choir is made up of people from several churches in the area.

The first three snowmobilers to arrive at Mother's Restaurant for the 1973-74 season, were the Baker Brothers of Madoc, who made the trip to this Black River retreat on Sunday, December 9. It has been the custom of the owners, since the opening of this restaurant, to provide a free dinner for the first three snowmobilers who arrive each season. The Baker Brothers have been the first to arrive for four consecutive seasons.

The regular meeting of the Pioneer Club was held December 17, in the Cloyne Hall. After a brief business period and taping for the book "The Ozen and the Axe", there were games, followed by refreshments.

ORGANIZE LAST-MINUTE FOOD SHOPPING WISELY

For your last big bout of food shopping between now and Christmas, here are a few hints to cut rush and frustration to a minimum:

- If potable, be at the store when it opens in the morning. You and the staff will be at the freshest, and you should be surprised by how quickly you can shop and check out.
- List every need for your holiday festivities, down to the last candle. Check and re-check, so that only a few last-minute perishables remain to be bought on Monday.
- Study today's ad closely before you make your final list, so you won't forget any of the little extras that will make your holiday open-house and dinner perfect. But avoid over-spending, or you'll find yourself with budget problems after the holiday is over.

HAVE A WONDERFUL CHRISTMAS!

Music Helps to Treat Indian Problem Drinkers

HOBBEMA, Alta. (CP) — Indian drums and chants sound softly in the background at the Hobbema detoxification centre.

The music isn't always played for enjoyment; sometimes it's designed to assist the counsellors in their work.

"When people come in and can't seem to settle down, we just turn on the tape recorder with that singing on it," says Agnes Tootoosis, a counsellor and sturdy aide at the centre.

"Then they'll usually start dancing and get rid of all their frustrations."

The centre, officially opened last August, is the only one of its kind in Canada—initially and entirely operated by Indians on the Hobbema Reserve, 50 miles south of Edmonton.

With an all-native staff of seven it isn't surprising that Indian culture is emphasized.

"Our culture is important in helping people with drinking problems because it reminds them who they really are and how they were brought up," said Maurice Wolfe, chief of the Ermineskin Band.

Chief Wolfe, who helped initiate the project, said he plans to use several elders to counsel people at the centre.

Elders, who are generally more than 60 years old, have traditionally played the role of advisers in Indian society.

"There are few elders on the reserve who have had drinking problems, but they've seen people suffer because of alcohol and they know what it does to you," he said.

The centre is funded by the federal government and the Alberta Alcoholism and Drug Abuse Commission. It has eight beds, is housed in a small grey stucco building on the reserve and is open 24 hours a day.

Since it opened, more than 165 [illegible] have passed through, some staying overnight and others for the maximum period of seven days.

The centre will move shortly to a larger house which can accommodate 15 people.

The centre has eliminated jail for many natives, Chief Wolfe said. In the past, an Indian found drunk was often jailed overnight in Ponoka or Wetaskiwin, towns near Hobbema.

"When you put them into jail, you're hurting their feelings very deeply, and no one at the jail tells them anything about alcohol and what's happening to them," the chief explained.

[illegible] of that, they can go on drinking and being in and out of jail forever."

RCMP now telephone the detoxification centre and tribal policemen hired by the band councils pick up the persons involved and take them to the centre.

"When people are brought here by the tribal police, we have no trouble with them. They're good-natured and easy-going because they feel right at home."

More than 18 have been referred to the Alberta Hospital for treatment for alcoholism.

"But we don't refer people too often," Chief Wolfe said. "We want them to stay as close to home as possible."

Since coming to the centre, four patients have stopped drinking entirely. Attendance at Alcoholics Anonymous meetings held in the Hobbema drop-in centre has been increasing.

Tweed Personals

Tweed — The Kiwanis Club held their weekly meeting on Thursday, December 6 at the Hotel Tweedsmuir.

The Kiwanians went on their annual Christmas tree cutting expedition on Sunday, December 9.

These trees are now being sold at Owen Marble, South Victoria Street, Tweed.

Rita Rivers and Jed English, Tweed residents and members of the Tweed Figure Skating Club, placed fourth in the dance pairs in the Eastern Ontario Regional Competition held in Peterborough earlier this month.

The Catholic Women's League of Tweed, held their final game of the Annual Euchre Marathon in St. Carthagh's Hall, last week.

Hougan's Boat

Norman Hougan is building a 36-foot sailboat of reinforced plastic in his yard in south Edmonton. It took a crane to move the unit into position after Mr. Hougan had finished the hull this fall.(CP Photo)

Teacher Builds Boat As His Home

EDMONTON (CP) — Norman Hougan has a dream, and has been building it into reality.

The dream—a 36-foot ketch called Ango—will serve as retirement home for Mr. Hougan and his wife. It is being built at their home in south Edmonton.

When the sailboat of reinforced plastic is finished, it will sleep seven. Its construction is entirely a do-it-yourself project "with lots of cruising", Mr. Hougan said.

He and his wife were bitten by the boat-bug when Mr. Hougan was teaching in the West Indies four years ago. They fixed up an old fishing boat there and knew they were hooked.

Mr. Hougan says he has no definite plans other than that he wants to retire on the boat, but adds: "Eventually we'd like to get back to the West Indies."

He began work on Ango's hull by building it over a mould last spring. He did some work on it during the summer, but increased his pace this fall.

During its construction, he attracted a fair amount of attention from neighbors and passers-by.

"The age of imagination isn't gone," he said. "Kids come from all over the neighborhood and ask things like: 'Where are you going to put it? It's too big for Pigeon Lake.'"

During its construction, he attracted a fair amount of attention from neighbors and passers-by.

He hopes to have the boat in the water by next summer, transporting it to the coast by truck.

"If it floats, the world's our oyster."

RATS BEING TRAPPED

KUALA LUMPUR, Malaysia (AP) — Residents of North Sumatra are being paid the Malaysian equivalent of 2½ cents for rat tails in an anti-rodent campaign, the national news agency Bernama said. About one million rats got the short end during a six-month period, the agency said.

Weak-sighted Drivers South African Menace

JOHANNESBURG (Reuter) — A frightening picture of a motorist parking his car and going to collect his blind pension has been painted by a survey which estimated that there are more than 40,000 drivers in South Africa who would qualify for such grants.

The estimate, in a country where fewer than three million drivers produced a highway death toll which exceeded 8,700 last year, comes from a survey conducted by the South African Optometric Association.

Deryck Humphriss, one of the researchers o nthe association's drivers' vision committee, told a conference that every members knows there are hundreds of motorists on the road who cannot see properly.

"Some are seriously short-sighted so that they can see nothing clearly beyond the end of the hood, but could see clearly if they wore glasses," he said.

"Others will only see clearly again if they undergo an operation, which they refuse, while yet others have permanently lost their vision."

Driving licences are issued for life in South Africa and although an applicant must pass a stringent eye examination, there are no further checks.

The result, said Humphriss, is that there are qualified drivers collecting blind pensions.

"No official dealing with the giving of these pensions has to advise the traffic department that a driver has received one," he said. "It is left to the blind man to turn in his licence, and some do not fancy this step and continue to drive."

Milers On Top With a Bang

Randy Lambert was the big gun for Golden Mile last night. In the Gas House hockey League, as he fired four goals to lead his team to a 10-1 win over Constellation Carpets in one of three games played in league.

The win moved the Milers into sole possession of first place in the league standings, with 23 points, two more than Mead Johnson and the Doctors, who were both idle last night.

Lambert added an assist to his four tallies, while Terry Pope fired the hat trick. Carl Boomhower scored twice and Garry Sero added one. Dave Akey and Al Ray each drew three assists.

Tom Bellis was the only Constellation marksman, spoiling Golden Mile goaltender Bill Harrison's shutout bid.

In the other games played last night, The Intelligencer shutout the Yardmen 4-0 and Rosebush Fuels and Chuckwagon Foods played to a 3-3 tie.

Four players shared the hotel scoring, with Bill Bunnett, Jim McGuire, Barry Marshall, and Austin Wilson each contributing one marker.

Warren Hay potted the shutout, the first of the season for The Intell netminder.

Bill Dunn of Chuckwagon and Wayne Doll of Rosebush traded a pair of goals as their teams battled to the stalemate. Chester Thompson added the other score for Chuckwagon, with Neil Goyer going the equaliner for Rosebush.

Gary Walt Realizing A Personal Ambition

By ALAN TEBWORTH
Sports Staff

Gary Walt is a 25-year-old Belleville weightlifter who has been lifting since he was 15.

Gary.set four goals for himself when he started lifting in the fall of 1964.

The first of course, was to compete at the Olympic Games, a goal which may be no further away than 1976 at Montreal. He also set his sights on the Pan-Am Games, the World Weightlifting Championships, and the British Commonwealth Games.

The five-foot-nine-inch 233 pounder will realize the fourth goal this January as he travels to New Zealand to compete in the Commonwealth Games.

He is optimistic about his chances at the Games, hoping to come up with the best lifts of his life to place him in the medal standings.

Qualifying for the Games was a relatively easy task for Walt. He checked in with a two lift total of 626 pounds at the trials for the Canadian team, held October 7 at Bal Comeau, Quebec.

At the meet, Walt came up with the best two-lift total of his life, although he was bettered there by fellow lifter Russ Prior, of Hamilton, the current Canadian Champion in the 242 pound class. Prior totaled 728 pounds to take the first-place finish.

But Walt isn't too concerned about Prior's impressive total. Russ had just competed in two top world meets, including the World Championships in Cuba, and was in top lifting shape for the trials.

Gary has had individual lifts of 324 pounds in the match event, and 400 in the clean and jerk section. A total of 724, if he can put the two together, will put him right in with the top competitors.

He's hoping to better that by a considerable margin. He is looking to snatch 330 lbs. and 430-440 in the clean and jerk.

A different system was used at the last Commonwealth Games. The three lift system was used for the competitions. The press is no longer in use in world weightlifting competitions.

The two lift winning total in the last Games would have been only 721 pounds, had the new system been in effect. That's three pounds off Walt's total.

Except for a slightly strained and sore right wrist, Gary will be in tip top physical shape when he reaches New Zealand. His training period has gone exceptionally well.

Taking a three week layoff after the Games, he gave him a rest from the long grind of training.

He hit about 90 per cent of his competitive lifting total in last week's training sessions, and has felt extremely well doing it.

If that is any indication, he should be right at the top of potential by the time January rolls around.

Despite the International flavour of the Games, Walt does not receive any financial support, from governmental bodies.

He has been paying his own way to events like these all through his career as a lifter, He will continue to pay out of his own pocket until he reaches his goal, which is to be the best weightlifter in his class in the world. It may not be long before he realizes that ambition.

Reaching Peak Performance

Just coming to the peak of his training period, in time for the upcoming British Commonwealth Games, Apollo Barbell Club's Gary Walt takes close to his maximum weight in doing his breathing exercises at the Club's gym on Dornid Street in a workout last week. Walt is realizing one of his goals in going to the Games, to be held in New Zealand in January.

Late Mistake Costly To Western Tiremen

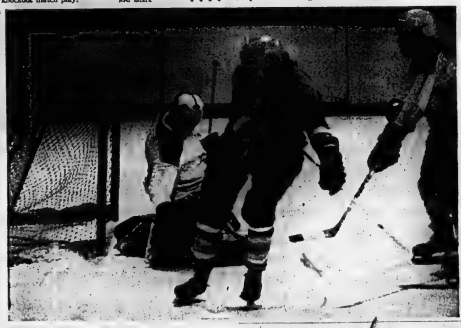
A costly mistake late in the third period proved to be the downfall for the Western Tire Juveniles last night, as they lost to Kingston 4-3 in OMHA Triple A league play at Memorial Arena.

A careless clearing pass from the Belleville defence was picked up by Kingston winger Danny Exford who put Jim Higgins into the clear on Belleville goaltender Pete McQuaid. Higgins beat McQuaid to the low glove side for the winning goal.

Western Tire drew first blood in the game as Steve Cowan tipped in Joey Edwards' point shot at 14:40 of the first period. England also received an assist.

Kingston tied the game at 4:25 of the second period, as Danny Marshall's rising slapshot from just inside the blueline went in the top corner of the net on McQuaid's glove side. John Gillespie set up Marshall.

The Limestone city team took the lead at the 14:15 mark of the period, on a pretty passing play between Higgins, Gillespie, and Exford, with Higgins scoring the goal.



Grant Goegan took advantage of a Kingston penalty early in the third period, scoring a power-play goal, with Mike Watt and Steve Kirby taking assists.

Kingston's aggressive forechecking kept them in the Belleville zone for most of the third period, forcing the Tiremen to give up the puck many times in their own end.

Scott Ellis scored the third Kingston goal, as he drifted a soft wrist shot from just inside the blueline, which handcuffed McQuaid.

Belleville's third and final goal came after a scramble in front of the net, with Dave England lifting the puck over a fallen Bob Butterall in the Kingston goal.

This set the stage for the winning goal by Higgins.

Forward Foiled

Western Tiremen forward Steve Cowan takes a glance behind him to see where puck wound up during last night's juvenile game at Memorial Arena. Kingston goalie Bob Butterall has the puck secured while defenceman Sao Mazzio speeds in to help out. Kingston shaded the Belleville squad 4-3.

Athlete of the Year Honors for Esposito

By IAN MacLAINE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Phil Esposito has come a long way since the days he worried about playing Junior A hockey in Ontario.

The 31-year-old Boston Bruin centre today was named Canada's outstanding athlete of 1973, his second win in a row in an annual poll of sports writers and broadcasters conducted by The Canadian Press.

As was the case a year ago, when the lanky sorcerer had a host of achievements to look back on—Team Canada, a Stanley Cup and a National Hockey League scoring title—the voting was conclusive.

Sandy Hawley, the record-setting jockey from Whitby, Ont., got a number of late votes, but couldn't overhaul Esposito.

Expos won the poll on the basis of what he does naturally—providing leadership with an almost unbelievable talent for scoring goals.

As for cry from the days, more than a decade ago, when the NHL's most prolific scorer worried about sticking with the Junior A team at St. Catharines, Ont., because he thought he was too heavy.

It marked only the sixth time since the poll was started in 1923 that the award has been won by the same athlete two years running. Only hockey player Maurice Richard and baseball's Fergie Jenkins have won three times.

"Besides all the things that Phil does on the ice," Bruins general manager Harry Sinden said today when he heard of the award, "Phil is definitely our team leader.

"He's the guy players take their problems to. He's the guy that brings their problems to me. He's the player representative (on the NHL Players' Association).

"It may sound corny, but there's no question that he's a leader. The Montreal Canadiens also has a mainstay defenceman Bobby Orr, considered by many to be the greatest ever to play in the league.

Hawley, 24, who became the first thoroughbred jockey in turf history to win 500 races in a year, made his move late in the racing season.

He left Greenwood in Toronto in December with 478 winners to go to Laurel Race Track in Maryland and chase Bill Shoemaker's world record of 485 winners in a year.

He erased that mark Dec. 3 and notched his 500th winner Saturday, Dec. 15.

Ron Turcotte of Grand Falls, N.B., finished third in the voting. Turcotte, who campaigns mostly on the Big Apple tracks around New York City, was followed by Toller Cranston, Canadian figure skating champion.

Roger Clyde Gray, a native of Three Mile Plain, N.S., who flights out of Toronto; harness horseman Herve Filion of Angers, Que., runner-up in Sportsman of the Year voting a year ago; swimmer Bruce Robertson of Vancouver and Toronto sprinter John Hilliver, Detroit Tiger relief specialist, also were prominent vote getters.

Turcotte, a much sought-after jockey, rode Secretariat to the United States' first Triple Crown in 25 years by winning the Belmont Stakes.

Filion travels all over North America with his stable of riding at county fairs as well as at major tracks, and is known almost as much for the goodwill he spreads as for his driving performances.

The perennial driving champion had 411 winners, far short of the record 604 of a year ago, but his earnings of $2,019,144 were ahead of his 1972 purses of over $3 million.

Robertson, who swam in the Munich Olympics, holds the remarkable American retired following the 1972 Olympics, proved he's the best in the world at the 100-metre butterfly by winning all the races at the world championships in Belgrade.

Robertson finished second to Spitz in the Munich Olympics in the same event.

Hillier, one of the great comeback stories of any year, triumphed over a 1971 heart attack and set a major league record with 28 saves for Detroit Tigers of the American League.

But it was no contest for Esposito—voters apparently remembering his scoring championship for the third year in a row and noting his incredible start this year, 34 goals and 52 assists in the first 28 games.

He recalls, however, the days when he had grave doubts about his future in hockey.

"I really had a fear I wouldn't make it. I was 19 and they (the Junior A clubs) rarely took you that old," he said of his first year out of Junior B hockey at Sarnia, Ont. Nor was he physically prepared.

"I weighed 212 pounds. . . . I weighed 187 in my first year as a pro (1963), which should give you an indication of how overweight I was."

Sinden and the Bruins, however, can feel encouraged that the 6-foot-2 centre didn't lose hope. He eventually reached the NHL with Chicago Black Hawks and went to Boston in a 1967 trade.

Since that time he's been the league's top scorer, winning four scoring championships in the last five years, three in a row.

"On the ice, everything he does is so important to the Bruins," Sinden said of Esposito's contribution to the team.

"He's a father confessor for the rookies. They quickly learn that he's the guy to talk to if they have any problems or aren't playing well."

Asked if he could envisage the Beantowners without Esposito, or Orr, Sinden simply scrolled and added: "As long as I'm manager of this team, we'll never trade or sell Espo or Bobby at any price."

Kingston Canadians, undefeated in their last three home games, made it four consecutive games without a loss at home Tuesday with a 7-5 upset of second-place St. Catharines Black Hawks in Ontario Hockey Association Major Junior A action.

It was only the ninth win in 33 starts for the last-place Canadians this season and prevented St. Catharines from moving to within two points of idle Peterborough.

Kingston took a 3-0 first-period lead but trailed 5-4 at one point in the second period. However three goals in a 38-second span in the final two minutes of the period shot Canadians into the 7-5 lead. The third period was scoreless.

Alex Forsyth scored twice for Kingston with Barry Scully, John Bialas, Brad Phiness, Roger Dorey and Grey Holst getting one each.

Rick Addiuono led St. Catharines with two goals while Dave Corman, Ken Breitenbach and Rick Hampton got the others.

Canadiens Hand Seals 21st Loss of Season

By GLENN COLE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

California's Golden Seals did Tuesday night what they have managed to do best since joining the National Hockey League in the fall of 1967—lose.

The Seals dropped their 21st game of the 1973-74 season—4-1 to Montreal Canadiens—and solidified their grip on the bottom rung of the NHL's West Division.

Elsewhere, New York Islanders and Vancouver Canucks tied 2-2 and Los Angeles Kings and Detroit Red Wings tied 4-4.

The Seals have only seven wins and three ties in their 31 games so far this season, but coach Fred Glover still feels his club has a chance to make the West playoffs.

Jacy Johnston, one of the few members of the Seals that has done anything this season, said before the game Tuesday that Glover and team owner Charlie Finley have a good deal to do with the California club's difficulties.

"There's no discipline," said Johnston, who has 14 goals and 11 assists. "I think everybody is waiting for Finley to sell the team—hoping for it.

"I'm lucky. I can talk to my teammates (Walt McKechnie and Reg Leach). Some of the lines aren't even on speaking terms. "Glover doesn't say anything to the younger guys who need the coaching. They're probably sulking about thinking they're doing everything right."

The Seals didn't do anything right Tuesday night before about 13,000 spectators.

The Canadiens scored twice in each of the first two periods. Stan Weir of California scored midway through the third period to spoil rookie goaltender Michel Larocque's bid for his first NHL shutout.

Claude Larose who was playing only his third game after breaking a leg in last spring's checking and helped set up two goals.

Ron Greschner), conscripted from New Westminster Bruins, fired two screen shots from the blue line for goals while Barry Smith of New Westminster and Bob Bourne of Saskatoon Blades contributed one each.

Victor Schallmoo was Montreal's leader offensively with one goal and two assists in the rugged contest marked by 26 penalties.

Alexandre Golikow and Sergei Kapustin each fired two goals and Edmonton netminder Gerry Cheevers, borrowed from Cleveland Crusaders of the World Hockey Association. Everett Zemin added the other Russian marker.

Selects Can't Handle Beefed Up Oil Kings

EDMONTON (CP) — Mike Rogers scored three goals Tuesday night to propel the reinforced Edmonton Oil Kings to an 8-6 victory over Moscow Selects for the tourists' first loss in seven games on a Canadian tour.

A capacity crowd of 5,200 cheered almost steadily through the exhibition game as Oil Kings, with substantial reinforcements from other Western Canada Hockey League teams, jumped in'o a 2-0 lead in the first six minutes.

Moscow struck back quickly to tie the score less than three minutes later but the Canadian juniors added two more goals before the period ended and never trailed.

The Calgary line of Rogers, Richard Holland and Danny Gare paced the Canadian attack. Holland had a goal and four assists while Gre did some diligent Stanley Cup final series, got his first goal of the year to start Montreal off on the right foot.

Frank Mahovlich, Serge Savard and Larry Robinson got the other Montreal goals.

Canucks 2 Islanders 2

The Islanders started off well as Jean Potvin opened the scoring at 4:14 of the first period. But the second-year club let up against the Canucks and the clubs were tied 2-2 going into the second.

Islanders' coach Al Arbour, whose club now occupies seventh place with 18 points, one more than Vancouver, said:

"Any time we get off to a quick start, we seem to let up. We get the first goal easy and we don't want to go after another one. We seem to walk until the last minute of the period to play any kind of hockey."

Bob Nystrom got the other New York goal with Jocelyn Guevremont and Don Lever replying for the Canucks.

Kings 4 Red Wings 4

Veteran Bob Nevin scored his second goal of the game and 11th of the season at 6:42 of the third period to give the Kings a tie with Detroit.

Bill Lesuk and Mike Murphy got the other Los Angeles goals with Mickey Redmond, Doug Roberts, Bill Hogaboam and Pierre Jarry replying for the Wings.

Tonight, the Golden Seals visit Toronto Maple Leafs, Chicago Black Hawks are home to Buffalo Sabres, the Kings play the Blues in St. Louis and Minnesota North Stars greet Atlanta Flames.

Irate Edmonton Coach Unloads on Referee

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Edmonton coach Brian Shaw was angry Tuesday night after his Oilers were defeated 4-3 by Quebec Nordiques in a World Hockey Association game punctuated by a third-period brawl.

He professed disgust at the treatment his players received from referee Pierre Belanger, who he called incompetent.

"He's got no business being out there on the ice," Shaw said.

Shaw's outburst came while he was reviewing the third period in which Edmonton's Doug Barrie and Nordiques' Jean-Guy Gendron touched off a melee when they roughed each other up.

Serge Bernier of the Nordiques joined the fray, then Jim Harrison of the Oilers and soon both players' benches emptied.

Some of the 4,500 fans also became embroiled.

Barrie received a match penalty for deliberately aiming to injure; Gendron was assessed a misconduct; Bernier picked up a misconduct; Jeannot Gilbert and Harrison each drew double minors and Barrie also was tagged with a misconduct.

"Barrie got two shots on the head, he got cut and then he gets a match penalty and it could cost him $5,000," Shaw continued.

The Knights were handicapped through the absence of seven regulars, because of injury or illness. Among the missing were Bobby Sheehan, the team's third-highest scorer; Mike Laughlin, Dan Hartman and goaltender Jim McLeod. All but the latter were unable to play because of leg and back injuries. McLeod was excused because of an illness in his family. He was replaced by Gary Kurt, former Kitchener, Ont., junior, who made 36 saves in his debut with the Knights.

Defenceman Carl Brewer, who left the game midway through the second period after being struck in the eye by the puck, required two stitches to close the wound, but the former veteran played a regular shift in the final period.

"I was fortunate, because my helmet protected me," Brewer said. "It could have been a lot worse if the puck had hit me harder." The mishap occurred when a shot from the point was deflected by Knight's Brian Bradley.

Whalers 3 Chicago 2

Chicago Cougars went on the rampage in the last 19 minutes of the final period to wipe out a three-goal deficit and earn a 3-3 tie with Winnipeg Jets. The teams battled through a 10-minute overtime period with neither team threatening for Gary Veneruso, his 16th and 15th of the season.

Terry Caffery scored two quick goals in the first period and that was all they needed in a 4-1 decision over the last-place New Jersey Knights. The win, before 3,872 fans, their smallest home crowd of the season, vaulted Three into third place, one point ahead of Cleveland Crusaders, in the East Division.

Voyageurs Hard Pressed

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

A home game usually means two points to Nova Scotia Voyageurs, especially when Virginia Red Wings are their American Hockey League opposition.

The Voyageurs, however, were fortunate to pick up one point Tuesday night, getting a goal by centre Ed Gilbert, at 19:45 of the final period for a 3-3 tie with the Wings.

In the other game, Jacksonville Barons defeated Boston Braves 5-3 with two unanswered goals in the third period.

The Voyageurs—with 13 saves, three less and a loss in games at Halifax compared with a 5-12 road record — tightened their grip on second place in the North Division and moved within two points of leading New Haven Nighthawks.

New Haven has 38 points, Nova Scotia 36 and Providence 33. Rochester is fourth with 32 points followed by Boston with 28 and Springfield 16. Hershey leads the South Division with 38 points, two more than Cincinnati and six ahead of Baltimore. Jacksonville has 25 points, Virginia 20 and Richmond 18.

Nova Scotia 3 Virginia 2

Gilbert scored the tying goal during a power play after Nova Scotia pulled goalie Dave Eberbach in favor of an extra attacker.

Virginia netminder George Hulme was sprawled on the ice 18 feet out of his crease after diving for and missing the elusive puck.

The Voyageurs led 1-0 after the first period on Larry Fullen's goal but trailed 2-1 at the end of the second following two goals by Len Fontaine.

Herb Peters made it 3-1 for Red Wings at 4:45 when he beat Eberbaan on a breakaway, but Michael Bellisle's goal at 19:55 nd the one by Gilbert kept the Voyageurs undefeated in four games this season against Virginia—three wins and a draw.

Eberbaan stopped 26 shots, including breakaways by Rick Newell and Mike Jackson. Hulme turned aside 25 shots before 1,640 fans.

Jacksonville 5 Boston 3

Centre Guy Smith's first goal since being sent to the Barons from the New England Whalers of the World Hockey Association snapped a 3-3 tie at 7:52 of the third period and gave Jacksonville its 11th win in 28 games.

Neighborliness Has Become Thing of Past in Ontario

KEMPTVILLE, Ont. (CP) — Old-fashioned neighborliness, once a trademark of the farm community, is becoming a thing of the past, at least in Eastern Ontario. That is the finding of an Ontario government report.

"The daily visiting and mutual help once characteristic of farm communities now are rare," the report says.

The comments are based on a ministry of agriculture survey which investigated 39 farmers who started business in eastern Ontario between 1963 and 1970.

This breakdown in rural cohesiveness is blamed on the mechanization of farms, the consolidation of schools and churches and the continued urbanization of rural areas.

The report says a new type of neighbor relationship is developing that is "much less personal and interdependent than that of a generation ago.

For the 25 per cent of farmers who came from urban areas before they started farming, the relationship was not a new or difficult problem, according to the report.

However, those who had lived in rural areas for a long time "deplored the lack of personal contact with neighbors."

Modern machine technology has eliminated the need of help from neighbors and television entertainment has reduced visiting, they complain.

The report rejects the cultural prediction there will be no one to take over farming when older farmers want to retire.

Between 1963 and 1970, the survey indicates, young men, including city people, were being attracted to farming on at least a part-time basis.

Some farmers and agricultural experts say agriculture is going to be taken over by government or large corporations, with farmers becoming paid employees rather than their own bosses.

Between 1963 and 1970 only 36 of the 299 farms studied were sold to people who were not already established area farmers.

The survey, conducted by James Purvis of the Kemptville College of Agricultural Technology and Henry Noble, a ministry economist, says five per cent of the new farm operators had no agricultural experience.

When asked why they decided to take up farming, 22 of the 39 said it was because they were born on farms. The rest said they like the outdoors, animals, plants and the independence of the occupation.

An overwhelming majority said their farming progress was either satisfactory or very satisfactory. Only 26 per cent believed the future of farming in the area to be less than bright.

The study also found new farmers usually enter the field on a part-time basis with the intention of eventually going full-time.

The part-timers studied said they should be eligible for the same government loan opportunities as full-time farmers. They said it is difficult to get money at reasonable rates to undertake the transition to full-time farming.

Researchers discovered the average acreage of farms studied increased from 189 in 1963 to 249 acres in 1970. During the seven-year period, they noted, most farms were steadily upgraded.

Fifty-four per cent of the farms faced a net income loss during the last year of the study, 1970. The average income after expenses for full-time farms was $1,955 while part-timers had an average of $2,982 in 1970.

DENVER (AP) — For anyone advice: contemplating building his own airplane, especially a delicate replica of First World War vintage, Bill Caldwell has some Gather together plenty of friends, time and money.

His full-scale flyable replica of a Fokker DR-1 "started out just like a model airplane kit. dreds of parts, and then you bent. It's grown into a jealous learn how to modify them," he mistress in four years."

"I don't think anyone has over taken the time to compute the hours it takes to build something like this," said the 42-year-old lawyer. "If you did you'd probably shoot yourself — or your wife would shoot you.

"It's the hundreds of hours you spend scrounging for parts, said after lugging two of one into the warehouse where he works on the plane.

Caldwell even busted up an kitchen to German flying and a mah-jongg-eaten tunic he needed a tailor to restore for him.

"You end up learning how to weld, woodworking, and finally modify the engine (ignition bar-rens."

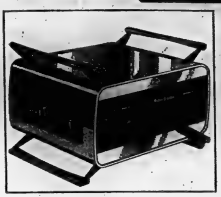
As he spoke, Caldwell and Bob Gilliam, an airline pilot and fellow-enthusiast, ran a hot the edges shrank into scallops.

If you didn't have friends, you learn how to be a seamst gentle scallops.

Caldwell said Caldwell, "it would take you 3,611 years to build one of these things. I'm a firm believer in buying what I want. It has to be a labor of love."

Caldwell built a barn behind his suburban home for the first stages of construction. When it came time to attach the three handmade wooden wings to the fuselage he moved it all to the warehouse.

He estimates he has put $8,000 into the replica, which will be worth five times that when completed. The single-seater will be painted red, after 20 or more coats of dope are applied to the fabric. It will carry the same registration number as the plane flown by Baron Manfred von Richtofen, the Red Baron.



"I think everyone has mixed emotions about flying their own home-built," said Caldwell, "but it's going to be beautiful.

Many Amendments Face Federal Elections Bill

OTTAWA (CP) — Touted as a stepping-stone to "one of the most democratic and open electoral systems in the world," the election expenses bill could become a technically-studded treadmill for a long parliamentary debate.

Introduced by Government House Leader Allan MacEachen June 22, the bill retains most of its basic machinery to control campaign spending despite the reworking it received from the Commons privileges and elections committee.

It returned to the House Tuesday, changed by about 60 amendments, only to hit a New Democratic Party minefield of 42 more suggestions.

The basic NDP argument is that the bill would set up yet another unwieldy bureaucracy. It wants more control at the constituency level.

Despite the long list of amendments, Mr. MacEachen says he was not discouraged and said he expects the bill to become law before the House rises. He did not say when that might be.

The bill was negotiated to include the committee amendments so these generally can be discounted for detailed consideration at report stage, the last before third reading.

Of the 42 NDP amendments, only two were dealt with decisively in more than four hours of debate Tuesday. Defeated on a voice vote, these would have affected what government services, such as aircraft use, could be considered a campaign expense.

Voting was deferred on four others, which call for creation of electoral district agents whose primary duties would be collection of campaign donations at the constituency level.

Under the bill in its present form parties would appoint agents to make all collections and pay all campaign bills. The NDP says constituency associations should appoint their own agents and that the present bill is a move away from participatory democracy.

Before the House rose for the night, members were into another set of amendments—three that would require election funds to come from Canadian sources only.

Frank Howard (NDP—Skeena) said these would stop foreign-based labor unions and corporations from making political contributions.

"Canadians should run Canada, both in the domestic and industrial sense, and in the political sense as well," he said.

New Democrat Leader Davie Lewis has said campaign contributions by large multi-national corporations results in "an inevitable close relationship that affects the Liberal and Conservatives parties, which, he says, depend on this income.

The bill is the first comprehensive attack on increasingly-rampant election spending and fund raising. In the October, 1972, general election the Liberals raised a record $6.5 million, the Conservatives $3.93 million and the NDP $365,918.

Auditor-general's Report Smaller and Comes Earlier

OTTAWA (CP) — The government's new spending watchdog appears to have saved both time and paper in preparing his first annual report.

Tabled in the Commons Tuesday Auditor-General J. J. Macdonell's 1972-73 report came out about six months earlier than recent reports and weighed in at 144 pages, compared with 396 pages for last year's document.

Eliminated from the new auditor-general's report are reports of Crown corporations and the sometimes stinging comments included by Maxwell Henderson, his predecessor.

The lack of editorial comment on government waste during the fiscal year ended March 31 was not unexpected. When appointed last spring, Mr. Macdonell made it clear he would not seek a confrontation with the government.

However, the new report is studded with examples of wasteful spending and concentrates on spending authorizations and procedures.

Its review of expenditures ranges from horror stories on the Local Initiatives Program (L.I.P.) and Opportunities for Youth (OFY) projects to almost comical tales on the armed forces inventory and a futile attempt to assemble fuses.

Some examples of waste cited in the report are almost comical despite their expense.

A computer study of $28,000 armed forces items, valued at $307 million, showed that $74,000 of them, worth $300 million, appear to be in excess of requirements.

About 50 per cent of the items showed "practically no usage in the past two years." Among these were 10,085 divine services books, 32,379 No. 4 bayonets, 153,478 metal screw posts and 1,757 bow hooks.

The report also describes an unsuccessful attempt by a Crown corporation to assemble 20,000 fuses for the defence department at a cost of $1.8 million.

Canadian Arsenals Ltd. tried from April, 1970, to May, 1972, to assemble fuses of acceptable quality but "failures, characterized by early bursts and duds, continued despite the application of engineering and scientific expertise."

The defence department terminated the contract in May, 1972, and a defence study later that year said because the company's engineering capability had declined and forces requirements diminished, future requirements would be purchased abroad.

Despite this, the auditor-general's report says, a decision was made last July to store the material for three years at a cost of $14,000 even though it deteriorates with time.

The fuses episode concludes: "As there is no apparent intention of resuming assembly of the fuses, the $1,824,000 charged to national defence appropriations for the program must be considered non-productive."

Nottingham Refuses To Build More Roads

NOTTINGHAM, England (CP) — Nottingham, a picturesque, city in the heart of England, recently woke up to the dangers of building more roads to cope with increased traffic flow.

The university city of 300,000 has abandoned its road-building and improvements program, which would have cost more than $250 million, and imposed large-scale restrictions on private motorists while improving its public transport system.

The idea is "to obtain the maximum freedom of movement for everyone that is compatible with a civilized way of life," explains the city's transport policy.

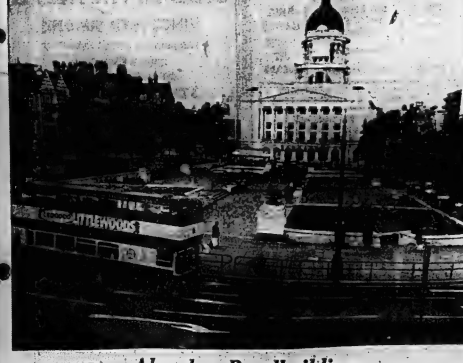
Nottingham is not the first city in Britain to reduce facilities for the private motorist. Norwich, with a population of only 130,000, reached a similar decision in 1967. But in Norwich's case, as the country's largest historic town, the reduction of roads and private cars was made to save the ancient architecture from being slowly destroyed.

Dominated by its castle, which crowns the top of a hill overlooking the River Trent, Nottingham also has many claims to fame. It has long associations with some of the most popular heroes in British folklore, Robin Hood and his Merry Men. But it is also a city noted for its industries: the stocking machine was invented in Nottingham in 1589 by a local clergyman, William Lee, and in 1709 Richard Arkwright built his first spinning mill here. Today lace-making and hosiery still are carried on, though they have been replaced in importance by the new industries of pharmaceuticals, cigarettes and bicycles.

In 1963 the city made a detailed examination of its traffic problems and came to the conclusion that, with the increased number of vehicles forecast by the end of the century, a major program of new roads would be required to reduce danger to pedestrians and the delay, noise, fumes and frustration caused by the inefficiency of the existing network. It was this program, to be carried out over perhaps 30 or 40 years, that would have cost more than $250 million.

The realization that the freedom of movement provided by the motor car is a mixed blessing prompted Nottingham to reconsider, when it saw the effect on the environment in other cities. More cars need more roads and more roads attract even more cars. In the end no one wins and everyone loses.

Instead it has decided to improve the public transport system by increasing the frequency of buses at peak periods, by providing a special free bus service linking car parks and bus stations with the shopping centre, by banning all through traffic other than buses and emergency vehicles in the city centre and by banning almost all on-street parking and reducing the amount of off-street parking as well.



All these measures are designed to deter the car-borne commuter while making adequate provision for the shoppers and visiting businessmen who come by car. This has been done by adjusting the parking regulations and prices so as to provide space for short-term parkers and to discourage the long-term commuter who wishes to park in the central area.

In the long term Nottinghash hopes to introduce a system of traffic management that will ensure public transport and commercial vehicles find freely while private cars are restricted.

Research is being carried out jointly with the government's department of the environment to create a system of traffic "collars" around the central area. These will be sets of lights to regulate the flow of two separate streams of traffic, one of which will be buses and commercial vehicles, the private cars.

The intention is that public transport will be given as few restrictions as possible but private cars will be faced with a long wait.

Finally, to improve conditions for the pedestrian shopping areas in the centre of the city are being made completely or partially traffic-free.

Abandon Roadbuilding

Bus dominates the scene at the city centre in Nottingham, England. Whole City Protested Kidnapping

BOMBAY (CP) — The kidnapping of a college girl has led to a major shakeup in the police department of India's largest city.

The crime also sparked a spectacular public campaign forcing the production of innocent citizens from criminal gangs and their socalled "patrons" in the administration.

When 20-year-old Lata Gupta left her home in Meerut City in Uttar Pradesh seventeen days ago to fetch milk from a dairy, little did she know that she would hit the headlines all over India.

Lata did not return home with the milk bottles. A yellow Fiat blocked her way a few yards from her home and four armed men whisked her away.

The kidnapping threw Meerut City into turmoil. As a college beauty and the daughter of Ram Gupta, a distinguished educationist, she was well-known. Within hours of the kidnapping, thousands of citizens were converging on police headquarters to demand her recovery.

Subhash Kirpekar, a veteran newspaper columnist, wrote: "Never before has an entire city rallied in support of a distressed father."

Another columnist, Sitaram Gupta, wrote: "Human witnessing is a spontaneous people's movement in defence of an innocent girl's honor."

For several days Meerut — in fact, the whole of Uttar Pradesh province—was in ferment. There were hundreds of peaceful street demonstrations demanding vigorous police action against criminal elements.

The city observed a day's general strike which was described by newspapers as complete. Thousands of housewives did not cook for the day as a sign of protest.

The fact that two of the kidnappers were sons of a former police official gave rise to rumors that the police department was shielding the kidnappers.

Prime Minister Indira Gandhi ordered two senior federal officials to investigate the case. This was the first time that the country's chief executive took such deep personal interest in a crime of this kind.

Earlier, thousands of Meerut women paraded the streets carrying giant portraits of Mrs. Gandhi and shouting "We Want A New Police Chief."

After a nationwide search Lata was located in the town of Ludhiana in Punjab province and restored to her parents.

While her kidnappers awaited their trial, drastic changes were made in the police department of Uttar Pradesh.

Collusion between a section of police officials and criminal gangs was alleged in several newspapers.

"The whole episode shows what ordinary citizens can achieve when they unite in common action," says Savitri Gupta, a member of the Uttar Pradesh Socialist party.

Referring to the transfer of several senior police officials following the kidnapping, she said: "The average Indian is afraid of the police. Meerut has shown that even the police can be made to respect public opinion."

Palace-watchers Focus On Charles' Romances

LONDON (CP) — The life and loves of the Royal Family are being put under the microscope following a year in which the country basked in its first royal wedding for a decade. Inevitably, palace-watchers there are focusing avidly on Prince Charles and rumors are likely to continue flying about his future bride.

Princess Anne had scarcely taken off on her honeymoon as Mrs. Mark Phillips before the popular papers were splashing front-page photographs of the 25-year-old heir to the throne holidaying in Spain on the Duke of Wellington's estate and speculating much of his time with the duke's 22-year-old daughter, dark-haired Lady Jane Wellesley.

The Sun claimed engagement plans had already been discussed—though it did not specify by whom. The massed circulation Sunday newspaper News of the World proposed an announcement in the new year.

The predictable denials from both sides cut little ice with gossip-writers who recalled precisely the same kind of denials were made for months before Princess Anne's well-kept secret burst upon the world last May.

Then, it transpired, Anne and her cavalry officer had been dating since early in the year, snatching weekends with discreet friends in the horsey world in which they both moved. The engagement announcement came only two months after Anne snappily reprimanded a girl reporter: "There is no romance and no time even for these rumors of a romance."

Later, palace spokesmen hilariously explained it was only after that firm denial that the couple decided to marry.

This time, however, palace observers seem under no announcement is imminent on Prince Charles' romance. But one thing, Charles, now a lieutenant in the Royal Navy, leaves Jan. 4 for a four-month spell of duty abroad in the Far East fleet.

Palace observers think it likely Charles will renew friendship with Lady Jane has any special significance—he was supposedly fond of Lucia Santa Cruz, daughter of a former Chilean ambassador to London, but she became engaged in 1973. However, no one is placing any long-term bets after the ups and downs of the Anne and Mark saga.

The glamorous, military-style royal wedding Nov. 14 provided Britain, teetering on the brink of yet another economic crisis compounded by labor and energy problems, with a rare chance to let rip on a last brilliant fling before a gloomy winter round of strikes, power cuts, and shortages. More than 500 million around the world are said to have tuned in to the Australian splendor of it all—the first British royal wedding to be televised in color.

It was a widely popular match, the Queen's only daughter and the handsome Olympic equestrian (seen on posters in every British family. Capt. Phillips was given no last-minute title as more traditionalists had expected, but this still may happen before the birth of their first child—otherwise the newborn's grandchild would be untitled, for the first time in history.

Charles's choice of bride will inevitably be more restricted because she will one day be Queen Consort—Anne is only fourth in line to the throne. The band of eligible princesses in Europe is small, however, and he has said he likes "English rose" girls.

His wedding, unlike Anne's, would undoubtedly be a full-blown state occasion and an event of profound importance to the future of the British monarchy.

After their Caribbean honeymoon, family Christmas and official visit to Australia and New Zealand with the Queen and Prince Philip in the new year, Anne and Mark will settle to army married life in a roomy 18th-century house near Sandhurst Military Academy, where Mark becomes an instructor in February.

The royal tour down under, where Prince Philip opens the Commonwealth Games in Christchurch, N.Z., Jan. 24, will be the Queen's second visit in just over two years. She had a long-standing engagement to open the monolithic Sydney Opera House in November, shortly before the daughter's wedding in Westminster Abbey.

The tour takes in a voyage around some of Britain's remaining island possessions in the South Pacific before the Queen and Prince Philip pay a state visit to Indonesia in mid-March.

The double Australian visit echoes the pattern of the Queen's unprecedented two trips to Canada in 1973, when a long-standing invitation to tour southern Ontario and grace the RCMP centennial celebrations was followed in a few weeks by a short visit to preside at the Commonwealth Heads of Government meeting in Ottawa.

Hospital Listens To Inmates

HAMILTON (CP) — When you're feeding 700 people a day, it can be quite a job looking after little details like keeping sandwich lettuce crisp.

But when someone insists that his sandwich lettuce be wilted, it's simple to put it in an oven for a couple of minutes.

It's the little touches like this that can make a difference between a contented or a complaining patient in hospital, says Gordon Gunwell, administrative assistant at Henderson Hospital.

And that's why he spends about half his work week making sure patients have a chance to air their complaints and seeing that something is done about them.

He doesn't see all the patients — nurses, visitors and treatments often coincide with his visits.

But each patient is asked when leaving to fill out a form listing any complaint or comment.

On a typical morning, more than half the forms had complimentary comments about the nurses and the general care. Several were blank and two had complaints—one person wanted softer pillows and the other wanted better food.

"Most seem to be happy, considered lot," Mr. Gunwell said. "Food isn't a major complaint — once in a while the tea or coffee isn't as hot as they'd like it, or the toast is cold. I guess when you're serving 700 people at a meal that's bound to happen sometimes."

He tries to encourage people to tell the head nurse about things they would like changed. Frequently patients will tell him they didn't mention it to staff because everyone was so busy they didn't want to bother anyone.

But patients are quick to tell him on his return visits that a problem has been corrected. Even if it's to mention that the lettuce is nicely wilted now, thank you.

Her First Script Hit Jackpot

NEW YORK(AP) — Suzanne Clauser is a bright, articulate housewife from Ohio who did an amazing thing nine years ago. She sold the first television script she'd ever written to NBC's Bonanza series.

This is akin to bowling a 300 game, hitting the Irish Sweepstakes or drawing a royal straight flush in poker. TV producers rarely accept, let alone open, scripts sent by new, unknown writers.

Mrs. Clauser got in the TV game when she read in a writers' magazine that a Bonanza producer was looking for scripts written by non-Hollywood types.

"It wasn't really true, but he was quoted as saying it," says Mrs. Clauser, who lives with her husband, Charles, an anthropologist employed by the Air Force, in Yellow Springs near Dayton.

She estimates she's sold 25 TV scripts since her first. The count includes her first made-for-TV movie, Pioneer Woman, an Old West story ABC-TV is airing Wednesday at 8:30 p.m. EST.

Mrs. Clauser said her first attempt at a script for the Bonanza series was based on Shakespeare's The Taming of the Shrew. She was enrolled at the time in a mass communications course taught by veteran TV author Rod Serling, who liked her script and had his agent submit it.

Bonanza producers turned it down partly because the script wasn't in correct TV form and partly because it seemed too off-beat, so she went back to the writing board to toil on her Shrew script.

"I decided that although Bonanza didn't want it, I wasn't going to quit until I learned if there was an agent who'd represent me," she said. "And I used Rod's agent.

"I sent him the 'Taming of the Shrew' script as a sample of what I can do . . . and without telling me they submitted it again."

This time it sold, and she was in the TV writing business.

Despite her relative success, she still works at home in Yellow Springs. She concedes she probably would sell more scripts if she lived in Hollywood, but says she has no itch to move there.

"First of all, I love where we are," she said. "And I am very much married, and my husband's work is his work.

"If I went out there as a writer and made it at all, he'd be an adjunct to me, and I wouldn't like that at all—for him or me."

Stalin 'Opera' Runs 14 Hours

NEW YOK (AP) — When the giant Frog leaped upon the table where Joseph Stalin sat and pounced from a hidden trampoline to the stage, a woman protzrie beneath her seat rose to see what was going on.

It was 4:30 a.m. Saturday and the middle of Act IV of Robert Wilson's The Life and Times of Joseph Stalin, an "opera," at the Brooklyn Academy of Music.

The woman had been sleeping, like others in the audience which numbered some 500 at 7:30 p.m. Friday when the spectacle began.

Some of the 104 diehards never woke up for the finale, nearly 14 hours later at 8:45 a.m.

Wilson says the lengthy work explores a critical moment in Stalin's life—the death of his first wife.

"I can't figure out what R's all about because I have to stand out here by the doors," usher Miguel Chivite of Brooklyn said at 3:30 a.m. Saturday during one of six intermissions. "I see some beautiful scenes, but every time I walk back in, nothing has happened. R's still the same."

The cast of characters was 125. In addition to Stalin and his red-haired wife, they included: Marie Antoinette, Queen Victoria, Sigmund Freud and his wife Anna, the Frog and other assorted animals, including 32 dancing ostriches. A goat, a dog and a sheep, all live, appeared briefly.

LOS ANGELES (Reuter) — Film director Sam Peckinpah filed suit in the United States Superior Court Tuesday, claiming Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer spoiled his latest film.

He asked for his name to be taken off the film and $3 million damages for the recutting of Pat Garrett and Billy The Kid.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Actor Chuck Connors, returning from a film-making tour of the Soviet Union, said Tuesday Communist party leader Leonid Brezhnev had remarked he looked forward to meeting with President Nixon in 1974 and 1975.

"Mr. Brezhnev said he obviously wasn't going to interfere with our internal matters," Connors told a news conference. "But he indicated that he planned future meetings to further the detente with Mr. Nixon."

Connors added that Brezhnev said future historians "would call these meetings highly significant in forming the structure of peace."

Connors' friendship with Brezhnev began June 24 at Nixon's San Clemente estate when he was among the celebrities at a reception for the Soviet leader. Brezhnev recognized the cowboy actor, and the rangy Connors lifted Brezhnev in a bear hug.

The actor told he had a 45-minute conversation with Brezhnev while in Russia to film a television special.

Active Man, 90, Has Bad Odor

By G. C. THOSTESON, MD.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: My father-in-law is 90. Very active, walks two to three miles a day, weighs from 130 to 134, has a good appetite, eats anything and everything. Never sick except for a little sinus trouble and a little arthritis.

The problem: He has an offensive body odor, not the ordinary B.O. The odor gets into his clothes, bed clothes and is noticeable even in his room.

My wife and I insist that he take at least two or more baths each week even though he thinks one is enough. We also make him use a deodorant.

His room is aired each day to lessen the odor, but it has been in the room a few minutes the odor returns.

I have heard that older people have an offensive. odor; however, I have been around several who did not have it. Have you any suggestions to help me?

Some old folks develop unpleasant odors; some don't. So it isn't just a matter of age.

The two or more baths every week would lead me to suspect that the problem won't wash out with soap and water. But exactly what the trouble is—well, best I can do is to suggest some of the things which have been found to be culprits in some cases.

Sometimes some drainage or seepage from bowel or bladder is responsible. Or a local disorder such as a fistula or hemorrhoids may be involved. Some degree of urinary incontinence, dribbling small amounts of urine, might be suspected.

Some skin conditions, and I am thinking primarily of fungus infections, have to be considered. Bacterial infections are a possibility, too.

And what about dental hygiene, or nose or sinus conditions? They can cause quite an odor at times, and you mention that he has a little sinus trouble." Worth investigating.

Decreased saliva production or inadequate fluid intake, both of which are more likely in an old person, might contribute. And what about diet, or medications, if he takes any? Even vitamins in some instances can produce odor.

But how to find out which of these possibilities, or what combination of them may be at work in this case. Since you would need a doctor to identify most of them (and to treat them), my suggestion is to arrange for this spry old gentleman to have a complete physical examination.

It would be a reasonable suggestion. At his age. But the tip of the doctor privately in advance that the odor is a problem.

Dear Sir: Please tell me what might cause black bowel movements. I don't have any cramps and no constipation. Just like that.

Too much iron medication sometimes can cause this dark stool; so can a few foods. But when the condition continues, the major risk is that it may be a sign of bleeding in the upper digestive tract. You should report it to your doctor at once. A laboratory test will show whether it is blood or something else.

Today's hand illustrates both luck in duplicate and the modern expert use of the grand slam force.

North is really excited when he hears his partner's forcing two spade opening bid. Then he just raises to three with every intention of taking strong action later. Then South jumps he bids no-trump and North can't figure what is going on. He has all he has shown plus at least one ace and his partner is trying for a grand slam.

North's first thought is just to bid seven spades. Then he stops to think that there are times when his partner must hold either seven spades and six hearts or six and each suit plus the ace of clubs. He really needed that for his grand slam force.

The modernists respond to a grand slam force by bidding seven with two of the three top honors and otherwise showing their trump strength by various gradations. North decides that his trumps are a trifle too good for a mere six club bid and bids six diamonds. South studies a while and decides to settle for just six spades.

Where does duplicate luck come into the picture? Because seven spades is a reasonable contract, it makes against almost all even or nearly even breaks. It loses to two major suits but it just doesn't happen to wheel in this time. Scores are paid off but the unscientific bidders who went down at seven are entitled to mild complaints.

CARD Sense

The bidding has been:

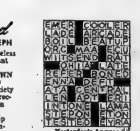
West	North	East	South
	1♠	Pass	1♣
Pass	2♠	Pass	4♦
Pass	4♥	Pass	?

You, South, hold:
♠ A J 8 5 2 ♥ A Q 10 8 5 ♦ K 4 3 ♣ K 4

What do you do now?

A — Bid four suitcases. Your partner has shown decided signs of life and you can afford to ask for aces.

TODAY'S QUESTION



You do bid four notrump and your partner bids five spades to show two aces. What do you do now?

If you were born anywhere from October 23 through November 21, you were born under the sign of Scorpio, the Scorpion: A November 22 — December 22 birthday puts you under the sign of Sagittarius, the Archer.

Some people are guided in many of their daily activities by what their horoscope tells them. Astrology has a lot of followers.

The stars may or may not be favorable to your driving this time of year, but weather conditions can be extremely unfavorable. More hours of darkness and early winter slick spots combine to provide you with some extra driving headaches.

Here's a tip that ou'ght to be in every driver's horoscope regardless of what sign he was born under. Now is the time to make sure your vehicle is in the best possible condition for safe driving and for more darkness driving.

A New York firm is making a system that allows motorists to alert following drivers to possible dangers. Flipping a switch on the dashboard activates a lighted sign mounted on the back window ledge. The sign flashes "Dim Lights" or "Stop Tailgating", or — in case of emergency — "SOS".

Ian an effort to keep the streets of London, England, clear of illegally parked cars, the city's metropolitan police has unveiled a bizarre new weapon. A truck equipped with a lifting crane literally picks up the car, deposits it on a flatbed, and drives off with it to a police lot in three minutes flat. The vehicle — named the "-wagon because of the shape of its lifting gear — is designed to handle all sizes of cars. Breaking into the car to release steering column locks is unnecessary, the police say. A number of cities — including Philadelphia, Dublin, Paris and Tokyo — have sent inquiries to Scotland Yard's J. L. Breese, who though up the idea.

It isn't the car that begins to whine, when forced to stop for an old stop sign — It's the driver!

It isn't the car that takes a drink, then quickly loses its power to think — It's the driver!

It isn't the car that fails to heed the dangers of reckless, unwarranted speed — It's the driver!

It isn't the car that steps on the gas and causes an accident, trying to pass — It's the driver!

A car may be bent and twisted awry, but it isn't the car that will have to die — It's the driver!

THE STRANGE VOYAGE OF DONALD CROWHURST — Nicholas Tomalin and Ron Hall.

This is indeed a sad story, but one of deep human interest. We all know how Crowhurst, ill-prepared and in an ill-found tri-maren, embarked on the Golden Globe race around the world and was lost in the Atlantic. Afterwards it was found that he had never left the ocean at all. In this compassionate and detailed chronicle, we come to understand the man and how the pressures of a task too huge for his capacity imprisoned him in a web from which only death could extricate him.

CROSS COUNTRY SKIING — Hans Brunner and Alois Kaljin.

Cross-country skiing is gaining in popularity in Canada as more people are discovering the advantages of this winter sport — its enjoyment and exercise value along with the low cost of equipment compared to the increasing expenses of downhill skiing. In this excellent book, illustrated throughout with sequential drawings and photographs, the skiing enthusiast is offered a sound introduction to the world of cross-country skiing.

SURVIVE THE SAVAGE SEA — Dougal Robertson.

Mr. Robertson, his wife, three sons and a young Canadian student were on a leisurely cruise around the world in a small schooner, when killer whales attacked the boat and it sank within 60 seconds. The family lived for 38 days first in a rubber raft, then in the 9 ft. dinghy, living off turtles and fish. The author tells this amazing story of improvisation and courage with straightforward yet sensitive clarity and, reading it, one can only marvel at the resilience of the human animal.

FRIEDA LAWRENCE — Robert Lucas.

Only a woman fully endowed with the life force could possibly have survived being married to D. H. Lawrence; and life force is what Frieda Lawrence possessed in abundance. From her high-brow German youth, through her unsatisfactory marriage to a frigid English professor, her several fleeting affairs and finally her headlong passion and elopement with the lanky, penniless young writer. Their marriage was a cataclysmic one of rapture and rages. Frieda triumphantly survived Lawrence's death, lived with and then married an Italian much younger than herself, and became the high priestess of Lawrence's tomb in Mexico.

GOD BLESS OUR HOME — Una Abrahamson.

A story of domestic life in nineteenth century Canada — made up of excerpts from early housekeeping books, advertisements, letters and poetry, games, etc. It is enlightening, amusing and very readable.

ALDOUS HUXLEY Volume II: 1894-1939. — Sybille Bedford.

Aldous Huxley's enquiring mind and marvelous intelligence led him into many and diverse fields of thought. His works are translated and studied throughout the world. In writing his biography, Sybille Bedford, a friend of some thirty years, gives shape to the development of a life that for all its extraordinary quality, had its share of ups and downs. As a girl, she lived for long periods in his household — so the details of his life are familiar to her at first hand. His friends were frequently her friends. It is an interesting study of a brilliant man.

OYSTERS CAUSE FLOOD

MIAMI BEACH, Wash. (AP) — The oyster harvest in this tiny island community is down the drain and causing a flood of protests. Kitsap County Commissioner Gene Lobe says oysters growing in a drainage pipe are blocking storm drains on a small road near here, creating some flooding in the area.

School Accord Report Heard

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario legislature resumed sitting today amid reports that Premier William Davis and the Ontario Teachers' Federation reached a compromise agreement Wednesday night to forestall resignations of about 7,000 teachers Dec. 31.

The reports, published in Toronto newspapers, were that Mr. Davis had agreed to recess the legislature without passing controversial Bill 274. The Bill would nullify the resignations and impose compulsory arbitration if settlements in 18 school jurisdictions are not reached by Dec. 31.

Neither Premier Davis nor officials of the federation were available for comment.

In return, the reports say, representatives of the teachers agreed to ask their members to postpone the resignations until Jan. 31 and try to reach contract settlements before then.

The reports were that the premier and a teachers' delegation of six led by President Geoff Wilkinson of the Ontario Teachers' Federation met at the premier's invitation in a downtown hotel room where the compromise was reached.

A spokesman in Mr. Davis's office said the premier would say only "not at this time", when asked whether a statement of a compromise would be forthcoming today.

Stephen Lewis, New Democratic Party leader, and James Breithaupt, Liberal house leader, asked questions in the legislature about the report that a compromise announcement would be made today.

Eric Winkler, government house leader, said that to his knowledge there would be no statement "at this moment." He declined to elaborate.

Electricity Cut Off, Candle Kills Family

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP) — A young mother whose electricity was cut off for nonpayment of a bill, died with her five retarded children Wednesday when a candle tipped over and set fire to their apartment.

Ben Wicks

"Would it help if I got a job?"

Police said they are unable to locate Mrs. Forest's husband who lived at a different address.

Police said Elizabeth Forest, 23, and her children, who ranged in age from 3 to 8, apparently were asleep when the early morning fire engulfed their apartment on the second floor of a two-storey wood frame house.

Eight other relatives living in a first-floor apartment escaped unharmed.

The six bodies were found huddled beneath a bed.

Estie Mae Walker, the children's grandmother, told authorities that the children were retarded from birth and one was unable to speak.

A spokesman for Orlando Utilities said electric service to the Forest apartment had been stopped Tuesday because of a $39.11 overdue bill.

The children were identified as Irene, 8; Cathy, 7; Little Mae, 6; Lorrine, 4, and Michael 3.

View from Past

College Street Public School students at Trenton got a peek into the past Wednesday, celebrating their school's 100th year of teaching. Carswell, the oldest living ex-principal of the school. For story, see Page 3.

Guerrilla Chief Wants To Try Arab Terrorists

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Palestinian guerrilla leader Yasir Arafat is asking Kuwait to hand over the five Arab gunmen who killed 32 persons at the Rome and Athens airports Monday so they can "stand trial before a Palestinian revolutionary court," the pro-guerrilla newspaper Al Moharrer reported today.

The paper said Arafat has instructed the Kuwait office of his Palestine Liberation Organization (PLO) to ask for the extradition of the gunmen, who flew to the Persian Gulf sheikdom in a hijacked West German airliner and surrendered Tuesday.

The Palestinian news agency WAFA reported that the PLO has asked the Kuwaiti government to allow its representatives to participate in the interrogation of the five terrorists.

"PLO will also demand that the gunmen be turned over to the guerrilla leadership after the interrogation is over so that a proper punishment be meted out on them," WAFA said.

The gunmen killed 30 persons in a fireboomb attack on a Pan American jetliner at the Rome airport and shot an Italian policeman to death there. After the hijacked Lufthansa plane landed in Athens, they killed an Italian hostage aboard the airliner.

They were refused permission to land in several Arab capitals, and Arab leaders have been unanimous in condemning them.

The plane landed at Kuwait despite refusal of permission and the blocking of runways there with automobiles. The plane smashed through parked jeeps when it touched down.

The gunmen were taken to army installation for interrogation.

Five Ships Hunting in Vain For Survivors from Vessel

VICTORIA (CP) — While a Canadian Forces Argus aircraft circled overhead, five ships criss-crossed a rain-drenched area of the North Pacific today in the ever-diminishing hope that a survivor of the sinking of the freighter Oriental Monarch would be found.

The Liberian-registered freighter sank early Wednesday, buffeted by high waves and swept with gale-force winds, less than nine hours after reporting that she was taking water in her engine room.

"There is nothing to indicate hope" of finding any of the 40 crew members of the 10,651-ton vessel, a search and rescue spokesman said.

The search area 550 miles west of Victoria was being lashed with heavy rain. A fog had rolled in and visibility was down to about half a mile early today.

And adding to the pessimism of the searchers were the weather conditions when the Oriental Monarch went down.

"It's one thing to launch a boat into 30-foot waves, but it's another thing to get into the boats," said a rescue spokesman, explaining why five lifeboats and two life rafts launched after the sinking all were empty.

"The crew in the Argus reported Wednesday morning that the waves were breaking over the lifeboats. So anyone inside them would be soaked and cold in no time at all.

"And the waiter is so cold that anyone swimming in it wouldn't be able to hold out for very long."

Franco's Friend Assassinated

Madrid Bomb Kills Premier

MADRID (AP) — Admiral Luis Carrero Blanco, Spain's premier and Gen. Francisco Franco's closest associate, was killed today when an explosion blew his car 30 feet into the air. A high-ranking police source said the 70-year-old premier was assassinated, but five hours after the explosion the official police report did not give the cause of the blast.

The premier's chauffeur and a bodyguard also were reported killed.

A spokesman said there had been an odor of natural gas at the scene of the explosion, outside Carrero Blanco's apartment house.

The spokesman said city engineers were trying to determine the cause of the blast.

Informed sources speculated the premier was killed by a bomb planted in protest against the trial of 10 labor organizers, which began today.

Franco immediately called the cabinet into emergency session.

Torcuato Fernandez Miranda, the vice-premier, automatically became premier.

Carrero was killed 24 hours after he conferred with U.S. State Secretary Henry Kissinger during the American cabinet member's visit to Madrid to discuss the United States bases in Spain.

One witness said the explosion damaged about 15 other cars.

Another report said the premier was on his way to mass; the sources said the premier lived on the nearby street and was known to drive each morning along Claudio Coello.

A witness close to the site of the blast said he saw parts of a car fly into the air over the roof of a five-storey building and fall into the courtyard of a nearby monastery.

Sources said an extensive investigation began to determine whether the explosion was an accident or a plot. They said the government would immediately take strict security precautions all over the country.

The trial of the 10 government opponents was suspended shortly after mid-day. At first it was announced that the trial would be open to the public, but several thousand persons including hundreds of journalists and lawyers, queueing up outside were not allowed into the court room.

The 10 on trial, including a Catholic priest, are accused of trying to organize a clandestine campaign for more pay and better working conditions for Spanish workers.

They were arrested June 24 last year in a Madrid church and the public prosecutor at their trial has demanded prison terms ranging from 12 to 20 years.

But the defence says that what is really at issue is the internationally-recognized right to free trade unions and free assembly.

Clandestine groups linked with the workers movement had called for popular demonstrations today to coincide with the opening of the trial. Housewives have been urged to boycott shops, students to stage protests at universities and factory workers to hold stop-floor stoppages.

Meir Says Parley To Be Short

GENEVA (CP) — Despite a Soviet-Egyptian statement that they are prepared for long negotiations immediately in the Middle East peace talks here, it appears the opening phase will be short.

Israeli Premier Golda Meir told parliament in Jerusalem today that the opening stages will last only two days and will not deal with the separation of Egyptian and Israeli forces on the Suez canal front.

She said the first session, beginning Friday, would deal with procedures which would "influence the entire course of the conference."

The disengagement issue, she told a packed session of the Knesset, would "almost certainly" be the first matter discussed by the peace delegates when they meet again in January.

By then, she said, Israel would have a new government to set its peace policy. Israel's general elections will be held Dec. 31.

Tommy Hunter Won't Make Cairo Visit

CAIRO (CP) — The hopes of some 1,000 Canadian peacekeeping forces in the Middle East for a real, live touch of home at Christmas were dashed Wednesday.

Tentative plans to bring a Canadian entertainment troupe to Cairo on Christmas Eve were cancelled, Forces information officer Maj. Dennis Ryan said there was no explanation.

"Many of the men are sure to be disappointed," he said.

The troupe, headed by singer Tommy Hunter and including 23 other performers, was to have flown briefly to Cairo as an addition to a tour of Canadian bases in West Germany and Cyprus.

Reeve Questions Realtor Appointment to Planning

PICTON — Wellington reeve Robert Boyce has questioned the appointment of a real estate agent to the Prince Edward County planning board.

At a county council meeting this week reeve Boyce objected to the appointment of George Vincent, of Saltwaven Real Estate, Picton. He stressed that he was not personally opposed to Mr. Vincent but did not agree that realtors should serve on the board.

He observed that the planning board is "quite influential" and added that there should not be "too many realtors" appointed to it.

Sophiasburgh reeve George Foster pointed out that Mr. Vincent's appointment was forwarded from Hallowell township council to county council for endorsement. The decision to select him rested with his municipality, not county council.

County warden Russell Thompson added: "That is their choice, in their wisdom."

Council then passed a by-law appointing George Vincent of Bloomfield, Jack Wells, reeve of North Marysburgh and McCrae Dunford, of Consecon to the planning board. Mr. Vincent, former reeve of Hallowell township was appointed for a three-year term.

New Councillor Named To Trenton Vacancy

TRENTON — Bob Wennemaker, a business accountant, has accepted appointment as town councillor, following Dr. Bob Patrick's decision to act as mayor of Trenton.

The changes follow Duncan McDonald's resignation. Mr. Wennemaker ran for council in the last election and, when votes were counted, polled seventh. With Dr. Patrick's seat empty he was invited to run for council, as next candidate in line.

He said during a telephone interview that he was not completely up on current local issues and that he was working with town clerk O.W. Larry getting background information.

"I'm very interested in watching the purse strings for the taxpayer," added the new councillor.

The subway on Sidney St. was a vital issue for Mr. Wennemaker during the election campaign and he says he is still eager to see the project completed.

He is a lifetime resident of Trenton, married and has five children. He works at Dunstar Packaging Ltd.

Years of Schooldays Recalled by Veteran

TRENTON — A handful of people were taken back through the twentieth century Wednesday, as audience to reminiscences of a school principal who has watched College Street School grow.

W.F. Carswell was principal of Union Street School before it was torn down to make way for College Street School. Both celebrated a combined century of learning Wednesday.

Mr. Carswell talked of the poor sanitary conditions of the former school and heating systems. He talked delicately of cast iron washroom seats — cold enough in the summer, let alone winter.

"It makes me feel somewhat ancient talking about the school," he said.

Mr. Carswell and an assortment of civic officials and Hastings county board of education representatives were on hand most of the afternoon to watch the Christmas pageant arranged by pupils, followed by the brief centennial ceremony.

The school centennial was discovered by accident when school staff were hanging through records.

Teachers have spent much time over recent weeks talking with students about Centennial and what it means, as a combined centennial - Christmas theme, classes investigated what Christmas looked like 100 years ago. Staff attended Wednesday classes in period clothing.

A kindergarten teacher said her class "sort of knew what 100 years ago meant."

"Back when they had dinosaurs."

Hair could be even a little longer here next year.

The reason: Ab M. Jones, one of the village's two barbers best decided to retire after 45 years in business.

Because of expansion of the building housing his barbershop, Mr. Jones has been given notice to vacate. For this — and health reasons — he has decided to retire.

Born and educated in Northport he learned barbering at a Toronto trade school, served a two-year apprenticeship back in Norwood, then started seeking his own business.

In 1928 he was asked by a friend to fill in for a barber here who wanted time off for hunting. The man came back — and gave his notice. The owner of the pool-room-barbershop, Alphonse Shannon, asked Mr. Jones to fill the vacancy — launching his long association with the community.

Some 12 years later Mr. Jones set up his own shop and in 1956 moved to his present location.

In all those 45 years he says he hasn't taken more than three days off at any one time. He enjoys his work and the contact it permits with people.

Yet, he doesn't particularly recommend the trade as a modern career. Long hair has hit the business hard in recent years. Even barbers who have taken styling courses have found it difficult to make a living, says Mr. Jones.

He believes short hair will make a comeback — but it may take a while.

His wife is a local librarian and will likely be appointed by the new Marmora-Deloro-Lake Union library board. The couple have one daughter, Cathy, who works in Peterborough.

Province Pays Cost Share

PICTON— Prince Edward County has received a cheque for $170,000 from the provincial government as first instalment on its share of new county home for the aged-costs.

The cheque was presented by James Taylor, MPP Prince Edward-Lennox on behalf of Social Services Minister ene Brunelle.

What Was Left

It's now been reported that Wellington Arena, gutted by fire Tuesday, will be torn down and rebuilt. Until it's destruction, here viewed by arena worker Foster Bailey, it was one of Prince Edward's oldest recreation centres dating from 1932.

Picton Man Is Top Horseman At Kingston's Frontenac Downs

PICTON — A former Picton man, Chris Storms, has been named horseman of the year at Frontenac Downs.

The 21-year-old harness racing driver in the Kingston track's top money-winner for the season and high percentage driver. He is also top dash winner.

Chris won 87 races this year and finished the season with a percentage of .382, the best record ever held by a driver at Frontenac Downs.

Competition for this ace driver may be in the wings, however. His younger brother Mike has obtained his driver's licence and is beginning to make a name for himself in the sulky. In one race this fall he beat his brother's entry in the drive to the wire.

Chris and Mike are the sons of Mr. and Mrs. Ted Storms of Picton.

Picton Complaint

Industry Unlucky With Incentives

PICTON— William Duggan Prince Edward's director of economic development has reported apparent difficulties among local industries applying for OBIP (Ontario Business Incentive Program) loans.

In a report to county council Mr. Duggan said that the problem in obtaining these loans had been forwarded to the Ontario Development Corporation.

The economic director noted applications were processed very slowly and Prince Edward sems to be "singularly unlucky" in its appeals for OBIP assistance.

Loans recently announced by the corporation include the sum of $225,000 to a Cornwall firm that may employ 128 people in early 1975 and $75,000 to a Sudbury company employing two persons.

Mr. Duggan suggested that the new loans program should be publicized and offered his assistance in preparation of applications.

On Land Committee

PICTON— Four Prince Edward men were appointed to the county's land division committee for three-year terms this week.

Clinton Green of Cherry Valley, Hugh Jones, Consecon, Herbert Cooper, Bloomfield and Ronald Hyatt, RR 1, Picton, will serve on the committee until Jan. 1, 1977.

Cities of Tomorrow

As Belleville awaits the final consummation of that plant of very slow growth — the official plan — it is against a background of transition in the life of cities everywhere.

Consider the year 2000 and the concept of multi-faceted cities geared to the age of leisure. Then Dr. Jean Bodmer, former head of the Urban Studies program at Dartmouth (Mass.) College and author of the recently published "Futurescapes" sees a society faced with shortening work weeks and more leisure.

It is a society in which people will take sabbaticals from their jobs to travel or go back to school or help raise their children. The retirement age will drop to 50.

Downtown North America, it seems, is becoming more and more geared to service industries, with manufacturers finding many advantages in moving to the suburbs.

Ian Simmons, who has done studies in land use in the Boston and Montreal areas, envisages what he describes in jargon fashion as Edenopolis and Fat City — shades of Alvin Toffler's Future Shock — composed of core city, a residential ring and what is described as "the zone of repose." This in effect is outer suburbia, away from it all, away from Fat City which is not nevertheless to be seen as part of the pleasure pattern of tomorrow, for leisure and recreation, or again, to use the in terminology, "the centre of ego-satisfaction on a mass commercial scale."

It is strange to realize that something of the kind was unveiled with considerable fanfare in Belleville nearly a decade ago, with talk of "magic circle" traffic routes, pedestrian walks, removal of the clutter of overhead signs and so on.

Sundry other plans saw the light of day on architects' plans, but progressed no farther.

Today we are still awaiting the official plan, now a "sometime" shoot, perhaps a development of the new year, but only after the long process of approvals as between its creators, city council and the public is completed.

Meanwhile . . . on to 1984, and beyond, if George Orwell's world of Big Brother allows, to 2000 and . . . maybe Shangri-La. But only maybe.

Land Use

As an extension of the foregoing, a recent Ottawa report on land use is significant. It said the Government is beginning to come to grips with the problem of managing use of land resources.

The report spoke of the uneven development that has taken place in Canada, with population concentrating in the cities and pointed to a growing amount of unused, Urban Affairs Minister Ron Basford, for Vancouver, for one, within 15 years, unless growth is controlled.

Mr. Basford is quoted as saying all levels of government must give serious attention to where growth is going to take place, the rate at which it can be accomplished and the pattern it is going to follow.

Agriculture Minister Eugene Whelan also sounded a useful warning on land use control in a recent address to the annual convention of the Association of Counties and Regions of Ontario. He suggested planners perhaps did not even consider farming and agriculture, or the impact of their decisions on the farming community, and noted that poor planning had driven up farm prices because of the property's value as agricultural land, thus ensuring that farm land would no longer be used for agriculture.

Yet another warning comes from Norman Pearson, political science professor at the University of Western Ontario, and a noted Tory columnist. He predicts that if current trends continue all the best farm land will be gone within 60 years. If this transpires there will be a severe food problem.

These are warnings out too that government studies are being left behind by events, with various undertakings affecting the environment being given the green light without regard for the consequences.

In the Quinte area in which farming is of prime importance planning decisions must be taken with care. The Government at all levels and planners need to give their decisions a considered scrutiny. And we must now conserve energy resources, so too must we give the same attention to that other most important resource, land, and the food which comes from it.

Top-level Deputies Earn More Than P.M.

No Salary Restraints For a Well-Heeled Bureaucracy

By RICHARD JACKSON

OTTAWA — Did you happen to spot one of those recent ads in the business papers reminding the employers that it will soon be what they call "T-4 Time"?

The "T-4," of course, being that slip the boss pops into one of your pay envelopes some happy day in the next couple of months informing you what income tax the federal and provincial governments — but mainly the feds — have ripped off your year's pay.

While it likely won't do much to cheer you at your particular "T-4 Time," you should know that some of those who are causing your tax misery—the really Big Spenders in the federal Establishment — have just been given a fine fat 30 per cent pay increase with a wave of the cabinet's magic money wand.

They are the nearly 1,000 deputy ministers, the assistant deputy ministers and the directors general who drew up the spending plans currently approaching 30 billion—for the cabinet.

It was only a few years ago that even the larger departments managed to get along with one deputy, perhaps an assistant and maybe a director or two.

But now it is really the small-time penny-pinching department if there is any such animal in the federal Government — that has not got them by the half dozen.

And not for them the special effort, the extra burst of energy and the overtime of enthusiasm calculated to increase the value of the worker and persuade the boss he is worth a few more bucks.

Nor are they ever involved in the costly siege of a strike, or the grubby violence of the picket line.

They don't even have to ask for an increase, much less bargain or negotiate.

The Government some years ago appointed a changing panel of outside business executives to study the salary scale of the public service dons from time to time, and make recommendations.

So the examination was made, the recommendation submitted, and the cabinet, which includes only three former businessmen among its members, issued the 30 per cent decree.

Salary restraints in these inflationary days is highly recommended by the Government — including the cabinet and the 1,000 advisers in the ranks of the deputies, the assistants and the directors — for the taxpayer, but definitely not for the favored federal Establishment.

The creme de la creme, eight deputy ministers at Ottawa "Treasury" from $50,000 to $60,000, which puts them well ahead of their boss, Prime Minister Trudeau.

There are nearly 100, all deputies at Levels-One, Two and Three who can go dollar for dollar with a few in many with their straw bosses, the members of the Trudeau cabinet.

Of the whole well-paid bag of them, the lowest go to $25,000, just slightly behind the Honorable Members of Parliament at $25,000 who are supposed to be calling all the Ottawa shots.

Little wonder that a deputy minister in his well-padded security could feel so smug as to sound off on his own time to his desk in the office of a visiting MP and tell him to get lost.

It happened, yes indeed it happened.

The MP had gone to the deputy's office as the court of last resort pleading a cause for his constituency. And the deputy in effect had snuffed "don't bother me, boy," reminding him that as an MP sometime or other he would be "gone with the election." Then he asked him who would still be able to stick his feet up on the desk in the face of the next Honorable Member who might drop by.

Now the $60,000 in the federal Government service ranks with executive salaries in business and industry?

"Comparable," says the federal Treasury Board, the responsible government pay-master, "neither first nor last."

But that is only one side of it.

The other side is that super-secretive country of the federal deputy who simply can't be dismissed — the very apex of public service life — the great pension, 70 per cent of salary — and the travel, the everlasting overlooking travel.

But those junkets are another story that is being looked at by parliamentarians through the Commons' Public Accounts.

If the public service aristocrats are so good, why doesn't business and industry hire them?

"Quite frankly," reports a leading corporative executive, "we're not convinced they can cut it, and let's face it, the working way of public service life is sort of leisurely, isn't it."

"I'd like to report an accident."

Sharing Commons Bench

P. C. And New Democrat Hack It Together

By KEN POLE

OTTAWA (CP) — You'd think a Conservative and a New Democrat sharing a Commons bench would be about as comfortable as an Egyptian and an Israeli sharing the same desert oasis.

Not so, say the two MPs involved, even when Conservative attempts to overthrow the government often are frustrated by NDP support for the minority Liberals.

John Wise, an Ontario Conservative, and Stuart Leggatt, a British Columbia New Democrat, found themselves in this unusual situation when the opposition ran out of space on the side of the House opposite the government.

The 107 Conservatives and 31 New Democrats elected in October, 1972, overflowed the customary space left between members from different parties.

But rather than creating problems in an opposition that is sharply divided on crucial issues such as energy, the unique seating arrangement apparently is good for both MPs.

"With some members, it might create a problem," says Mr. Wise, who represents Elgin, a mixed urban riding with about 44,000 voters living on the shores of Lake Erie. "But there has been no problem."

Mr. Leggatt, whose largely-urban New Westminster riding has 65,000 voters, agrees.

"I'm very pleased with the arrangement," he says. "We disagree strongly on a lot of issues, but the arrangement works well for the learning process."

They found out about the seating arrangement when they walked into the Commons Jan. 4 for the start of the current session.

"It was as much of a shock to him as it was to me," laughs Mr. Wise, 38, a dairy farmer who found his 43-year-old lawyer seatmate a valuable asset once the surprise had worn off.

Likewise, Mr. Leggatt feels it's a distinct asset to be able to "explore my ideas" and draw on Mr. Wise's agricultural background because "I'm not knowledgeable about farming."

"John has a good deal of experience, which has been of tremendous assistance to me. Maybe my justice areas have been as useful to him because I've practised law for a long time."

Mr. Wise does not get much ribbing from his fellow Conservatives but Mr. Leggatt, because his seat actually is in the Conservative area, has been the butt of frequent remarks.

"There was a lot of joking about it at first," says Mr. Leggatt. "When the votes are taken, we all stand in line; on my first vote, all the NDP's turned to me and said 'don't worry, on.'"

"There's always some kidding that there's too much influence going on."

But both are quick to stress that party secrets remain party property.

"There are never any party secrets shared at the desk," says Mr. Wise. "I want to make that very clear."

A problem they share is the fact that both are backbenchers, first elected in 1972. Commons Speaker Lucien Lamoureux usually gives frontbenchers and party bigwigs the nod when the daily question-period starts.

But sharing a desk sometimes attracts the Speaker's attention when he is trying to spread the questions fairly.

"He generally gets one if he gets the other," says Mr. Wise.

Camp Commission's Findings

Legislature Will Grow in Stature

By DON O'HEARN

TORONTO — The Camp commission on the legislature has made its second report and one consequence is that it bears out that before it is through the commission will have done much to increase the stature of the assembly and probably of provincial politics generally.

All the ingredients in this document, as with the first study, it towards more importance for the members and the machinery of the house.

A prime proposal, for example is that the office of the Speaker should be one of much more responsibility.

Mr. Speaker himself would be the fourth figure in the province, after the lieutenant-governor, the premier and the chief justice.

Then he would be given several new practical responsibilities. In effect he would be the administrator of the physical precincts of the legislature.

There is a very considerable operation, which now is handled by the ministry of government services.

Then members would be given better facilities and in effect more respect.

One important innovation would be that research services and a revamped library be made available to private members.

This has been something so desperately needed it has been almost ludicrous. For elected members today are expected to discuss intelligently a large number of highly specialized questions.

To do this they simply must have research facilities available.

This need of research, in fact, produces problems as well as anything the great chance in the legislature which the Camp commission now is recognizing.

Only a few decades ago the provincial cabinet, with a few hundred million dollars, sittings that might be six weeks and the average member didn't need to know much more than roads and booze.

Now the house deals in seven or eight billion dollars a year, it sits half the year or better, and even when they are not at their desks members have plenty of work to do.

Partly because it recognizes this the Camp commission is performing valuable service,

Teaching and Teachers As Seen by Student

Editor,
The Intelligencer,

I am a Grade 11 student and I would like to take the opportunity to speak on behalf of the students. I think it is about time that people heard our side of the story. After all there are two sides.

Everyone thinks that the students have it so good. The teachers are getting underpaid for what they have to put up with. They feel so sorry for them. The students are getting them a hard time. They are disrespectful, they talk back, they call them names, etc. They think that we are rebelling too much. These are just a few of the points that I wish to bring up.

I would only like to give you an example of why we are rebelling.

The following was written by a high school teacher. It was a question on an English Examination, in which we were told to correct the grammar, spelling and punctuation errors. (Nothing has been changed.)

"The thing that bugs me the greatest about today's high school students is that they're all dum! They don't know how to write good English! And disrespectfully they call the teachers by there first names and don't show no respect for their own parents. But does that bother them.no way. Jose. They're all just a bunch of freaked-out weirdos on a bad trip. If they're not smoking up then they're dropping out from life and from responsibility. And long hair! What a bloody crock. My solution is line em all up against a wall and shoot them. That way we've solved the dropout problem; the generation gap and the future of our society all in one beautiful blast. Such a simple solution, why didn't I think of it before. I must be a stupid as they are"

After reading this, you tell me who has it so good? Or that teachers are getting underpaid for what they have to put up with or who gives who a hard time? And last, but not least, who are the ones that are disrespectful?

AN UNDERPAID STUDENT

The Good News Is There

The Christian Science Monitor

"Who will write the history of good?" — Undersecretary of Agriculture Butz in a speech to the National 4-H Congress recently.

It is a reasonable question. for the history of good is something that often gets lost in the accounts of the more "newsy" things that dominate prodmess.

And young people, like those of any age, have experienced a segment of their lives in what has news seems to have been consistently tentested.

But in a figurative sense, the history of good is written every

Farm Land Growing Scarce

Editor
The Intelligencer

I am writing about an article in the December 6 issue of the Intelligencer, which is entitled, "Good Farming Land is Becoming Scarce."

Lately the main point of concern has been the energy crisis. In the past, the Government surely knew what was going to happen, and is happening presently, concerning fuel and energy. Why have they waited until now to worry about it.

Im afraid they are going to do the same about the scarcity of farm land — which, as stated by Mr. Basford in the article, "You can see that within 15 years, under the present management by all 4 governments there is going to be an immense problem in Vancouver." If so, the majority of Canada will share in this problem and suffer the outcome. Why does the Government always wait for things to get worse before they try to do anything?

I know that I can do nothing as an individual about the scarcity of farm land, but someone will have to listen if more people state their opinions about this.

(MISS) BRENDA LEITCH.

Education and Government

Editor,
The Intelligencer,

Whatever ills the present form of education may have they are the direct responsibility of Premier Davis and his government and not the teachers of the province.

The acts of the provincial government in relation to treatment of increases to the aged, increases to themselves, and the present proposed legislation regarding the teaching profession are arbitrary.

In recognition of the above facts, and in protest, I will donate an amount equal to a High School teacher's daily pay to the Liberal campaign fund.

Alberta May Buy Share of Steel Firm

EDMONTON (CP) — The Alberta government has taken a step towards diversifying the province's economy by agreeing in principle to acquire an interest on a major Western Canadian steel company, Industry Minister Fred Peacock said Wednesday.

The agreement, which gives the Alberta government an option to take a 25-per-cent interest in Interprovincial Steel and Pipe Corp. Ltd. (IPSCO) of Regina, was announced jointly by Mr. Peacock and J. N. Turvey, IPSCO president.

It would cost the Alberta government about $5 million to exercise the option, Mr. Peacock said, but the resulting expansion of the company's activities in Alberta would mean an initial investment of $30 million in new steel-making facilities and an additional 1,000 jobs on the province's infant steel industry.

Mr. Peacock said the agreement would be a step towards making Alberta self-sufficient in steel production. At present the province imports between 50 and 70 per cent of its steel from Japan and Central Canada.

The provincial government's direct ownership in the the steel industry also would provide an avenue for developing the province's one billion tons of low-grade iron ore deposits in the Peace River areas of northeastern Alberta, he said.

Alberta has 120 days to make up its mind about exercising the option. Mr. Peacock said completing the agreement depended on the company agreeing to undertake a study of developing the Peace River deposits.

The option would make Alberta an equal partner with the Saskatchewan government in Ipsco. Mr. Peacock said another 25 per cent of the stock would be held by Slater Steel Industries Ltd. of Hamilton, Ont., which is an affiliate of British Steel.

The remaining 45 per cent of the stock would be held by the public.

Botanist Criticized For Silence on Lead

HAMILTON (CP) — Ald. Pat Valeriano has accused a Toronto botanist of irresponsibility in not reporting his measurements of high lead pollution in the soil of a local schoolyard.

Mr. Valeriano, chairman of the city's pollution control committee, said at a city council meeting Tuesday night that Dr. Tom Hutchinson of Toronto has not conferred with city officials about his findings.

Dr. Hutchinson's tests in 1971 showed lead levels 27 times higher than what is considered normal in the yard of Canadian Martyrs separate school.

Dr. Hutchinson said Tuesday he did not release the data earlier because he feared the provincial environment ministry's air management branch would shrug it off, as he said it had other studies of his.

The report came to light in Toronto Tuesday, and Stephen Lewis, leader of the New Democratic Party, asked the government to provide details. Environment Minister James Auld said he would check on the matter.

Proposed Ad Ban Is Assailed

TORONTO (CP) — The recommended ban on advertising on alcoholic beverages, preferred over restrictions by the Le Dain commission of inquiry into the non-medical use of drugs, "strikes a very false note," John Foss, chairman of the Association of Canadian Advertisers, said Tuesday.

"The Le Dain report is only concerned with the final marketing process," Mr. Foss said, adding that when products are allowed to be produced, marketed and taxed they should also be allowed to be advertised.

In its final report, issued last week, the commission suggested that while a ban on all alcoholic beverage advertising would be preferred, it felt if such a ban were not feasible, advertisements should carry warnings about the effects of excessive use of alcohol.

John Crosbie, president of the Magazine Association of Canada, said that advertising of alcoholic beverages and tobacco represented 27 per cent of the $32 million in advertising revenues received by major magazines produced in Canada during 1972.

The ban on advertising would result in a curtailment of what the magazines would be able to spend on editorial material, Mr. Crosbie said.

The Association of Canadian Distillers has declined to comment on the Le Dain recommendations until it has studied the full text of the final report.

It is estimated that brewers and distillers spend about $3 million annually advertising in Canadian daily newspapers.

North York Revises Controversial Bylaw

TORONTO (CP) — North York council voted Tuesday to ease the borough's controversial housing bylaw and allow up to four unrelated persons to live together in areas zoned for high density.

The amendments required to change the bylaw will be sent to the borough solicitor for drafting before final council approval in January.

If the amendments are passed, full-time students, non paying guests and domestic servants would be allowed to live with a family. In addition, a property owner or a tenant in a multiple-dwelling unit, such as an apartment, would be allowed to live with three unrelated persons.

Under current regulations two or more unrelated persons cannot jointly purchase a home, live together in any type of accommodation, or live with a single owner. However, a property owner living alone is allowed to have two unrelated persons as boarders.

Controller Barbara Greene said she was not satisfied with the "minor" amendments. She has been fighting the bylaw since she was evicted from her home more than two years ago for illegally living with three unrelated women.

Doctors Shy Away From Forced Cures

OTTAWA (CP) — Doctors commission headed by Toronto will no part in the Le Dain commission's proposal to lock up hard-core drug addicts for compulsory treatment, Dr. Peter Banks, president of the Canadian Medical Association (CMA), said Wednesday.

In a letter to Health Minister Marc LaPorte, Dr. Banks said a doctor's primary responsibility is for the patient's well-being, including respect for doctor-patient confidences.

A working relationship between doctors and police "could seriously and adversely affect the trust" patients must have in their physicians.

The final report of the royal commission headed by Toronto law professor Gerald Le Dain and tabled in the Commons Friday recommended that police be empowered to pick up, suspected, hard-drug addicts and bring them to court.

Magistrates would then decide, following careful medical examinations, whether the detained person should be committed to a treatment centre for a period of one to three months.

The controversial compulsory-treatment recommendation, just one of many proposals in the report for controlling non-medical drug use, has already been criticized by lawyers and civil liberties associations spokesmen.

Dr. Banks said doctors were distressed by "the recently exposed use of drug addiction treatment facilities as a front for police surveillance and law enforcement."

A CMA spokesman, Dr. John Bennett, said this was a reference to the RCMP plant last summer of an undercover agent in an Edmonton heroin-treatment clinic.

The police agent went into the clinic to see whether methadone, the synthetic narcotic used to treat heroin, was being traded around by addicts. Dr. Bennett said in an interview.

Insp. Gordon Tweedale, national co-ordinator for RCMP drug enforcement, said the clinic asked the RCMP officer to make an investigation because of concern about illicit drug trade within the clinic. The agent found no illegal traffic.

Hydro Tender Policy to Change

TORONTO (CP) — There will be a change in Ontario Hydro's tendering policies when it goes from an independent government agency to a Crown corporation in the new year, A. B. R. Lawrence, resources development secretary, said Wednesday.

"I can assure the house there will be a change in policy which will be dealt with obviously when the new board sets down its own guidelines," Mr. Lawrence told the legislature.

Opposition Leader Robert Nixon had been repeating opposition questions of last week on Hydro's awarding of a $5.5-million contract without calling tenders.

Hydro awarded a contract to a Toronto contractor last Aug. 27 at a time when a legislative committee was investigating a similar no-bid contract to developer Gerhard Mosg to build a $44.5-million office building for Hydro.

The $5.5-million contract was awarded to C. A. Pitts General Contractor Ltd. of Toronto to build a sluice way and dam on the Madawaska River near Arnprior, west of Ottawa.

Mr. Lawrence told the legislature that "in a short time" there will be not only a new Hydro board but "a whole new series of policies of which their purchasing policies will clearly be one. .

Food Helps Make the Festival

Forty four Ingredient cake and symbol cookies are two traditional foods for Hannukah. It's the festival of lights and today is the first day of the holiday. Special symbols decorate the round cookies and the 44 ingredients - 44 tbsp. of ingredients, that is — represent the number of lights burned during the season. The Driver Doesn't Drink Here

By DORIS CLARK

"If four people go to a party in Sweden one is designated as the driver and abstains from drinking for the entire evening. This Swedish approach is a fine example of secondary prevention; measures are used to avoid a second driving," according to H. David Archibald, Director of Addiction Research Foundation of Ontario.

"Alcohol is not only accepted in our culture; it is embedded, is said, and wherever there is a high level of cultural acceptance there is a relatively low emphasis on enforcement.

"Sweden offers us a two-pronged approach to the problem. First, they exploit the good human nature - - to look after others - - and second, they make it self centred - - if you've the driver and you drink you might be apprehended by police and punished."

The Journal, Addiction Research Foundation, Toronto.

Dear Doris: I am 18, have been going with a man eight years older than me and finally persuaded me to have sex with him. I now think I should have done this since I am too immature and selfish to devote my life to a child.

Anyway my family could not take the ridicule as illegitimate baby would bring.

My boy friend has been married before and is very stimulating in his sex play.

He said he protected me by withdrawing in time, but other signs (you know what I mean) make me afraid I am pregnant. I am too embarrassed to go to a doctor, but if I really am pregnant and cannot get an abortion I will commit suicide.

Full of Remorse.

Dear Full: A girl 18 is not even operating in the same league with a man eight years her senior - - and one who has been married, at that! Pardon my saying so, but your boy friend is the one who should suffer the remorse.

But this does not have to ruin your life. There are many happily married women who at one time or another went through the same period of desperate worry which is troubling you now.

Pregnancy is one thing that simply does not go away; if you hide your head in the sand. First of all, your mother must be told, and she will go with you to the doctor; then if pregnancy is certain, to the social agency in your area which counsels pregnant girls.

You know, don't you that your boy friend has financial responsibility in all this? He must be told, too. Suicide is no way out. There is too much promise in the life ahead of you.

Dear Doris: The meeting time and box number of our Al-Anon group are: Belleville Al-Anon Family Group, Box 164 Belleville, Ontario.

Meeting is every Tuesday evening at 8.30 p.m., St. Thomas' Parish Hall, Bridge Street, Belleville, Ontario.

Thank you for your interest in our organization.

Belleville Al-Anon Family Group

Dear Belleville: I put in all the details and your letter will appear in all the 15 papers carrying my column.

And I've just had a bright idea. Why couldn't your various clubs start corresponding - - a little? I mean, wouldn't there be some fascinating stories coming out of the evenings you spend; and sharing these with a club in, say, Winnipeg - - wouldn't this be an exciting new way to make friends?

(Doris can help you with that puzzling decision. Write to her in care of this newspaper, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope for private reply.)

Alberta Wives Must Testify Against Mates

CALGARY (CP) — The Alberta Supreme Court has ruled that husbands and wives can be compelled to give testimony against their mates where one has threatened or done violence to the other.

The court made the ruling in granting a new trial in the case of Stanley James Lundale, acquitted of attempted murder of his wife last June and sentenced to six months for having dangerous weapon after his wife refused to testify. She was the only witness to the shooting.

The appellate court ordered Lundale to trial in which Lundale's wife could be ordered to answer Crown questions.

Mr. Justice G. H. Allen, a member of the appellate panel, said the ruling clears up confusion over when common law permits a spouse to testify. The principle that a spouse can be compelled to testify where a mate has done him or her violence is well-established in English common law, he said. But a lack of authoritative cases in Canada left no strong precedent.

"I think the case is a landmark decision."

Mr. Justice Allen said that unless they can be compelled to take the stand, many wives could be terrorized into silence by husbands who have committed threats, assault, or attempted murder against them.

Ann Landers
Homosexuality Deserves Serious Study, Says Doctor

Dear Ann Landers: Your correspondent, "Gay in Decatur," correctly notes that a growing number of psychiatrists now join the Gay Liberation view that homosexuality is an "alternative life-style" rather than an illness. You reply that an equally large number of psychiatrists (probably more) disagree. Names of three psychiatrists (including mine) were enlisted to support the position that homosexuality is an illness.

"Homosexuality" is the more specific diagnosis than is "heterosexuality." In some instances homosexuality is a symptom of underlying conflict or the end result of genetic, biological, cultural and environmental factors. There are many varieties of homosexual behavior. The experimenting adolescent, the one-night stand, the compulsive pickup in a bar or restroom, the married homosexual—to name a few.

In my clinical experience as a practising psychiatrist, the reasonably well adjusted homosexual rarely comes in to be "straightened out." If he consults a psychiatrist it is because of anxiety, depression, or other emotional distress, symptoms which also occur in the heterosexual.

The Gay Liberation movement has done much to make the public aware of the cruel discrimination homosexuals exist. In spite of the excesses of the extreme militants (some of them in a superior state of mind (which it isn't), they have done a great deal to dispel some of the medieval practices and barbaric punishment directed at homosexuals. This is particularly impressive when one remembers that as recently as 1941, the U.S. navy routinely sent all convicted homosexuals to Portsmouth prison where they served a term and were then given a bad conduct discharge. We've come a long way since then.

It is bitter irony that the Gay Liberation movement has selected psychiatry as one of its prime targets for attack. Psychiatry was pay-chiatry more than any other branch of medicine that tried to help the West Be Homosexual. Contrary to Gay Liberation propaganda, psychiatrists never try to make the homosexual go "straight" against his will. That is impossible. This subject deserves serious study and research so that homosexuality (however it is designated) may someday be viewed in a light of understanding and without prejudice.—Sincerely, Zigmund M. Lebensohn, M.D., Washington, D.C.

Dear Dr. Lebensohn: Thank you for your compassionate and enlightening letter. I believe society is moving toward a better understanding of homosexuality but I also believe they could help themselves if they would eliminate the bizarre parades and demonstrations which make all homosexuals look like fair-out freaks and dingbats, which they are not.

Dear Ann Landers: A certain person in our office says "Good morning" to everybody who walks in the door. If he doesn't get a reply, he will follow that individual around and keep repeating "good morning" until he gets an answer.

Now, I'm not that I am unfriendly, but I can't stand to hear "good morning" 300 times in 15 minutes. Also, some mornings I don't happen to feel like saying "Good morning" or anything else. What can I do about this?—Not Every Morning Is Good

Dear N.: Nothing annoys a morning grouch like an ultracheerful character. But your chances of getting Mr. Sunshine to cut down the happy voltage are mighty slim. Those types don't change. If you'd get to bed an hour earlier you might feel better. Try it.

New Zealand Introducing No-fault Car Insurance

WELLINGTON, N.Z. (CP) — A new deal for victims of accidents will be introduced in New Zealand next year. The scheme is unprecedented anywhere in the world and will cover everyone in the country, even visitors.

So revolutionary is the scheme that it has taken governments years to face up to the implications since the plan was recommended by a royal commission. It has brought widespread interest in many countries and numerous studies of it have already been made by other governments.

One of the basic features of the scheme is that payment is made to all who suffer injury regardless of fault. The concept of blame is abandoned in favor of the principle that victims of accidents in the modern community are a community responsibility.

The three main objectives are defined as:

—To promote safety in every walk of life.

—To provide prompt and effective rehabilitation for all injured.

—To give prompt and reasonable compensation without the tortuous delays of legal proceedings.

The legislation will apply to earners and non-earners, men women and children, and to visitors while on New Zealand soil. It will apply whether the accident happens at work, on the highways, in the home, on the sports field or anywhere else in New Zealand.

There are three main schemes: An earners' scheme which will cover everyone receiving remuneration, either as an employee or self-employed; a motor vehicle scheme which replaces the existing compulsory third-party insurance paid for at present by owners taking out a vehicle licence, and a supplementary scheme covering housewives, children, students, retired persons and visitors.

Compensation will be paid for loss of earnings up to 80 per cent of normal salary up to a maximum of $100 a week. This can continue in some circumstances for the whole of an injured person's life.

Lump sums are payable for loss or impairment of bodily function up to $5,000 and for loss of capacity to enjoy life, for pain, mental suffering or disfigurement up to $7,500.

Additional compensation is provided for expenses, including medical and hospital costs, transport to hospital and wages of an attendant or nurse. Funeral expenses are payable where a person dies as the result of an accident.

Dependents will receive, in the case of a widow, half the earnings-related compensation her husband would have received if totally incapacitated. Each dependent child will be paid one-sixth earnings-related compensation up to a maximum of three children. Lump-sum payments will also be made to widows and children.

Non-earners will not ordinally qualify for earnings-related compensation, but will be eligible for the other benefits. Earnings-related compensation will be taxable, but not other benefits.

The system amounts to a compulsory national insurance scheme, replacing many forms of insurance now provided by insurance companies. It will be paid for by the community in various ways—through a levy on employers and on the self-employed, annual payments by vehicle owners and general taxation.

The State Insurance Office, which for many years has competed with private insurance companies in normal insurance activities, will act as claims handling agent.

The new deal applies only to injuries to people, not property damage. It comes into effect March 31, 1974.

SAVE ON COFFINS

PRETORIA, South Africa (AP) — A city council committee recommended use of inexpensive plastic coffins. Jerry Vosler, the municipal press agent, said: "Pretoria is always said to be the dead city. But we can't be so dead after all if we are setting a new fashion in coffins."

Icebreaker's Captain At Sea for 32 Years

HALIFAX (CP) — Captain Paul Tooke of the Canadian Coast Guard icebreaker Labrador has vivid memories of the Second World War. Two of the ships on which he served were sunk by torpedoes while he was on board.

Captain Tooke has spent 32 years at sea, starting out when he was 20 years old on lake boats near his home in Owen Sound, Ont.

In 1942 he was on the Donald Stewart going to Goose Bay in Labrador when a torpedo hit the stern, killing three men.

The deck cargo of aviation fuel burst into flames.

The life boats were all aft, with the blazing deck separating them from the 13 men forward.

Fortunately, the chief officer, who liked to putter with carpenter work in his spare time, had built a 14-foot punt which he planned to use for pleasure when he returned home.

The 13 men piled into the little boat and were picked up later by the corvette Shawinigan.

"Were we scared?" Captain Tooke recalled in an interview. "We were a bunch of boys from the Ontario woods and this was war. I guess we were scared."

After the sinking of the Donald Stewart he joined what was known as the government's deep-sea manning pool at Montreal. The government at the time was building 178 freighters, to be known as the Park ships because they were named after large Canadian parks.

He was assigned as able seaman aboard the Point Pleasant Park, named after the sea-side park in Halifax.

Within a year he was promoted to bosun and then to third officer.

On Jan. 8, 1945, the Point Pleasant Park sailed from Saint John, N.B., with a convoy which sailed by New York, Trinidad and the South American coast. Then she broke off from the convoy and sailed southwest toward the Cape of Good Hope.

Suddenly a torpedo hit the crew's quarters aft on the starboard side.

Ten men were killed and the companionway to the main deck was blown away and water poured in on 28 men trapped below.

The chief officer and Tooke, then third officer, rushed aft and with a fire axe chopped away a wire mesh which had been welded over an escape hatch. They pulled out the men one by one.

The 45 men who escaped the sinking ship spent 10 days drifting before they were picked up by the South African Navy ship Africana.

To perpetuate the memory of the crew members lost in the Point Pleasant Park, Captain Tooke designed a monument which now stands in the Halifax park after which the ship was named. In 1958 he was named citizen of the year for the effort.

Shulman Charges Quackery By Chiropractic Minority

TORONTO (CP) — Dr. Morton Shulman (NDP—Toronto High Park) has urged the provincial government to purge the chiropractic profession of quackery.

In a wide-ranging speech Wednesday Dr. Shulman stressed that he believed most chiropractors were not quacks or using questionable techniques.

However, he zeroed in on "a sizeable minority" who he claims are a threat to public safety.

He told the legislature of an 11-year-old boy in Tillsonburg, Ont., who has cystic fibrosis. Dr. Shulman said the boy's mother took him off life-giving drugs after a chiropractor intimated that spine manipulation would help the condition.

Later, in an interview, Dr. Shulman said the boy was returned to a medical doctor, only after sharp letters were exchanged with the Board of Directors of Chiropractic, which governs chiropractors in Ontario.

In Toronto, he said, Leo K. Rosenberg, president of the Ontario Chiropractic Association, distributed literature from his office which indicated chiropractors could cure cross eyes, headaches, jaundice and bedsores.

"Some people who believe Dr. Leo Rosenberg are going to die," said Dr. Shulman.

He said some complaints that chiropractors claim to be able to cure might be symptoms of a more serious disease.

Dr. Shulman also said that records showed that Ontario taxpayers paid claims to chiropractors under the Ontario Hospital Insurance Plan for a wide range of ailments.

Some of these ailments might be dangerous if they are not treated by medical doctors, he said.

He produced literature which suggested x-rays be taken on small children.

Medical doctors avoid this, he said, and said cancer and leukemia which could result from x-rays.

Dr. Shulman was quick to point out that chiropractors can help some people when doctors apparently can not.

However, he charged that a dangerous fringe is becoming a serious threat to public health.

He said a woman came to his office Tuesday and x-rays showed that because of a chiropractic's spinal manipulation she may never walk properly again.

Dr. Shulman singled out the Canadian Memorial Chiropractic College for special criticism.

"Brandishing a textbook from the Toronto school, he said that procedures in the book might kill people.

He noted that chiropractors were taught to treat a heart attack with spinal manipulation.

"What he's doing is killing the patient," said Dr. Shulman.

MPs Get Bad News

It's Business as Usual Boxing Day

OTTAWA (CP) — The government made an official Wednesday: There will be no normal Christmas break for MPs still laboring under an unreasonable legislative load.

Government House Leader Allan MacEachen removed any lingering holiday hopes when he served notice the Commons will have only Christmas Eve and Christmas Day off.

It will resume business at 7 p.m. Boxing Day unless there is some dramatic change in the attitudes of the parties.

A normal Yuletide break had been in doubt for the last two weeks with the Commons bogged down on two of the four items the government wants passed before any lengthy recess.

The Conservatives have mounted an intensive attack on the emergency energy bill while the election expenses bill has been saddled with 42 New Democrat amendments.

The energy bill has gone to committee where Conservatives have threatened to give it detailed scrutiny they expect will take about two weeks.

Under the bill, the government would get sweeping powers to deal with an energy crisis and the Liberals say it should be passed immediately. Conservatives said in the Commons Wednesday the government could meet an energy crisis without the bill. Besides, it had not shown that an emergency exists.

Meanwhile, Commons debate on election expenses dragged on Wednesday, with New Democrats pushing for adoption of their amendments.

Officially, the party favors the bill despite alleged weaknesses, but several NDP members decided to present the amendments when the bill returned from committee this week.

Frank Howard (NDP—Steena) said outside the House he will use any tactic to block the bill. He said earlier he would like the proposed legislation to die on the order paper.

His opposition to the bill tied up the Commons for almost an hour Wednesday when he forced a vote on who should speak next in the debate.

Speaking on three NDP amendments to limit party funds from Canadian sources only, Stuart Leggatt (NDP—New Westminster) said such a system would "raise the credibility of the political system as a whole."

However, he said, one of the amendments should be changed to provide a set of criteria influencing the requirement that only companies with 51 per cent of their voting stock held by Canadians be allowed to contribute to campaign coffers.

A sub-amendment — virtually prohibiting non-Canadians from contributing to political parties was proposed by Arnold Peters (NDP—Timiskaming). Only landed immigrants, Canadian citizens, Canadian-based unions and associations and companies controlled by Canadians should be able to donate funds, he said.

Mr. Peters disputed suggestions by Conservatives Allan McKinnon (Victoria) and Mr. Horner that much of the NDP's funds come from United States-based international unions.

He reiterated the NDP position that the Liberals and Conservatives depend on contributions from large, multi-national corporations.

The election expenses bill would seek to limit a candidate's direct spending to $1 for each of the first 15,000 registered voters in his riding, 50 cents for each of the next 10,000 and 25 cents each for additional voters.

Parties would be restricted to 30 cents for each eligible voter in ridings they contest.

In a bid to eliminate so-called nuisance candidates, only candidates collecting at least 20 per cent of the vote would be reimbursed for travel and postal expenses.

A final 6½ hours of prime broadcast time would be made available to parties, with half the cost reimbursed by the government.

The bill would force public disclosure of all donations exceeding $100 and make $500 the maximum donation which would be tax deductible.

A maximum fine of $25,000 would be provided for violations of the act.

Deer Killed

STRATHROY, Ont. (CP) — Town council has posted a $500 reward for information concerning the brutal killing of a deer in the wildlife section of a park in this community about 25 miles west of London.

The deer was found dead Nov. 29. It had been tied down the first 15,000 registered voters by the throat slit and its body gutted.

Another deer in the park escaped at the same time and has not been recaptured.

Belleville Man Killed As Weather Closes In

Police in the Belleville area have had to investigate only one serious traffic accident since bad weather swept into the Quinte area late yesterday afternoon.

A 62-year-old Belleville man was killed around 5 p.m. yesterday when the pickup truck he was driving was struck by an eastbound CPR freight train at the level crossing on South Pinnacle Street.

Dead is Robert Brown, 62, of 9 Pearl Street.

Deputy Police Chief Harold Reid reports that his department was called to the accident scene at 5:05 p.m. yesterday. On arriving at the scene, officers discovered that the brown vehicle had been dragged down the tracks, across Church Street to just east of the CPR station, a distance of approximately 560 feet.

Brown died at Belleville General Hospital after having been rushed there by LaSalle Ambulance. The truck was completely wrecked.

Witnesses at the accident reported that the 1964 Brown vehicle proceed through the red flashing crossing lights just before it was hit by the train.

CPR officials were not available for comment on the accident and were unable to tell where the train was destined or what demage resulted from the collision.

Shortly after the Pinnacle Street accident occured, snow began to fall throughout the Quinte area and visibility fell drastically from five miles to 1¼ miles.

Weather officers at Canadian Forces Base Trenton report that the Belleville area received approximately 2.2 inches of snow since 5 p.m. yesterday. Another two to four inches of snow are expected today and tomorrow.

Temperatures hovered around 15 degrees overnight and rose to 25 degrees at 10 a.m. Winds have been from the east at 12 to 14 miles an hour with gusts up to 20 miles an hour.

The wind and the snow have combined to make driving treacherous and weather officials report that at times visibility distances fall to less than three-quarters of a mile.

Ontario Provincial Police reported at 10 a.m. that they were having trouble seeing highway 401 from their office windows on North Front Street, right next to the highway.

CFB Trenton officials report that the weather could get worse this afternoon with the temperatures rising and a warm air mass moves in from the south. The snow will turn to freezing rain sometime after 2 p.m., they think and winds will be blowing snow across the highways.

Colder weather is forecast for this evening and tomorrow, with occasional snow flurries returning.

"Things are changing rapidly right now," one forecaster said. "It is difficult to say just what the weather will be like this time tomorrow."

While the weather has not been to the liking of motorists, they have, nevertheless, been driving with extreme caution.

The Belleville police report that they have been called out to investigate only 13 accidents since 8 a.m. Wednesday. The fatal Pinnacle Street accident was the only serious one. The others were all minor "fender benders" at intersections and in parking lots.

Only two minor accidents were reported to city police between 8 a.m. and 10.30 a.m. today.

The Ontario Provincial Police on the other hand, have been called out to investigate only four automobile accidents since Tuesday. All were of a minor nature, with no personal injuries being reported and damage estimates being held to a minimal level, an OPP officer reported.

·A Special Type of Gift

Yesterday, 23 people received a special type of Christmas gift when they attended the Citizenship Court at the Hastings County Court House on Pinnacle Street. They were presented with their certificates of citizenship by Judge R. C. Honey after they took the oath of allegiance to Canada. The court room ceremonies were followed by a reception held by the IODE in the Officers' Mess at the armory. Here, a group of new Canadians, their friends and relatives enjoy an informal chat just minutes after they officially became Canadians.

Canada Has 23 New Citizens

Canada received a special Christmas present yesterday at the Hastings County Court room on Pinnacle Street.

In a brief but moving ceremony, 23 new Canadians signed a form renouncing their allegiance to any other country than Canada and received their certificates of Canadian citizenship after having taken the oath of allegiance.

Coming from a variety of countries as far away as Kuwait, China and Guyana, the new Canadians have for the most part been living in Canada for the years. Some of the new citizens were married to Canadians and, as a result, were only required to have lived here for one year prior to adopting Canada as their homeland.

Welcoming the new Canadians after the oath administered the oath of allegiance was County Court Judge R.C. Honey told them that he felt Canada would find new strength in the variety of customs and traditions the new citizens brought with them.

"Canada is not a melting pot," he said. "We find our strength in our diversity. By maintaining your own language and customs as well as learning the customs and language of Canada you can retain your individuality and enrich your lives and those of your neighbors. Canada is a fresh new country -- a repository of a great many different cultures."

The new Canadians also received congratulations and words of welcome from William Argue, president of the Hastings County Bar Assoc., Chief Earl Hill, chief of the Tyendinaga Indian Reserve, J. R. Staveley, an officer with the department of Manpower and Immigration, Jack Ellis, MP for Hasting, and Mayor Robin Jeffers.

The ceremony at the Citizenship Court was followed by a tea and reception presided over by the Independent Order of the Daughters of the Empire, (IODE) at the officers' mess in the armory.

New Canadians who received their certificates of citizenship yesterday were: Mrs. Irene Marta Muir, of CFB Trenton; Mrs. Nicole Raymonde Scott, of CFB Borden; Mrs. Anna Rummes, of CFB Trenton. Luis Bustos, Brighton; Hendrick Johannes Frijkers, of Foxboro. Guenot Will Luhmann, of Frankford, Mr. and Mrs. Antonio Diecsare, of Belleville; Hung Chen, of Angelaios of Belleville; Mrs Nenje Bouma, of Belleville; Feruce Makla, of Trenton; Mrs Rita Postal, of Trenton; Bruno Poropat, of Trenton; Cheryl White, of Belleville; Mrs Joes Otaro Tero, of Tero, of Belleville; Eppo Lentz, of Belleville; Mr and Mrs Wim Lindenberg, of Belleville; Elmar Pugri, of Marmora; Father Giuseppe Bigonzoni, of Belleville and Mrs. Catharina Cull, of Trenton.

Before hitting the panic button, get him an electronic pocket calculator and have him hiking fashions.

Increasingly, these small calculators are being used by students to make their school life a little easier. A recent survey of Belleville retailers, by The Intelligencer revealed parents are buying calculators for book-loved children. Not only are students benefiting from the gadgets, but insurance brokers, bankers, accountants and travel agents are making use of the time-and labor-saving devices.

Depending on the cost -- ranging anywhere from $40 to $200 -- a calculator features four functions, a memory bank, percentage and square root calculation capability, and rechargeable batteries. Nearly all contain a panel consisting of light emitting diodes that display the progress of a calculation.

Merchants agree the use and popularity of the pocket sized mini-computers has increased dramatically since they came onto the market some two years ago.

Mac Moffat, a salesman with O'Neil Stationery, says, "The market is not limited to any particular class of people. They're used by deliverymen for calculation of board feet of lumber, so many gallons of oil. College students are now allowed to take them into the classroom and into exams."

Housewives are using the calculators on grocery shopping expeditions. As for size, one being sold by a Front St. merchant is just larger than a package of cigarettes (2¾ inches by 3¾ inches).

And if that is not fancy enough, wait till next year says Walter Hertzing, co-owner of the Photo Chalet. At present American manufacturers are working on a model that will provide a print out of calculations on photo sensitive paper. There will be no moving parts as the imprint will be made directly from the light emitting diodes. Although none are currently in production, says Mr. Huerzing, operating models exist.

Overseas Calls At Full Rate

Mrs. Rhoda M. Fletcher, Manager Operator Services for Bell Canada today announced customers dial the item 0 on Christmas telephone calling that appeared in The Intelligencer Monday, December 17, 1973 may have given the wrong impression. Calls throughout North America placed on Christmas Day and New Year's Day will be accepted at normal Sunday rates. Overseas calls are the ones to which no special discount applies, Mrs. Fletcher said. "We hope this will add to our customers' pleasure at Christmas," she added.

Language For Deaf Visible

Manual communication by means of fingerspelling has been introduced this year in Ontario schools for the deaf.

A supervisor at the senior school at Ontario School for the Deaf, Gary Gervis, outlined the system to members of the Quinte Association for Hearing Handicapped Children.

Called "visible English" at OSD, fingerspelling is a method of forming the 26 letters of the alphabet with the fingers of one hand. Each word is fingerspelled as it is spoken, and the visible clarification of the spoken language results in better understanding between deaf and hearing.

Parents were concerned that Quinte area residents do not understand the communication problems of the deaf. Although the community is sympathetic to the deaf, they are not aware that speech must be used when communicating with them.

One suggestion to improve communication was to set up evening classes for merchants and employers in the area.

Girl Guides and Cubs are offered the opportunity to learn fingerspelling as part of their program.

The meeting of the association will be held at Quinte Secondary School to better communication with the deaf is invited to attend.

Will Drain Northeast

City council Monday night gave two readings to a bylaw providing a $474,000 storm sewer to drain 500 acres in northeast Belleville.

Plans callfor a 2,000-foot trunk storm sewer east from the Main River to College St. East with a 350-foot storm sewer extension at the halfway mark north to College.

The project will make possible drainage of a swampy area north of the Canadian National Railway tracks in the area.

Youngsters Get a Break

Brenda Driscoll, teacher of a pre-school class for deaf children at Ontario School for the Deaf, lifts her young pupils off the bus from Picton. The bus has been leased by the Picton Elks Lodge to bring six of the children and their parents to the classes. Pre-school years are the most important in the education of deaf children and the service Quinte Prince Edward county makes the nursery school service available to all in the area. About 17 children, both deaf and hearing, attended the nursery school.

Parks Posted

Belleville parks have been posted with snowmobiling restrictions.

It's all in keeping with a new city ordinance regulating the use of snow vehicles in parks around the city and related to surrounding residential densities.

The signs proclaim the hours during which snowmobiling is permitted.

In most parts restrictions apply.

In larger greenbelt areas removed from housing — the Zwicks and East Bayshore parks — there is no times designated. In some smaller parks snow vehicles are prohibited outright.

Among these are Corby Park — which this winter is being left open for public use for the first time.

Corby, renowned for summer rose displays, also has its own esthetic appeal in winter and many people also use it as a short cut, says parks director Lloyd Syer.

For these reasons the parks department will keep its walks clear of snow to facilitate the public. However, if any problems occur with snowmobiling the park could be closed, says the director.

Reopening of Airport On Reserve Step Closer

TYENDINAGA RESERVE — Prospects that the wartime Mohawk airport could be reopened here advanced a step further Wednesday.

A licensing inspection of the facilities was carried out by an official of the federal transport department, said Williams J. Brant, chief-elect of the Quinte Mohawks.

The airfield was first built during World War I for training fliers and was reconstructed during World War II. Its hangars and other buildings are still intact and have undergone renovations by the Mohawks to whom the property reverted after the war's end.

Both outgoing Chief Earl Hill and the new chief say interest has been shown in reactivating the facility in recent times. Private businessmen have been looking at the airstrip for possible use by executive aircraft.

Chief Hill says intentions are to get the field's east-west landing strip and the development has "tremendous potential."

The reserve council has been pursuing the project with the federal government for the past year. The Mohawks applied for a licence and intend operating the field. Wednesday's inspection was the latest concrete move in the proposal.

Chief-elect Brant says little work is required to make the field operational. Another inspection will be made by department officials early next year and a decision on the undertaking will be made by the newly-elected council sometime during 1974.

Increased Controls Considered

Increased anti-poacher patrols and predator controls are among protective measures planned for deer herds wintering in the Tweed forestry district.

The measures are being planned as wildlife authorities ponder indications that annual hunt kills remain steady while the deer population continues to decline.

It's a combination with "which we do have concern for the long run," an official at the Ministry of Natural Resources Tweed office said Wednesday.

As yet, firm statistics on bush deer kills and current population trends won't be available until mid-1974 — after the annual spring field count. Population is estimated by counting deer pellets.

Meantime, recommendations on suggested changes for next year's hunting season have been proposed to the ministry by Tweed officials. No details were given and whether the changes are accepted will depend on further assessment and consultation with the ministry, said the official.

Contemplated predator controls would be aimed at timber wolves. The species appears to be relatively low in population at present, although local situations could vary. Trapping would be carried out where required.

Where you can't...

...and where you can

Parks Board employees, Jay Haight (left) and Norman Allen, secure a sign forbidding snowmobiling in Corby Park, but the situation isn't the same in other parts of the city. Jay Kiser, a Bell Canada installer, checks out a sign permitting snowmobiling behind Centennial Secondary School south of Bridge Street West. Notices have been going up across Belleville the past week indicating areas the machines are welcomed or unwelcome.

New Road Will Join Shannonville Gravel

Construction of the planned permanent road east of the expanded CN Belleville rail yards in Thurlow township will get under way next year, Hastings county council was told this week.

Rawdon Reeve Ray Shortt, chairman of the county roads and bridges committee, in his report at the December session, told council that a house on the new right-of-way was being moved and that utility relocation work was expected to be completed in time for an early 1974 season start on the road construction.

The road became necessary with extension of the CN yards. Since the yard extension, traffic had been handled over a temporary roadway.

The proposed new roadway, to be built by county forces, is part of county road 18 leading from Belleville to the Shannonville gravel, which is to be completely rebuilt.

Mr. Shortt said that 3.2 mile of the road from the Shannonville gravel to Mitchell's Sideroad also will be started next year. The middle section of the road from Mitchell's sideroad to the city limits is now in the design stage.

The road was told that construction had been completed this year on about 10 miles of county road with paving of the Queensboro Road, (Road 12) and the Sioco Road (Road 13) and the Demorestville Gravel south of Highway 401.

One construction project — the Moira road — between Highway 62 and Highway 37 is still in progress and will be completed in 1974 with construction of a new bridge over Rawdon Creek.

Preliminary design is under way for road 16 through the town of Deseronto, while design of the construction of road 13 west from Marlbank is also under way.

Marsh Trophy Winner, Hawley 'Feels Great'

TORONTO (CP) — Sandy Hawley, the record-breaking jockey from Whitby, Ont., has been awarded the Lou Marsh Trophy as Canada's outstanding athlete.

Hawley, 24, was chosen from a record 21 nominees submitted by the public and broke the first jockey to win the trophy named for the late sports editor of Toronto Star.

Hawley was a unanimous choice for selectors with three other athletes given consideration in the final balloting—last year's winner Phil Esposito, world figure skating champion Karen Magnussen, boxer Clyde Gray, world water ski champion George Athans and jockey Ron Turcotte.

"I really feel great about getting this award," said Hawley in a telephone interview from Laurel, Md. "It makes the year all worth while."

The modest, hard-working Hawley still is campaigning at Laurel Race Track and will do so until the meet ends Jan. 3.

It was at Laurel on Dec. 1 that he rode his 486th winner of the year and broke Bill Shoemaker's 35-year-old record of 485.

Last Saturday he rode Charlie Jr. to a 5½-length win in the fourth race, his 500th win this year, a mark unprecedented in turf history.

But not content to take it easy with his New Year's resolution reached, he rode three more winners on the card.

Asked why he's continuing to ride now that he has the record and the $00, he said:

"I really love to ride. I only have a vertical agreement up here and Bowie, where I'm going when Laurel closes. But as I said, I love riding."

In an earlier interview—Hawley always returns phone calls no matter how busy he is—he said he thought he could win $3 million or $20 races this year, barring suspensions or an injury."

He said he'll ride at Bowie, also in Maryland, until March 15 and then take a holiday.

However,bad news for Canadian racing fans is that Hawley may do the bulk of his riding in California next year.

That depends on whether we get a bid to ride in California. He liked the brief look we had of tracks like Santa Anita, but it's not definite whether we'll move there or return to Canada."

Hawley rode most of his winners on Ontario Jockey Club tracks, leaving Greenwood Dec 1 with 478 winners.

The long-haired jockey who lives with his wife, Sherry, in Mississauga, Ont., has been on 1,881 horses and earned more than $2 million in purses this year. Besides his win he's finished second 320 times and brought home show money 284 times.

Shoemaker set his 1953 record with 1,063 wins.

Many track experts say that Hawley must move to the United States to prove that he's a jockey in the class of Bruill Baeza and Laffit Pincay Jr.

The competition there is tougher, but they don't doubt Hawley can be a winner.

"He's worked five lengths to a horse, he has such rapport with the animals," said one track regular.

There's no doubt that Hawley, North American riding champion for the third time in four years, could become one of the biggest winners of all time.

He rode only 38 horses—he had four winners—in his first year, 1968, but in the next five full years he has outpaced Shoemaker's first five years.

Hawley had 1,803 winners in 1969-1973 while Shoemaker was aboard 1,695.

The selectors in the Lou Marsh Trophy are: Jim Proudfoot, sports editor of Toronto Star, Milt Dunnell, Star columnist, Jim Vipond, sports editor of the Globe and Mail, George Gross, sports editor of Toronto Sun, Gordon Grant, general sports editor of The Canadian Press, and Harry (Red) Foster, an advertising executive.

Jets Bombed

By LLOYD JOHNSTON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Winnipeg Jets were victims of their own energy crisis Wednesday night.

Immobilized by lack of fuel, the Jets were at the mercy of Houston Aeros, who bombed them 10-6 in a World Hockey Association game.

Demolition of the Jets was engineered mainly by Bill Howe on 11 Gordie Mark and Marty.

Howe, the patriarch, produced one goal and three assists, while sons Mark and Marty accounted for three, two goals by Mark and one by Marty.

Gordie's four points elevated him into a tie for ninth place in the WHA scoring race and helped Aeros force Edmonton Oilers to a fourth place in the Western Division.

"It's about time we got there," the former National Hockey League veteran said. "I feels great."

"I've been there (first place) nine times before and I know what it's like. Now that we've got it, we won't give it up easily. We've got the stuff to stay at the top."

Houston coach Bill Dineen, who prior to Wednesday night's game was given a new three-year contract, said he was worried before the opening faceoff.

"The guys were really quiet. I thought they might be flat. I was walking around the dressing room trying to get a ready feeling, but I couldn't. Now, I hope they act like that more often."

The Aeros extended their unbeaten streak in Houston to eight games and the outlook is beautiful as they play 12 of their next 15 games in home surroundings.

In other WHA contests Wednesday, New England Whalers, leaders of the East Division, defeated Edmonton Oilers, who now share the lead in the West, 4-2, while Minnesota Fighting Saints beat Cincinnati Blazers 4-2.

There were no games tonight but WHA action resumes Friday when Vancouver is at Edmonton, Los Angeles Sharks play at Minnesota and Houston visits Toronto for a tilt with the Toros.

New England 4 Edmonton 2

The Whalers connected twice in the first period and found the range again in the second, then held off the Oilers the rest of the way.

Tom Webster New England's leadingg scorer, supplied what turned out to be the winning goal with one second remaining in the second period. John French got the insurance marker, his second of the game, in an empty net one second before the end of regulation time.

Minnesota 4 Vancouver 2

The Fighting Saints were transported to victory over the Blazers on third-period goals by George Morrison and Bill Klatt. The win was the first for Minnesota in three games on Vancouver ice this season.

Canucks Hire Regan

VANCOUVER (CP) — Larry Regan, who resigned Tuesday as general manager of Los Angeles Kings, was hired Wednesday by Vancouver Canucks of the National Hockey League "to work on special assignments."

Canucks President Coleman Hall, who made the announcement, said, "we're going all out to build a contender."

When I learned Regan was available, I made him an offer right way. He'll work with our scouting staff in much the same capacity as Bud Poile.

Regan's specific duties have yet to be outlined, although Hall said Regan will begin immediately scouting areas throughout North America where the Canucks haven't been represented in professional circles.

Regan, 43, was named general manager of the Kings in 1967, the year they entered the NHL. He took over as coach before the 1970-71 season but relinquished the position Oct. 30, 1971.

He retired as a player after the 1965-66 season following a year with Baltimore Clippers of the American Hockey League. He spent five seasons as a player in the NHL, with Boston Bruins and Toronto Maple Leafs, before becoming a player-coach with Pittsburgh of the AHL. He was coach of the Austrian national hockey team for the next three years.

In 1956-57, Regan won the Calder Trophy as rookie of the year while a member of the Bruins.

Hawks Tie Sabres, Share First

By LLOYD JOHNSTON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Chicago Black Hawks—like the tortoise—apparently believe that slow and steady wins the National Hockey League race.

They inched their way into a tie with Philadelphia Flyers for first place in the West Division Wednesday night by tying Buffalo Sabres 3-3.

It was the tenth time this season that the Hawks have settled for one point per game and it was the team's sixth deadlock on home ice.

Until 11:31 of third period it seemed that the Chicagoans were going to abandon the point-sharing format. They were nursing a 2-1 lead when Sabres' Richard Martin backhanded Norm Gratzer's rebound past Tony Esposito for his 20th goal of the season.

Chicago had taken the lead on second-period goals by Dave Kryskow and Pit Martin. Buffalo's other marksman was Pete McNab.

In other games, Toronto Maple Leafs defeated California Golden Seals 5-3, Minnesota North Stars doused Atlanta Flames 4-2 and St. Louis Blues trimmed Los Angeles Kings 3-1.

In tonight's action, Montreal Canadiens visit Buffalo, Detroit Red Wings are guests of New York Rangers, Pittsburgh Penguins venture into Boston Bruins' den and Vancouver Canucks are at Philadelphia.

Toronto 5 California 3

The Leafs used the Golden Seals as a stepping stone to third place in the NHL's East Division. Their 3-3 victory lifted them one point above the idle New York Rangers.

After squandering two power-play opportunities, Paul Henderson pulled Leafs into a 3-3 tie late in the second period. Errol Thompson slapped a 30-foot shot into the net past Bob Champoux at 7:57 of the final period and Ron Ellis sank his

Selects Tie Twins

THUNDER BAY (CP) — Moose Selects batted from behind Wednesday to gain a 6-6 draw with Thunder Bay Twins of the United States Senior Hockey League in exhibition play before 4,389 fans.

The Russians, playing their eighth game on the current tour, fell behind 3-1 after the first period and 5-4 after two. The Twins had taken a 6-4 lead early in the third period but couldn't hold off a late attack.

The Twins undefeated in their last 17 games, got two goals from Chuck Kelner and singles from Brian Depierro, Murray McLeod, Dave Vialiano and Mike Milbrath.

Vladimir Repsev scored twice for the Selects with one each by Evgini Zilmin, Alexander Golikov, Victor Schalimov and Vyacslin Markov.

BOCCABELLA RECOVERING

MONTREAL (CP) - Montreal Expos announced Wednesday that catcher John Boccabella has undergone "successful surgery" for cartilage damage to his left knee. Boccabella, 32, hurt the knee late in the 1973 National League season, but cause of the injury remained uncertain. He is expected to be fully recovered in time to report for spring training.

'67s Blank Greyhounds

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont. (CP) — Ottawa '67s scored two goals in each of the first two periods and added another to the final period to defeat Sault Ste. Marie Greyhounds 5-0 in the only Ontario Hockey Association Major Junior A game Wednesday.

Ottawa, after losing 7-1 in Sudbury Tuesday, dominated the entire game and earned the shutout for goalie Jim Fraser.

Ottawa got first-period goals from Dave Staffen and Tim Young and increased it to 4-0 as Jim Roberts and Dale Rossi scored in the second period. Staffen added his second goal of the night in the third period.

Centennial Midgets Prevent Sweep

Nicholson Teams Win In Senior and Junior

Nicholson Catholic College took a pair of games from Centennial Secondary School last night in Bay of Quinte Boys' Basketball action, taking the Senior game 45-42, and the Junior game 36-27, but losing to the Midget Chargers, 51-49.

Centennial Seniors took an early lead in the first period, going to a nine point lead at the end of the eight minutes, 19-18.

They maintained the lead, although Nicholson had cut the margin to only four points by the end of the first half.

The third period was the real downfall for the Chargers as they scored only two points, mostly due to extremely poor shooting, while Nicholson was taking the lead, 31-25.

Nicholson maintained that lead throughout the fourth quarter, although the Chargers threatened several times, especially with only 30 seconds to go, when a full court press seemed to be working. Centennial was controlling the ball, being one point down, 43-42, however, charger shooters couldn't find the range.

Chargers' Dave Dent was the top scorer in the game, hooping 19 points, while Nicholson's Joe Calnay had 11, and Mike Dalaire 10. Steve Hicks had six for the Chargers.

In the Junior game Nicholson's Jim Boyle fired in 13 points, while Dwight Wilson hooped 11 in leading the rest of Centennial. John Hipwell bagged eight in a losing cause.

In the Midget game, it was a different story, as the Chargers came up with a 51-49 win over NCC. Jim Graham led the Chargers with 14 points, while Tony Graham bagged eight.

Steve Doken had 19 points for Nicholson, while Paul McAlpine scored 12.

12 Dolphins Are All-stars

NEW YORK (AP) — Miami Dolphins, 1973 Super Bowl champions, placed 12 players on the American Football Conference Pro Bowl squad, including quarterback Bob Griese, two backfield teammates—Larry Csonka and Mercury Morris, and wide receiver, Paul Warfield. AFC president Lamar Hunt announced Wednesday.

The Dolphins had seven representatives on the offensive team and five to the defensive unit while Oakland Raiders, the AFC Western champions, will be represented by seven of its players. Pittsburgh Steelers, the AFC wild-card team, has six players on the squad while the Central Division Champion Cincinnati Bengals are represented by three.

Three rookies were also voted to the 40-man AFC roster which meets the National Football Conference Pro Bowl squad Jan. 20 at Kansas City's Arrowhead Stadium. They are Cincinnati wide receiver Isaac Curtis, Oakland punter Ray Guy and return specialist Greg Pruitt of Cleveland Brown.

Every club, with the exception of New England Patriots and San Diego Chargers placed one or more representatives on the team which will attempt to extend its winning streak in these contests to three games.

Three Conference leaders were chosen. O. J. Simpson of Buffalo Bills hero of last year's 33-28 AFC victory in Dallas and the first rusher to crash the 2,000-yard barrier, was the AFC's top runner. Safety Dick Anderson of Miami, who shared the conference lead in interceptions and Oakland quarterback Ken Stabler, who led the AFC in passing, were voted onto the team.

Twenty-two players are returning from last years's club.

Miami led with 10 repeaters. They were Warfield, Csonka, Morris, Anderson, offensive tackle Larry Little, centre Jim Langer, defensive end Bill Stanfill, middle linebacker Nick Buoniconti, safety Jake Scott, formerly with British Columbia Lions of the Canadian Football League, and place kicker Garo Yepremian.

Acupuncture Suggested For Heroin Addicts

DETROIT (Reuter) — A Detroit doctor says the best way to cure heroin addicts may be to use Chinese acupuncture treatment.

Dr. Jerome Stewart, an osteopathic physician, is planning to launch an experimental acupuncture program in Detroit. It would be the first of its kind in the United States.

Stewart says acupuncture would have the advantage of not substituting a different drug for a patient's addiction, as methadone maintenance programs. He also says it would be cheaper than methadone, which costs about $1,400 annually for each patient.

Acupuncture has proved effective in reducing pain, and Stewart says the pain associated with withdrawal is the addict's basic fear. The proposed treatment would place acupuncture needles attached to an electronic stimulator in the addict's ear lobes. Stewart says the current and positioning of the needles would eliminate pain.

Police Station Patrol Is Ended in Toronto

TORONTO (CP) — The Metropolitan Toronto Police Association has intervened to extend the beat of a constable who was limited to parading back and forth in front of an east-end police station, an association official said Wednesday.

Constable James Kinnear, 36, a 12-year veteran of the Metro Toronto force, had been ordered to patrol 97 steps in either direction in front of the station last Thursday—the night after he had booked off early without his patrol sergeant's permission.

Ted Bundy, association vice-president, said Syd Brown, president, took the case up with police officials and the punishment was withdrawn.

It lasted "maybe that one shift," he said, "It would appear that some sergeant got out of line and got smart."

Mr. Bundy said he's heard of plenty of unusual punishments but "never anything so idiotic as marching back and forth in front of the police station."

Raw Opium Seized

SMITHS FALLS, Ont. (CP) — Police seized 1¼ pounds of raw opium Tuesday, with a street value of $14,575, and charged five persons with possession of opium for the purpose of trafficking.

Names of the man and four women charged have not been released.

They were charged after a raid on a local residence Tuesday night by a combined force of Smiths Falls municipal police and the Brockville detachment of the RCMP.

The five are scheduled to appear in Smiths Falls provincial court Jan. 7.

Paris Mail Delivered In Less Than 2 Hours

PARIS (Reuter) — Each day Parisians send more than 100,000 pieces of mail—everything from press releases to love letters—via a system invested more than a century ago which gets them from sender to receiver within this capital in less than two hours.

These express letters speed through underground tubes at around 25 miles an hour in plastic containers equipped with their own guidance system. The mail is sorted and delivered at the same speed as telegrams.

This remarkably efficient service is known as the Pneumatique and, while it is not unique in Paris, the French capital's network is the most extensive in the world.

More modern pneumatic tube services exist in such cities as West Berlin, Hamburg and Zurich, but they come nowhere near equalling the density of the Paris system. 269 miles of tubes criss-crossing the city in all directions and linking most of its 133 post offices.

The first pneumatic tube in Paris was laid in 1866 and the network was gradually expanded to cover the entire city.

The cartridges containing the express letters were first pushed along the steel tubes by air that was compressed by water pressure. This was changed to a system using steam engines and finally in 1933 electric air compressors were built to do the job.

For a system which can shoot a letter from one end of Paris to another in an hour, not counting sorting or delivery time, the Pneumatique is essentially simple.

The sender spends a dollar for postage, and the letter goes to a special section of the post office to be put along with other express letters from outside Paris, some telegrams and post office official correspondence into an oblong plastic container less than a foot long.

The container, which can hold up to about 30 messages, is then programmed by means of three copper bands linked together by electric wires to take it to its destination.

Depending whether it is to go to a main post office or one of the smaller branches, it is inserted into a tube and sent on its way by compressed air.

Just before the container reaches its destination, it passes a switch which is activated by the copper band combination and shunts the cartridge into a delivery tube. The cartridge falls out of the tube onto a conveyor belt which takes it into the sorting room, where the mail is removed from it, sorted and delivered.

Cartridges which travel long distances across Paris have to be switched manually from one line to another to reach their final destination. But a full two-thirds of the system is automatic.

Despite the efficiency of the system, post office officials admit that the steel tubes that make up all but 25 miles of the network are getting old. Some, in fact, have been in place for 40 years. Their normal lifespan is 20 years.

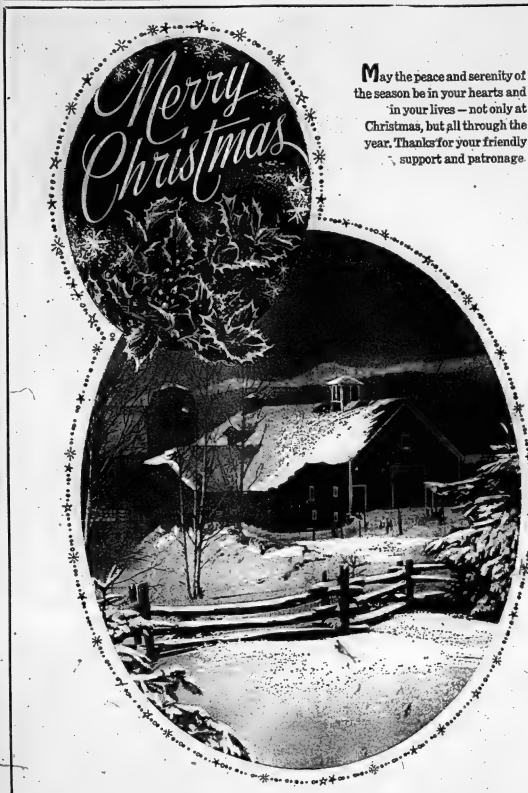
Replacements are by plastic piping, which the officials say, has the great advantage of not rusting.

The 1,200 cartridges used in the system are all plastic having replaced the old steel containers. They are lighter, travel faster and have fewer parts—15 instead of 40—than the old steel ones. They are cleaned once every two weeks.

A total of 350 persons are employed permanently to keep the Pneumatique functioning. Of these, about 100 are technicians and repair crews who are rushed to the site of a malfunction within minutes.

The tubes are laid alongside the city's sewer pipes, which means they can easily be reached for repairs.

The system functions from 7 a.m. until 8:30 p.m. on weekdays, until 6 p.m. on Saturdays and up to noon on Sundays and holidays.



Post office authorities said they are studying plans to send small objects, such as microfilms and electric components, through the Pneumatique tubes and are looking into ways of using computers to guide cartridges in a

In today's busy life style it is difficult to be sure every member of the family is well-fed.

Brash Bobby Darin Dies After Surgery

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Bobby Darin, whose records of Mack the Knife and Splish Splash made him one of the stars of the rock 'n' roll era a decade ago, died today at 37 after open heart surgery.

Darin had a history of heart trouble dating back to the age of eight, when he contracted rheumatic fever.

Spokesman David Gershenson said the entertainer died just after midnight local time in the intensive care ward of Cedars of Lebanon Hospital, where he had undergone a six-hour operation Wednesday.

He had been admitted Dec. 11 for an examination, when it was discovered that one of two artificial valves inserted in his heart in 1971 was not functioning properly, Gershenson said.

The brash, ambitious Darin once vowed publicly that he would become a legend before he was 25. And he almost made it.

By the age of 24, he was playing the country's top night spots, had signed $2 million worth of movie contracts and had married his leading lady, Sandra Dee.

But he admitted on his 25th birthday, that he hadn't made it.

"How can anyone be a legend when he has been exposed to the public for only 25 years?" he asked. But he added that he expected to become a legend eventually, "and an institution by 30."

Darin's aggressiveness stemmed from his early years of struggle in the Bronx according to his friends. He was born Walden Robert Cassotto on May 14, 1936, and he grew up a skinny, sickly kid in a tough neighborhood. His father, whom he described as a small-time gangster, died before he was born. His mother lived on welfare.

He learned to play the drums and was further toughened by appearing in the rugged show business schooling of summer resorts in the Catskills. Bitter and disillusioned, he sought escape from his drab city life by writing songs. He showed them to a young publisher, Donnie Kirshner, and his career began.

Picking the name Darin out of the telephone book, he began recording on the Decca label with little success. Then in May of 1958 he made the record Splish Splash, a song he said he wrote in 12 minutes. The record sold 100,000 copies in three weeks and established Darin as a teen-age idol.

A recording of Kurt Weill's Mack the Knife, based largely on an earlier interpretation by Louis Armstrong, sold two million copies and established Darin as a top singer.

"I had to get beyond rock 'n' roll: Mack introduced me to the adult world," Darin said.

Comedian George Burns adopted Darin as a protege and the pair appeared together in Las Vegas and on television. Darin's first movie was Come September, in which he played opposite Sandra Dee. They eloped in December 1960. A son, Dodd, was born in 1962.

Darin appeared in more films: Too Late Blues, Hell Is For Heroes, If a Man Answers, and Point Blank. He received an Academy Award nomination for best supporting actor for his role in Captain Newman MD. He had his own television series.

But in the mid-1960s his career began to run down. So did his marriage to Sandra Dee; they were divorced in 1967 after she told a judge: "He just woke up one morning and didn't want to be married any more."

Six months ago Darin married Andrea Joy Yeager, a legal secretary.

By 1970, Darin had changed his professional name to Bob and was peppering his night club act with anti-war remarks. His career declined further, but a year ago he staged a comeback and was once again making television appearances and headlining in Las Vegas.

He seemed to have lost what one critic had called his "built-in arrogance," and Darin himself admitted: "I have found an inner peace which precludes my doing battle with myself. As a result, the chances of my doing battle with the rest of the world are removed.

Funeral arrangements were pending.

New Policy

OTTAWA (CP) — All bids 30 days or more from government tenders worth more than $10,000 are to be opened in public from now on, the Cabinet was told Wednesday.

Supply Minister Jean-Pierre Goyer said the new policy, which replaces one in effect since 1961, will make the bidding system more open and above-board.

Showbiz Shorts

PARIS (AP) — Finance Minister Valery d'Estaing announced Friday the French government has decided to accept the late Pablo Picasso's priceless collection of paintings by other artists, none of which helped inspire his own genius.

The acceptance practically freed Picasso's principal heirs, his widow Jacqueline and his son Paulo, from payment of inheritance taxes on the value of the pictures collected by Picasso throughout his life.

They included works by Le Nain, Corot, Cezanne, Degas, Matisse, Renoir, Braque, Courbet, Van Gogh, Gauguin, Rousseau, Miro and Modigliani.

Jacqueline and Paulo announced almost immediately after Picasso died April 8 that they would offer his collection of works by other artists to the state-owned Louvre museum on condition that the pictures remain exhibited together.

The thousands of paintings, sculptures, lithographs and pottery works by Picasso himself were not included in the gift and presumably remain subject to inheritance taxes.

PROVO, Utah (AP) — The rock music group Three Dog Night has been banned—at least temporarily—from the campus of Brigham Young University, (BYU) probably along with many other rock performers.

The move by the administration of the largest church-supported university in the United States is said to have been prompted by a recent anti-rock speech by a general authority of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints (Mormon), which operates the college.

Three Dog Night, which was scheduled to appear at the university next March, was voted most popular in a recent student poll at BYU, a school with 25,000 students.

"We want to make sure that we don't bring a group to BYU" that will lower the school's standards," said Mark Alexander, student social ethics director.

Alexander said a recent talk by Mormon Elder Boyd Packer about rock music resulted in closer scrutiny of groups brought to the universities.

In the past, rock groups and stars were asked not to smoke or drink while at BYU, but stiff dress and grooming standards were waived, he said.

HOLLYWOOD (Reuter) — The Hollywood Woman's Press Club restored Sunday its Sour Apple award to critics after Norman Mailer for writing a "cruelly unauthentic version" of the life story of Marilyn Monroe.

Mailer, author of the biography Marilyn, competed for the award against film actor Marlon Brando and James Aubrey Jr., former Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer head who almost closed down the operations of the historic studio during his four years in the job.

The women dropped their Sour Apple award last year after its award to radical actress Jane Fonda the year before proved unpopular with much of the club's membership.

Mailer was cited for "casting a cloud of gloom over the entire world of women" by writing a book which "depicts women as stupid, vain, shallow, empty-headed, unfeeling, unthinking, unloving, unlovable, unlovely, unlovelorn, unlovemaking, unlovemaking, unlovemaking

Campus Unrest Plagues Prime Minister Gandhi

BOMBAY (CP) — Hopes of durable campus peace held out by presidents of Indian universities have not materialized.

On the contrary, there has been a spate of student demonstrations in several provinces over the last few weeks. This is said to be worrying the administration of Prime Minister Indira Gandhi which has been trying to involve the nation's youth in constructive, nation-building work in rural areas.

The frivolous nature of the student agitations is causing utmost anxiety to ruling politicians and government officials.

For instance, students in the southern province of Karnataka are protesting such as Mysore, have made an issue of what they describe as "an insult to our literature" by a cabinet minister.

So far as is known, all the minister said was that the literature of the provincial language of Kannada needs to be "purified" and "cleansed of all outmoded thoughts."

Municipal Administration Minister Etawa Lingappa is known to be a politician with modern ideas. Among other things, he has been campaigning for basic reforms in Hindu society including the total abolition of the 5,000-year-old caste system.

Observers think that orthodox elements are behind the Karnataka student unrest. According to one official, "a section of our youth seems to have been captured by old-fashioned elders who want to kill the process of progress back by several centuries."

Students in Madhya Pradesh province in central India went on a rampage opposing changes in the high school examination system.

Rioting students in Rajasthan province damaged government buses and cars. They were protesting a "equal treatment in every respect" for scientists trained in Western medicine and the traditional Indian system of Ayurveda.

At present, Western-oriented doctors receive more pay in public hospitals. The government has justified this on the ground that Western medicine is more advanced and requires more intensive training.

Student riots in West Bengal province, particularly in Calcutta, have sparked by a marginal increase in bus fares.

The southern province of Tamil Nadu was in the grip of student violence for a fortnight recently. The students there have been demanding an end to "official high-handedness."

The Tamil Nadu students say that police have an right o enter college campuses.

Even the normally placid atmosphere of colleges in Jammu and Kashmir province in northern India has been disturbed by student demonstrations.

The general feeling in Indian political circles is that the student riots are the work of disgruntled political groups who have been unable to make any headway in elections.

Among these groups are Communists, the right-wing Swatantra (Freedom) Party, the militant Jana Sangh (People's League), a Hindu religious group, and the Socialist party.

Observers, however, detect a flaw in the argument that the student demonstrations are all directed against the government of Prime Minister Indira Gandhi.

They say that in Tamil Nadu—the only Indian province where a party o'her than Mrs. Gandhi's Congress party runs the administration—supporters of Mrs. Gandhi have plotted hands with anti-government student groups.

These developments have revived public interest in the need for an all-party convention to leave the students alone.

Tape Forestry Service Story

OTTAWA (CP) — An oral history of the 75-year-old Canadian Forestry Service has been collected on tape and presented to the National Archives, Environment Canada has announced.

The history includes the personal recollections of "some very long-lived people," says Dr. Terrence Hoser of Ottawa, director of the project.

About 85 hours of tape were recorded during interviews with 30 men and women associated with the service as far back as 1898.

The project, which began in April, 1972, is part of a program to commemorate the forestry service's 75th anniversary next year.

OFFERS AWARDS

TORONTO (CP) — Sign on a downtown flower shop here: "Bring your wife a bunch of flowers. She must be mad at you for something."

TORONTO — A competition for best children's manuscripts submitted to the company between November and next May, Collier-MacMillan Canada Ltd., plans to give $200 to the author of the best manuscript in addition to any other earnings from the book, should the company decide to publish it.

SITTERS SEEK RAISE

PORT ELGIN, Ont. (CP) — Parents here may soon be paying more for baby sitters. Mary Kelly, a 15-year-old high school student, is one of the organizers behind a move to increase baby-sitting charges to 75 cents from 50 cents an hour. About 50 baby-sitters, both boys and girls, are involved. Mary also said that $1 an hour was not unreasonable after midnight. However, she has no intention of forming a union yet, she said.

CP News Roundup

Farm Land Vanishing

TORONTO (CP) — Opposition party leaders attacked the province's agricultural policies during a debate in the legislature Wednesday night.

Liberal leader Robert Nixon called the province's planning process for agricultural land "totally inadequate."

He said that if the farmers were adequately compensated for their labors, they would insist on strong protection for agricultural lands rather than trying to sell them for profit.

Mr. Nixon called for an effective provincial farm loan program. The program, he said, should be instituted without delay.

New Democratic Party Leader Stephen Lewis said that farm land in Ontario had been reduced by 2.6 million acres in the last seven years.

He said that without government protection for the farmers it was overseeing the "complete desolation" of farm land in Ontario.

"Unless the pattern is changed our agricultural economy will be destroyed within the next generation," Mr. Lewis said.

There was a serious and dramatic decline in the amount of farmland in the province, he said.

Won't Resign

HAMILTON (CP) — City Solicitor Ken Rouff said Wednesday he refuses to "resign as city solicitor and accept the position of corporation counsel," a move he says is a demotion.

Mr. Rouff announced his intention in a letter to the city board and Mayor Victor Copps, who denied that Mr. Rouff was asked to resign but said he was merely offered the new post.

Seek Buyer

QUEBEC (CP) — The government is continuing attempts to find an alternative buyer for Quebec Le Soleil, Premier Robert Bourassa said Wednesday.

"For all practical purposes," he said, a moratorium he imposed last September on sale of the newspaper has been prolonged.

The original moratorium, which ran out last Saturday, was an attempt to prevent the newspaper from being purchased by Paul Desmarais, a Montreal financier who already owns several newspapers in the province, including Montreal La Presse, the largest French-language daily in North America.

Store Sold

TORONTO (CP) — The T. Eaton Co. College St. store and land have been sold for more than $30 million to a new realty company formed by London Life Insurance Co., Canadian National Railways Pension Fund, Markborough Properties Ltd. and A. E. LePage Ltd.

Eaton's becomes a tenant of the store until plans for development of the property are made, a spokesman for the buyers said Wednesday.

Markets Close

TORONTO (CP) — Canadian stock exchanges will take a long break during the Christmas holiday—closing Monday and Tuesday, Dec. 24-25.

The New York and American stock exchanges will close Christmas Day but will be open Monday, Dec. 24.

London markets will be closed Friday, Dec. 21, and Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday Dec. 24-26.

Major commodity markets in Canada and the United States are closed Christmas Day and operate on short hours at various other times during the Christmas period.

Lot of Gas

OTTAWA (CP) — It required 3,330,000 gallons of aviation fuel to ferry Canadian United Nations Emergency Force troops to the Middle East, the defence department said Wednesday.

The information was given in answer to a written question by Paul Dick (PC—Lanark-Renfrew-Carleton).

Of the total, 880,000 gallons were obtained in Canada, 1,220,-000 at the Canadian Forces base at Lahr, West Germany, and 1,-230,000 during stops at Iceland, Scotland, England, Ireland, Cyprus and Egypt.

Costly

OTTAWA (CP) — Maintaining Prime Minister Trudeau's official residence at 24 Sussex Drive in Ottawa and his cottage at Harrington Lake, Que., cost taxpayers $171,356.78 in the fiscal year ended March 31, the Commons was informed Wednesday.

Taxpayers also paid $61,560 for renovations to Mr. Trudeau's offices in the Centre Block of the Parliament Building, say government figures released in answer to written questions from Conservative MPs Tom Cossitt (Leeds) and Robert Coates (Cumberland-Colchester North).

The figures for the two residences include salaries, maintenance, renovations, entertainment and fuel.

JACK MCNIE

Change Grants

TORONTO (CP) — Jack McNie, minister of colleges and universities, announced Wednesday a revision of the operating grants formula for provincially assisted universities with church-related colleges.

The minister said the policy could generate a total of $3 million in grants for Laurentian University and the Universities of Toronto, Waterloo and Western Ontario.

Chatham Widow Wins Irish Sweeps Top Prize

DUBLIN (CP) — Evelyn Archibald, a 64-year-old widow from Chatham, Ont., has won the $400,000 superprize, drawn in connection with the Irish Sweeps hurdle to be run near Dublin Dec. 27.

Mrs. Archibald told race officials by telephone early today she was a "typical Irishwoman" and had been forced to do odd jobs for the last several years to support herself.

Mrs. Archibald told the officials she had never won "even a toothpick" in her life before capturing the superprize, which goes to the holder of the first ticket drawn from the drum prior to the race. It is not dependent in any way on the outcome of the competition.

Mrs. Archibald, whose father was born in Ireland, says she plans to make her first trip here as soon as possible.

She is the seventh Canadian, all Ontarians, to win the superprize. Three have been won by Americans, two by Britons, and one by an Irishman.

A total of nearly $4 million will be awarded in prizes after the running of the race, with revenues from ticket sales reaching more than $8 million.

"The horses running are Comity of Errors, 11-to-10 favorite, Captain Christie at 2-1, Moonlight Bay at 5-1, Bit of a Jig, Brendan's Road and Bumble Boy, all at 25-1, Yesiel at 50-1, Judy Callen at 66-1, and Leaded and Royal Recorder at 100-1.

FERN GUINDON

Many Contracts Are Expected

TORONTO (CP) — Collective bargaining in Ontario will be heavy during 1974, though the number of contracts will be down slightly from this year, says a report released Wednesday by Labor Minister Fern Guindon.

The seventh annual survey of expiring collective agreements says 2,636 are scheduled to run out in the province in 1974. Of those in the United States, there has been "a very slight drop-page" in those driving south this winter.

John Cullen, Air Canada vice-president for the Ontario region, said the rush south began at the end of November, two weeks earlier than usual.

The airline plans to add extra flights, but it too faces restrictions because of the tightness of available fuel supplies.

In Montreal, a CP Air spokesman said bookings to Mexico and Hawaii are filled for Christmas and filling fast for after that.

Clive Pedley, manager, British Columbia region for Cook's World Travel Service, said some flights have been cut because of shortages, but travellers usually end up on other flights.

He said momentum starts about mid-November, picks up Dec. 1 and continues to March. About 40 per cent of his firm's customers go to Hawaii, 30 per cent to Mexico and the remainder elsewhere. Southern Spain is becoming more popular with those who have already been to Hawaii or Mexico, he said.

Accused Drove Car At Man He Assaulted

BRANTFORD, Ont. (CP) — A driving offence. A five-month Brantford man was sentenced Wednesday to eight months in jail and fined $300 for three offences, including assault causing bodily harm to a man in a July 3 argument over two puppies.

Peter Belanco Jr., 28, also was found guilty of dangerous driving for driving his car three weeks later at the man he assaulted, Raymond Monahan, missing him and knocking down a companion, Douglas Gadsby.

Judge W. A. MacDonald imposed a one-year suspension of Belanco's driver's license and the $300 fine for the dangerous term was set for the assault and three months on conviction of possession of stolen goods.

Court was told Belanco struck Mr. Monahan several times over the head with a shovel. Mr. Monahan said he was under doctor's care for injury to his eye.

Mr. Gadsby testified he suffered severe bruises and missed a week's work after being struck by Belanco's car.

The possession of stolen goods charge was laid after police found a grinder and metal cutter, owned by Canada Trailmobile Ltd. of Brantford, in a basement used by Belanco.

Energy Crisis Fails To Halt Hunt for Sun

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

When winter cold nips Canadians in their faces, they head south by the thousands, and despite energy shortages, they are doing the same this year.

A Cross-Canada Survey by The Canadian Press indicates that while many have expressed concern about fuel shortages, flights are forging ahead with the sun, sand and warmth—especially the warmth—in southern climates.

Travel agents said business is about the same as or better than last year with westerners preferring to spend their two to three weeks in Hawaii and Mexico, while easterners prefer Barbados and the Bahamas. For Central Canadians, the destinations are Florida and the Caribbean.

Last year, about 1.5 million Canadians spent their winter vacations in Florida, and about one million of these drove—500,-000 from Ontario.

The Ontario Motor League, which says it is the largest automobile club in Canada with 625,000 members, said that despite gasoline shortages and the Sunday closing of service stations in the United States, there has been "a very slight drop-off" in those driving south this winter.

Air Canada, Air Canada vice-president for the Ontario region, said the rush south began at the end of November, two weeks earlier than usual.

The airline plans to add extra flights, but it too faces restrictions because of the tightness of available fuel supplies.

In Montreal, a CP Air spokesman said bookings to Mexico and Hawaii are filled for Christmas and filling fast for after that.

Winter Begins Tonight

'Fall' Storm Closes 401

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Winter doesn't officially begin until 7:08 EST Tonight but Southern Ontario residents would be hard to convince as they dig out of up to 16 inches of snow with the white stuff still coming down early today.

After almost two days of snow, the Toronto weather office offered some hope. It said the storm should gradually taper off to flurries today and by Saturday skies should clear.

Highways and urban roads in southern Ontario were treacherous and accidents numerous Thursday night. Many flights out of Toronto were cancelled or delayed and trains were slowed.

Freezing rain following 10 inches of snow in the Cornwall area resulted in numerous truck accidents that for a time blocked Highway 401 in both directions.

"We'd just get one lot cleared away and another truck would jackknife into the ditch," a provincial police spokesman said.

THE WEATHER

Synopsis: Cold northwesterly winds dominate the weather picture in southern Ontario, where there is considerable cloudiness and flurry activity following snowfalls of six to 10 inches Thursday. The snow that lingers in Hamilton and many eastern Ontario counties will taper off to a few flurries today. In the lowveit areas just south of Lake Huron and Georgian Bay and the eastern Niagara Peninsula local snowsqualls activity may give an additional accumulation of two to six inches in a few localities today.

TEMPERATURES

	Max.	Min.
Today	29	16
One Year Ago	29	12
Precipitation 1.84 inches.

He said the eastbound lanes just east of Cornwall reopened after five hours Thursday night. But the westbound lanes were closed "on and off" for almost 12 hours.

Provincial police estimated up to 100 cars and trucks were stranded along Highway 401 in the 45-mile stretch from Gananoque to Brockville.

Rural bus lines cancelled their school runs today in Leeds and Grenville counties of eastern Ontario, giving an early start to the Christmas holidays to 12,000 children from 854 schools.

Accidents also closed for a time the southbound lanes of the Burlington Skyway near Hamilton, the northbound lanes of Highway 400 just north of Toronto, and the Don Valley Parkway in Toronto.

In Ottawa, another two inches of snow was expected today on top of 10 inches blown into street-blocking drifts Thursday.

Main thoroughfares in the capital were littered with abandoned cars and many stuck motorists checked into downtown hotels.

Air Canada said about 50 flights out of Toronto were cancelled Thursday and operations today were expected to be "spasmodic" until noon.

Most of the cancelled flights were short haul, up to 500 miles, and the airline arranged for buses to carry passengers to Ottawa, London, Windsor and Montreal.

Dorval airport in Montreal closed late Thursday.

Earlier, flights through Montreal were delayed when the weight of snow knocked down power lines, cutting off pumps on jet fuel pipelines.

In Metropolitan Toronto, a snow emergency was declared at 6 p.m. Thursday. The move bans parking on main streets to permit clearing operations.

Then Metro officials ran into another emergency: Many of the 863-member Ontario Haulers Association refused to report for snow removal because they said the $10 hourly rate was too low.

The city of Toronto had enough trucks for its own snow removal and Mayor David Crombie offered to provide trucks to assist the Metro roads department, responsible for arterial routes.

Under Metro's snow emergency bylaw, the owner of a car left on a designated snow route may be fined $25 and charged an additional $15 towing fee.

In Brantford, a snow emergency usually is declared when four inches are on the ground. But, despite the 10 inch fall Thursday, authorities held off declaring the emergency until 10 p.m. to give Christmas shoppers a break.

Freezing rain and rain drenched Montreal and Quebec City Thursday night with warnings up for another four to 12 inches of snow and freezing rain by the weekend. Earlier in the day both regions were hit with a six inch snowfall.

Although traffic was disrupted in Montreal, train and interprovincial bus services operated normally.

Canadian National and CP Rail spokesmen said long-distance trains were only slightly behind schedule, except for CN's Scotian from Halifax which chugged in an hour late.

The storm hit just as work crews were starting to make headway against six inches of snow from a similar storm Monday.

Most side streets in Montreal and Quebec City were clogged.

In a rare move, officials at Montreal's Blue Bonnets Raceway here halted the horse-racing program after the fourth race.

Allan-Tidsworth

Only a Reindeer Likes Today's Roads

As did many other city drivers, these motorists found themselves caught without traction in a downtown parking lot yesterday. Resorting to old faithful manpower, they sweated themselves free of the six inches of snow, sleet, and freezing rain which fell yesterday and this morning on the city. Roads continue to be treacherous in the aftermath of the storm, expected to subside today.

News Briefs

Speaker Taken Ill

TORONTO (CP) — Speaker Allan Reuter, 58, in hospital after collapsing while presiding over the legislature Thursday, was in "quite satisfactory" condition today, a hospital spokesman said. The spokesman said doctors were still investigating the cause of his illness. Mr. Reuter suddenly gave a gasp, clutched at his stomach and bent forward in the Speaker's throne. Health Minister Dr. Richard Potter and Dr. Charles McIlveen, Progressive Conservative member for Oshawa, who were in the house, went to his aid. Dr. McIlveen told reporters later the Speaker may have suffered a heart attack, but that would be confirmed only by hospital tests. Mr. Reuter is a longtime diabetic and also suffers from emphysema for which he takes cortisone shots.

Acupuncture Works

TORONTO (CP) — Mayor Mel Lastman of the borough of North York says that after three acupuncture treatments, he no longer has the headache that bothered him daily for 20 years. He no longer needs eight headache pills a day, but he's looking for something to take for the cold that he caught after the headaches disappeared.

GM To Recall Cars

OSHAWA, Ont. (CP) — About 70,000 General Motors cars in Canada will be recalled early in the new year due to a defect in the front suspension systems in 1974 models, Bill Austin, GM's public relations director, said today. Cars affected will be most large Chevrolet, Pontiac, Oldsmobile, and Buick models.

Fast Time Adopted

VICTORIA (CP) — The British Columbia government, ignoring the advice of the federal government, has decided to follow the example of the United States and set clocks ahead one hour all year long.

Ten-Gallon Limit Asked

WASHINGTON (CP — An official appeal to United States motorists to use only 10 gallons of gasoline a week could become mandatory if the emergency energy bill becomes law.

Lead Level Low

TORONTO (CP) — Environment Minister James Auld says a provincial test of soil in a schoolyard in Hamilton showed lead levels only a fifth that reported by a University of Toronto research team. The provincial test this week in the schoolyard of Canadian Martyrs separate school board level levels of 360 parts per million, Mr. Auld told the legislature Thursday.

Bombs Explode

LONDON (Reuter) — Two bombs exploded outside the London Hilton Hotel early today, the latest in a continuing wave of bomb attacks in the capital. No one was injured in the double blast just after midnight at the 27-storey hotel which overlooks Buckingham Palace, the official residence of the Queen. Police described both devices as small and said damage was minimal.

After 25 Years Neighbors Sit At Peace Table

GENEVA (AP) — The first Arab-Israeli peace conference in the 25-year existence of the Jewish state opened today with United States Secretary Henry Kissinger calling on the two sides "to break the shackles of the past and to create at least a new hope for the future."

Kissinger spoke after Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko declared himself for creating an intolerable situation in the Middle East and warned that "the Arab cause" has the full support of the Soviet Union. Kissinger and Gromyko are the conference co-chairmen.

The conference opened 40 minutes late with the chief antagonists, Israel and Egypt, at opposite sides of a seven-table circle. A television hookup carried the opening session to all West European countries, Israel, Rumania, Algeria and Tunisia, and the highlights were taped for broadcast in Eastern Europe.

Egypt's foreign minister, Ismail Fahmy, indicated one of the deadlocks that Kissinger predicted. He insisted that Israel must pull back from all territory occupied during the 1967 Six-Day War including Arab East Jerusalem. Israel has said repeatedly that it will not give up all the captured territory and that it will never relinquish East Jerusalem, which Jordan seized in the 1948 war.

The opening session lasted for an hour and 25 minutes, then the conference took a three-hour lunch break.

Israeli Foreign Minister Abba Eban was to speak at the afternoon session.

United Nations Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim presided at the ceremonial opening session and told the delegations there was no need to remind them "of the concern of the international community for the success of our deliberations."

Waldheim said their goal must be a "just and durable peace in the Middle East."

The seven tables around the council chamber were assigned to Israel, Egypt, Jordan, Syria, the United States, the Soviet Union and the United Nations.

Syria is boycotting the conference, and its table was empty.

Basque Anarchists Blamed for Killing

MADRID (AP) — A Madrid newspaper said today police arrested a wounded 18-year-old youth believed to be one of three terrorists who assassinated Spanish Premier Luis Carrero Blanco. Police declined comment.

The paper, Informaciones, attributing its information to informed sources, said the youth was shot in the cheek by police in a Madrid apartment.

It said he answered the description given to police of one of three young men who rented a cellar apartment near the scene of the explosion that killed the premier.

Europa Press said the killers are believed to be a small group of anarchists. A communique issued in Bordeaux, France, said the blast was the work of ETA, the Basque separatist organization, which has long been at war with the Franco government. But the head of the Basque exile government said he believes the communique was a fake.

The government said only that the assassination was a "criminal attack" and did not speculate on the identity of the assassins.

The 70-year-old premier was killed as his chauffeur started to drive away from Admiral Carrero Blanco's interim-bombed church after mass. The CIfra news agency which often speaks for the government, said the killers rented a basement across from the church. Gaz a tunnel under the street and put the bomb or bombs under the parking spot the premier used every morning when he went to mass.

CIfra said the explosion apparently was set off from some distance away because electrical cables were discovered leading from the tunnel. Europe Press said the tunnel had been braced with iron bars to prevent traffic overhead caving it in before the explosion.

James Bay Project Goes Ahead

OTTAWA (CP) — In a 3-2 decision, the Supreme Court of Canada refused today a motion by James Bay Indians to halt work on the $6-billion James Bay hydroelectric project.

Chief Justice Gerard Fauteux, in his last judgment before retiring, said it would not be proper for the Supreme Court to express any views on an appeal now before the Quebec Court of Appeal.

The Indians were granted an injunction by the Quebec Superior Court against work on the giant Quebec project on the grounds that they held an interest in the land.

However the Quebec appeal court, in agreeing to review the court decision, also granted a motion by the James Bay Development Corp. that work be allowed to continue while the appeal was being heard.

In its majority decision the Supreme Court refused to review the decision of the appeal court and to halt the work.

Mr. Justices Douglas Abbott and Wilfred Judson agreed with the chief justice's decision.

Disagreeing were Mr. Justice Ronald Martland, soon to become chief justice, and Mr. Justice Roland Ritchie.

Mr. Justice Martland said in his dissent that lawyers for the Indians had succeeded in persuading the court that there were material issues involved in the decision of the Quebec appeal court and that leave to appeal their judgment ought to be granted.

Teacher Strike Issue Laid Aside for Month

TORONTO (CP) — The 29th legislature adjourned Thursday for the Christmas break, relaxed in knowing that the controversial teachers issue lay dormant for a month.

Education Minister Thomas Wells announced in the house that the government had agreed not to proceed with Bill 274, which nullified the negotiations of almost 8,000 teachers in 18 jurisdictions and imposed compulsory arbitration if the disputes were not settled by Dec. 31.

In turn, spokesmen for the teachers agreed to extend the effective date of their mass resignations one month to Jan. 31.

The compromise was reached during 2½ hours of meetings involving Premier William Davis, Mr. Wells and teachers representatives at a Toronto hotel Wednesday night.

However, the government emphasized it would proceed with Bill 274 if an agreement was not reached by Jan. 31.

Mr. Wells told the legislature the compromise stipulates that voluntary arbitrators agreed upon by local teachers and trustees by Jan. 31 will not be bound by the province's education ceilings.

However, should the government be forced to proceed with Bill 274, the "compulsory" arbitrators would be bound by the ceilings, Mr. Wells added.

Meanwhile, public elementary school teachers, principals and vice-principals in Lennox-Addington County came to terms with the board of education Thursday.

The new two-year contract, costing an estimated $400,000, will give a slacher with two years experience $6,100 a year. Under the old contract, which expires Dec. 31, the same teacher made $5,000.

The board also agreed to pay three-quarters of the cost of fringe benefits compared with two-thirds under the old pact and will share the cost of a new dental plan on a 50-50 basis with the teachers.

Still at issue is Bill 275 which Mr. Wells promised to present at the spring session. It contains clauses for compulsory arbitration and forbids mass resignations as a bargaining tool.

Mr. Wells refused to call his statement a compromise, preferring to term it "an arrangement."

Both opposition leaders expressed pleasure in the announcement and hailed it a victory for the teachers.

Liberal Leader Robert Nixon said he was "delighted, but the thing I regret is that the premier didn't enter into the negotiations six months ago."

New Democratic Party Leader Stephen Lewis said he was relieved, but, "the whole thing could have been settled behind the scenes two weeks ago."

Christmas Lights Are Dismantled

GUELPH, Ont. (CP) — The energy crisis took a new twist Thursday when a homeowner here found his Christmas lights dismantled, wrapped in ribbon and left neatly on his doorstep.

Police said none of the lights were damaged and that a note left with the lights included a miniature Ontario design with a lightning flash drawn through it—and the following message:

"Energy crisis, energy crisis, rah, rah, rah! Energy crisis, energy crisis, yes, boom, bah!

We shall win. We shall fight. We shall get your Christmas light.

The note was signed: "Power Protectors," police said.

Disaster Insurance Decision Postponed

TRENTON — The public utilities commission here will wait until at least the New Year before it makes any decision on "extra insurance against disasters."

The Ontario Municipal Electric Association is investigating ways and means of setting up a co-operative insurance scheme that would ease the loss in situations similar to the Brighton windstorm disaster earlier this year.

The letter, received by the commission this week, gives little technical information particularly, on cost.

The commission decided to hold the letter and have PUC manager Doug Manlow check into what insurance coverage the PUC has at present.

Mr. Manlow said there was some insurance arrangement with Ontario Hydro but could not comment on it without researching the situation.

A report is expected at the commission's next meeting.

Hilton Chairman Once More

TRENTON — Charles Hilton, active with Trenton's Public Utilities Commission for 12 years was named today as the commission's chairman for the coming year.

Mr. Hilton has served in this capacity on five previous occasions.

His PUC service and that of commissioner Jim MacDonald brings 24 years of experience to the commission.

Woman Hurt In Crash Near Picton

PICTON (Staff) — A Bloomfield area woman was treated Thursday at Prince Edward County Hospital following a two-car collision on Schoharie Road.

Injured was Joanne Insead, passenger in a car driven by her husband, Richard Insead, 21, RR 1 Bloomfield. Mrs. Insead suffered a broken nose.

Driver of the second car was Philip Hennessy, 17, of RR 1 Picton.

The two cars received only minor damage.

Only three minor accidents were reported by police following Thursday's snow and freezing rain storm.

About an inch of snow fell at Picton and today this was covered by a heavy icecrust as result of the rain which followed the snowstorm.

Inaugural

PICTON — Prince Edward County council's inaugural meeting for 1974 will be held on Jan. 8, when a new warden will be chosen.

Although no member of county council has formally declared that he is seeking the warden's office it is rumored that Hallowell reeve Keith MacDonald is the most likely candidate.

Mr. MacDonald is a well-known athlete in the Quinte area and a prominent farmer in Prince Edward. He has served this year as chairman of council's road committee.

Minister Not Deaf To Need

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario's 7,000 deaf will have their own $1 million community centre here in the next few years, if Rev. Robert Rumball has his way.

Mr. Rumball, a former Toronto Argonauts football player who is the only hearing member of the Ontario Mission of the Deaf board of directors, says the centre will be to the deaf what the Canadian National Institute for the Blind has been to the sightless.

"The important thing is that the deaf will know where they can get help," he said. "It's terribly important that they always have a place to go.

"This will the mission closed its 48-year-old church in downtown Toronto as the first step in the fund-raising appeal. Negotiations for a new location began and the mission moved to temporary quarters for what it hopes is only a two-or three-year wait.

The new centre will house 48 apartment suites, recreation rooms, classrooms for deaf children, a gymnasium and interdenominational chapel and offices.

Senior citizens who can't live alone and children who can't be helped elsewhere will be able to live at the centre. "It will be a place where they can come to learn to live."

With some professional help, the centre will be maintained by the deaf.

"They don't have rules saying it can't be done or that deaf people can't do it," said Mr. Rumball. "But they have come to realize that there are many things they cannot do for themselves and they're asking for help.

Students: The Gift of Giving

Students Help Make A Brighter Christmas

TRENTON — For some, Christmas can be the most melancholy day of the year.

Realizing Christmas is not a merry season for all, students at Trenton High School have brightened up the festive day for 40 Trenton families.

Over the past few days students have brought foodstuffs from home and, under direction of the students' council, have created 40 baskets of food. Each basket is topped with a turkey.

At all school and community effort, the food basket idea will come to fruition today as members of the school's Key Club take the baskets to needy homes.

The downtown merchants pitched in with the program and subsidized part of the turkey costs. All other items were brought from home.

Brewers Stock Up For Rush

TRENTON— The Brewers Retail Store estimates 8,000 cases of beer will be sold here this weekend.

The beer outlet has doubled its regular stock for the Christmas season with more than 6,500 large cases, 2,500 medium cases and about 100 small cases on hand.

The demand for beer in the area is such that the outlet recently added about 30 per cent more warehouse space to its Byron and Dundas Street location.

According to a representative the big beer rush will be this weekend. "You'll be lucky to get into the parking lot Monday, he said.

The big beer sales come at Christmas and then drop off, said the spokesman. From Christmas to New Year's Eve clientele turn to liquor.

For Humanity's Sake

Cardinal Leger, home from Africa where the realities of starvation and the underprivileged life strike home in a way few of us can really understand, is doing some of our current concerns in perspective.

He says the energy crisis is no more than a passing fancy compared with the problems of two billion people in Third World countries who live with famine and disease every day of their lives.

The former eminence of the Roman Catholic church in Montreal has been in Africa for six years. He began working with lepers and now has a hospital for handicapped children. In the Cameroons, for instance, two per cent of children have polio, while in the countries of the Sahara children as well as adults are starving during the present drought and in numbers he says cannot be made "real" to a Western audience.

Cardinal Leger puts the figure at millions now starving, with thousands already dead.

This Christmas let us heed as best we can any appeals made for these people, through the various churches or whatever. Let us not forget either the needs of our own community and country. It may be noted for example that the United Community Services participating agencies will receive less money from UCS funds this year than has been requested. The campaign has fallen far short of the $140,000 target.

If there is not enough for our own needy at home, it may be asked how can contributions be made to people in far off lands. This is a question each individual must answer for himself. When all is said and done whatever is extended by way of assistance is done in the name of all humanity.

A New World

New Canadians and visitors to Belleville from each widely-scattered parts of the world as Uganda and Australia are having a taste of what to them is the very unfamiliar cold and snow.

Here just about a year, one Ugandan whom we met in recent days has a job with an auto dealer. In Africa he had his own hotel and restaurant business and also sold used cars. But Canada, he says, is a good country with nice people. He sees possibilities of resuming business here.

Meanwhile Australians Deborah Chatters and Rosemary Dowd have only a short time remaining before they return to Bundaberg on the Queensland coast north of Brisbane.

Completing a year's exchange at Belleville schools under the auspices of the Rotary Club, the girls will be given a special send off at the club's meeting of December 31 when members and their families will be present.

The sojourn among us of the two Australian teenagers, as well as South Africans Dale Lumley and Sonja Johnson before them, and the growing awareness among Belleville people are all part of the process of betterment that the community is experiencing.

And not forgetting the local students who are the other half of the exchange: Ian Acton and Peter Cox (now living in western Ontario), who spent a year in South Africa, and Tom Wilkinson, now in Australia. Their experiences overseas also contribute to new understanding at home and abroad.

LIP Program

Government-funded projects are many and varied, their value to the individual and community sometimes questionable. However, the latest round of Local Initiatives Projects, while not adding much to employment in the area, does reflect on a local as well as country-wide basis the potential for fostering creative activity in many spheres.

Out of a total of 234 projects approved throughout Canada, creating a total of 1,570 jobs, Hastings county has been awarded seven for a total of 29 jobs.

The real value in this program lies perhaps in the fact that "local initiative," as the program name implies, is given a boost. Inevitably some are disappointed, what seems like a valuable project is turned down, yet trust in turn may leave room for private initiative. Must we depend on the Government for all our needs? But then, that is another story.

On Staying Alive This Holiday Season

Just Another Driver Safety Article? Then Read This

Canadian Automobile Association

DRIVE CAREFULLY . . . BUCKLE UP . . . SPEED KILLS . . . SLOW DOWN AND LIVE . . . slogans in big bold black letters on expensive white billboards, daily newspaper articles, accident statistics, television specials, public service campaigns, community and national safety rallies, artwork safety programs and mountains of "learn to drive" books and literature: today's automobile driver is continually and ever increasingly reminded of the grim and automatic responsibility he assumes as he sits behind the wheel.

And automobile manufacturers are continually pressured by government and concerned citizens groups to make safer and more responsive automobiles. The aim of all this manpower and energy input towards safety is quite obvious, to decrease automobile accidents. The ultimate objective would be to eliminate them. But is this such a thought is but a far-away dream, and probably will always be, as long as the primary dictable human factor is involved.

And now we should probably pause for a moment, because you the reader and I the writer, share a common problem . . . "this is another safety article," and in McLuhanist lore, readers "tune out" when it comes to safety. We have read it all before, the themes are pretty predictable: "you may be next," "slaughter on the highway", "the modern day killer", sensational headlines which have come to carry about as much impact as a last year's mag commercial. And even when we happen upon a tragic scene, as we did yesterday on two crumpled steel masses, rooted jagged holes in the windshields, remnants of a tragic day . . . we slow down, we have a lump in our throat, for how long? Fifty miles perhaps?

You and I, we no longer say or even believe "it can't happen to me." Maybe we never did believe that, why we are, generally, careful safe drivers. But then again, all drivers believe they drive safely, those who don't are too scared to drive.

Perhaps you have noticed in the last few years that the pressure has been off the drivers. Increasingly, emphasis has been placed on the actual vehicle itself, so if you have an accident, if some drunken fool or over-eager driver into you (if that's how you think of it), at least you won't be hurt quite so badly. But we don't buy cars for their safety features, or certainly such features are not foremost consideration. Styling, comfort, cost, mileage (especially recently) seem to be the most usual car buyer priorities. That is why safety features on cars have only been demanded recently and only through the efforts of a small minority. That's why very few of today's drivers fasten their seabelts, even though the majority of all drivers realize that seatbelts save lives.

Just recently, Transport Canada released the final fatality figures for 1972. What is most disturbing about them is not the number of people killed on the highways, the reader gets inundated with such figures every weekend; but rather that after a most encouraging leveling off in deaths between 1968 and 1971, preliminary figures for 1972 reveal that the fatality rate has suddenly increased a full 12 per cent.

Now that is a strange, and might I add, tragic phenomenon. And it points to one conclusion, that a safer vehicle is only part of the answer, that it is still the driver himself who is the problem, who needs more programming to drive safely all the time.

A quick look at other statistics for the 13-year period from 1958 to 1972 also reveals a significant rise in traffic injuries. this is not too surprising in light of the rise in traffic fatalities. But during these same years a sharp increase in traffic offences was reported by the police; certainly much of this is due to the inclusion of the breathalyzer in 1969 which probably also explains a drop in traffic injuries that year) but it seems rather obvious that there is increasing surveillance by the country's police forces, that is having an effect on the safe driving records of motorists.

Perhaps motorists consider a traffic infraction as a penalty for "being caught" rather than as an indication of unsafe driving behavior. There were fewer traffic accidents reported today than in 1969, but don't be misled. Up to the year 1969, all accidents causing a hundred dollars or more damage had to be reported. Since then, accidents need not be reported unless at least $200 damage has been incurred.

Traffic fatalities and injuries are both increasing in Canada far out of proportion to the increase in car registrations. How can this sad situation be rectified?

Christmas and New Years are only a few days away, in all parts of Canada, people will be holidaying and many driving on icy roads and under poor visibility conditions. Both federal forces and other motorists will be taking their last car ride, their late oblivious to the fact that this is the season of merriment; their driving ability perhaps clouded by this same fact. Almost all of the accidents will be caused by human error.

It is good that cars are getting safer. But who will protect the driver from himself? You. The Canadian Automobile Association advises you to be a safe driver this holiday season.

Consumer Privacy Legislation Still Awaited

By BARMER TISSINGTON
Thomson News Service
OTTAWA — If and when the House of Commons finishes with such important matters as the energy crisis, the increase in the cost of living and unemployment, the government may get around to introducing legislation to protect the privacy of Canadian consumers.

Recently, spokesmen for all four parties in the house expressed unanimity concerning a private member's bill, introduced by Newfoundland MP James McGrath, on protecting consumers from unfair credit reporting practices.

As is the case with most private bills, the lengthy and complicated McGrath bill was talked out in the time allotted for debate on second reading. But all MPs who took part commended the bill and agreed there is a need for the federal government to play.

One Liberal, Paul McRae of Port William-Fort, closed the debate by agreeing there is unanimity that the bill should be looked at carefully. He suggested the Department of Consumer and Corporate Affairs was the appropriate place where the McGrath bill could be examined in detail and that in a coming session of parliament, government-sponsored legislation might be brought forward.

One difficulty with federal participation is that the matter falls mainly in the field of provincial responsibility. Several provinces have either passed or their own legislation or are in the process of drafting it. Despite this, many people in the consumer field share the federal government has a role to play in filling in gaps which may exist in provincial Act.

Mr. McGrath points out that credit reporting has become very widespread in recent years, particularly as Canada has moved steadily toward a cashless society. He has estimated that six million Canadians are directly affected by credit ratings and that they are compiling such reports is often misleading and damaging to the consumer. There is a heavy reliance on secondary sources of information, and this often damages people's reputations.

He is also concerned with the consumer's right to see his own credit rating report. This right is often severely limited. A recent survey by the Consumer's Association of Canada reveals that only in two cities was access to the reports readily accessible.

The two provinces which have moved the farthest in establishing legislation in the field are Ontario and British Columbia. The Ontario Consumer Reporting Act was introduced in 1973 and will become law on January 1, 1974. It requires licensing of consumer reporting agencies, prohibits indiscriminate collection and disclosure of credit information to another credit grantor or business firm.

While the Ontario law is considered by many to be milestone legislation, there is nothing to prevent it being used as credit reporting. Mr. McGrath, was particularly active in the consumer field in the Commons, has been working on the matter of privacy since he put his first private bill on the order paper.

Some federal cabinet ministers are already on record as favoring action by Ottawa. When John Turner was Minister of Justice, he delivered a paper to Queen's University and said this:

"The orbit of privacy will be an ever-shrinking one, but the need for privacy will become more paramount than ever. The law must ensure that the right to privacy remain sacrosanct. The erosion of privacy is the beginning of the end of freedom."

Mr. McGrath argues that it is only the federal government which can ensure a standard of privacy with regard to credit reporting right across the country. Only the federal government can protect Canadians from inter-provincial and international trafficking in individual credit information. Credit reporting has become big business, with the sophisticated technique and the use of data banks and credit cards.

J. D. James, the author of The Canadian Consumer Handbook, notes that credit investigators churn out files on individuals the way a sausage factory turns out sausages. Many are based on little or no fact, report turned out. The fact that there are many inaccuracies is not hard to understand.

One response to these criticisms comes from the Associated Credit Bureau of Canada which argues that credit is a privilege and a person must be prepared to lose some of his privacy to enjoy the advantages that privilege. But Mr. McGrath and others do not agree. Credit is now an almost essential, and absolutely vital part of the new cashless society. In any event, I question that we should have to lose any part of our privacy in order to qualify for that," the Newfoundland MP declares.

The average Canadian has no idea of the information that a credit bureau may have on him, often on personal matters that are irrelevant to his credit rating. He is not allowed to see this information even though this credit rating is used to help or hinder many aspects of his family. There is no provision for challenging it.

"Not only that," Mr. McGrath notes, "there is no limit on the length of time that information, which is all too often erroneous or no longer relevant, is to be kept on file."

Unless governments at both levels move to stop these abuses, Canada may well be moving toward 1984 at a faster rate than many realize.

Do We Really Do Our Own Thing?

The Globe and Mail

For a society that coined phrases about "doing your own thing", this one clings pretty tightly to custom and convention in its day-to-day habits. These include, of course, the masochistic habit of following the same hours of work — a practice that blunders most Metro Toronto residents daily into what is called, with unconscious irony, rush hour.

Why do we persist in this madness? (The editorial "we" should be excluded: one of the joys of morning newspaper work is that it is largely out of phase with the lockstep nine-to-five crowd.) Why does the majority inflict on itself the discomfort, tension, inconvenience and expense that is the natural consequence of a simultaneous dive for the exit?

Premier William Davis gathered about him the other day the presidents and directors of 45 of the largest companies in downtown Toronto and told them that staggered working hours must receive a high priority in Ontario's transportation planning.

A ragged cheer might burst from the lips of those who see, in the principle of staggered hours, savings and other benefits that are a lost incalculable. But one would have to have very modest objectives indeed to think that a mighty blow had been struck for the Big Idea.

In the first place, he is expanding the rush hour by just one hour at either end instead of the — gets the co-operation he needs to make significant inroads with the idea. If the real range of advantages is to be demonstrated, it will be by far more treatment than Mr. Davis seemingly pressed upon the businessmen.

But there are other fingers to be pried away from the old familiar things — notably those that clutch single-occupancy motor cars which are regulated to parade square uniformity. If we are to loosen up the work and travel habits of large numbers of people for the health of the total community, how can we go on to argue that the operations of stores should be cemented firmly in place?

There is no move away from the notion of a society that eats, sleeps, works and almost breathes in unison. It should be undertaken throughout the whole system of institutions and services. There was, however, nothing to indicate that anything of the kind was in the mind of Provincial Justice Secretary George Kerr a few days ago when he was given prime power in the Legislature on the subject of "Leisure shopping and weekday store hours."

It was more of a yellow paper. Concentrating on avoiding anything that might be construed as Sunday shopping, it raised distinct traces of intimidation at the hands of the group that is anxious to keep stores in line.

Mr. Kerr's treatment of the subject has been, thus far, to review his options. It's nice to have options to review; the average consumer, contemplating rows of stores that closed the minute he left work, would ask for little more than a return of his options.

Those Parking Fines

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

Regarding the editorial, "Gift Wrapped" I wish to state my opposition to the move to increase the $1 fine for parking violation.

It is indeed a luxury to park ones car where/sooner and when one sooner one wishes only for the cost of a dollar, in the knowledge that the taxpayer pays the rest.

And knowing, or maybe not knowing, that illegal parking is a cause of inconvenience to many, disabled and pedestrians alike.

I hope, whoever gift-wrapped a parking ticket, has also sense enough to make it tenfold costly to those selfish drivers who break the regulations. This would help to pay the cost of the Parking Authority and also hit those who over-park in the right place.

TEN DOLLARS IS FAIR.

Yesterday And Today

Editor
The Intelligencer

This time last year Belleville was placarded with candidate's names and political promises poured from their lips.

Save a few, each had a platform which was to be followed would change things for the better.

Those who managed to get elected quickly came to realize that the glitter of the political platform needs the support of a majority of the people before they become nailed down.

Election promises are soon quickly forgaken by both candidates and the electorate because for the most part neither party takes the other seriously.

So none of us are particulary angry when Premier Jeffrey's promise to mend the roads has gone by the boards—When Addison was unable to have council meetings moved to evenings or when Ald. Hooks did not succeed in draping City Hall in Union Jacks.

By and large, Belleville has staggered along quietly and confident of interest that not reared its ugly head A vote of thanks must go to Stu Meeks for his hard work on the building of docks in the harbor. To Ald. Corke for the expedition with he handled the Frank Street mess. To Alderman Ack Keegan for his forthright conviction of something we all know. We have a very able team.

To the others -- well there's always next year.

Compromise Forecast

Energy Bill Could Provide For Parliament Veto Powers

OTTAWA (CP) — Agreement appears close on a compromise to crush the government's top-priority emergency energy bill through the Commons after two weeks of Liberal-Conservative deadlock.

Emerging from a Thursday night cabinet meeting, Prime Minister Trudeau said chances for agreement looked good and Energy Minister Donald Macdonald said there would be interparty talks on a Conservative compromise amendment.

The amendment, suggested by Elden Woollams (PC—Calgary North) was considered at the cabinet meeting after Mr. Macdonald proved receptive to it at a Commons resources committee session.

However, even if agreement is reached on the amendment, chances of the almost routine last-minute scramble to clear Commons business for the Christmas break seem slim.

The House is scheduled to have only Christmas Eve and Christmas Day off before sitting at 7 p.m. Boxing Day. Mr. Trudeau said Thursday night there is little hope of getting the energy bill passed before Christmas.

The bill is one of four items the government has said it wants passed before any lengthy recess. The three other items are a bill to levy a charge on crude oil exports, the election expenses bill and wire-tap legislation returned to the Commons by the Senate.

There were indications the other matters could be dealt with speedily, but government sources cautioned against speculation the package would be approved before Christmas.

The Woollams proposal would permit the Commons and Senate to veto any government declaration of an energy emergency, a prerequisite for imposition of energy rationing or other measures.

It goes part way to meeting Conservative objections that the bill would give the government too much power and that existence of an energy emergency has not been proven.

Mr. Macdonald objected Wednesday to a similar amendment, but he backed off Thursday in the face of continuing Conservative insistence on detailed committee study of the energy situation.

The bill would give the government sweeping powers, including mandatory allocation of petroleum products at the wholesale level beginning next month and the right to ration fuel at the retail level if the cabinet felt it necessary.

Debate on the election expenses bill continued to drag under the weight of 41 New Democrat amendments Thursday. The NDP had proposed 47 amendments to the proposed legislation but one which duplicated other proposals was withdrawn.

A Conservative source said Thursday night he expected the NDP that most of the amendments would be dropped quickly to facilitate a legislative clean-up.

However, Frank Howard (NDP—Skeena) has said he will try to block the bill and force its death on the Commons order paper. The Conservative MP said pressure would be on Mr. Howard to stop his admitted one-man filibuster of the bill if other New Democrats showed willing to let it pass.

Among other things, the bill would restrict election spending by parties and candidates and force disclosure of contributions exceeding $100.

The NDP amendments would cut the permitted expenses and prevent parties accepting contributions from non-Canadian sources.

Introduced June 22, the controversial bill is the first comprehensive attempt to regulate election expenses. It emerged from committee study earlier this week carrying 60 amendments made during more than two months of study.

Foreign Investment Guideliness Tabled

OTTAWA (CP) — Investors who might take advantage of a control-free period during implementation of foreign investment screening measures ran up against a set of guides to follow Thursday.

The guides, designed to stave off foreign takeovers of Canadian companies while the Foreign Investment Review Act is being put into force, were tabled in the Commons by Industry Minister Gillespie.

However, Conservative and New Democrat spokesmen were not all that impressed. They said they are weak and open to interpretation.

Paul Hellyer (PC—Toronto Trinity) and Lorne Nystrom (NDP—Yorkton-Melville) both said, after Mr. Gillespie's announcement, that multi-national corporations could use their subsidiaries for free expansion without screening.

To be proclaimed in two sections, the act—given royal assent last week—will affect acquisition of Canadian companies and deal with investment in new fields.

Mr. Gillespie said he hopes the first part will be effective "within the next three to four months" and the second part shortly after. The act must be proclaimed by mid-June.

Asked outside the House why it takes so long, he said he needs time to recruit the staff for a screening board that will oversee the gist.

"It's just not done overnight. I wish it could be."

Under the act, investment by foreign-controlled companies into unrelated fields will be screened by the board and could be stopped if the board sees no benefits for Canadians.

Mr. Gillespie said his guides are general, rather than precise rule. The act and the guides would not be retroactive and the government was asking potential investors to be "good corporate citizens."

U.S. Crisis To Affect Food Costs

MONTREAL (CP) — The energy crisis in the United States and the rest of the world might affect Canadian food imports, especially fruits and vegetables from the U.S., but the head of the federal food prices review board says Canadians should not suffer too much as a result.

Beryl Plumptre, chairman of the board, told a news conference Thursday the energy crisis will certainly have an effect on food prices in Canada "but it is too early to tell how great that effect will be.

"I don't think we'll suffer too much," she added.

In its second quarterly report, the review board urges the government to give priority in any rationing or allocation of energy supplies to the agriculture sector.

PCs Agree To Wiretap Revision

OTTAWA (CP) — Justice Minister Otto Lang, with a little help from the Conservatives, appears to have saved the government's wiretap legislation and averted a Commons-Senate confrontation.

The minister has won approval from the Conservatives for a compromise replacement of a section of the bill rejected by the Senate last week.

It is understood there is enough agreement in the Senate for the compromise that the bill could become law as soon as it is possible for Parliament to deal with it.

Last week the Senate, angering many in the Commons in the process, amended the bill to delete a section under which the subject of a wiretap would have to be informed of the fact within 30 days after the bugging.

The bill outlaws all private wiretapping—the first such legislation in Canada—and allows police wiretapping on permission of a judge.

Under the compromise, the same judge who gives an attorney-general or federal solicitor-general permission to place a tap would decide "if it is in the interests of justice and the protection of privacy that any person whose private communications have been intercepted be notified of such interception."

Two Face Trial

OTTAWA (CP) — Two employees of the provincial ministry of transport and communication were remanded Thursday to March 25 for trial on charges of unlawfully accepting benefits totalling $25,000 from Dibblee Construction Co. Ltd. of Gloucester Township.

Provincial court Judge Livius Sherwood decided, at a preliminary hearing, there was evidence enough against Kenneth William Ingham, 40, of Toronto, and Zotion Orbok, 46, of Richmond Hill, Ont., to commit them to trial.

Police Raid Firms In Gift-giving Probe

TORONTO (CP) — Construction companies suspected of giving gifts to employees of the Ontario Housing Corp. (OHC) between 1969 and 1971 are being raided by provincial police to determine whether the practice is still going on, a royal commission was told Thursday.

Albert Shepherd, counsel for the royal commission on violence in the construction industry, said about 30 police officers and accountants under the supervision of the anti-rackets squad are conducting the raids and will continue them during the Christmas period.

He said about a dozen OHC employees had taken gifts from construction firms doing business with the government agency. The gifts included $100 certificates, $250 tea services and color TV sets. One person received a $2,000 gift certificate and another a one-week holiday in the Bahamas.

Ten or more recipients of big gifts played key roles in awarding millions of dollars worth of housing contracts, Mr. Shepherd said. He said some have left the corporation since.

The commission lawyer gave no names in his testimony before Judge Harry Walsberg of county court, the inquiry commissioner. He said that after an OHC warning in 1971 not to take gifts, only small presents such as cases of liquor or certificates of low value were handed out.

Mr. and Miss Western Canada (?)

VANCOUVER (CP) — The new Miss Western Canada has determined views about the women's liberation movement.

"A man should look like a man and a woman should look like a woman," said Janice Thomson to a cheering crowd at a Vancouver nightclub where the contest took place.

Miss Thomson didn't have any complaints about Mr. Western Canada, Terry O'Neill, who looks like the guy who used to kick sand in the face of the skinny crew in those old body-building ads.

They were a lovely couple, especially when Miss Thomson ada picked up Miss Thomson with a flourish of pectoral and abdominal muscles and hoisted her to his manly shoulders.

This was the main event of the recent male-female Western Canada pageant but it wasn't quite as interesting as the preliminaries.

First, there was the intriguing question of the origin of the contest and its contestants.

Organizer John MIkl, who is the current Mr. Canada and Mr. U.S.A., said the joint contest was held under the auspices of the International Federation of Physical Culture, based in Montreal.

But it wasn't clear how he had chosen the 11 contestants for the Miss Western Canada pageant.

Shortly before her triumph, Miss Thomson said she entered because her boy-friend, who works out at Western Gym, told her about it. Other girls said they had received last-minute phone calls from Mr. MIkl, who asked them to take part.

Questioned in the chilly dressing room before the event, most of the female contestants were outspoken about their sisters in the women's liberation movement.

Jody Adamle, a 19-year-old legal secretary, said she preferred to be addressed as Ms. Adamle.

But Gail McKenzie groaned: "Oh, don't anyone use that horrible word."

The men competing for Mr. Western Canada didn't represent all corners of Western Canada. Nobody from Saskatchewan or Manitoba showed up but Ray Beaulieu, 22, did make it from Edmonton. He didn't place as either Mr. Tall Western Canada or Mr. Short Western Canada.

Mr. O'Neill was Mr. Tall Western Canada and he beat out 36-year-old Dick Reid (Mr. Short Western Canada) in the finals.

All the male contestants stoutly defended the art of body-building.

Mike Greenidge, 28, who placed second in the Mr. Tall category, said he hoped bodybuilding would be included in the 1976 Olympics.

Miss Thomson beat Sheli Prevedoros, 18, for the female crown. All the finalists won nice prizes of course.

But the best of all went to Miss Thomson, who won a trip to Victoria with her agent, paid days at the Empress Hotel. That's a two-hour ferry trip.

CROWNED YOUNG

England's youngest Queen was Isabella, daughter of King Charles VI of France. She became Queen in 1396 when she married King Richard I a few days before her seventh birthday.

KING'S TASTES CHANGED

King Henry VIII was the most married English King with six wives, the last of whom, Catherine Parr, had four husbands.

Jame Thomson (left) and Terry O'Neill were chosen Mr. and Miss Western Canada at the recent male-female Western Canada pageant in Vancouver. The contest was held under the auspices of the International Federation of Physical Culture; based in Montreal.(CP Photo)

Successful Living

'Deprived Child' Has Too Much

By DORIS CLARK

Today in this country we are faced with a new kind of "Deprived child". The child that is brought up to expect indulgence as a right, not to recognize personal responsibility and to have no precedent of service to the community or to society as a whole.

This new threat to social growth could become a very vital barrier to the growth of a responsible society, so The Canadian Save The Children Clubs have a new job today - for every one child who needs a lovely cup of cocoa, there are perhaps 50 children who have to learn that their "sweet" papers have to be put in the litter bin and not dropped on the floor. This may argue a lack of one form of deprivation but it also disclaims another.

Children have the right to be given the opportunity and knowledge to grow into responsible adults. To allow them to become dependent citizens is to deprive them of the natural dignity they can achieve if they are properly educated in the art of living.

To offer them anything less (and it is often easier to indulge a child than to train it) is a very real form of deprivation.

—The World's Children
September 1973.

Dear Doris: Is there something wrong for parents to feel a responsibility for their children's university education after they are married? Our son married while he was still at college, because his fiancee said it was now or never.

She was working at that time and felt she could provide both support for a home and fees for college. When he asked us, we said that if he loved her he should not let financial difficulties stand in the way, and assured him we would help if they needed us to.

Now they do need it, because she has a baby and cannot work. They lived on a government loan for a year but that ceases this...

The world's largest baby sitting organization is the Carol Agency, Los Angeles, where 800 registered sitters serve about 25,000 families.

Ann Landers

Keep Your Self Respect

Dear Ann Landers: Several months ago you asked girls who had given up their virginity to write and tell you how they felt about it. I couldn't bring myself to put my thoughts down on paper then, but I am ready now.

First, I'd like to say I didn't give in because "everybody was doing it." The girls I went to high school with weren't bragging—in fact, they were doing just the opposite. They were living in their—tee-h, pretending they were "holdouts" when actually they were "sex-starved."

I lost my virginity at 15 and now I feel almost 40. My big "true love" dropped me after stringing me along for nearly four years. The relationship is over and the pain is gone, but I still feel used. Now I am 26 and hurting from a second affair.

When you "mess around" as we used to call it, you lose a lot of respect for yourself, and that hurts worse than anything. You try to hold on to the guy by catering to his whims, but it never works. By the time you figure out that a relationship based strictly on sex is no good, you're a loser no matter how you look at it.

I'm sure a lot of girls are saying, "That's her, not me. It's cool to do it if you feel like it, and if you really care about the guy it's not cheap or wrong."

O.K., girls, keep kidding yourselves. My best friend operated along those lines for years and she was just ditched by Number 15. That poor kid "falls in love" every two weeks. She's so vulnerable it's pathetic.

I know this letter is too long to print, but maybe if you will print a part of it, it will help open a few eyes. Thank you.—A Formerly Cool Cat With A Million Regrets

Dear Cat: Here's your letter—all of it. I hope the girls who see themselves in this column will face up to the truth. If you don't feel good about what-ever it is that you're doing, it's wrong. Thanks for sharing.

Dear Ann Landers: Today my parents took my pet away because too many neighbors complained that he barked all the time. He also nipped a little kid but it was nothing serious.

The lady who complained the most lives next door. She should be the last one to complain about anything. She has a mentally retarded boy who is always walking around outside with most of his clothes off. Even in the winter. Last December he was out almost every day, in the snow, without shoes, no jacket or cap. Everybody in the dulling his pants up and taking him home. Once when we had company he wandered into our living room without any pants at all.

There is nothing you can do about our dog now, Ann, but will you please tell us what we can do about this woman's son?—Spokesman For The Neighborhood

Dear Spokesman: The mother of that child has her hands full. I believe it would be an act of kindness if your mother had a chat with her and suggested that she keep the doors locked for the child's protection as well as out of consideration for the neighbors.

If the mother is not amenable to suggestion, your Mom should call the local chapter for retarded children. Someone should intervene for the child's sake. That woman needs counselling.

People and Events

Theme of the Christmas Meeting of the Catholic Women's League in Marmora last week was "Consideration for the Handicapped", and a program presented by the communications committee was designed to further involve league members in helping handicapped people in our community.

A film called "Being" stressed the problems faced by a disabled person because of society's attitude.

Background information on Sherrett House, a home for special care in Deloro, operated by Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Kemp, was given. Since many of the residents have no relatives or friends to visit and receive no mail, CWL members were encouraged to help in this capacity.

A short business meeting was chaired by president, Mrs. Paul Brady.

A report was given on a meeting of the Mission Council, which will involve parishioners in the diocese involved in mission work.

The meeting closed with a visit from Santa and lunch.

At Home

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Green, 22 St. Charles, will be at home to relatives and friends on the occasion of their Golden Wedding Anniversary from 2 to 4 p.m. and 7 to 9 p.m. January 1. Best Wishes only please.

Truce-watching Returns As Canadian Occupation

OTTAWA (CP) — From the paddies of Vietnam to the dunes of Suez, truce-watching re-emerged in 1973 as Canada's most notable international activity.

But for the coming 12 months diplomats will return their attention to the more traditional but equally important world of striped-pants bargaining at a series of negotiations within the Atlantic Alliance, with the Warsaw Pact countries and at next summer's conference on the law of the sea.

Talks with Washington and the European Economic Community on a new declaration of economic and security relations which began with U.S. Secretary of State Henry Kissinger's proposal for a new Atlantic Charter, have already advanced into discussions on three or more documents in Europe, North America and Japan.

In the next year the external affairs department will try to make the North Atlantic Treaty Organization the focal point for those talks, thereby assuring Canada a seat at the table.

Lengthy negotiations—they could last years—will also continue on troop reductions in Europe by NATO and the Warsaw Pact. Little concrete achievement is expected for many months.

More may come out of talks with the Warsaw Pact and neutral countries in the conference on European security and co-operation. At those Geneva meetings Canada will continue to press for a greater flow of people and ideas, especially with the Soviet Union and its eastern European allies.

A leading edge of Canadian diplomacy will be aimed at the international sea-law conference to be held this year in Venezuela. External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp has called it the most important meeting ever sponsored by the United Nations.

The goal is a complete shake-up of international law to give coastal states more power to manage ocean resources beyond their territorial seas, and establishment of rules over exploitation of resources in international waters.

But countries with far-flung shipping and fishing fleets will try to retain their power to ply the high seas unchecked.

Meantime, more than 1,000 Canadian troops will be providing air transport and radio communications for the United Nations Emergency Force (UNEF) in the Middle East.

The Security Council has limited UNEF to a six-month mandate, but Canadian officials expect that to be extended unless a major breakthrough is reached at the Middle East peace conference in Geneva.

The old UNEF lasted 11 years, until it was evicted by Egypt at the first rumblings of the 1967 six-day war.

If the government seemed keen last fall to take part in UNEF, the decision to engage in the International Commission of Control and Supervision (ICCS) in Vietnam last January created more controversy within the external affairs department, although it appeared to gain wide acceptance among voters and in the Commons.

The government finally agreed to join the ICCS for 60 days on condition that it work effectively, that it be placed under an international authority and that the war subside.

Poland, Hungary and Indonesia also agreed to join.

But none of Canada's conditions were met and after two extensions of the deadline, the Canadians withdrew, Warrant Officer Leo Henneberry (top) of Eastern Passage, N.S., makes friend with children at a Saigon orphanage while (below) Maj. New Road Threatens Old Seine

PARIS (Reuter) — "How would you like to be, down by the Seine with me?"

The invitation from the old song rides lazily all its romantic appeal now that the Paris city council has agreed to build a freeway along the Seine's Left Bank.

Despite opposition from environmentalists, the highway project will sweep away many riverside walks adored by Paris fishermen and young lovers alike.

The plan, first put forward two years ago but hotly contested by left-wing councillors, envisages a highway along the entire Left Bank past the picturesque quais and the majestic Notre Dame Cathedral.

During a stormy city council meeting on the final draft, five councillors walked out after protesting that public opinion had been ignored. One Socialist councillor dubbed the plan "ineffective and destructive."

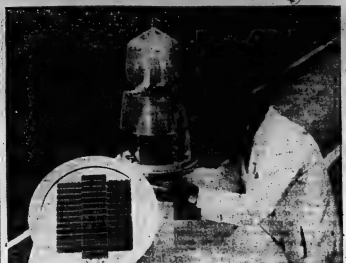
The plan was eventually approved by 46 Gaullists and their allies against 36 left-wing and centrist councillors. The result prompted Paris Prefect Jean Verdier to say "I firmly believe that this project, far from disfiguring the face of Paris, offers a chance to create a work worthy of our time."

The protests did stir the city council into changing its original plan.

The final draft made provision for more than a mile of tunnels which will keep traffic out of sight near the city's most famous beauty spots.

But this concession is not enough for critics who are led by the Association for the Protection of the Left Bank which expressed the conviction that "the future of Paris in every field is inseparable from respect for its artistic past."

For the association, the Left Bank is a place to walk that is frequented by Parisians and tourists alike. There both find magnificent views over the heart of Paris, the joy of strolling about and the gentle pleasure of quiet simply doing nothing."



On another level, many critics have attacked the plan because they contend that the solution it offers will only be short-lived.

They argue that the freeway, although alleviating congestion on other city arteries, will defeat its own purpose by attracting more vehicles into the centre of Paris.

The construction of an expressway on the Seine's Right Bank in 1967 slightly altered the face of the city but many people fear that its far more ambitious Left Bank twin will destroy all oases of peace and romance in Paris.

The project's costs, estimated at 300 million francs ($75 million) before completion in 1976, have to be borne partially by the city, although the French government is paying for 40 per cent of the construction.

One of the first casualties of the new freeway has already been selected—the graceful Pont des Arts, one of the few pedestrian bridges in Paris, often painted by the impressionists.

Solar-powered Lights New Navigational Aids

LONDON (CP) — Harnessing the sun's power has long been a part, if an impractical one, of our ancestors' technology. However, within recent decades modern technology has begun to channel solar power into economic usage.

One of the latest developments is the series of Stone-Chance navigational aids which use new techniques and materials in solar-powered light installations.

These will provide a flashing marine navigational light which is capable of being seen at distances up to 15 miles on a clear night. They are of special value for many remote headlands and groups of small islands where the cost of maintenance and replacement of batteries is high.

An example is the Philippines archipelago with its 7,000 islands where work is proceeding on the provision of solar-powered lights.

Basically the system depends on batteries that store electricity from a silicon cell on which the sun shines, thus constantly producing the necessary electricity. When night falls a photoelectric cell switches on the light. The equipment is made out of materials needing virtually no maintenance.

Periodic inspection and bulb replacement can be carried out by one technician working from a helicopter or from a small boat, for he has only to carry distilled water, spare bulbs and a small kit of hand tools.

The maintenance of traditional equipment usually requires a crew of men with new batteries or gas cylinders, a portable generator and other heavy gear transported by a major service vessel.

The equipment of the British-made Stone-Chance system includes a ventilated box to keep the batteries cool. So that the long potential life of the solar cells can be utilized to the full, the enclosures are particularly robust and have a long-term resistance to local environment.

Extremely high temperatures have been recorded in equipment of this type in direct sunlight so special floating seals are used to allow the different materials in the apparatus to contract without stress when they are suddenly cooled by rain.

Five years of intensive research produced the Stone-Chance navigational lights and the equipment is already much in demand, notably in the Far and Middle East.

Recess Pause In Fight

TORONTO (CP) — For Ontario's legislators the Christmas season may only be a breather between rounds of verbal fisticuffs.

The legislature adjourned at 3 p.m. Thursday after an 11th-hour compromise was reached in the bitter wrangle between the government and teachers throughout the province over threats of compulsory arbitration.

The 117 members of the house—76 Conservatives, 22 Liberals, and 19 New Democrats—gave an almost audible sigh of relief when Education Minister Thomas Wells rose to announce the deadlock with the teachers had been broken.

No date has been set for the recall and much depends on how negotiations go in 16 areas across the province where teachers have threatened to resign en masse over contract disputes with various school boards.

Mr. Wells, in sombre tones, warned that the legislature might be back at it next week if negotiations don't start proceeding satisfactorily in the 16 areas.

A stormy debate, punctuated with bitter name calling and much acrimony, prolonged the session when the government brought in its controversial bill to stop the threatened resignations by the teachers.

Both opposition parties fought the legislation at every turn crediting it a threat to civil liberties. Their argument were echoed by thousands of protesters—mostly teachers—who laid siege to the legislature to protest the bill.

However, if the compromise fails, round two in the scuffle is sure to follow.

The legislature has been sitting since last Oct. 2 when it took up again after a summer break.

The third session of the 29th legislature officially began last winter.

Since then, 208 bills have been approved and seven are still on the order paper.

For most of the session, it was tough sledding for the members who churned through mounds of technical and housekeeping legislation.

The few major debates centered on education, aid to the elderly, energy, food prices and regional governments.

However, there was little debate, and quick passage, for a bill giving members a pay raise—a general $22,500 a year, $4,500 more than they now earn.

At times, peripheral issues, and not legislation, provided the bulk of the controversy in the legislature.

In the last weeks of the session, a seemingly innocent government bill to provide 380,000 pensioners with a $50 annual bonus provoked a bitter debate.

Both opposition parties used the debate to attack general government policy toward aid to the elderly.

As usual, the legislature was the focal point for demonstrations during the sitting.

The largest was by 25,000 teachers two days before adjournment.

High school students were the loudest as they returned again and again to protest government education spending ceilings.

Black citizens marched in the rain to protest the South African trade mission and vegetable farmers dumped cabbages on the front steps to protest marketing regulations.

Must Keep Lid On

JOHANNESBURG (AP) — The city council ordered longer and wider graves for local cemeteries, and undertakers were asked to make sure coffin lids are fastened securely. The actions were taken after the coffin of a former city councillor stuck as it was being lowered into his grave, and the lid popped off.

Daylight Time Is Opposed

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario still has not decided to follow the lead of the United States and go on daylight time in January. Premier William Davis said Thursday.

He was responding the questions from Murray Gaunt (L—Huron-Bruce) who said he thought it should be a relatively easy decision. "Reject it," he said.

Earlier, this month, Energy Minister Darcy McKeough said that any energy savings the province would derive from going on daylight saving time would be marginal.

The premier told Mr. Gaunt Thursday that "it gets down to a matter of convenience, what effect it may have on some communities that border the United States, what effect it may have on some industries and generally the economic implications of daylight saving in the United States upon us here and travel as well."

Freight Cars Scarce

Railways in Chaotic Mess

OTTAWA (CP) — An economic slowdown and new equipment may help Canadian railways out of the chaotic freight car mess they find themselves in.

Railwaymen say they were caught off guard by the economic boom in North America this year.

The buoyant economy combined with slow delivery of new cars to Canadian National Railways and labor strikes left the railways short of equipment. Customers in the potash, lumber and grain industries are still screaming for cars.

But railway sources say they expect the economy will not grow as quickly this year. And the economy in the United States was likely to be in much poorer shape than in Canada.

"That reflects in the railway activity and it could easily bring about the liberation of some rolling stock," Norman MacMillan, CN president, told the Commons transport committee recently.

He was telling the committee the railway may be able to lease additional equipment from the U.S.

Whether railway optimism about the 1974 rail freight car situation is justified depends on the accuracy of economic estimates. Mr. MacMillan told the transport committee that poor guesses about lumber sales this year helped create the boxcar shortage in British Columbia.

He said the lumber industry had projected increased 1973 sales of about six per cent but actual growth was 22 per cent.

The galloping U.S. economy also tied up rail equipment there and some cars that would normally have been available to Canadian railways. Mr. MacMillan said that in a November there were 6,500 more CN cars in the U.S. than the railway had received in return from U.S. railways.

Charles Chabigas, a member board commissioner, told the transport committee rail car shortages prevented the board from making interim grain sales of 75 million bushels this year. The board was wary of selling grain knowing it could be moved on time.

Mr. MacMillan said he expects the railway will have 5,000 additional rail cars in service this year including 3,500 new units and about 1,500 rebuilt boxcars.

But, the wheat board has asked for 4,000 new hopper cars to handle grain. The government supplied 2,000 hopper cars last year.

With the old-style boxcar a dying breed and the railways uninterested in building the special hoppers needed for grain, it seems to leave it up to the government again to build the cars.

Skate Slash Fatal

CHELMSFORD, Ont. (CP) — A 25-year-old mine worker, playing a game of amateur hockey with fellow workers, bled to death Thursday when his neck was gashed by a skate.

Dead is Maurice Ayotte of this community 10 miles northwest of Sudbury.

An official of the Chelmsford arena said the victim appeared to trip as he crossed the blue line, fell face forward on his stomach and landed near the opposing team's net with blood gushing from his neck.

Police said he was dead on arrival at Sudbury General Hospital.

Coroner Dr. M. J. Prevost said Thursday that Ayotte bled to death after an artery in his neck was severed.

Witnesses said the game was under way when one of the players received a breakaway and Ayotte gave chase. Ayotte's line mate, Mike Gillis, said Ayotte dived for the other player and came close to the skate blades.

Apparently no one saw exactly what caused Ayotte's wound. Gillis and another player, Tom Todd, rushed to Ayotte's side and Gillis wrapped his shirt around the victim's neck.

However, they could not stop the bleeding.

Mountie Chief Is Named

OTTAWA (CP) — Deputy Commissioner Maurice J. Nadon has been appointed commissioner of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police, Prime Minister Trudeau announced Thursday.

The new commissioner succeeds W. L. Higgitt, who retires Dec. 31 after four years as the top Mountie.

Deputy Commissioner Nadon, 53, has served with RCMP for more than 28 years. He joined the force in Ottawa as a subconstable in 1941.

Following postings in Montreal, Quebec City and Rimouski, he was promoted to superintendent in 1957.

In 1962, he was appointed commanding officer of the Quebec sub-division, covering the eastern region of the province. He held that position until 1965, when he was transferred to RCMP headquarters in Ottawa.

Five years later he was promoted assistant commissioner and given command of O division, covering southwest Ontario. He returned to Ottawa in the summer of 1972 with the rank of deputy commissioner.

Judges Resign

OTTAWA (CP) The two senior judges of the Supreme Court of Canada are resigning as of next week, Justice Minister Otto Lang announced Thursday.

The minister announced the resignations, effective Sunday, of Chief Justice Gerald Fauteux, a member of the court for 21 years, and Mr. Justice Douglas C. Abbott, a member for 19 years. The statement that gave no reasons for the early retirement for both men.

It said simply that the minister expressed the "hope that successors to these distinguished judges would be announced in the very near future."

Oil Firm Supports Fuel Board

OTTAWA (CP) — Imperial Oil Ltd., Canada's largest oil company, supports the government bill to set up an energy allocation board with powers to allocate fuels and even ration retail sales.

Jack Armstrong, president of Imperial, told the Commons resources committee Thursday the bill "should go forward and provide to the government the means to create an organization to develop allocation schemes and to develop contingency plans."

Mr. Armstrong proposed three amendments to the bill, which Energy minister Donald Macdonald later told reporters posed no difficulties for him.

The Armstrong amendments would require a quorum of three on the five-man board to take action; permit companies to seek compensation in the courts for losses incurred by uneconomic measures—special loading facilities for example that are required by the board; and exempt companies from possible anti-combines prosecution for actions required by the board.

ALLAN GROSSMAN

TORONTO (CP) — Revenue Minister Allan Grossman warned Thursday that Canada faces serious economic problems.

Speaking at the close of the legislature's budget debate, Mr. Grossman reiterated Ontario's call for an economic conference of first ministers which he said was necessary to iron out the economic situation, preserve public confidence and prevent a deterioration in the standard of living.

Dumptruck Owners Won't Remove Snow

TORONTO (CP) — Traffic problems created by an eight-inch snowfall in Toronto were compounded Thursday night when dumptruck owner-drivers refused to remove emergency snow removal call.

The Ontario Haulers' Association wants $15 an hour for a driver and his truck while Metropolitan Toronto, which paid $9 last year, is offering $10 this year.

The roads department started to call out the 300 drivers and their trucks Thursday to begin hauling away snow at 11 p.m. and work through to 7 a.m.

Only about 70 said they would respond and some of those said they would not go unless a satisfactory price was reached before 11 p.m.

Most areas in and around Metropolitan Toronto had about eight or nine inches of snow on the ground by early evening with another two to four inches predicted for overnight.

Under the snow emergency, fines of $25 are imposed and an additional $15 is charged by police for towing a car off a designated snow route.

Few Flurries Coming

Quinte Digging Out

Thursday's snowfall, ranging from just over five inches in the immediate Belleville area to more than 11 inches at Tweed, has disrupted school bus operation today in Hastings county.

A county school board official reported this morning that all school buses left for home two hours early Thursday afternoon, while today it was estimated only about 20 per cent of buses made their usual morning runs.

In the county area from Madoc south it was stated that about 70 of 110 buses cancelled morning runs.

No word as to school bus operation in North Hastings has been received at the board office in Belleville by 9:30 this morning.

Thursday's snowfall at the Canadian Armed Forces base at Trenton was officially recorded at 5.8 inches but winds ranging up to 25 miles per hour caused drifting.

In addition to the snow, there was .18 inch of freezing rain that put a coating of crust over the snow and made driving all that more difficult.

But the weather forecaster at Trenton says the worst is over with only a few snowflurries expected between now and Christmas day.

This morning the driving lane on Highway 401 was reported bare but slushy while the passing lane was snowcovered and slippery.

At Tweed, the 11 inches of precipitation made difficult driving on the country roads. Skiing was reported good but the icy crust on the snow made for less than best conditions for snowmobiling.

In Belleville street and sidewalk plows were out all day and last night and this morning numbers of motorists who left their cars on the street all night found their vehicles ticketed for illegal overnight parking.

No street pickup of snow was attempted Thursday or last night, but City Engineer Wilbur Purcell said snow removal machinery would go into operation tonight — provided there was no further heavy snowfall.

In Belleville — unlike in Toronto, where truckers are looking for a higher hourly rate of pay — no difficulty was expected in hiring sufficient numbers of trucks to get the snow removal job done.

Each fall the city purchasing agent prepares a list of private truckers prepared to work for the municipality.

The truckers are paid on an hourly basis based on the yardage capacity of the trucks used.

The Morning After

This was truly a morning that should be buried and forgotten. Some six inches of snow and ice pellets managed to strangle Quinte traffic overnight. City crews were on the job today — much to the chagrin of this motorist and homeowners across the city who had their driveways blocked by the rush of the plow. Weather forecasters say we've seen the worst of the snow. Cool temperatures are predicted but little snow is in sight.

Dinners and Toys On the Way

Despite foul weather, deliveries of food baskets to Belleville's underprivileged families were begun by volunteers with the Christmas Share-a-Gift Program Thursday.

Phyllis Hayman, program co-ordinator, expects about 425 families will have received a turkey and other fixings by Monday, Christmas eve. Final food orders were placed with local grocery stores Thursday and she expects volunteers will be driving through snowbanks making deliveries.

This year, the program, run by the Central Volunteer Bureau, a United Community Services agency, is providing 100 more baskets than it did in 1972.

"I don't know why it's increased," said Mrs. Hayman. "One reason may be that we specifically asked for names of senior citizens. This year, we have many more than we've had."

Senior residents were referred to the program from other social welfare service organizations such as Meals on Wheels.

A problem the program has had, says Mrs. Hayman, is that people don't understand they must be referred to her before they can benefit. The organization simply acts as a clearing house for information. Various individuals and community groups donate either cash or baskets to the needier Belleville families.

In recent weeks, all city high schools have undertaken money-raising ventures to finance the purchase of food baskets. These are then delivered personally by students after a family's name and address is obtained through the program.

Other groups, from the Catholic Women's League to the Salvation Army to cubs and scouts also provide baskets. Cash donations to the program cover the cost of baskets to families that are not taken care of by such groups.

Belleville firefighters are notified by Mrs. Hayman if a family has children. Taking over from there, the firefighters underprivileged children's Christmas program provides toys for youngsters up to 12 years of age.

Ralph Boomhower, program spokesman, says close to 1,300 children in some 375 families have been provided for. He expects deliveries will be completed today.

Festive Fare Forthcoming

It takes a lot of hard work to produce the traditional sounds of Christmas.

The music, the story telling, and the laughter that usually surround a family celebration are spontaneous. However, when you try to reproduce them for a radio station, you have to spend a lot of time planning, preparing and recording.

For nearly two months now, the staff at radio station CJBQ here in Belleville has been working on their Christmas program schedule.

According to Peter Thompson, the station's program director, the work for this year's programs is just about done and the staff is looking forward to the time when they, along with everyone else, will be able to sit back and listen to the four days of Christmas entertainment provided by the station.

This year's schedule lists a variety of programs that is designed to appeal to just about everyone's taste.

On Sunday, Dec. 23, the station will once again present its annual concert featuring the Trenton Citizens' Band. The band concert, recorded earlier this year at Trenton High School, will be aired between 1.35 and 2 p.m.

The band concert will then be followed by a special Christmas show from Bancroft. This show will feature a number of school choirs from the Bancroft area and will be heard between the hours of 2.15 and 3 p.m.

The biggest feature being offered to the radio listener on Sunday is the "Twin City Christmas Program", a special program that will unite the twinned cities of Belleville and Lahr, West Germany.

The program will feature recorded messages of greetings from the mayors of both cities and will also carry a special Christmas hello from the parents of the West German exchange students who are currently staying in the Belleville area. The program was recorded earlier this month in Germany by Frank Murray, the general manager at CJBQ and by Dave Sovereign, the station's news director. The two men were ferried across the Atlantic by a Boeing 707 from Canadian Forces Base Lahr during the Christmas holiday.

On Monday, Christmas Eve, the radio station will carry several musical specials and a number of late night church services and a special children's program.

The children's program, titled Night Before Christmas, will feature a selection of Christmas music and readings presented by Mrs. Elizabeth Heig, of the Corby Library, and two young children.

The Christmas music specials will feature the Belleville Choral Society singing to music arranged and played by S. Alec Cordow, of Belleville, and a collection of traditional Christmas symphonies arranged by Eugene Fuller.

Between 11 p.m. Monday and 1 a.m. Tuesday the radio station will present live broadcasts of the church services being held at Bridge Street United Church and St. Peter's Roman Catholic Church, in Trenton.

On Christmas day, the station will start broadcasting at its normal time and will feature a special Tom Hoskings Christmas Show.

The Queen's Christmas message will be broadcast at 10:00 a.m. and will be followed by two programs, Christmas in Trenton Churches and Christmas in Belleville Churches.

A special 12-hour Christmas package called Christmas Is ... will be presented from 1 p.m. Tuesday to 1 a.m. Wednesday.

SWANS' WINTER HOME

Almost one-fifth of the world's trumpeter swans winter on Vancouver Island.

Holidays Vary

Christmas and New Year's are only a few days away. For many of us it means a day to spend away from work and school to be with the family.

It also means days when stores and factories will be closed to give their employees the holiday.

Northern Electric employees, as a result of their recent contract, will be able to enjoy a 13-day holiday when they finish work on Friday December 21 and return January 2. December 24 is not a paid holiday.

Stephens-Adamson workers finish work on December 21 and return the second of January but they work on December 31.

ADCO employees have Christmas, Boxing Day and New Year's Day off. They will spile their work with half a day working Christmas Eve and the other half New Year's Eve.

Employees at Corby's still have Christmas Eve, Christmas Day and New Year's Day off. They work on Boxing Day.

At Mead-Johnson, employees have off Christmas Eve, Christmas Day, New Year's Eve and New Year's Day.

Brooke - Bond employees have a five-day holiday: Christmas Eve, Christmas Day, Boxing Day, New Year's Eve, New Year's Day.

City hall will be closed Christmas Eve at 4.30 p.m. and will be closed Christmas Day, Boxing Day and New Year's Day.

Book lovers are reminded that Corby Public Library will be closed Christmas Eve and New Year's Eve at noon and remain closed Christmas, Boxing Day and New Year's.

All major city hotels, the Four Seasons, Quinte and Sun Valley will be closed Christmas Eve at 8 p.m. and all day Christmas and open New Year's Day.

The Mad Mechanic will not open Monday, Christmas Eve or Christmas Day. It will be open New Year's Day.

For those who wait until the last minute to buy their Christmas cheer, the LCBO and Brewers' Retail hours are the following: Closed 6 p.m. Christmas Eve and New Year's Eve and closed Christmas, Boxing Day and New Year's.

Banks in the city will close at 3 p.m. Christmas Eve and New Year's Eve and stay closed Christmas, Boxing Day and New Year's.

The post office will follow it's regular closing day Christmas Eve and New Year's Eve, 3.45 p.m. It will be closed Christmas, Boxing Day and New Year's Day.

Short Auction Makes $121

The weather didn't co-operate yesterday for Centennial Secondary School's slave auction. But the students' Christmas Sharing Program is $121 richer nonetheless.

The auction, organized by teachers Judy Carty and Marie Huffman, saw about 40 staff members take part. The auction was to have started at 2 p.m. but snow conditions necessitated the school buses to leave early and cut the auction short.

The staff members who agreed to take part offered to the highest bidder or bidders a service or gift. It ranged from one staff member agreeing to shave off his moustache for the highest bid to a football coach agreeing to cook a meal for a top bid.

Highest bid of the day was $13.50 which went toward teacher Mike D'Orsaliso who had to shave off his moustache as part of the bargain.

Auctioneers for the day were instructors Guy Taylor and Bill Culp.

It is planned to carry on with the rest of the auction the second week in January. Also being planned is a Christmas Dance growing contest to start this week and spread with results February 29 to coincide with the opening of the students' production of Hello Dolly.

Loyalist Entertains Retarded

Retarded children from the Quinte area were treated to their own Christmas party at Loyalist College last Sunday.

Hosts were students from the college's mental retardation counsellor's program, who organized the large party complete with Santa Claus, ice cream, doughnuts, milk and lots of presents were distributed in the student lounge.

Students decorated the lounge, wrapped gifts and provided transportation and entertainment.

Children were brought to the college from Happy Halfway House, Belleville, Van Duesen Home, Picton and the Trenton-Brighton District School for the Handicapped.

Students from the college's children's literature class gave a puppet show and the children from the Trenton-Brighton school sang Christmas songs. Santa Claus was second-year student Shawn Clegg, who hopes to make the party an annual event.

Hanging in There

Students at Centennial Secondary School are presenting their Christmas Assembly today on the last day of classes before the holidays. Martin Caulfield sits atop a trapfield to position a chandelier that will be used in the presentation. The school will also present Hello Dolly from February 20 to 24. It is being directed by teacher Bill Culp, who said he may use the chandelier in that production as well.

Job Seekers Down

The number of people seeking work in the Belleville area in November was down about 10 per cent over the same month last year.

And there was only a marginal increase between November and October.

A total of 1,993 men and women were registered for work last month with Canada Manpower Belleville offices. This compared with 1,973 in October and 2,338 in November 1971.

Job placements were "generally lower" for the month than for the same time last year with the drop centred in the construction and manufacturing sectors, said a Manpower official.

The Belleville Manpower centre administers an area that includes the city, Hastings county and Ameliasburgh township.

Slums To Be Cleared

BEIRA, MOZAMBIQUE (AP) — A $40 million, six-year slum clearance program is scheduled to begin early in 1974 in this Portuguese African territory.

Weeklies Supported

Hastings county council has added its support to a Lanark county resolution asking the federal and provincial governments to intervene to guarantee adequate supplies of newsprint for weekly newspaper.

The resolution said that weekly newspapers are considered an integral and essential part of cultural, business and municipal affairs.

Concern was expressed about the increasing shortage of newsprint and the possible effect on weekly newspapers.

One Injury In Batch Of Collisions

Of 15 minor collisions in Belleville Thursday, only one resulted in personal injury.

Arthur James Doyle, 43, of RR 2 Bellevile, complained of a sore head and neck after a rear end collision on North Front St. Police said he intended to seek medical assistance.

The Doyle vehicle, travelling north, was struck from behind by a car driven by Allan Vandelet, 33, of 68 North Front St. Police attribute the cause of the collision to the slippery condition of the road surface.

The Long Journey

Students at the Ontario School for the Deaf today began travelling across Ontario to reach homes for the holidays. But seven-year-old Heather Wynne left a day early. Here one of the youngest pupils with the remotest destination is being bundled up by school counsellor Mrs. Doris Neill for the long journey to Moosonee.

Paper for Deaf Marks Big Year

A new service for the deaf was just completed its first year of operation.

It is the Deaf Canadian, a magazine published for and by the deaf.

David Burnett, founder, publisher and editor of the news magazine, began the venture in Sept. 1972 because of the dearth of knowledge about the potentialities and capabilities of the deaf.

The publication is a part-time endevor for him. He is a dental technician and president of the Western Association of the Deaf. Mr. Burnett began his magazine in Calgary with an edition of 1,000 copies and the circulation has now climbed to 6,000.

Mr. Burnett says the deaf are discriminated against in education, salaries, in political life and other areas. The Deaf Canadian is pressing for total communication (finger spelling, signing, lip reading and speech) and for interpreting services.

A copy of the magazine can be obtained by writing The Deaf Canadian Ltd., Box 673, Calgary, Alta.

"Come On, Bradley, Tell Santa"

But 5-year-old Bradley Trudeau wasn't having any part of Santa Claus or his fuzzy white beard. The shy youngster wouldn't tell the old gentleman what he wanted for Christmas. Bradley and other junior skaters with the Quinte Figure Skating Club were paid a visit by St. Nick during one of their final get-togethers Thursday at Memorial Arena.

Flyers Brawl and Score Goals

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Philadelphia Flyers regained the lead in the West Division of the National Hockey League Thursday, but they had to go the roughhouse route to overwhelm Vancouver Canucks 9-3.

The brawl-filled game was stopped for 20 minutes during the second period after a punching match. Referee Bryan Lewis finally untangled the melee, and ejected four players from the game while handing out 99 minutes in penalties.

Greg Boddy and Dennis Vervaegart of the Canucks and Dave Schultz and Ted Taylor of the Flyers were recipients of game misconduct penalties.

The victory lifted the Flyers two points above Chicago Black Hawks and left Vancouver in last place in the East Division.

In other games, Boston Bruins, leaders of the East brigade, edged Pittsburgh Penguins 6-5, New York Rangers downed Detroit Red Wings 5-2 and Montreal Canadiens battled to a 2-2 stalemate with Buffalo Sabres.

St. Louis Blues visit Atlanta Flames in the only match scheduled tonight.

Boston 6 Pittsburgh 5

Although the Bruins extended their unbeaten streak to 16 games, Boston coach Bep Guidolin wasn't overly pleased.

"I expected a night like this when someone would get three, four or five guys on in our own rink," he said. "It was bound to happen, but the big thing is the two points."

The Bruins now lead the Canadiens by six points.

The Bruins virtually wrapped up the game — a four-goal outburst in the second period. One was ruled a 35th of the season, which stretched his personal goal-scoring streak to eight games in which he has counted 13 times.

Montreal 2 Buffalo 2

Buffalo's tie with the Canadiens moved the Sabres to within four points of fourth-place Toronto Maple Leafs in the East Division, but as Buffalo coach Joe Crozier put it, "I think we should have had the whole loaf."

The Sabres had a chance to take an early lead when John Gould was hauled down from behind by Guy Lapointe. Gould was on a breakaway after being fed a pass by Craig Ramsay but Sabres were killing off a penalty to defenceman Tim Horton. He was awarded a penalty shot.

But Canadiens' goalie Michel Plasse sprawled in front of the net and the puck trickled harmlessly off his pads.

It was Gould's first penalty shot.

"I hope I never have to do it again," the 24-year-old left-winger said. "I felt terrible. I had a couple of things on my mind when I went in and thought I had him beat, but I guess I was in too close."

The 44-year-old Horton, now in his 20th NHL season, assisted on both Buffalo goals. The second was the 401st of his career.

Henri Richard of the Canadiens also reached a milestone by recording his 1,000th NHL point with his assist on Rene Robert's goal in the second period.

Rangers 5 Detroit 2

It was a typical night's work for Rod Gilbert of the Rangers — scoring one goal, assisting on three others and passing it off as nothing spectacular.

"I didn't do anything different than usual," he said. "That's just the way it works out."

NHL Leaders

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Phil Esposito of Boston Bruins scored a goal and picked up three assists Thursday night as Bruins defeated Pittsburgh Penguins 6-5.

Esposito now has 25 goals and 26 assists for 70 points, Teammate Bobby Orr earned an assist to remain in second place with 17 goals and 35 assists for a total of 52 points.

The leaders:

WHA Teams Rest

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

There are few soft spots in the World Hockey Association schedule, but Thursday night all teams got a breather.

That gave Toronto Toros a chance to gird for their toughest assignment so far this season, a meeting with the red-hot Houston Aeros tonight.

The Aeros, now tied for first place with Edmonton Oilers in the West Division, will dress four WHA all-stars, while the Toros, fourth in the East, will have stars in their lineup.

Vancouver Blazers will visit Edmonton and Los Angeles Sharks are at Minnesota Fighting Saints in other games.

Houston defenceman Paul Popiel, centre Larry Lund and right-wingers Frank Hughes and Gordie Howe were among the league's western all-stars named Thursday. Howe, goalie Gilles Gratton, centre Wayne Carleton and right-winger Tom Simpson on the Eastern roster that will compete in the all-star game Jan. 3 at St. Paul, Minn.

Vancouver has recalled right-winger Jim Jones from Rosemoke Valley Rebels to join the team for tonight's game in Edmonton. In 26 games with Rosemoke of the Southern League, Jones had seven goals and 18 assists.

In other WHA activity Thursday, Cleveland Crusaders recalled Ray Addamono from Macon, Ga., and sent Norm Cournoyer back to the Southern League farm club.

Late Production Carries Swords

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — Cincinnati Swords capitalized on a defensive lapse to register a last-minute 3-1 victory Thursday night over Richmond Robins in the only American Hockey League game scheduled.

Left-winger Steve Richardson hellled up a Robin in the Richmond zone, stole the puck and centered Al Hamilton, who popped in the winning goal with 53 seconds remaining.

Morris Titanic added an open-net goal with two seconds left to boost the Swords' final margin.

Up until the final minute, the Swords had been effectively frustrated by Robin goalie Mike Belbumeur, who gave an outstanding performance as he defended against eight power plays.

Richmond scored its goal in the opening period on a backhander by Bruce Cowick, and Cincinnati tallied a first-period goal by referee Terry Pierce on a ruling the puck had been kicked into the net, evened the score when Dennis Wyrouck tallied in the 8:40 mark of the second period.

Cincinnati lost defenceman Bill Hajt, who was carried from the ice with a concussion following a first-period check by the Robins' Roger Pelletier. Hajt was taken to a hospital for observation.

Wolves Nip Petes

PETERBOROUGH, Ont. (CP) — A goal by captain Mike Marson with 47 seconds left in the game gave Sudbury Wolves a 6-5 win over Peterborough Petes in Ontario Hockey Association Major Junior A play Thursday.

It was the only scheduled game.

Marson's goal came on a faceoff capped a third-period comeback for the Wolves who trailed 5-4 going into the period. It was Marson's second goal of the night.

Bob Russell also scored twice for Sudbury while Bill Best and Richie Hansen added single goals.

Red Laurence scored three Peterborough goals. Ed Smith and Bill Eve scored the others.

The win was Sudbury's ninth in succession and marked the first time Peterborough has lost at home in 17 games this season.

Sudbury led 3-2 after one period but Peterborough scored Sudbury 3-1 in the second period.

Peterborough outshot Sudbury 37-31 and took 19 of the 18 penalties called.

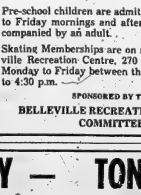
Brewers Shell Out For Scott

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Milwaukee Brewers have signed slugging first baseman George Scott to the first $100,000 contract in the club's history, general manager Jim Wilson announced Thursday.

"This is the happiest day of my life, and I'm also very happy it took me only half an hour to sign," said Scott.

"Maybe I should have asked for $200,000."



Scott, who will be 30 on March 23, had the best of his eight major league seasons in 1973, finishing second in the American League in both batting average, .306, and runs batted in, 107.

"This is a milestone because when I first signed 12 years ago I was making $175 a month," said Scott, who came to the Brewers from Boston after the 1971 season.

"It means I've come a long way. Every ball-player has goals to make $100,000 a year and to win a World Series. My one goal is here. My next is to win a World Series."

Hard Work Cure For Cats-Hunter

"Hard work", says Moe Hunter, "and it'll come back." That's the coach's solution to the Belleville Bobcats' misadventure.

The Bobcats have lost their last two Metro Junior B Hockey League starts, 8-4 to Oshawa last Friday and 6-4 last Sunday night in Pickering, their first loss at home this season.

Hunter says lack of effort was 90 per cent of the problem in the losses, the other 10 per cent being the breaks of the game.

Hunter may shake up the lines to try and alleviate the situation, but what he can do is minimal. He says the players themselves must start working to get their own wins.

The lineup for the weekend games will be the same as last Sunday's setup. Defenceman Vern Amey is still out with the sore back he picked up in the St. Mike's game three weeks ago.

Tim Yehn is sitting out the second of a two game suspension he received last Friday night, after receiving a game misconduct. But forward Brian Cousins will be in the lineup. The 19-year-old center played his first games last weekend, against Pickering, and while not picking up any points, added some bustle to the forward line.

Game time tonight in Bramalea is 8:15, while the Cats entertain the Etobicoke Selects Sunday night at 8 p.m.

Ferguson, Dailey Have the Spirit

Two products of the Trenton Minor Hockey Association who have graduated to the ranks of professional hockey demonstrated Thursday that their timing is off. But no one is complaining.

Centre George Ferguson and defenceman Bob Dailey decided to observe Christmas five days early.

Ferguson, the leading scorer in the Central Hockey League (10 goals and 16 assists) when he suffered a separated shoulder earlier this month, had some good news for Toronto Maple Leafs.

He expects to rejoin Oklahoma City Blazers and begin the task of getting back into top shape, after spending Christmas in Trenton with his family.

George attended Leafs' annual Christmas party at Maple Leaf Gardens yesterday and reported the injured shoulder is coming along very well.

His chances of being recalled by Leafs later this season are said to be "good".

Leaf general manager Jim Gregory has had excellent reports on Ferguson's performance at Oklahoma City.

Meanwhile, in Philadelphia last night, Dailey was about all Vancouver Canucks had going for them in a 9-3 National Hockey League loss to the Flyers.

The six-foot-five rookie counted two Canuck goals, both coming in the second period.

Yardmen Edged 5-4

OSHAWA (Special) — Belleville Yardmen minor midgets gave it a good shot here Wednesday night but dropped a close 5-4 decision to Oshawa Midgets in an Ontario Minor Hockey Association Triple A game.

Down 3-0 after one period of play, the Yardmen bounced back to make it interesting.

And the visitors accomplished their solid showing with bonus league players Mike Kirby and Pat Mulvihill getting their first taste of midget all-star action. Both came through with capable efforts and Kirby earned an assist for his night's work.

Kevin Duignan was a two-goal shooter for the winners. Checking at the single counters were Mike Shields, Tim Wodnisky and Scott Clarke.

The Yardmen also signed Paul Hayman-Sandy Waterson front line took care of the bulk of the Belleville scoring. Each scored a goal while Waterson and Hayman each drew two assists.

Mike Willman accounted for the other Yardmen goal in the three-way move with Tony Meagher and Kirby.

Aims for World Junior Championship

By DOUG WALSH
Sports Editor

The day Trenton Birt's Handy-Stand Juveniles leave Canada for their series of exhibition hockey games in Finland, Jack Devine, president of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association, will be sitting in on a historic event at the Jubilyorpi Palace of Sports, Leningrad.

Devine, sports director of CJBQ Radio, will head the Canadian delegation to the first ever Junior International Hockey Tournament to be staged in the Russian city.

Peterborough Petes, first place team in the Major Junior A Hockey League, will be representing Canada in the event. They'll meet Russian, Czech, Finnish, Swedish and United States junior squads in the eight-day tourney.

"I'll be along to help solve any problems that might arise," says Devine, "although I don't expect there will be any difficulties".

"This is not an official junior world championship series but we'll certainly be doing our utmost to plan such an event for the future.

"We'll be meeting with the heads of Ice Hockey Federations of Russia and Czechoslovakia in Leningrad. Our aim is to promote a junior championship series at the international level.

E. Rozemski heads the Russian hockey group while M. Sobet has a similar position for the Czechs.

Devine will get a chance to get Sweden's views on the subject when that country's hockey head, P. O. Wester, visits Canada during January.

Conimencing on the Trenton team's trip to Finland, Jack expresses optimism over the club's chances of holding its own with the Finnish squads.

"I expect Trenton will do quite well. The Finnish players are in the same age group as Canadian juveniles although they are called juniors over there."

Although he's looking forward to the trip to Russia, Jack admits such commitments can have their drawbacks, especially at this time of year.

He's scheduled to leave for Leningrad, Monday, the same day his oldest son Bruce plans to arrive in Belleville for the holiday season.

"He might get a chance to say "hello" before I have to leave but there won't be much time for a visit," says Jack.

Bruce Devine is production manager for CKSL Radio, London.

Czechs To Play Eagles

Jack Devine, president of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association said today Czechoslovakia's Tesla Pardubice team will definitely play an exhibition game in Belleville, Sunday, January 6.

Belleville Eagles of the Ontario Hockey Association Senior A League will supply the opposition for the Czech team which will be in Canada to take part in the second annual CCM International Hockey Tournament.

Devine said confirmation of the Belleville date was received from Czechoslovakia, this morning.

Nine of the players with the club are members of the Czech National Team.

Dave Lucas, publicity director for the Eagles, was overjoyed at the news. There had been some doubt the Czechs would be able to crowd a Belleville date into their busy schedule.

"We certainly appreciate the co-operation of the CAHA in helping us land the Czechs for January 6," said Lucas.

Eagles will journey to Cambridge Hornets in a Senior A League game at Memorial Arena tonight. Game time is 9 o'clock.

A Good Time To Think Golf

While you and I are completely wrapped up with the task at hand, that of preparing for Christmas, one resident of the city is looking ahead to the summer months.

We may not have the time for anything but the attempt to look after the requirements of those who are fortunate enough to have "visions of sugar plums" at this time of year(we should worry about the adults?) but this sports-minded citizen has other things on his mind.

This is not to say that Gary Goyer has forgotten all about the holiday season. No doubt the annual hoopla will soon have him under its spell.

But it must be hard to think Santa when one is contemplating a venture of the type the 32-year-old local sports enthusiast is embarking on.

Many readers of the sports pages will not need to be reminded of the fact that Gary Goyer is a gifted athlete. Thanks to the Big Fellow upstairs, Gary has the talent to excel at a variety of sports.

He's a natural athlete who has made a name for himself on the city sports scene, performing for softball, baseball, and hockey teams.

Somewhere along the line, he took up golf. And as it turns out, the sport he turned to later in life, appears about to provide him with the opportunity to enjoy the game as a business as well as a means of recreation.

Gary is general manager and club pro for the latest addition to the area's sports facilities, Bayview Golfing Centre.

Here is an executive par 3 course that fits right in with the trend today of supplying the public with recreation which does not demand more time than the individual has to spend.

Belleville has already begun construction of the clubhouse at the site, one and one-half miles west of the city, on the North side of Highway 2.

Goyer hopes to be open for business in late July or early August. In order that playing conditions will be first rate at that time, the greens will be sodded.

"The nine-hole layout can be played in about 90 minutes," advises Goyer.

"Water obstacles will guard the approaches to the first and ninth holes but there will be no sand traps. The whole aim of the venture is to provide a course where the golfer can play through without wasting time while someone ahead attempts to get out of a trap. But there will be no "gimmes" on the course.

"Two man-made hills are included in the plans and the fairways will be lined with trees.

"The executive par 3 is a course that offers not only par 3 holes but par 4's as well Goyer explains. "the short executive" should not be taken to mean we will be catering only to people from the business world.

"There will be a limited membership. Our aim is to make the centre a place of recreation for the whole family."

Gary took over Belle-Trent Golfland, located just west of Bayview last year. When the golfing centre is completed, the driving range and miniature golf will be moved to the new location.

Belle-Trent will operate at its present location until the move is made.

Bayview Golfing Centre

This clubhouse will offer pro shop, canteen and lounge facilities for golfers when Bayview Golfing Centre makes it appearance on the area sports scene in late July or early August. An executive par 3 course will be available for play, one and one-half miles West of Belleville on the North side of Highway 2. Bel-Con Engineering of Belleville has begun construction of the clubhouse. Gary Goyer will be the centre's general manager and club pro. The driving range and miniature golf, now located just West of the site of the golfing centre, will be added to Bayview when the new layout is ready to open.

Williams Remains Under Contract With Athletics

BOSTON (AP) — Charlie Finley, controversial owner of Oakland Athletics, held the trump hand and New York Yankees were without a manager today while pondering their next move.

American League President Joe Cronin, stilling an ailing and injury in his final days in office, formally ruled Thursday that Manager Dick Williams still is under contract with Finley.

In a related case, however, Cronin ruled that Ralph Houk now is with Detroit Tigers, and the Yankees have no right to any compensation for the loss of their field boss.

Cronin, after conferring with legal counsel, called a hurried news conference after two days of hearing in which he swore in Houk, Williams, Finley and executives of the Tigers and the Yankees.

First, he announced his decision regarding Houk, who resigned on the final day of the 1973 season with two years to go on a contract with the Yankees. Later, Houk signed with the Tigers.

Then, Cronin dropped a historic baseball bombshell, refusing to accept a contract signed by Williams with the Yankees last week. He ruled that Williams still is under contract for two more years with the Athletics, the club he led immediately after it won the World Series in October.

It is the first time in baseball history that an owner has challenged a managerial contract.

Finley, who filed a federal court suit Tuesday to prevent Williams from joining the Yankees or any other baseball club, appeared to have the manager and his blessings after the World Series. However, he didn't put anything into writing, as did the Yankees with Houk.

Finley later demanded player compensation for Williams. The Yankees, in turn, did the same with the Tigers. Finley is reported to have rejected New York offers of veteran second baseman Horace Clarke or $150,000 in cash and minor league players.

In his decision, which he said was final under rules of the major league constitution, Cronin ruled that Houk was under contract with the Tigers. He noted that the Yankees prepared a news release on Houk's resignation and even submitted it to Houk for approval before it was distributed Sept. 30.

There was nothing in writing by Finley or the Athletics, so Cronin nullified Williams's new contract with the Yankees.

"Williams is under contract to Finley for the next two years," he said.

However, Cronin left the door open for other negotiations between Finley and the Yankees.

"If the parties can get together, I would not stand in the way and Williams can go to the Yankees," Cronin said.

A New York spokesman said the club was "unhappy" with Cronin's decision, but the Yankees and Williams withheld formal comment pending talks with lawyers.

"I think baseball has learned something from this, Cronin said. "There's no basic rule governing the contracts of managers. In the future, I think the commissioner will seriously consider such a major league rule."

Cronin made his findings less than two weeks before he steps up to American League board chairman. Lee MacPhail, general manager of the Yankees, will take over as league president Jan. 1.

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Nate Archibald still is being used sparingly by Kansas City-Omaha Kings in National Basketball Association play.

Archibald made only his third appearance Thursday night since being sidelined for several weeks with a leg injury and contributed eight points in the Kings' 98-92 loss to Capital Bullets.

All other NBA clubs were idle.

San Antonio's game at Virginia, the only American Basketball Association contest on the schedule, was postponed because uniforms were not available.

Somehow, the teams arrived from Wednesday night's game in San Antonio with only one set of uniforms between them.

When the Spurs turned down a suggestion they borrow uniforms from a local sporting goods store, the teams received permission from ABA Commissioner Mike Storen to postpone the game until a future date yet to be determined.

NAMED TOP JOCKEY

NEW YORK (AP) — Laffit Pincay Jr., the first man to ride winners of $4 million in one year, was named the outstanding jockey of 1973 Thursday in a United States poll run by the Thoroughbred Racing Association, the National Turf Writers' Association and the Daily Racing Form.

Harris, who had a pair of 100-yard games, was again the Steeler rushing leader. He had 986 yards after missing two of his last six games.

Expos Team of Year

By GORDON GRANT
CP General Sports Editor

Montreal Expos captured the imagination of baseball fans across Canada this summer, unexpectedly making a serious bid to win the National League's East Division.

They didn't make it, but sports writers and broadcasters selected major league baseball's only Canadian club as Team of the Year in The Canadian Press annual poll.

Montreal Canadiens, winners of the Stanley Cup, finished second and were the only team close to les Expos in the voting by panelists.

The Expos received 51 first-place votes, 30 seconds and 18 thirds for 231 points based on a 3-2-1 value.

The Canadiens, who finished first in the East Division of the National Hockey League, losing only 16 games, a record, received 44 first, 27 seconds and 20 thirds for 206 points.

Ottawa Rough Riders, winners of the Grey Cup, were third with 11 firsts, 12 seconds and 18 thirds and 72 points. The Rough Riders lost their first four Eastern Football Conference games, but rallied and finished the season with a 9-3 win-lost record before going on to defeat Edmonton Eskimos 22-18 in the Grey Cup final.

Toronto Marlboros won the Memorial Cup, the Tier 1 junior hockey championship of Canada, and received 37 points in fourth place.

But it was the Expos who grabbed the fans and sports reporters—the Canadiens were expected to win in the NHL and did.

The Expos started the season strongly, but as the season progressed the question was: When will they fold?

They didn't. They continued to win and skeptics became believers. Eventually, New York Mets won the pennant, but only with a late-season drive.

The Expos finally finished fourth, 3½ games behind the Mets, with a 79-73 record and a .488 average.

In Mike Marshall—who later criticized the club's defence and was traded earlier this month to Los Angeles Dodgers for centrefielder Willie Davis—the Expos had the National League's top relief pitcher and in Gene Mauch the league's Manager of the Year.

Marshall finished with a 14-11 record and was credited with 31 saves. For his efforts he was runner-up to Tom Seaver of the Mets in voting for the best pitcher in the league.

While the Expos were voted the best team in Canada, they ranked high on the list of greatest disappointments—because they didn't make the playoffs.

They also ranked as the surprise of 1973. Voters were surprised the club made such a serious run at the title.

Some other disappointments: Harvey Mackie's risk from Regina losing the world curling championship to Sweden; Hamilton Tiger-Cats' fall from Grey Cup champion to doormats in the EFC; Toronto Argonauts not making the Grey Cup final; Ken Dryden quitting 63 goaltender of Montreal Canadiens; Winnipeg Blue Bombers releasing Mack Herron and Jim Thorpe and missing the playoffs.

Playoff Action Opens Saturday

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

They are showing a replay in Oakland and a few more in Minnesota in the start of the National Football League playoffs Saturday.

Pittsburgh Steelers and Oakland Raiders meet in a rematch of last year's American Conference divisional playoff game.

Washington Redskins challenge Minnesota Vikings in a battle of high-powered National Conference teams.

Two more playoff games will be staged on Sunday—an AFC match between Cincinnati Bengals and Miami Dolphins and an NFC struggle between Los Angeles Rams and Dallas Cowboys.

If it is anything like last year, Pittsburgh and Oakland will be the most interesting of the four.

The Steelers defeated the Raiders last season 13-7 in a story-book finish on Franco Harris' last-second catch of a ball that was literally up for grabs.

This year, Oakland repeated as champion of the AFC's Western Division. The Steelers, who won the Central Division last season, will go into the big game as the AFC's Wild Card entry.

Enroute to their sixth divisional title in seven years, the Raiders posted a 12-2 record of the fewest points allowed (175) and even beat defending Super Bowl champion Miami along the way.

Led by southpaw quarterback Ken Stabler, the Raiders haven't faltered under the pressure of crucial games.

Stabler took over from Daryle Lamonica for the fourth game of the season and set a club record (62.7 completion percentage. He led AFC passer ratings.

The Steelers have a good passer, Terry Bradshaw who compiled a 9-1 record in the games he started this season. He was hurt toward the end of the year, and the slack was picked up by another good quarterback—Terry Hanratty.

CENTRES SWAPPED

CLEVELAND (AP) — Cleveland Crusaders of the World Hockey Association swapped centres Thursday, recalling Ray Addu ono from Macon, Ga., and sending Norm Cournoyer back to the Southern League farm club.

"And I say the goal counted! The puck was in his mouth when he went thru the net!"

German Skier Tops

ZELLAM SEE, Austria (AP) — Winning an international skiing race means the world to Hanni Wenzel.

"I cannot describe the feeling. It's too beautiful for words," said the 19-year-old German girl after winning her first World Cup ski race Thursday, the giant slalom.

Miss Wenzel, skiing for Liechtenstein, was clocked in one minute, 24.06 seconds for the run down the 1,080-metre course crowded with 60 gates.

The German skier finished ahead of Olympic champion Marie-Therese Nadig of Switzerland and Traudl Treichl of West Germany.

Miss Nadig, whose runner-up time was 1:24.72, said she "had problems on the lower part of the track, but otherwise—my turns were okay. The track was in excellent shape."

Miss Treichl was timed in 1:24.83 for third, followed by Fabienne Serrat of France in 1:24.90. Claudia Giordani of Italy in 1:25.15 and Kathy Kreiner of Timmins, Ont., in 1:25.36.

Caught by War

Belgian Plan Will Deal With Language Problem

BRUSSELS (CP) — An Iberian plan for granting the linguistically distinct regions of Belgium more power over their local affairs has been agreed on by the country's coalition government.

Barring a breakdown on other issues, the agreement may serve to assure the administration's survival until the next scheduled election in 1976.

The principle of regionalization had long since won approval from the national parliament in Brussels.

But for months there were fears that implementing it might prove the government's downfall, involving as it does the perennially explosive question of relations between Belgium's Dutch-and French-speaking communities.

Socialist Prime Minister Edmond Leburton, eager for time to tackle crucial economic problems like inflation, succeeded in shunting further discussion of regionalization into a special committee.

However, sooner or later Leburton had to deal with disagreements within his cabinet over how the principle of regional assemblies for French-speaking Wallonia, Dutch-speaking Flanders and bilingual Brussels should take practical shape.

The Socialists and the Flemish wing of their coalition partner, the Social Christian party, wanted membership of the assemblies drawn from the central parliament.

The argument was that this would make it easier for the regional houses to work in coordination with the national parliament.

But French-speaking Social Christians and the Liberals, also coalition members, wanted to ensure authentic local representation by having the assemblies consist of provincial councillors—the on-the-spot regional officials already appointed by parliament.

This proposed incorporation of a grassroots element was billed as paving the way for the directly elected regional parliaments sought by champions of local autonomy.

But Leburton has repeatedly warned the country against any innovation that would produce a new, complex and expensive bureaucracy.

Eventually the prime minister, seeing the potential threat posed by the regionalization issue to his government's survival, called an extraordinary session of the cabinet and the result was a compromise.

This provided for manning the assemblies in Flanders and Wallonia partly with members of the national lower house from the respective regions and partly with provincial councillors, the former being in the majority.

The Brussels assembly would also include MPs, plus members of the municipal council for Greater Brussels.

These and other provisions in the compromise plan are supposed to be temporary, pending ultimate agreement on a permanent solution.

But the details of even this interim plan still have to be worked out and parliamentary passage is unlikely before next July.

If that schedule holds good, the temporary system will probably come into effect in October and experts say nothing permanent can be drawn up before the 1975 elections.

Expressing a reaction common among newspapers, La Libre Belgique of Brussels suggested that the possibility of a government collapse as a result of internal rifts on regionalization apparently has been avoided for the moment.

"One must hope that the government, revitalized by the agreement, will be able to maintain itself and carry on effectively until the end of the present parliament," La Libre Belgique said.

For moderates viewing the perpetually uneasy relations between Wallonia and Flanders, the compromise came as a welcome relief after weeks of bitter friction over a now celebrated measure known as the September decree.

This decree, passed by one of the regional bodies already operating in Flanders, gives factory inspectors wide powers to ensure that only Flemish—the sole official language in the region—is used in all written and verbal contacts between management and staff in the Flemish half of Belgium.

The penalties include prison terms ranging from eight days to one month.

The decree drew bitter denunciations in the French-language press and some Francophone politicians called it a violation of democratic practice.

But the Flemings stood their ground, insisting that such measures are necessary to protect their language against the further incursions of the powerful French influence and, for that matter, against English.

One Fleming, in a hard-hitting letter to Le Monde of Paris, rejected the Francophone reaction in Belgium as designed "to damage and check economic progress in Flanders."

"It is inconceivable that a Flemish worker, working in Flanders, should be obliged to know French in order to understand the instructions of his employer and to ensure a solid future within the company," the Fleming asserted.

With this kind of feeling simmering in both Flanders and Wallonia, the compromise will certainly not end the Flemish-Francophone rivalry that has plagued Belgium for generations.

There will be continued pressures, too, for regionalization to take the form of a full-fledged federalism.

Said a spokesman for the Flemish nationalist party known as the Volksunie:

"For us, federalism remains the only worthwhile solution, the only one allowing institutions to be simplified.

"That don't mean, however, that we refuse the idea of establishing the federal system by stages."

Argentina Boasts Plucky Game Fish

PASO DEL PATRIA, Argentina (Reuter) — Tycoons pay small fortunes to come to this remote corner of Argentina to hunt the great dorado, South America's plucklest, most voracious game fish.

Miguel Cena, a former fishing champion who works as a guide during the short fishing season, grunts and waves frantically from the bow of our boa on the Parana River.

The long, tense silence breaks as I stumble to my feet pulling, hauling, jerking at the line.

Perhaps 200 feet downstream, the dorado leaps from the deep brown waters of the river, plunging vertically to the depths in a bold bid to shake free of the hook.

In a country that boasts some of the world's best salmon and trout fishing in the lakes and rivers of Patagonia, the dorado, in his subtropical rivers is still the most prized trophy.

Trout and salmon, introduced from the United States, have flourished in the south. But the dorado is a native, first reported in 1534 by Spanish conquistador Alvar Nunez Cabeca de Vaca.

Green-backed and golden-flanked with deep red fins, stocky and powerful, he's a cannibal from birth, feeding on his own kind and other luckless victims.

His bristling double row of teeth in the golden head make him a formidable adversary, capable of biting through steel tackle, as well as one of the world's most beautiful game fish.

Arms and back aching with the effort, I haul and lighten as the captive bombshell executes an explosive series of leaps and plunges, flashing out of the water like a golden arrow.

Suddenly the line goes slack. Despairing pull on the rod brings no answering struggle. He has snapped the line, which is 20-pound test.

Miguel, a deal-mute, raises his arms in an eloquent gesture of disappointment and mild rebuke, but quickly ties on another steel dropper and hook, skewers a small live fish onto it and we're back in business.

I try again, but we know we have lost the biggest catch of the day, a beauty of maybe 25 pounds.

And what is worse, my wife already has two big golden fish lying in the boat. The 15-pound one we have grilled for dinner that night. The other weighs 11 pounds. Beginner's luck?

I have thrown back three "small" ones, just under the 25-inch regulation length and weighing about 10 pounds each. Each took 10 minutes to haul in.

And from this river of hungry fish we have a pile of other specimens—whiskered mandurle, like catfish; flat and vicious piranha with huge teeth that would slice off your fingers, and big, sluggish surubi, a scale-less, toothless, bewhiskered denizen of the deep that goes beyond 220 pounds and makes delicious eating.

Our surubi is 15 pounds, but he hugged the bottom like a rock and took 15 muscle-breaking minutes to conquer.

The best dorado season is the dry, late winter months from July to September, when the waters are low. Then the average catch weighs around 30 pounds and the fish come at the hook almost non-stop.

The record dorado was 64 pounds.

Zappa Says Most Audiences Don't Know What Goes On

TORONTO (CP) — "There are four things you need to know to understand my music," Frank Zappa said. "You have to know about rhythm 'n' blues. You have to have a working knowledge of Afro-Western art music over the past 100 years. You have to have a complete working knowledge of all my albums since 1964. And you have to've seen at least, one of my shows at least once a year."

Ten years and 17 albums later, Frank Zappa and The Mothers are a legend. Over the years, their once virtually incomprehensible offerings of free-form rock and jazz music have mellowed into sophisticated, though still complicated, compositions. Zappa displayed his new dimension in rock music during a sell-out two-concert stand here recently and although devout sects of Zappa followers clearly appreciated the more logical structure of his music, many other listeners remained baffled by the mysterious musician's work.

Zappa looked upset when, at the close of the first movement of one of his compositions, many fans began to applaud.

"You're not supposed to clap between movements," Zappa groaned. But misdirected applause has always been a problem and Zappa has grown accustomed to it.

"Over the years," he said in an interview, "there has been an increase of maybe five or 10 per cent in the number of people who have any insight, but as far as most of the audiences are concerned, they haven't the faintest idea of what's going on."

Even some of Zappa's musicians have found working periods of time. Since The Mothers, formerly The Mothers of Invention, first appeared in 1964, 18 changes have been made in the lineup. But the present band, consisting of seven musicians, is Zappa admits, the closest yet to what he wants.

"They're all monsters on their instruments," he said. "I can easily find a musician who plays the notes technically without fault. But it's the execution of the notes in the proper spirit that is more important."

Zappa's music further defies definition or explanation as he still encourages his musicians to play in places, anything that comes to mind.

"I encourage the members of the band to feel that there's no reason why they can't do anything on stage and no reason why it can't be appreciated," he added.

On stage, Zappa himself plays only infrequently although his masterful guitar work is fast and intricate, much of the show he stands motionless, showed in a multi-color light show, convincing The Mothers with his fodex finger.

At 32, he has lost some of his stage antics of the past, although a Zappa concert remains visually spectacular. But the dazzling frills now play only a supporting role to the music itself.

Zappa has carried his own legend in rock music by his innovations. One of his earlier albums, Absolutely Free, was the first to be recorded as a single piece of music. He was the first to incorporate a symphony orchestra into rock music.

Best to Check Eye Drop Blurs

By GEORGE C. THOSTESON, M.D.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I am 45 and about six months ago I went to an eye exam showed glaucoma. The first drops he gave me produced blurred vision, dizziness and nausea.

The second medication is okay when taken at night, as I'm soon asleep, but when I take it during the day I get a headache lasting anywhere from one to five hours. There is occasional blurring, and once in a while automobile lights look like a fourth of July finale.

The real problem, though, is the headaches. The doctor says this will pass, but I'm afraid after my first experience to ask him to switch the drops again, and I'd feel foolish to complain.

You might feel foolish complaining but you would really be foolish not to.

There can be side effects with any medication, including those used for glaucoma. Often these troubles do pass away with continued use, but the important fact is that you are miserable. Report your problem to your doctor, knowing unless you tell him. So.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Would you discuss the P-W (Wolf-Parkinson-White) heart disease and its effect on a person? Is it nearly always fatal as I have been told?

It is an inherited disorder which involves acceleration of the impulses between the auricles and ventricles or transmitted just like other inherited diseases. It can be important, but the fact is that you are miserable, speeds up the heart beat.

Something like three-quarters of people with W-P-W will have attacks of quickened heart beat or palpitation, but that is the only symptom the patient will detect.

If attacks are frequent, treatment with drugs to control the heart rate (such as quinidine) are needed. But no, this condition is rarely always fatal. While death has occurred during an attack, that is rare. Generally speaking, the condition can be kept under control successfully.

But because of the numbers of people who have attacks (a hospital clinic I visit should note that few of them involve W-P-W. For the most part, nerves, or too much smoking, or too many stimulants, be it coffee and tea, similar drinks, are the cause, and the majority of such folks need no medication and, in fact, generally do a lot of worrying for which there is no need.

Back to W-P-W: It usually occurs in individuals who do not have organic heart disease.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I am 20 and my hair on top has been thinning and becoming dry. I went to two places that treat baldness and both said I have seborrhea sicca, and that for approximately $300 they would guarantee to stop the loss. My dermatologist said it was pattern baldness and nothing could be done. Would you give me the address of a leading specialist, who would diagnose my problem and I could be sure?

I doubt if any trained dermatologist would raise recognizing seborrhea sicca, which is a form of dermatitis, a skin disease. I would be suspicious of that $300 offer unless it's ironclad and in writing, which I don't think you'd get.

If you want another dermatologist's opinion, there's nothing wrong with that. Go to your family physician and ask him to refer you to nearest, and best. Or, of course, call your county medical society and ask for references.

If you don't think that Eric Murray and Sammy Hchels of Toronto are one of the best pairs in the world just look at this quiet defence. They were sort of fixed on the bidding.

North's pass of one diamond redoubled was for business. Eric sitting East didn't care. He would have made an overtrick if allowed to play there, but South ran to one heart. Murray doubled and opened the four of diamonds.

South rose with dummy's ace; discarded a club and led a spade. Eric won with the ace and led a trump whereupon South quickly played the ace and queen and led a third trump. South won in his own hand and led a club toward dummy's queen and right here is where Sammy separated the men from the boys. A lesser player would have let the club go whereupon there would have been no way left to lose one heart, but Sammy hopped up with his king and thought for a while.

Then he led the only card that would enable him to beat the contract. He played his low trump

South's only choice was to cash is good spades and concede the last three tricks for down one.

Ireland Starts Return to Sanity

LONDON (CP) — Ireland started the long march back to sanity in 1973 but the formidable roadblocks that lie ahead in the new year brought skepticism that peace finally was on hand after four years of guerrilla war.

In an accomplishment of near-miraculous proportions in the context of Northern Ireland's recent violent history, a 78-man provincial assembly was elected and, more important, a power-sharing executive of Protestants and Roman Catholics agreed on.

Progress also was made toward a Council of Ireland, bringing together leaders of Britain, the Irish Republic and Ulster in a remarkable, albeit tentative, show of unity.

But with violence continuing and important leaders of extreme Catholic and Protestant factions still openly dedicated to the destruction of the fledgling setup, the future remained doubtful.

Although progress on the political front went hand-in-hand with bomb attacks and assassinations, mass arrests, arms seizures and improved British Army surveillance brought periods of relative calm late in the year.

The number of British soldiers killed went over the 200 mark during 1973 and the total of all fatalities in the four-year Ulster feud inched toward 1 000.

Frustrated by the arrest of most of the insurgents' effective leaders, they carried terror to Britain with a widespread though largely amateurish campaign of bombings and fire-setting. London was rocked by three big car-bomb explosions March 8, causing widespread injury and damage but no deaths. Subsequently, eight persons arrested at the airport as they sought to flee home to Ireland were convicted and sentenced to life imprisonment.

Britain's attempt to douse the violence reached its peak in March, 1972, with the dissolution of the Protestant-run provincial parliament and appointment of William Whitelaw as administrator, a post he left recently amid great praise to be succeeded by Francis Pym.

The turning point this year came when the leadership of the majority in the badly split pro-British Ulster Unionist party agreed to work with the Catholic-based Social Democratic and Labor party, pledged to a United Ireland, and the non-sectarian Alliance party in the new Ulster executive.

It was the first time in the 50 years since Ireland was partitioned that any such spirit of co-operation had emerged. But the response of wary Protestant elements was such that Unionist leader Brian Faulkner came within a hair of being toppled.

The campaign against the former Ulster premier intensified when he and his new-found colleagues travelled to England for marathon talks with Irish Prime Minister Liam Cosgrave and British Prime Minister Edward Heath. They hammered out a rough-hewn design for a Council of Ireland, first envisaged a half-century ago.

In Dublin, only the outlawed Irish Republican Army strongly protested the Irish government's agreement to recognize the present status of Ulster until such time as the majority agrees to a change.

The mood of euphoria also enveloped the British delegation, but back in Ulster the burden of rallying support for the scheme fell to Faulkner.

A result of all this political manoeuvring has been the isolation of such one-time Unionists as the fiery Rev. Ian Paisley and William Craig, banished from the inner councils and left to protest from the fringe under the banners of their newly-formed splinter parties.

Dedicated to either restoration of a Protestant-dominated Ulster government or outright union with Britain, they find abhorrent any power-sharing with the Catholics and they remain powerful and influential voices in Northern Ireland.

As the year ended, they and their allies who had already seen the national assembly disrupted with verbal and physical violence, were organizing demonstrations and strikes aimed at wrecking the new executive and turning Faulkner out of office.

Pilgrims Few

Thugs Keep Devout Away

BETHLEHEM (CP) — Fear of war, Arab terrorism and local thugs have combined to push the number of pilgrims visiting this crumbling town where Christ was born to a record low for recent Christmas seasons.

Tourism officials said it had become obvious by early December that pilgrims, who usually pour in from all over the world, were staying away in huge numbers this Christmas.

Part of the explanation, they say, is the recent Arab-Israeli war but equally important is the reputation the hilltop town has attained as a centre overwhelmed by deformed cripples, beggars, pedlars, pickpockets, prostitutes and outright crooks.

Compared with last year's 1,000 or so pilgrims, fewer than 200 are expected to attend midnight mass this year in the Church of the Nativity, containing the crypt where Christ is said to have been born.

To a first-time visitor, Bethlehem compares with some of the world's most depraved areas with its overriding atmosphere of squalor, poverty and the aggressiveness of yelling, squabbling shoeshiners, peddling their cheap wares at outrageous prices.

The mayor of Bethlehem acknowledges the problem and has set a deadline of two years to carry out a massive clean-up campaign. But officials in nearby Jerusalem say tourism has already dropped so badly it will take at least a decade just to return it to the levels it reached at the end of the 1960s.

The fear of Arab terrorist attacks, especially the recent massacre at Rome airport, also has been a deterrent to tourists, officials say.

But many are inclined to put most of the blame on local conditions.

From the moment a visitor steps from his car, he is surrounded by a babbling mob, demanding to sell pieces of the cross, threads from the cloth in which Christ was supposed to have been wrapped, splinters from Joseph's staff and a raft of other fraudulent items, all at exorbitant prices.

A brilliantly-lit Christmas tree stands in the square in front of the church but the only other indication that the Christmas season has arrived is the stepped-up activity of the hundreds of petty merchants who fill the town.

Miranda Likely To Be Premier

MADRID (AP) — With final tribute paid to Luis Carrero-Blanco, speculation turned today to who will replace him as premier of Spain.

By most accounts, it will be Torcuato Fernandez Miranda, the vice-premier who automatically succeeded to the post after Admiral Carrero-Blanco was assassinated Thursday morning. He holds office for 10 days or until—Gen. Francisco Franco makes a final selection.

Windfall Oil Profits Causes Deadlock

Energy Crisis Gets Serious --- No Holiday for Congressmen

WASHINGTON (CP) — The United States House of Representatives killed a Senate-passed emergency energy bill early today. Then it refused to let Congress take a month's vacation.

The House voted down the Senate bill 219 to 34. Many congressmen opposed the Senate bill because it did not contain a restriction on windfall profits for oil companies.

At the peak of the balloting on this bill that would have given President Nixon a free hand to order gasoline rationing, the House suffered its own energy crisis as the electronic voting system broke down.

After this touch of irony, a long day of parliamentary manoeuvres by Republicans and oil-state legislators ended when the House refused to quit for the year although it obviously could not agree with the Senate on energy legislation.

For the first time in 30 years, the House rejected the normally routine adjournment resolution. This 171-to-91 vote against leaving for a winter vacation was followed by a decision to recess until noon.

Congress remained deadlocked over the energy legislation. House Democratic Leader Thomas O'Neill of Massachusetts said: "I don't know how we can break the logjam, but there's no oust on us—we tried in good faith to do our part."

House Democrats said it is up to the Senate to initiate any more compromise. But Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield of Montana said the Senate has no intention of trying to resolve the impasse before Jan. 21, when Congress had been due to return.

Representative John Brademas (D.rm. Ind.), assistant Democratic whip, blamed the Republicans and "big oil" for the impasse that blocked House action.

"We rejected the package handed to us tonight because we refused to allow the big oil companies to reap windfall profits without any limit whatever," he said. "We have acted in the best interests of the people of the United States. The Nixon administration and the House Republicans have demonstrated who calls their turn—big oil."

President Nixon needs the energy bill to take such measures as limiting the amount of gas that can be sold at any one time, ordering gas stations to close on weekends and other days, reducing the amount of outdoor commercial lighting, and other measures designed to save fuel.

The president has asked Americans to take several fuel-conservation measures voluntarily, such as closing gas stations Saturday night and Sunday and reducing speed limits to 50 miles an hour, but he does not have legal authority to order the actions.

The bill gives Congress veto power over all these measures, except gas rationing, 15 days after they reconvene in January.

It also creates a temporary federal energy administration to run the fuel-conservation program.

Christmas Chain

The children's section of Corby Public Library combined Christmas and creativity with a lot of fun yesterday. Children were invited to take part in making Christmas decorations to be placed on a Christmas tree in the library. Maura Lloyd, left, looks on as her sister, Cheryl, who works at the library, places a paper chain into the box of other home-made decorations.

Maine Quarrel Ended

Blakeney Promises Oil To Be Shipped to East

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Two sore points in the energy situation were soothed Friday, and the federal government is trying to prevent others by going right to the root of the problem: the oil-rich Middle East.

Two concessions to the needs of others salved the sore points. Premier Allan Blakeney said Saskatchewan will not insist on tit-for-tat concessions from Eastern Canada in return for keeping its oil prices below international levels. And the national energy board rescinded freezes with Maine by approving export of enough industrial fuel to keep two pulp mills in the state operating through winter.

But the source of the trouble is the source of the foreign oil on which Eastern Canada is dependent. Production cuts and embargoes imposed by Arab states to isolate Israel have reduced supplies and, consequently, allowed other producing states to raise prices.

The external affairs department announced Friday it would seek approval from Saudi Arabia to establish an embassy there. Canada's first in an oil-producing Arab state, are considering embassies in other Middle East countries.

The effects of the energy shortage, real or threatened, continued to filter through it the public Friday.

A textile plant, largest employer in St. Methode, Que., 70 miles south of Quebec City, laid off its 110 workers for four weeks because it has received only one-fifth of the cloth ordered in the last six months. The cloth contains nylon, a petroleum derivative.

And the president of the Canadian Grocery Distributors' Institute said consumers can expect higher prices and delays in obtaining fruits.

In a news release issued in Winnipeg, M. D. Bonz blamed the transport costs and delays on early closing of United States service stations and increased costs of diesel fuel. Most produce sold in Canada during the winter is trucked from California and Florida.

Mr. Bonz said weekend service station closings in the United States can mean delivery delays of up to 36 hours, but added that a random check by the institute indicated the situation "isn't critical at the moment."

Premier Blakeney had said recently that Saskatchewan is willing to sell its oil to Eastern Canada for less than the rising U.S. price, but in return would expect concessions on its traditional economic grievances such as railway freight rates.

He told a news conference Friday that transportation policy will have to be a topic at the upcoming national energy conference, but his province will not demand specific concessions.

Weather Will Get Better

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Although snow was still falling in extreme eastern Ontario—the remnants of the storm which left up to 10 inches of snow in the province Friday—the prospects for today appear brighter, the weather office said.

Mainly sunny skies and slightly higher temperatures were expected in the southern and central parts of Ontario.

The ministry of transportation and communications said drifting snow was resulting in some poor visibility in Kingston, London, Ottawa and Hearst districts, with highways generally bare with centre-bare, snow-covered sections.

Three Men Survive Sea Ordeal

VICTORIA (CP) — Three men, with only 60 days' supplies, have survived an incredible 36-day trip across the Pacific Ocean in a 41-foot ketch. A fourth man didn't make it.

The three survivors, drifting without power or sails, were rescued Friday 50 miles west of Tofino on Vancouver Island.

Raymond Bullert of Langley, B.C., was dead when the Canadian destroyer escort Mackenzie reached the ketch. The only three were "weak, but alive," said Capt. Bill Akman of search and rescue.

The captain of the Pacific Mariner, Dennis Delong, 30, of Vancouver, and crew members Bob Lessard of Vancouver and Bob Quackenbush of Mechanicsville, N.Y., are suffering from malnutrition.

The Mackenzie is taking them to the Canadian Forces base at nearby Esquimalt.

When the men left Yokohama, Japan, Sept. 13, they figured they would be in Vancouver in 32 to 35 days.

"It now appears it has been drifting without power or sails for quite some time," Capt. Akman said Friday.

Canadian and American search officials gave up looking for the ketch at the end of November.

The ketch, which apparently did not carry a radio transmitter, hailed the Chinese freighter Welly Thursday night but encountered a language problem. Then the British freighter North Atlantic Valour was hailed.

Meanwhile, an Argus aircraft which had been searching for survivors among the 37 crew members of the sunken Liberian freighter Oriental Monarch, was ordered to stay over the ketch until the Mackenzie, with a doctor on board, reached it.

Palestinians Get Terrorists

RABAT (AP) — The Kuwait government today handed over to the Palestine Liberation Organization (PLO) the five terrorists who killed 32 persons in an attack and hijacking at Rome airport, official Moroccan sources reported.

Four Moroccan officials were among the 31 persons killed Monday when the terrorists hurled grenades into a parked Pan American World Airways jetliner. The terrorists surrendered at Kuwait airport Tuesday after hijacking a Lufthansa plane from Rome and killing a hostage in Athens.

The Moroccan government has demanded "exemplary punishment without mercy" for the five. Italy has also asked Kuwait to return the five to stand trial, but the two countries have no extradition treaty.

The Palestinian Liberation Organization denounced the operation and called for the extradition of the men "to stand trial before a Palestinian revolutionary court."

It was not known immediately where the five Arabs will be taken to stand trial, but the PLO has its headquarters in Beirut, Lebanon.

Kuwait officials said earlier they would hand the terrorists over to the PLO if interrogation of the men confirmed that they were Palestinians.

The PLO, headed by Yasir Arafat, is the umbrella structure that groups together the five major Palestinian guerilla organizations. It was recognized by the Arab summit conference in Algiers last month as "the only representative" of the Palestinian people.

Moroccan sources said King Hassan II received word directly from Kuwait that the Palestinian terrorists have been handed over to PLO representatives in Kuwait and will be tried by a Palestinian military tribunal.

Pick Group To Arrange Withdrawal

GENEVA (AP) — The opening phase of the Middle East peace conference ended today with an agreement to set up an Egyptian-Israeli military working group to negotiate troop disengagements along the Suez canal, a United Nations spokesman said.

The closed session lasted only 15 minutes because general agreement on the military group had been worked out in advance between Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko, U.S. State Secretary Henry Kissinger and Israeli Foreign Minister Abba Eban.

Conference sources said no date was fixed for the committee to meet, or for the full conference to reconvene. It was expected that the second phase of the peace talks will begin early next year depending on the progress of the working group.

The establishment of such a body has all along been a key Egyptian demand. The Israelis are reported to have been relenting immediate discussions of the disengagement issue because of coming national elections.

But an Israeli spokesman said today, "We are satisfied" with the results of the opening phase of the talks which began Friday with Israeli charges that the Arabs had committed atrocities during the October war.

Trenton Bureau

Is it Yachts Or Youngsters?

By COLIN BRUCE

If we can have a multi-million dollar marina built here in Trenton, we can have a $13,000 a year day care centre — or can we?

In a magnanimous move, town council this week agreed to fund the project for three months until the province or the country can find another way to take care of it.

Grace Day Care Centre asked for six months help but settled for three. Council didn't want anyone to get the impression it was too closely guarding the purse strings. But at the same time, it didn't want anyone to get the idea Trenton was going into the day care centre business.

And all this goes on in the shadow of discussion about a marina which, despite being valuable tourist bait, must be considered a luxury compared to the care of children.

According to a spokesman for the centre, 17 children are currently enrolled and another 15 are on the waiting list. All but two come from needy families.

Local Initiatives Program funding ran out last month. Since then volunteers have been staffing the centre. It was due to close the first of the New Year.

Council feels Hastings County might be able to get into the Trenton Day Care Centre business like it did in Belleville.

If I was to draw a list of priorities I would know who a needy family is but I've never met a needy yacht clubber.

If the centre works the way the lady says it does and performs the service some of its users obviously need, then let's get some money for it.

Some of the parents have told centre personnel they would have to go back on welfare, or what not, if there was no other place to leave their children with qualified staff.

I would hate to think council would cut off the money in three months if the senior governments don't come up with the cash.

I have neither boats nor children but I know Trenton's children come before boats and tourists.

Treat Three In Collision

Three people were treated for shock and released from Belleville General Hospital after a rear-end collision on Bridge St. West late Friday.

Carol Grey, of 125 Bridge St. W., Sharon Lake, 15, and her sister Jane, 14, were taken to hospital by taxi. A hospital spokesman said they had minor injuries.

The three were passengers in a car owned by James Richard Hooper, 47, of 46 Linton Park Rd., parked on Bridge St. W.

That Friendly, Helpful Fellow Could Be After Your Bankroll

By PETER GOODSPEED
Staff Reporter

He doesn't sell snake oil any more; he doesn't have the character of a lovable old man like W. C. Fields and he seldom takes the hard, fast-and-loose pitch that immediately makes you suspicious.

No, the con artist has changed quite a bit over the years.

The victims are still the same, though — the old, the lonely and the greedy.

Basically, that was the message Belleville police Inspector Ralph Blatchford carried to senior citizens here in recent months.

Along with Traffic Safety Sergeant Bob Hall, the inspector has recently completed a speaking tour of the various old age homes and the senior citizen groups in the city. While their main concern was underlining the importance of traffic safety and answering any questions their audiences might have had, the policemen also took advantage of the opportunity to warn senior citizens of the dangers they face as targets for the con artist.

"We weren't having any special problems with common or bunco artists in Belleville when we decided to talk to the senior citizens on that subject," Inspector Blatchford said. "We just felt that it was a suitable topic and decided to include it in our community program on traffic safety. You know, like the old adage, that they're almost it or not, are beginning to get heard — susceptible to the advances made by a bunco artist.

"The bunco artist plays on the fact that someone may be lonely and sympathetic to a younger person. He will use that to gain an older person's trust and confidence and then he will rob them of their savings."

The con man is one of the most feared of all criminals," Inspector Blatchford continued. "He takes your money by deceit and, unlike the burglar or the armed robber, usually does it with the full victim acting as a willing, if unwitting, participant.

"By the time the victim has discovered his loss, however, the bunco artist has fled with his winnings. Even if he is caught, prosecution is difficult and the stolen money is seldom recovered. Therefore, to protect people from being robbed, you have to expose not only the bunco artist's methods of operation but also a person's own susceptibilities to that type of operation."

In any con game, experience and planning are on the side of the bunco artist. He knows the rules of the game and the victim never really knows he is playing until he has lost.

An added advantage on the side of the bunco artist is his need for efficiency, the inspector said. The quicker a bunco artist can choose his victim, take his money and leave, the better are his chances of escaping arrest.

Basically, the bunco artist plays four different types of con game.

GAME 1 THE BANK EXAMINER — In this game the bunco artist almost always selects an older person as his victim. Posing as a bank manager or a police officer, the bunco artist will phone his victim and tell him that he is investigating an allegation that one of the bank tellers is manipulating funds in some customer's account.

The police and the bank would greatly appreciate any assistance the customer could offer in helping to apprehend this criminal, the bunco artist tells his victim.

If the victim would simply withdraw his savings in cash and turn them over to a phony police or bank official, the bunco representative, the bank would then be able to test the teller's reliability.

It sounds simple and few people would fall for a line like that, you say? Well you are wrong. The bank examiner game is one of the most common con games on record. Lonely senior citizens who are still willing to try to be of some service to the community are basically easy prey for large portions of their life savings as a result of this game.

"No legitimate bank official would advise a depositor to make a large cash withdrawal." Inspector Blatchford warns. "Anyone who receives a phone call or a visit from someone posing as a bank official or policeman, who makes that type of request, should contact the police department immediately."

GAME 2. MARKETING SURVEY — Again this is a common ploy used by bunco artists, and housewives as well as homeowners and senior citizens are susceptible to it.

The bunco artist usually represents himself as a salesman working for a company that is willing to offer you something for nothing.

As a result of a special advertising campaign or marketing survey, his company is willing to make you a very special offer he says. All you have to do is sign a contract that is nothing more than a receipt.

The contract is usually of the long-term installment type with a high interest rate, or a maximum interest rates.

"Don't before you sign anything," is the advice Inspector Blatchford gives. "If you are approached by a salesman, ask what you are getting into ask for a couple of days to think the offer over and then take the contract to your lawyer. A legitimate salesman will not normally object to the delay, whereas a bunco artist will object strenuously or never return."

GAME 3. HOME IMPROVEMENTS — This game is also quite common and the first two, but it is still played fairly regularly.

A home owner is approached by a man who is posing as a home improvement contractor of some sort. The contractor offers to pave a driveway, fix a chimney, or waterproof a basement for a very low price. He can do this because he has just finished a big job in the neighborhood or has some material left over, he says.

Chances are, if the contractor is a bunco artist, that the work will be of inferior quality and the ultimate price of the job is much higher than the figure you are told.

The bunco artist who engages in this type of game is usually from out of town.

"The homeowner should never accept something for nothing, especially when he is dealing with an honest business man", Inspector Blatchford said. Honest salesmen and legitimate merchants invite you to investigate before you buy. You should take them up on their offer.

"If you deal with local, well-know contractors, you are normally assured of getting a good job done for your money. But, in all cases, you should ask for and keep a copy of a contract that you are considering signing. Also, you should make certain there are no blanks in the contract. Know who you are dealing with and what the final price before you sign."

GAME 4 THE PIGEON DROP — This game is, perhaps the most notorious of the bunco schemes. It has a multitude of variations and, although it is continually being exposed to the public, it still continues to flourish.

The "pigeon drop" is at heart, a confidence trick. A bunco artist will win the confidence and trust of some unsuspecting person - in this case, a lonely senior citizen, - and will somehow manage to get him to give him a portion of his savings.

The money could be required to show "good Faith" between relative strangers who are about to embark on a business deal or it could be demanded as the ante needed for some get rich quick scheme.

Whatever the case, the victim is usually swept along with the promise of receiving at least an amount of money. The lure of getting something for nothing — even friendship — will temporarily lull the "pigeon's" judgement and common sense to sleep.

The best warning the police can give anyone who might be a participant in this type of game is "be suspicious of any procedure to withdraw cash for any purpose."

"People love to play games, but they hate to lose," said Inspector Blatchford. "So they should just remember that when they play with the bunco artist, they are bound to lose. It's his game.

CF-5: Ottawa Sued By Aviation Company

OTTAWA (CP) — Supply and Services Minister Jean-Pierre Goyer disclosed Friday that a case at one time suggested to Northrop aviation that a judge be asked to appoint a portion of the American company's dispute with Canada's government.

He said in the Commons he had hoped that the rest of the dispute could be settled over the aircraft that has been the subject of much controversy since acquired by the armed forces could be settled out of court.

The minister expressed the appointment but no surprise that Northrop has launched a $17.2-million suit against the government for damages and outstanding payments in connection with production of 116 CF-5s by Canadair of Montreal. The CF-5 is a Canadian version of Northrop's F-5 fighter and was produced in Montreal.

Because of the dispute with Northrop Canada is holding back several millions in payments.

Different interpretations of that licensing agreement makes up part of the dispute between the company and the government.

The company has cancelled the licence, which does not make much difference because Canadair has no new orders for the planes.

The Montreal company now is building 18 aircraft for the armed forces and, as these are being made in the process of construction, they are not affected by the Northrop action.

Canada sold 18 aircraft from its armed forces inventories to Venezuela.

It says that agreement says Canada can sell "phased out" aircraft.

But Northrop says that the term phased out would apply only if Canada was disposing of its CF-5s.

Canada sold single-seat CF-5s and altered dual-seat aircraft from Canadair to replace them. It wanted the latter for training purposes.

It is this disagreement that Mr. Goyer said Canada is willing to have settled in a court.

The other areas of dispute revolve around the Canadian claim that Northrop did not perform in the manner it contracted to do in 1966.

Northrop says it have spent a certain amount of money in Canada that was equal to part of the money Canada paid for the F-5. This is the so-called offset arrangement that Canadian contracts with foreign suppliers creating — Canada says Northrup did not spend enough on offset.

Finally Northrop provided information to the government on how the F-5 could be modified to meet Canada's specific requirements. Canada says the information it got was late and of poor quality and as a result aircraft costs increased.

Has This Award Been Forgotten?

By MARGARET HAYLOCK

PICTON — Approximately five years ago Prince Edward County council agreed to sponsor a citizen's award to recognize instances of local courage and achievement.

The first recipient of this plaque was a Wellington resident, Phyllis Fritz, who rescued two youngsters from ice in Isaacs Bay on the edge of Lake Ontario.

Mrs. Fritz had observed the plight of the children and, at the risk of her own safety, led them back to shore.

She received the citizen's award from Wellington reeve Robert Boyce during a meeting of village council.

It is reported that the plaque was presented a second time to a county resident who had distinguished himself in driver competitions at the provincial level.

Today, the award seems to have been shelved, although a number of Prince Edward men and women have accomplished a variety of unique achievements.

A former Picton man, Chris Storm, has just been named Horseman of the Year at Fonthill Downs. He was one of the youngest harness racing drivers in the province of Ontario when he began his career.

Another former Picton resident, Michael Finnegan, this summer saved the lives of three children swimming at Outlet Provincial Park. While he was vacationing at a Family Camp he heard cries for help and dove into the water to rescue the swimmers caught in a strong current. A woman swimming with the young-sters was drowned during Mr. Finnegan's attempts to save her.

Physical courage and athletic prowess are not the only attributes among county residents that are worthy of mention.

The late Lindley B. Calnan, former owner and publisher of the Picton Gazette, prepared a special edition honoring World War I veterans before his death.

Although he was confined by illness to his home during the initial preparation stages of this publication, the news editor worked steadily to compile material. Himself a veteran of the war, Mr. Calnan planned the edition as a salute of Prince Edward's "Old Sweats".

Their story was published and in a similar effort in recognize World War II veterans Mr. Calnan planned another memorial publication. Unfortunately, he died before it could be compiled and published.

Prince Edward County's recognition award has been too long on the shelf. Individuals such as Chris Storms, Michael Finnegan and the late Mr. Calnan have distinguished themselves through courage, athletic achievement and preservation of local history.

Although prizes and awards may come to these and other deserving persons from other sources, it is doubtful that there could be any more fit-ting from all of the people of Prince Edward.

When council voted to initiate its "local boy (or girl) makes good" plaque it began an excellent tradition.

Since each of Prince Edward's ten municipalities is represented in council, award recipients can be suggested from throughout the county. Each reeve and deputy-reeve is probably aware of meri-torious accomplishments in his or her community and can forward award candidates' names to council.

As county council approaches a new term, consideration should be given to reviving the merit award first introduced by the heroism of Phyllis Fritz.

County Councillor Buffalo Fancier

A member of Hastings county council has taken up buffalo ranching as a new hobby.

He is "Buffalo Kel" Kel Kincaid, deputy reeve of Madoc village, operator of a Madoc supermarket and president of the Hastings County Progressive Conservative Riding Association.

Since last June Kel has owned a pair of yearling buffalo — a cow and a bull — and expects to breed them next June.

If all goes well, Mr. Kincaid expects to see the first addition to his small buffalo herd some time in the summer of 1975.

Mr. Kincaid became interested in the possibility of raising buffalo as a hobby during a trip to Banff National Park. A year later he bought his pair of buffalo from Dr. Keith Belch, a Peterborough-area breeder.

Mr. Kincaid's buffalo "ranch" is south of Madoc where his son lives on a two-acre fenced tract.

The two buffalo which will be two years old in March now weigh about 800 or 900 pounds and together they eat about a bale of hay a day. At maturity the bull will weigh about a ton and the female around 1,400 pounds.

Mr. Kincaid is not interested in raising buffalo for meat.

On his membership certificate in the National Buffalo Association, which he joined after making the purchase from Dr. Belch, is an inscription which reads "Mr. Kincaid is dedicated to the promotion and propagation of the great American buffalo."

QUINTE COUNTRY

Modern Eldorado: Gold Is Only Part of the Past

ELDORADO — It's one of those rare places where it's possible to come in passing and dream of what might have been.

Not that this now-historic Highway 62 hamlet and its surrounding countryside north of Madoc is any sleepy hollow today.

Aside from the chorus of surrounding farms, there's plenty of cheese to be produced for a market that will take it all. There's even rabbit-ranching on a large commercial scale.

And, there's the land itself. A century ago it turned the heady dreams of Canada's first gold rush — and the brief-lived Eldorado legend — to ashes. Now, it seems to be assuming new value as changing life styles see a trend back to more open spaces — including the rugged Canadian Shield landscape Eldorado knows.

Likely much the same human drives — need for more elbow room — that sent land-breakers into Madoc township. There was no great material wealth to encourage quick settlement. The isolation of the Shield had to be a forbidding challenge, demanding deep resources of human spirit.

Then in 1867, materialism arrived with a vengeance.

Eldorado became the communal centre of Madoc township. It was here the township hall was built in the 1850s. An 1861 census estimated the total cash value of farms and livestock at less than $600,000. It was on one of those farms that the scale of values tipped dramatically.

Briefly: In 1866 two men discovered a gold vein on the John Richardson farm. They reported suggest the size of butternuts. The news flashed out and the swarming began. Prospectors, many of them hard-bitten veterans of the California and Australian gold rushes, poured in. In one month an official report counted 3,000-4,000 strangers in the area. Belleville, the county centre, became known as the Golden Gate to the-source of, riches. The community that rose on the site itself was name first coined by Spanish christened Eldorado — the mecca of great riches in South America. Commerce boomed — and inflation. So great was the traffic between Belleville and Madoc that special road repairs were authorized.

But the new Eldorado lived up to the name of the original. Its wealth was a myth. Little gold was found and the original Richardson mine company soon was bankrupt.

Today, the Richardson mine is a forlorn spot, obscured by brush, its historic significance possible to come in passing and dream of what might have been.

Says Francis Tobin at the nearby Eldorado cheese factory: "A lot of people come in here and ask about it. I just tell them it's there on the hill but there isn't much to see."

But the Eldorado legend has been put to practical use by the cheese factory. Its top quality cheddar is named Gold Brand and its label of a gold coin motif was designed with "Eldorado gold in mind," says Mr. Tobin, the factory's secretary-treasurer since 1961.

It's a product much in demand — like all cheese produced at the plant which now operates year-round. One of the five last cheese factories in Hastings, like the others it was formed from mergers of smaller local units that once dotted the countryside.

In that sense also, it is a symbol of rural change. When it was launched in 1851 there supplying milk. Now there are 14,700,000 lbs. of industrial milk — a volume emphasizing the local economic significance.

Production last year amounted to 1,200,000 lbs. of cheese and Canadians now are consuming more of the cheddar that was once mainly shipped to British markets. And the factory itself is a steady over-the-counter business as customers call increasingly at the source of production. In seven years retail sales have increased sevenfold.

Six years ago Garnet Budd and his wife, Joyce, decided to move out of Toronto to the farm they'd bought on the Moira River. Garnet, a machinist, had gradually been losing his eyesight to arthritis. The Canadian National Institute for the Blind wanted him to retrain as a teacher. Instead, the couple decided to start anew — with a new business: Rabbit ranching.

Despite his handicap, Garnet constructed the first building with a capacity for 3,000 rabbits, then started that packing houses. Recently, he's built a second building. So successful has he proved himself, the federal government-owned mink farm is now to agricultural college students in New London.

Joyce Budd now is planning opening of a rabbit shop.

They moved-to the area because they wanted country living and it's a beautiful spot.

As such, the Budds were forerunners. More city folk have been moving into the district in recent times, buying property and farms, says Mrs. Budd.

Inevitably, the demand has pushed up prices. One recent sale reportedly saw six- acres of riverfront property sell for $6,000.

In business in a smaller way are the Robert Johnstons, who bought the store at Keller's Bridge near Eldorado and moved here 12 months ago after their Tweed-area home was expropriated for Highway 401 expansion.

Mr. Johnston commutes to work in Belleville. But the rest is country living.

"We like it very much," says Mrs. Johnston. "I think everyone's wanting to get back of the city."

As a gold rush, Eldorado may have only produced an eccentricity of history. Where gold might have achieved for the community now is only worth conjecture.

But, as a community, it's still apparently rich in a vital resource.

"The people," says Mrs. Johnston, "are very friendly. And people are what makes a place."

The Governor-General

In March of 1970 Governor-General Roland Michener and his wife spent a few days in Belleville on an official visit.

Then, as on his many tours throughout Canada, Mr. Michener demonstrated his rapport with Canadians of every age. It is a quality shared by his wife, a history and economics graduate of the University of British Columbia, and together, in the years His Excellency has represented the Queen here, their presence has touched most in all sections of the community. With the young especially the Micheners are especially at home. We well remember them mingling with Belleville youngsters walking to greet them in Market Square. Over in Pinnacle Street too there were the Legion members, the men and women who had served their country, and Mr. Michener had a word with them as well.

The official opening of Loyalist College, the 50th anniversaries of the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment and of the Rotary Club, the Governor's ball at the Armories, a visit to OSD, were among the events recognized by the visit.

It does not seem that nearly four years have passed since then. And now Mr. Michener is at the point of departure from the office he has held with such distinction. He and Mrs. Michener have just held their last Christmas party at Rideau Hall in Ottawa, the finality of which is tinged with regret, these being occasions they enjoyed as much as their young guests.

At 73 Mr. Michener leaves another legacy for Canadians of every age — that of a man dedicated to physical fitness. Invariably on tour, his day would begin with exercises and not infrequently a spell of jogging, along with anyone who cared to join with him.

In retirement, now impending, the example left Canadians by Mr. Michener, one of Canada's long time diplomats before becoming the Queen's emissary, is one of dignity with the common touch. His Excellency and Mrs. Michener have served their country well.

Inflation et al

The Government looks after its own, as many a columnum by Ottawa correspondent Richard Jackson has indicated.

You know . . . deputy ministers who earn $60,000 a year, these being the top men of the permanent civil establishment commonly known as the bureaucracy, and who stay on (as the real policymakers) as elected governments come and go. They make more than the Prime Minister at around $45,000.

Then there are the various arms of government which are whipped up at short notice, including the Senate, and the Arts example: the Prices and Review Board under Mrs. Beryl Plumptre, who gets $40,000.

Of course when we say the Government looks after its own we mean actually that the taxpayer is funding this enormously extravagant public service.

Incidentally, the report of the Auditor General is available, with the usual chronicle of dubious projects and misspent funds, and we shall be referring to these in due course, but meantime consider a further example of how the Government itself is contributing to what is virtually uncontrolled inflation.

It is contained in a release from the Treasury Board — its Communications Division to be exact. It has to do with the signing of a new, collective agreement with Local 2228, International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, covering some 2,400 employees of the Electronics group of the Public Service of Canada.

The agreement provides for increases of up to 7% per cent between (retroactive) date of signing October 4, 1974, relating what is described as the straight-time annual payroll for employees in the bargaining unit to $31.7 million from $27 million — or 17½-month period. Maximum rate for "the most senior technician" (more and more today we play the numbers game in personal designations) is being increased to $13,536 from $11,510.

Almost as a casterisk, by way of explanation and with perhaps more than two cents worth of guilt complex, the release says the electronics technicians "render services important to the public in connection with a wide range of equipment in 17 government departments at home and abroad."

Nobody disputes this, but we know that these increases are installed in the steeply rising inflationary way of life, which all recognize as the route to ultimate economic disaster, yet seem powerless to contain.

Security Still Inadequate

Terrorism Reaching New Level of Horror Around World

By JOHN D. HARRON
Foreign Affairs Analyst
Thomson News Service

The incredible mass killings, by the Arab guerrillas at the Rome International Airport and the renewal of letter-bombings in North America is likely to suggest we are coming closer to some kind of permanent anarchy we will not easily shake off.

The cruelty of tossing hand grenades into a jollifier on the 12th take-off with passengers strapped in, transcends our personal point of view about a Middle East crisis which started Arab terrorist attacks on harmless airliners.

This attack is a breakdown in the civilized order of the times we will find harder to check, especially if it is true that renegade killers or terrorists without the approval of the Palestinian Liberation Organization committed the act.

The Irish crisis also defies rational thinking about solving political crises even more than Middle Eastern. Just about everyone outside of Ireland and doubtless many within it identify the Northern Ireland guerrilla war as "insanity winning less and less of the world's sympathy."

One is especially staggered at Christmas time that Christians can behave this way this far along in the 20th Century and incredibly do it in the name of Christ who eschewed violence and called himself the Prince of Peace.

What kind of a fanatic in pastor's garb is the Rev. Ian Paisley to stir up Protestant feeling against the best solution to the Northern Ireland crisis of our time?

Or what kind of unrelated terror, perhaps not even by the IRA provisionals, has the IRA Basil raised up by seeking decades-long solutions through violence rather than co-operation and consultation.

It is likely that in both Ireland and the Middle East the terrorism we can identify has produced a mutation of terrorist we will not control because he will not be identified until he strikes, like a political Andromeda strain.

The paradox in our descent to terror for terror's sake is that we have become complex technologic makes such acts easier. Airliners which move with ease and quickly from one distant place to another are the most vulnerable of fair and boxes used as the major venue of the terrorist.

The medieval crudities of the rack and the stake have long since been replaced with our technological refinements for killing. But even these fade in comparison to the methods made available in the last quarter century.

What to do about these sudden yet premeditated attacks on helpless airliners crew and passengers we thought had been stabred with airport electronic detection devices.

The FBI has long since had the typical profile of the woundedhijacker based on an exhaustive personal analysis of every single hijacker of an aircraft over the U.S.

And in Western Europe key airports which serve as gateways for the Middle East, principally Rome and Athens, extra precautions have been in force for months now.

Now some security methods will have to be found to penetrate the population about to engage in air travel or screen the entire population of airports, both of which are impractical and impossible. The commercial airlines are already howling about the added cost of existing security arrangements in airports which they must absorb.

A simple and negative answer would be to withdraw all of the services of the international air industry, which the energy crisis is creating in any case through hundreds of flight cancellations.

"This fuel shortage is getting ridiculous!"

Postmaster-General a Stamp Buff

Canadian Stamps Acquire Exciting New Image

By RICHARD JACKSON

OTTAWA — It does not often happen, but this time the Post Office Department has a stamp collector — not a pro, but a bobbyist like you and me and the guy down the block — as Postmaster General.

And is that turning out to be a boous in new and attractive ideas.

It also makes money for the Treasury and the taxpayer, since the collector is tapping out an annual going-on-$5 million for his stamps.

Sheer profit, money saved by the Post Office which sells the stamps but does not have to sort, transport and deliver the mail, with those stamps going into albums instead of onto letters.

Postmaster Andre Ouellet next year is issuing 21 new stamps, not including 24 for the Olympics.

He gets hundreds, perhaps thousands of requests and suggestions on their design.

He has a panel of advisers, experts in the field of art and design.

So he has the final word.

So how does he pick them?

He was talking about it the other night in Ottawa.

"A stamp," he says, "isn't just a mail carrier, not even a collector's item.

"It's a jack-of-all-trades. Ambassador, teacher, statesman.

"It carries Canada's image across the country and around the world.

"It bears witness to our resources and our resourceful ness.

"It reminds us of our heritage.

"It promotes national unity" — and God knows we have a lot to unify.

"We live in a land where the mercury drops to 40 below on the plains while people are picking roses on the West Coast . . . where loggers in the rain forest cut fir trees with bark a foot thick while hunters on the tundra step over birches a hundred years old."

So every year, everybody everywhere is after him to issue stamps celebrating people and places, animals and industries, events and achievements ... "the first flight in Eastern Northern Ontario ... the first locomotive through the Kicking Horse Pass."

So there must be criteria ... subjects have to be of national significance ... illustrate Canadian life ... create a national awareness ... foster international goodwill.

Right now the pressure is on him to issue a commemorative stamp for Toronto's new CNR Tower, the world's highest building.

It is an idea, admits the Postmaster General, that a potential subject ... but then "can a stamp be issued in honor of a commercial enterprise ... and if so, what about a stamp for Eaton's, General Motors, the CPR ... opening a Pandora's box of Commercialism."

It might be done, he concedes, in the context of Canadian architecture. But there is the architect a Canadian, and if so, how do other Canadian architects rate his handling?

So he plays it safe ... "and the only building we've ever featured on a stamp is Parliament, which may be playing it oversafe."

What have been Andre Ouellet's new and different ideas on stamps?

Well, he has had a sort of two bit agency with everything.

Like the recent issues on the Pacific Coast and Algonquin Indians, put on two on a sheet, checkerboard fashion, giving the stamp buff twice the coverage at no extra cost.

Then the thinking of First Day Cancellations, for Day of Issue Covers — not in Ottawa where they have always been — but where it is happening.

So the May issue of the Winnipeg Centennial stamp could be postmarked in the Manitoba capital, and the July printing of the centennial of the invention of the telephone canceled in Brantford, home of Alexander Graham Bell.

But he can't carry the thing too far — not as far anyway as a United States Postmaster General did when looking for an appropriate place for cancellation of the First Day of Issue of a stamp honoring the poultry industry.

He put his finger down on the tiny town of Chicken, Alaska, with its Post Office in a local general store.

A postal inspector was dispatched to Chicken to rev up the local postmaster on what it would do for the town if, thousands and thousands of people mailing in their letters and covers for cancellation ... money pouring in from all over the world ... and all he would have to oowould be put on the stamps be careful to cancel them neatly and keep the accounts .. an inconvenience, but think what it would do for Chicken, Alaska!

The postmaster quit, and none of it got done.

Price of Middle East Peace

Will Israel Withdraw From Occupied Sectors?

By BRUCE LEVETT

WASHINGTON (CP) — The price of peace in the Middle East and the attendant easing of the world energy crisis may lie in the surrender by Israel of buffer zones which are becoming increasingly obsolete.

The Arab states want back all the territory seized by Israel during or since the 1967 war.

Return of these lands is, in part, the price the Arabs are asking for a peace pact and for the resumption — and even increase — in the flow of oil to world markets.

All one thing yielding of the occupied lands would have been to avoid too much inflationary shock.

It is unclear, however, just how far the "users will pay" policy should be applied to facilities which have a fundamental indirect benefit to all Canadians. Airports play a vital role in the economy that produces the wealth on which we live. If users also had to bear the capital costs of developing modern airports, it is a safe bet there wouldn't be many such facilities in place, and all Canadians would suffer.

Galilean settlements. Their move into Jordan threw that country's guns back out of range of Jerusalem.

Occupation of the Sinai was designed to give Israel a buffer area against attack by Egypt.

However, with new surface-to-surface missiles increasingly available to the Arabs, nearly all of Israel is, theoretically, on the front line.

This renders the old "buffer zone" thinking increasingly obsolete.

Some observers believe Israel might be ready to sign away some of these areas in exchange for guarantees of a lasting peace — something the Israelis believe are necessary as proof that the Arabs will recognize the right of the Jewish state to exist.

Israeli military leaders stress they would still feel threatened without some sort of barrier, possibly under international or United Nations supervision, between themselves and their enemies.

Israeli government leaders feel that surrendering the zones too completely or too swiftly might be misconstrued by the Arabs as a sign of weakness.

Certainly, there will be much behind-the-scenes negotiation before war-won territory is given up and the Israelis are sure to insist on strong Arabian guarantees.

One of the difficulties in negotiating a peace settlement is seen as the reluctance of the more militant Israelis to believe the Arabs will allow Israel to survive.

They remember old threats to "drive the Israelis into the sea," uttered during the regime of the late President Nasser of Egypt.

However, Egyptian policy has changed under President Anwar Sadat. Now, the Arabs say they will agree to the existence — and possibly outright recognition — of an Israeli state.

About $50 Million Involved

Airport Head Tax, and Subsidies

Ottawa Journal

The operation of Canadian government airports will result in a subsidy of about $50 million from the general taxpayer to the minority who travel by air next year. That's after a new head tax of $2.50 per passenger takes effect in the new year.

The "users will pay" principle has thus been only partially adopted by the federal government in its effort to make airport facilities self - sustaining. It's just as well, too. If the entire annual deficit of airport operations — about $80 million last year — were to be offset by a head tax, it would be $7.50 per flight. That would add $15 to a return trip to Toronto before increased fuel and security costs have been passed on to travellers.

If a policy of recovering the full costs of airport operations were to be pursued, the gradual approach is clearly necessary

Role Of Radio-TV Commission

Sherbrooke La Tribune

The Canadian Radio-Television Commission is the organization which is not fulfilling the role it should be playing.

It's unfortunate that there is much that could be done.

It could easily be the regulator which would allow citizens to benefit fully from air waves. We could be protected against quacks and incompetents.

We protect when radio or television stations . to increase their ratings . . entrust the air waves to actors or singers . . enabling them to give their opinions, their ideas on all kinds of topics.

By the very nature of their educational backgrounds and their careers, these "stars" have not had the training needed to treat dissert, analyse and criticize all problems.

A recent television program concerned the delicate topic of abortion. What was the competence of those invited to participate? Worthless, as far as we're concerned.

The Canadian Radio-Television Commission must have the power to impose precise standards of professional quality on various radio and television stations.

Otherwise . . . there will be real chaos.

It will be said that certain newspapers occasionally carry material edited by known artists. The comparison doesn't hold because the newspaper is a commercial thing which the reader chooses and buys.

It's not the same with air waves . . . the property of the listener has nothing to pay.

Once these public air waves have been given to a financial corporation . . . society demands, through an organization such as the CRTC, standards of quality . . . moral, cultural and social.

If this organization, the CRTC, exists, or does not want to do it, its existence must be considered as a farce and not a funny one at that.

Sign Of Bigotry

Letter in The Brockville Recorder and Times

After reading the letter to the Calgary Herald by Barry Landry, of Brockville, I must say that I agree with everything he said about her native province, where some ignorant people use gutter language to say that Easterners should freeze in the North.

As a former resident of Ottawa, having lived in the West for five years, I feel that my family have been subjected to hostility and resentment because of our origin.

I have also noticed the particular dislike for Quebec and the French people.

So the May issue of the Winnipeg Centennial stamp could be postmarked in the Manitoba capital, and the July printing of the centennial of the invention of the telephone canceled in Brantford, home of Alexander Graham Bell.

But he can't carry the thing too far — not as far anyway as a United States Postmaster General did when looking for an appropriate place for cancellation of the First Day of Issue of a stamp honoring the poultry industry.

Today in History

By THE CANADIAN PRESS Inc.

President Thomas Jefferson persuaded the U.S. Congress to pass the Embargo Act 169 years ago today—in 1807—by which, for a time, all foreign commerce was forbidden. France and Britain were in war and between them they were partly responsible for the unpopular embargo. Jefferson believed the warring nations would abandon their decrees blockading each other. However, he was wrong and was forced to repeal the act four days before he retired from the presidency in 1809.

1825—The government announced plans to establish a national library for Canada.

Christmas Messages Are Given

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Canadian church leaders who have issued their annual Christmas messages urge Christians to look beyond the festivities and celebrate the spirit of their faith.

The Christmas season, they say, is a time for all people to feel and share the loving spirit of Christ in a world plagued by wars, violence, injustices and poverty.

The church leaders say Christians should express their faith by emulating Christ and reflect the spirit of love in concern for others at home and in foreign countries.

Following are their messages:

Most Rev. E. W. Scott, Primate of the Anglican Church of Canada:

"In reflecting on the birth of Jesus, I sense the action of a mysterious, yet personal God, reaching out, being born into an alien, human, sinful society.

"The Christian of today must strive to emulate Christ, a self-giving and all-loving Christ, in a difficult and indifferent social setting. This means living with a sense of sacrifice in the service of others and speaking with courage against evil powers; in fact, assisting at the birth of the concept of God in a stable—in an orphanage in Saigon, in the far corners of our North, in our city centres."

Rev. Dr. Earl J. Tressek, general secretary of the Lutheran Council in Canada:

"Does Christmas make a difference to us Canadians—other than to business, in festivities, in special services of worship?

"Christmas tells us that God, out of love, comes to us 2,000 years ago. We ought, therefore, to reflect that love by our concern for others, at home and abroad. We must, as individuals and as nation, strive for justice throughout the world, for freedom from poverty, for ilyes that can be lived fully and with out oppression. Then we can say 'Merry Christmas' not only to the affluent, but to all people. Let Christmas make this difference in us."

Rev. Dr. Agaew, Moderator of the 99th General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church in Canada:

"Nothing is more important in our Christian faith than to be assured that behind the tangled web of human life, with all its wars and violence, its injustices and poverty, and despite all its massive changes, is a God of love and compassion.

"This assurance we find, as in spirit we journey each Christmas to the manger in Bethlehem. Christianity, in the Christmas story, tells of the yearning search of God for those creatures He has made in His likeness, and for fellowship with Himself. As Christina Rossetti puts it so vividly, "Love came down at Christmas, Love all lovely, Love divine." That, for me, is the chiefest glad tidings of Christmas."

Rev. R. Fred Ballen, general secretary-treasurer of the Baptist Federation of Canada:

"Christmas, not only is the heart of the story of crisis. We realize our enslavements. industrial, economic, political and social institutions weaver unsteadily. Our peace of mind, security and assurance are threatened. Everyone is affected by an energy shortage.

"The obvious lesson of Christmas paraphrases the Psalmist's dictum: It is vain to put your trust in oil and chariots, God is present in the world. The season is a celebration of unlimited Light which came into the world to enlighten our minds, forgive our sins and give power to our wills."

Rt. Rev. N. Bruce McLeod, Moderator of the United Church of Canada:

"Some say we are all alone here; the world is empty, without purpose. Others disagree. The earth, they say, is filled with a spirit, or presence, which encounters us unexpectedly, bringing tears to our eyes by a sleeping child's bed, waking us in the night.

"As a window transmits the light of the sun and lays it warm on your hand, Christians have found the Presence focused to visibility and power for them in Jesus. But Christmas joy is not just for Christians, it belongs to the world.

"It is for you and whether you look through that window or not, may you sense the warmth this month and remember that you are not alone."

True Christmas Is to Find Christ

By REV. DR. GORDON C. SMYTH

An old, legend, told with many variations, pictures the Christ Child—seeking admission to Inns on Christmas Eve. How shall we welcome him? "Behold, I stand at the door and knock", says the Christ of Christmas.

(1) Shouldn't we welcome him penitently? It is the only proper feeling because, no matter how free of guilt we know ourselves to be, something about Jesus Christ makes us aware of greater goodness yet to be attained.

(2) How can we welcome him fittingly as long as ill will rankles in us toward those who have offended us? There's no better time than Christmas to remember the words of him who is supposed to be the centre of devotion, "Bless those who curse you, pray for those who abuse you." It can be done by remembering that no greater fault any debt owed to us is the debt God in Christ pardoned in us.

(3) A renewed determination to live generously is part of an appropriate welcome for the Christ Child. The heavenly host heralded God's pleasure at man's response to a global visitation and enterprise.

Therefore, it is only natural that most churches appeal to their people for a missionary offering at Christmas. As a corrective to false ideas propagated by certain novelists, think of Mother Teresa and her Sisters of Charity, in Calcu'ta. Think of Dr. Robert McClure in Borneo. Think of these words of Elton Trueblood, distinguished philosopher. Perhaps the greatest boon which the African is that he is liberated from a tribal rite and introduced to a universal ethic."

(4) No welcome of Christ is complete unless we determine to let the faith that bore him same pervade our whole life. To celebrate Christ's coming and then to live the rest of the year as if he had never come to us this is to miss the great wealth of Christian experience.

We love the carols and the bells. We love a Christmas tree and greetings from friends. We love the family reunion and festivity of December 25. But all these joys too quickly pass, and memories grow dim. True Christmas is to find the Child and give ourselves to him. Yes, do that!

Children Describe 'Peace on Earth'

At Christmastime, we think a lot about peace — peace on earth, the coming of the Prince of Peace. We believe we know what peace means and when everywhere seem to desire it, we there is no peace.

What is it that we seek so much, yet never grasp? The Christian Children's Fund, an organization which helps homeless children of the world, believes that wisdom can come from the mouths of babes, so the fund went to them, asking youngsters of many nations to tell about peace on a drawing or an essay.

The expressions received from the children were filled with such hope and faith that goldposts decided to present a few samples:

"Peace is heavenly. It is a precious gift of God.

"Peace is beauty. Wherever their is love, there is peace. War never brings love, only hatred and destruction. Peace love comes friendship and freedom. Peace is like a cup of cool water to the thirsty.

"Peace is blessed, for those who give it and receive it.

"Blessed are the peacemakers," Christ said, for they shall be called the children of God."

-Hermine Yakovbian, age 8, Kokkinis, Greece.

"I tell God, 'I am sorry.' Please let us be friends again.' then he give me peace. My teddy bear has peace because he is peaceful."

-Stephen Sagamang, age 4, Sagada, Phillipines.

"The rainbow sign between God and men -- is the symbol of the peaceable world needs.

"Peace is the most glorious gift the Lord has given us. The happiest days are those when there is tranquility and peace at home."

-Olencia Gordilla, age 11, Colombia.

"Shepherds listen to the voice of angels who tell them about the Savior who came to establish peace."

-Manora Anhapre, age 11, Vikarabad, India.

"Peace is a family coming home together."

-Nguyen Van Dinh, age 10, Hoa Vinh, Vietnam.

Salvage Those Christmas Plants

Don't be hasty in throwing out the plant you got for Christmas.

With proper care it could be around for several years, says A.R. Buckley, a horticultural expert with Canada Agriculture's Plant Research Institute here.

Some plants cannot be rejuvenated and should be discarded after flowering.

But some others, given the proper attention, will go on giving pleasure for many yule seasons.

Mr. Buckley offers some pointers on the care of some of the most popular Christmas plants having a long-life potential.

Poinsettias are old favorites and newer varieties have extended the color range from traditional red to include salmon pink, pink, creamy white, white and marbled pink and white.

New and fairly new varieties include Mikkel Pink, Ecke White, Ray Rochford, and the Hegg family of poinsettias -- Marble Hegg, Pink Hegg, Dark Red Hegg, and Angette Hegg.

To preserve a poinsettia for future Christmases, keep it well watered until the leaves drop and then move it to the greenhouse. Discontinue watering for the next few months. In April, the stems should be cut back to six inches, the plant brought upstairs to a bright room and watering resumed.

In June, the pot should be set into the soil in a shady corner of the garden and the plant kept watered throughout the summer. Bring the plant back indoors before the first autumn frost. Don't overwater it to artificial light; it could retard blooming.

Azaleas, also popular at this time of year, differ from poinsettias in the care needed to ensure a long and colorful life.

The soil in an azalea pot should never be allowed to dry out and a good soaking is required daily even during the winter.

And don't rush your potted azalea to the basement after it has finished flowering; instead, give it a place in a sunny windown for the winter.

In the spring, set the pot in garden soil and keep the azalea plant watered during the summer. It should be left outdoors until after a few heavy frosts in the late autumn.

Potted chrysanthemums also rate high in popularity as Christmas plant. After they have finished flowering, water them sparingly and keep them in basement windows for dividing and planting outdoors in the spring.

The mums should be dug up, potted and brought indoors in the fall. It is important that they be placed in an indoors location that is protected from artificial light. This is to assure the longer periods of darkness needed at this point for flower development.

Perhaps your potted plant is a Kalanchoe. This cactus-like plant with either red, coral, pink or scarlet blooms, requires the very minimum of care. Kept in a sunny window, it will bear flowers practically year round and for year after year.

The trick with Kalanchoes is to remember not to water them too often, says Mr. Buckley.

A happy Christmas to all of you. And please be sure only your plants are potted.

Toronto's Only Lady Consul Beats Shyness

TORONTO (CP) — Margarita Mantilla says a woman has to put more effort into a job when she is making a breakthrough into a former all-male world.

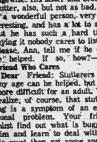
Miss Mantilla, the only woman in Toronto's consular corps which represents 43 countries, is the Colombian consul.

"You see we are not a big nation and we have just an ambassador in Ottawa, a consul-general in Montreal, an honorary consul in Vancouver . . . and me," she said.

Miss Mantilla has little time to spend in her midtown apartment. She often works day and night answering distress calls, making contacts for businessmen and arranging passports.

And she wonders—often in the astonishment of Canadian experts—information and scientific data on aerospace law, particularly where military aircraft are concerned.

Miss Mantilla put herself through night class at University of Bogota and won a scholarship to study at the Institute of Air and Space Law in Montreal.



She still finds it difficult to go alone to many social and official gatherings, but is conquering a natural shyness.

"Sometimes people expect miracles," she said.

Ann Landers

Stuttering Can Be Stopped

Dear Ann Landers: Can stuttering be cured? I am not talking about a child. It's a grown man I am concerned about. He has stuttered ever since I met him, six years ago. It seems to get worse instead of better.

This person comes from a family of non-stop talkers. They won't let anyone get a word in edgewise. His sister and brother stutter, also, but not as bad. He is a wonderful person, very interesting, and has a lot to say. But he has such a hard time saying it nobody cares to listen. Please, Ann, tell me if he can be helped. If so, how?—His Friend Who Cares

Dear Friend: Stutterers of any age can be helped, but it's more difficult for an adult. You realize, of course, that stuttering is a symptom of an emotional problem. Your friend must find out what is bugging him and learn to deal with it. He must then get some speech therapy, either with a private tutor or at a rehabilitation centre. I hope he will follow through. It will make a big difference in his life.

Dear Ann Landers: Two years ago I married a man who had an, out-of-wedlock child. The child's mother is a plain-looking, stupid, ignoramous, fat tramp who has her self pregnant again. She has her heart set on a career in the theatre.

Last October we received a letter from a theatrical agency offering an interview. They said they had heard about our gifted little girl and wanted to represent her. We filled out the form and the following week an impressive man came to the house and Lisa read for him. He assured us she had a great future. The only requirement was a photograph, which would have to be taken by them since there were "specific requirements in regard to uniformity." The picture and "fee" for evaluating the reading was "a mere $100."

We paid the $100 and received one print of the picture (which was not good) and so far, Ann, we have not received a single phone call from the casting office.

Four phone calls from us have given no satisfaction. They keep saying, "We'll call you back," but they never do.

I'm sure we've been taken in by some highbinders. What can we do about it now? We feel like kicking ourselves.—Been Had in L.A.

Dear L.A.: Go ahead and kick yourselves. You've been had, all right. Now the thing to do is to report the incident to the Better Business Bureau and the Chamber of Commerce. It might be too late for you, but I hope your letter will serve as a warning to others.

Dear Ann Landers: Our 13-year-old daughter is a very pretty and talented young lady. She has been in local theatrics since the age of five. Of course, she has her share of boyfriends, but lately she has been receiving obscene phone calls. Sometimes they are from boys she knows, but more often they are from strangers.

Our daughter is frightened and so are we. Please tell us what we can do to put a stop to this.—Frightened Parents

Dear Parents: Tell your daughter to hang up the moment she realizes the caller is a pervert. Don't waste time trying to reason with him. Don't ask questions. Don't say anything. Just hang up. Tell her to report the calls to the police. Perhaps they can trace the calls and put a stop to them.

A Store Clerk's Day During Christmas Week Can Be Exhaustng, Exhilarating... And Fun!

By ISABEL HUGGAN

On the second floor, Mary Halsey and her staff have entered the Christmas spirit by wearing long skirts and gowns to create a festive atmosphere in their department. Here Mrs. Halsey wraps up a winter coat, one of the popular items now.

I was prepared for snarling mobs of hurried shoppers, and was apprehensive about my first afternoon as a store clerk. My fears were needless, it turned out.

The icy weather kept the crowds at bay and the people I did meet at Walker's Department Store were all happily Christmas minded.

That's the way the season usually shapes up, according to Ray Young, store manager. Shoppers are their pleasant best no matter how much hustle and bustle there is, no matter how many storms.

He took me up to the second floor to meet Mary Halsey who is in charge of the clothing section.

"You won't have any trouble," she assured me. "customers don't need a lot of selling at this time of year".

Sure enough, I hadn't been "on the floor" (as they say) five minutes when I made my first sale.

Two ladies buying a slip for a teenage daughter needed only the slightest bit of help. They knew exactly what they wanted and how much they intended to spend. Nevertheless, although all I did was find the right size for them, I found myself beaming with pride as the cash register rang up five dollars.

I noticed that there were more men than usual in the women's section of the store and Mrs. Halsey explained that is one of the signs of the season.

"Surprisingly, most men don't need much help with their buying," she said. "Many of them have noted along lasting their wives' or girl friends' sizes and measurements. They usually have a definite idea of color and style, and just require encouragement."

I watched Mrs. Halsey with a male customer who had come to buy a pink brassiere. He was a bright shade of pink himself, and bought the gift for his wife as quickly as possible. By the time it was all parcelled up he had stopped blushing, and left the floor much more at ease than he had been.

I spotted a young man who looked like he needed a clerk's advice. He was looking for a winter coat for his wife, he said and had tried to find black leather. Being unsuccessful, he was ready now to look at anything, as long as it would fit.

He picked out a brown coat with fur trim and we found the right size. As I put it in a box for him I felt responsible for his look of relief at having got a big job done, and his knowing that his wife would be pretty happy on Christmas morning whether the coat was black or brown.

Feeling part of the customers' joy at finding "just the right thing" is one of the things store clerks like best about working at this season. Every one of the clerks I talked to expressed the same sentiment as Ruth Ann Hawley who works on the first floor.

"I wouldn't miss if for the world," she said. "The hours fly by because we're so busy. People are having fun doing their shopping, and are more appreciative of assistance than they are ordinarily. Oh, we do get tired, but by the time Christmas comes, we know we're really helped people, and that's satisfying".

I moved to the men's clothing section for a little while, since that's an especially busy area this time of year. (Eight other part-time employees are helping out in various parts of the store as the demand arises. Even Mr. Young moved around to assist in busy departments.)

Gerald Snider and Joan Smith filled me in on the ways sales are going for men's and boys' Christmas gifts.

"An awful lot of men are getting big bow ties for a present this year," said Mr. Snider.

"And we're all sold out of psychedelic patterned underwear for men," Mrs. Smith warned me., "Wives like to buy wild things for their husbands."

In the time I spent in the men's clothing section, I didn't see one male shopper. But plenty of wives, mothers and sweethearts were busy picking out gifts, most without needing any assistance at all.

"There will be a few women this season who'll say 'I need something for a man who's a little taller than you and may be a little fatter', but most ladies are good at knowing sizes," said Mrs. Smith.

The only customer I had to help was a woman who was exchanging a gift she'd bought earlier in the week.

"I had my husband try this sweater on to make sure he'd be happy with it on Christmas morning, and it just didn't suit him at all," she said. We soon found a better sweater, and I felt that glow of doing a good deed again.

On the third floor I tried to interest two teenage boys in wooden salt-and-pepper sets for their mother, but they were not in a rush to buy.

"We need to look around and price things," the older boy explained. "We still have a few more days to choose gifts." I felt like I had failed.

Back down on the first floor, I talked to Diane Tilley during a lull at the jewelry counter. She said that the number of shoppers during this period are the children.

"The little ones love brightly-colored necklaces and chunky rings for their moms," she said.

"Of course, many of them bring just one dollar to buy their presents, forgetting all about the seven cents' tax. I keep a little fund of pennies here to help them out."

The last section I worked in was Madeleine Young's cosmetic corner at the front of the store. Its location means that last-minute Christmas shoppers stop by frequently to pick up that little something for a favorite teacher, an aunt who has everything, or a girl friend who wears a particular perfume.

"At this season, I have more men shoppers than usual," Mrs. Young said.

"What I've noticed in the last few years is that men have much more knowledge about cosmetics than they used to. I think it must be a result of advertising. They know what perfumes there are, and have definite ideas on what they want.

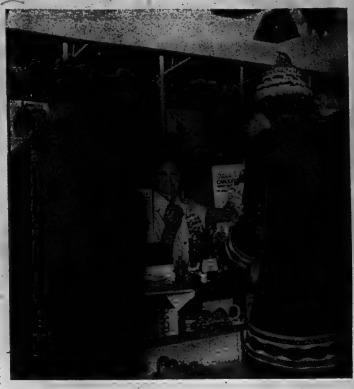
"For instance, since Catherine Deneuve started doing the Chanel commercials, our sales have gone up sharply. Men seem to be influenced by her beauty!"

The only customer I had to disappoint while I was at the cosmetic counter was a man who asked for "You're The Flo".

"All sold out, I'm afraid," I said. I tried to persuade him to buy something else, but he left, determined to find what he wanted.

Getting "just the right thing" is more important at this point in the year than at any other time. Consequently, shoppers put more effort into their before-hand planning, and come to the stores prepared with lists of "who wants what".

As a result, the store clerks' job is easier, and the customers spend their time and money more satisfactorily.



Mr. Young and the staff admit that there are occasional grinches and grouches during the season, but claim they are few and far between.

The day they say is the most fun is the day before Christmas when the store is crammed with last-minute shoppers, many of them husbands full of good cheer with the season's bonus in hand, ready to face buying lingerie for their wives.

I found everyone I met to be friendly and happy and, although I didn't get any boxes of chocolates from customers, the way that Mrs. Halsey and her staff sometimes do, I had a great time chatting with shoppers.

By the end of my first day, I was tired. My feet ached from standing and my face ached from smiling, and returning those "Merry Christmas" greetings.

But I was fun. I'd do it again next year!

Male shoppers are assisted by Walker's cosmetician Madeleine Young in choosing perfumes and powders for the women in their lives. During this season Mrs. Young sees more men than usual at her counter, and is amazed at their knowledge of cosmetics. Even two shoppers asked for "Cachet" and "Chanel",

Shoppers just see the smiling faces of Walker's store clerks, who enjoy this season more than any other. But, by the time evening rolls around, there's many a lady longing to soak her feet, discreetly removing a shoe or two behind the counter.

Jean Sauve Is Seen With Impossible Task

By PETER MICHAELSON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Pity poor Jeanne Sauve. The science minister can't move in any direction without breaking one of treasury board president C. M. Drury's commandments.

Those commandments, says science policy author F. Ronald Hayes, in his book The Chaining of Prometheus, go something like this: Thou shalt have no other gods before the Treasury Board; Thou shalt not steal any authority or control Thou shalt not covet the prerogatives of other ministers.

In keeping with the faith there are seven more commandments, all reflecting Mr. Hayes' skepticism that the two-year-old science ministry will ever pack enough clout to knock down the government and bureaucratic constraints that bind scientists to budgets and priorities.

As things stand now, says the former civil servant who has seen from the inside how the government kicks the science budget around, Mrs. Sauve's position is illustrated by the wartime story in which Stalin, in reply to a suggestion that the Vatican be consulted on some matter, asked, "How many divisions has the Pope?"

Even allowing for a welcome bit of humor in an otherwise dry account of science policy development, the point is well taken.

The Pope has armies of the faithful behind him; Mrs. Sauve has only a public apparently indifferent to the aspirations of science and a spattering of politically impotent scientists.

However, the author's point that changes are needed in the determination of who spends what in science is justified. One has only to listen to Canada's Nobel laureate, Dr. Gerhard Herzberg, decry arbitrary government control of science spending to believe things are not as they should be.

Mr. Hayes isn't advocating that all fanciful scientific notions be supported, but when you see "a Bobby Orr of science," you have to give him room in devising his own style of play.

The book's main recommendation is for "a decade of gradualness to test out the new ideas" of the Glassco commission report, the report of the Organization for Economic Co-operation and Development and the Senate science policy committee findings.

The Chaining of Prometheus: the evolution of a power structure for Canadian science, by F. Ronald Hayes; University of Toronto Press; 327 pages; $15.

Painters in a New Land is one of this year's coffee-table crop, but a book that would delight pleasure to social historians, art lovers, antique collectors, anyone interested in the history of Canada.

It is a collection of sketches and watercolors of Canada as it was before there were cameras. There is work by artists sent to picture the country for English periodicals, by army officers who had learned to draw so they could draw battlefields, by ladies who learned art as an accomplishment, and by professional painters.

The pictures are accompanied by paragraphs from contemporary letters, journals, reports of the breaking-up of the ice in the St. Lawrence, the things cod were used for, in St. John's, settlers' houses and dress in the West, the Salvation Army at work in Calgary.

In the introduction, Michael Bell, who made the selections, says the book is intended partly to preserve the record of the art work, some of which has deteriorated, partly because it was loved and displayed by the people who owned it.

Painters in a New Land, a collection of more than 200 watercolors, sketches and oils selected by Michael Bell, McClelland and Stewart, $27.50.

From Prince Edward Island to Vancouver Island, a new book of color photographs captures some of the sights and scenes of Canada's 10 provinces.

Canada was commissioned by the Canadian government as its official gift to the Queen and Commonwealth leaders to commemorate the 1973 prime ministers' conference. The result is a well balanced collection reflecting the grandeur of the land and the life of its people.

Produced by the National Film Board, the handsome edition was compiled from the work of 23 photographers. The photographs, in 12 sections, are matched by poems in French and English describing the natural beauty of Canada's countryside.

The photographs reflect Canada through the seasons. Spring in an Ontario forest, grain fields ripening under summer skies in Alberta, autumn in the Annapolis Valley of Nova Scotia and a horse-drawn sled in winter in Quebec.

Other shots in the 54-photograph collection bring to life the vastness of the prairies or zoom in on tiny wildflowers blossoming in New Brunswick. Several photographs look at early settlers' homes, including a picturesque cabin near Lake Winnipeg.

Life on the range is reflected in one section with photographs of Alberian ranchers and cowboys herding cattle come rain or come shine.

Other sections vary from views of the quiet, fishing villages of the Maritimes to spectacular scenes in the Rocky Mountains to the cold desolation of the Northwest Territories.

Chief of editing and design for Canada was Lorraine Monk, executive producer of the still photo division of NFB, and known throughout the world for her displays of examples of Canadian photography.

Windsor Teachers Reject Compromise

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — Ex-ecutive officers of Essex County secondary school teachers have rejected the compromise agreement their provincial representatives worked out with the government on the contentious bill banning mass resignations.

But the vote Friday, which said was close, does not mean a total walkout in the new year, because the teachers have not concluded a tentative contract agreement.

If the teachers ratify the contract, there will be school Jan. 31, the resignations of 7,000 teachers working for 16 school boards who had not yet signed contracts for the current school year.

In return, the provincial government agreed to delay passage of Bill 274, which would have outlawed mass resignations as a bargaining lever. The bill brought protests from teacher groups across Ontario, and some municipalities and school trustees supported the teachers' right to resign.

Separate school teachers in Essex County and Windsor also met Friday and both approved the compromise.

The teachers' representatives agreed in Toronto earlier this week to delay by one month, to

Ontario Will Get By Without Energy Crisis

TORONTO (CP) — Several questions Shadow Ontario's winter energy picture, but informed forecasts are that most of the province will get through the cold weather without major trouble.

The weather itself is the great intangible. It can cause consumption of heating oil—the major critical supply element—to vary up or down by as much as 15 per cent.

Other imponderables relate mainly to the Ottawa Valley, the strip along the Quebec border which normally is fuelled mainly by oil from abroad reaching Eastern Canada. Key factors here are the effects of the Arab oil squeeze and what the federal government can do about it with its proposed emergency allocation powers.

The remainder of the province, unless it proves necessary and feasible to transfer large quantities of its oil eastward, should have no big problems during the winter.

But by spring, according to Ontario government and industry experts, gasoline supplies may be running low. No gasoline shortage is expected during the winter.

Experts say that apart from the possibility of a heavy drain eastward—and they agree the logistics are all against this—the Ontario Sector west of the Ottawa Valley should not suffer if the winter is normal and consumers use oil judiciously.

"If people watch consumption and play the game fairly, we'll have some tight spots but we should get through the winter relatively comfortably," Ben Wilson, a top Ontario government energy adviser, said in an interview.

Householders have been advised to turn their thermostats down a couple of notches. Mr. Wilson calculated that consumption is lowered by as much as three per cent for each degree of heat reduction.

It is because of a concentration on heating-oil production by Ontario refineries that the province may find itself in a skimpy gasoline supply situation by spring.

Refiners can vary, within limits, the ratio of gasoline to heavier products extracted from the crude, and this winter they have swung toward heating oil in line with the wishes of the National Energy Board.

A switch toward gasoline normally would be made by February, but informants in the industry say it probably will be delayed this winter to keep up fuel oil stocks, resulting in be low-normal gasoline supplies by the time Canadians take to the road in earnest.

But so far no one is talking about gasoline rationing.

Aside from the questions surrounding heating oil, Ontario faces the winter with adequate energy resources. Oil for industrial use is sufficient, and so are gaseous fuels and coal.

There is a surplus of electricity, though the provincial government threw a small damper on the Christmas spirit by advising residents to reduce Yuletide exterior lighting as well as turn off lights in unoccupied rooms.

"That's mainly psychological," one official explained. "How do you get the conservation idea going elsewhere without things like this? Besides, it saves some fossil fuel in electricity production."

Ontario's production capacity in electricity is 17.1 million kilowatts, and the peak demand was about 13.3 million. The province exports its surplus to the United States, Quebec and Manitoba.

Atomic power is on the rise. A $245-million nuclear plant at Pickering near Toronto came into full production in 1973 at 2.1 million kilowatts, about equal to Ontario's share of Niagara Falls hydro power it splits with New York state. The Pickering plant produces about 83 per cent of its average rated capacity—an international measure of nuclear power productivity—and on this basis it rates as about the most efficient in the world.

A smaller prototype plant at Douglas Point on Lake Huron was plagued by troubles for years after going into operation in 1967 but now is turning out close to its rated capacity of 200,000 kilowatts. Under construction is a second large nuclear installation in the Bruce area designed to produce eventually 3.2 million kilowatts. Its first units are due to be hooked into the province's power grid in 1975.

The Pickering plant's capacity is to be enlarged to 4.32 million kilowatts in a $1,15-billion expansion scheduled for completion in 1983. Some thought is being given to yet another plant—possibly at the eastern end of Lake Ontario—but there has been no decision on this.

CP News Roundup

Winter Jobs Okayed

OTTAWA (CP) — Federal departmental winter-job projects totalling $17 million were approved Friday by the treasury board.

The projects, designed to create local employment in support of the government's $106 million program to alleviate winter unemployment, are expected to involve 26,000 man-months of employment from December, 1973, to May, 1974.

The treasury board, responsible for government spending, said distribution of the projects was made in accordance with the Local Initiatives Program (L.I.P.) which takes into account population and unemployment levels. In addition to these projects the government will spend $83 million on L.I.P. programs.

One million dollars of the $17-million total will be allocated for the employment of Indians.

Promoted

OTTAWA (CP) — Bernard Ostry, the assistant undersecretary of state who caused a furore this year with a much-worded memo to one of the ministers he worked for, has been moved to a new job as secretary-general of the National Museums Corp.

"It is a promotion," insisted a spokesman for the department of state, which announced the transfer Friday.

PIERRE TRUDEAU

Costly Home

OTTAWA (CP) — Work is nearing completion on a major renovation of the prime minister's official residence.

About $60,000 is being spent on basic construction and alterations, and so far $31,000 has been allocated for new furnishings.

MP Dies

WOODSTOCK, Ont. (CP) — Wallace Nesbitt, veteran member of Parliament and a noted diplomat in international affairs, died in hospital Friday at the age of 55.

The Progressive Conservative member of House of Commons for Woodstock for 20 years suffered a stroke last May, but resumed his Ottawa duties 1½ months before his final heart attack two weeks ago.

Line Problem

CHATHAM, Ont. (CP) — A Raleigh Township lawyer said Friday that Ontario Hydro's plan to erect a second tower line through his farm and 40 others in the area might result in serious financial losses for the landowners.

Joseph O'Neil told a provincial inquiry that Hydro's present tower lines through the township already cause cropping problems for contract crops.

Paper Stinks

KINGSTON, Ont. (CP) — A woman telephoned The Whig Standard this week to complain that the paper stinks.

She meant its odor, not the editorial content.

The paper believes it has traced the problem to a few sweaters rolls that got an overdose of sulphur when the wood pulp was being processed.

The elderly woman caller explained that she has poor eyesight: "I have to hold the paper close to my face and it smells so bad I can't read it."

DARCY McKEOUGH

Daylight Time Report Is Made

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario government may have it up to municipalities to decide whether to go on year-round daylight time, Energy Minister Darcy McKeough said Friday.

The minister said he has submitted a report to the government indicating that the change to daylight time from standard time would result in little or no saving in energy.

The United States will go on daylight time Jan. 6 in an energy-saving move.

Japan Declares Emergency Due to Energy Shortage

TOKYO (Reuter) — The Japanese government declared an economic state of emergency today and called for national effort to combat the oil crisis and overcome spiralling inflation.

The proclamation allows the government to invoke powers to control the supply and distribution of oil.

A bill approved by the Diet empowers the government to select commodities for price and distribution control.

Premier Kakuei Tanaka issued a statement calling on the Japanese people to co-operate in the enforcement of the legislation.

He left hospital today to attend an emergency cabinet meeting which approved the statement. He had been in the hospital since last Saturday for treatment of an ear infection and cold.

Government civil servants will keep a sharp watch for hoarding and market-cornering, Tanaka said.

He said the Arab oil embargo has been a serious blow to the Japanese economy, which depends on imported oil for the bulk of its energy needs.

The Bank of Japan Friday raised its official discount rate by two per cent to nine per cent and boosted the reserve requirement ratios for commercial banks.

The severe money measures were matched by plans to slash government spending during the 1974 fiscal year starting in April. The government made it clear it will defer big construction projects such as railways, highways and large suspension bridges.

The government today ordered a 25-per-cent cut in oil and electricity supplies to offices and factories from Jan. 1 and asked the public to economize on electricity consumption.

Certain types of neon lights and other decorative illuminations will be banned by the end of this month.

The government told motorists to restrict pleasure driving and reduce their speed on motorways. It said it will prepare legislation to ban the use of owner-driven cars on holidays and restrict gasoline consumption.

Boyle Pleads

WASHINGTON, Pa., (AP) — W. A. (Tony) Boyle, former president of the United Mine Workers union, pleaded not guilty Friday to murder charges resulting from the 1969 Yablonski killing.

Boyle answered to the charges from a wheel chair before Washington County Judge Charles Sweet, speaking faintly.

"He pleads not guilty, your honor," Boyle's lawyer said. Boyle, accused of murder in the slayings of UMW reformer Joseph (Jock) Yablonski, his wife and daughter, was represented by a public defender for the court session. His regular lawyer, was unable to make travel arrangements from Washington, D.C.

Little Gas

OTTAWA (CP) — Motorists heading for southern United States areas during the winter season can expect to have single gasoline purchases limited to 10 gallons, the Canadian Automobile Association (CAA) said Friday.

Judges Named

OTTAWA (CP) — F. S. Weatherston, 56, is to become judge of the Ontario Supreme Court and member of the High Court of Justice for Ontario, Justice Minister Otto Lang announced Friday.

He also announced that Colin E. Bennett, 65, resigns Dec. 31 as chief judge of county and district courts in Ontario.

Mr. Weatherston, a member of a Hamilton law firm, succeeds Mr. Justice G. A. Addy, appointed to the Federal Court of Canada.

Trade Deficit

OTTAWA (CP) — Sagging exports depressed Canada's international balance of payments to a $198-million deficit in the third quarter, Statistics Canada reported Friday.

But it indicated that exceptional factors in the third quarter helped reduce exports, and booming international sales in November may point to redress of the deficit by the end of the year.

Near-normal and above-normal temperature readings are expected for most of the country in the last two weeks of December, with below-normal readings for portions of the Prairies, Ontario and Quebec, according to the 30-day weather outlook of the United States Weather Bureau. Precipitation is expected to be moderate with heavy readings in portions of the Maritimes, Ontario, Quebec and British Columbia. This is not a specific forecast and changes may occur. (CP Newsmap)

LONDON (CP) — A youth club poster advertising a talk on "cigarette smoking—what it can lead to" carried this hand-written addition: "A dead end."

Federal-provincial Bickering Shifts from Quebec to West

OTTAWA (CP) — After decades of bickering between Ottawa and Quebec in Canada's confusing federal-provincial cold war, all the action shifted dramatically to a new western front in 1972.

It's likely to stay there during 1974, with the oil fields the battleground.

The sudden emergence of a worldwide energy crisis, and the federal government's snappy reaction to it, set off one of the most bitter federal-provincial confrontations in history. Before it appeared to subside toward the year's end the Alberta government had temporarily cut off talks with Ottawa on energy questions.

In another league this would be comparable to breaking off diplomatic relations.

The roiler of the Ottawa-Edmonton battle detracted from what officials describe as the most active year yet in federal - provincial consultations. Ironically, it was originally planned in Ottawa to be the year for ending western grievances and, as Prime Minister Trudeau said, "that feeling of alienation that perhaps is natural for an area so far away from its national capital."

Obviously things didn't work out exactly as planned. While a historic July conference on western economic opportunities did result in a program aimed eliminating some long-standing grievances particularly on freight rates, centralization of government activity and national banking policies — it was almost forgotten in the heat of the energy battle.

With energy jurisdiction the basis' issue, the Alberta government was enraged by federal action in dramatically increasing the export tax on oil, while federal Energy Minister Donald Macdonald accused "the province of hanging a "Sucm roy" on him for alleged lack of consultation.

Even in the often stormy area of federal-provincial relations this stood out as a battle royal.

Officials say that with energy still the dominating national and international issue in 1974 there are likely to be more skirmishes, if not battles, as the jurisdictionally jealous federal government, and the oil-rich Alberta government, try to get together on planning, priorities and prices. The issue will top the agenda when the first ministers meet here Jan. 22-23.

Meanwhile, on other fronts, there seem to be closer federal-provincial relations than at any time in history. More than 200 federal-provincial committees exist in various fields, involving all 11 governments plus about 300 involving Ottawa and some of the provinces.

A recent study showed an average of 40 meetings a month involving a federal minister or his deputy and some or all of the provinces.

Frank Carter, who heads the Privy Council's 28 officer secretariat on federal-provincial relations, says the situation "is much better than it was five years ago." And for the first time in modern memory, there was no a single major issue that tended to isolate Quebec.

Historically, federal-provincial conferences used to be arenas for Quebec to tackle Ottawa, and sometimes other provinces, in a continuing battle over jurisdiction.

But in the unprecedented rash of such meetings in 1972 there were many instances where Quebec Premier Robert Bourassa could afford to be an amused spectator as other provincial premiers carried the ball he once had to throw.

"I can feel the push for the first time," he said during the year. "There's a consensus that provincial power should be something more than nominal." And he added, "We don't have to break up the country to achieve our goals."

Provincial premiers came into 1973 generally complaining about a lack of consultation by Ottawa on matters affecting them. In the Jan. 4 throne speech opening the new minority Parliament Mr. Trudeau's government let it be known this would change. Two weeks later he wrote the premiers proposing the heaviest yet schedule for federal-provincial talks.

Apart from the western economic conference there was a May meeting of first ministers.

The meeting of first ministers failed to agree on the two major issues before it — a new formulas for financing health care and education—but both remain on the table for possible approval later.

The proposals were so complex that Ontario Premier William Davis said even he had difficulty understanding them, with experts at his elbow. What is important, he said, is that the federal government is committed eventually to eliminate shared-cost programs.

There was no disagreement over Ottawa's plan to overhaul the family allowance scheme so that average benefits reached $20 a child by Jan. 1. Neither was there disagreement on pegging social-security benefits more closely to the cost of living.

There was unanimous agreement that the provinces stay away from price and wage controls. "This is strictly a matter for the federal government," said Premier Peter Lougheed of Alberta.

What did emerge from talks between Mr. Trudeau and the premiers was a view that in future they should deal more with broad goals and objectives and leave specifics to other ministers.

"There seemed to be tentative agreement . . . that we concentrate more on this type of subject," said Mr. Trudeau.

That means, he said, that until there is a clear indication of agreement, there will be no revival of the constitutional discussions that foundered after the 1971 conference in Victoria. After reaching a tentative agreement, that time for a made-in-Canada constitution to replace the British North America Act Quebec rejected the proposal.

There was a lessening of tensions in the social policy field, long an area of conflict. On welfare, Ottawa and Quebec City were in accord to the point where Health Minister Marc Lalonde hired the former Quebec social affairs minister, Claude Castonguay, as part-time consultant to his department.

And in he long dispute over off-shore mineral rights, Mr. Trudeau says he is "optimistic" that agreement will be reached with the coastal provinces early in 1974.

Millions Mislaid

MANSFIELD, England (CP) — The descendants of Sgt. John Stubbings, who fought at the battle of Waterloo, are claiming £99 million ($172.5 million) from the government in back pay. Retired school teacher Ernest Stead of Nottinghamshire discovered his great-great-grandfather never received his special demobilization bounty of £19 and the defence ministry admits that if invested at 10 per cent, the £19 now would be worth £99 million.

High Price May Cut Alcoholism

SANTIAGO (Reuter) — Price rises decreed by Chile's new military rulers aimed at curing the country's economic ills may help to counter another big problem—alcoholism.

The head of Chile's Union for Alcoholic Rehabilitation, Cesar Valenzuela, says this nation's 10 million inhabitants has some 30,000 incurable alcoholics.

More than one person in 10 is considered "sick" with alcoholism in this land of traditionally cheap, good wines.

One recent report said Chile has the highest mortality rate in Latin America from cirrhosis—the typical alcoholic's disease.

Valenzuela, whose organization runs some 200 Alcoholics Anonymous clubs in central Chile, the most highly populated region of the country, wants the new government to back his efforts.

The military have certainly made life more difficult for drinkers. Prices of wines and liquors have been freed to rise with the market and are almost double what they were under the late president Salvador Allende's rule.

But there is no evidence yet that the added expense is having any effect on consumption. In fact, it appears that some producers are stepping up production and rushing their wines into the market after hoarding under Allende when returns were low.

Pall of Uncertainty Shrouds U.S. Economy

WASHINGTON (CP) — A pall of uncertainty and misgiving hangs over the economy as the United States looks toward 1974, shaken by the prospect of a damaging fuel shortage at a time when the business community is already queasy about next year's outlook.

The turn of the year is bringing layoffs and plant closings, cuts in transportation, a sickened stock market and seemingly incurable inflation.

The Nixon admipistration's economic panjandrums insist that most of the worries about the coming year are exaggerated. They see the reaction to the Arab oil boycott in some quarters, notably Wall Street, as nothing short of hysterical.

But the unflagging optimism of senior government economists during the last year, particularly about inflation, is viewed as something of a sick joke around Washington. Their current assurances have not won many converts.

Even the cheeriest forecast for 1974 anticipates only marginal real growth in the gross national product, accompanied by substantial inflation through at least the first half of the year and a rise of one-quarter or more in the number of unemployed. As for the pessimists, they will be happy if a full-fledged economic depression can be avoided.

However, most economists foresee better news for the U.S. on the international front. The American dollar might well become unusually strong, carrying the Canadian dollar along with it, and the red ink which blotted U.S. foreign-trade and payments columns in recent years is likely to disappear.

Even before the Arab states imposed a total oil embargo on the U.S., the prospects for the American economy in 1974 were doubtful. Economic expansion in the early part of 1973 had been feverish and most economists agreed 1974 should see a cooling-off.

The oil boycott probably means an exaggeration of all the cool-off's worst effects on prices, employment and business activity. The only certainty, and it's a major one, is how badly the boycott will bite.

The economic year just ending had a spotty start and continued to be a mixture of good and bad news all year.

While the economy was exceptionally healthy in the first quarter, the Nixon administration miscalculated in January when it abandoned its mandatory wage and price controls in favor of voluntary restraints. Prices took off.

Treasury Secretary George Shultz and his advisers eventually imposed a 60-day price freeze in June but critics say the result was to aggravate spot shortages in agricultural commodities and a host of other goods and to increase the pressure on prices.

Meanwhile, to everyone's surprise, trade-union contracts negotiated during the year in many of the major industrial sectors bowed closely to the government's wage-restraint guidelines.

The possibility of labor peace continuing into 1974 seems more remote. AFL-CIO President George Meany has taken to denouncing the "utter shambles of the Nixon economic policy," worker militancy is said to be growing in response to inflation and contracts covering at least 3.5 million workers are up for renewal.

At the other end of the economic spectrum, the stock market charts resembled a roller-coaster layout at year's end After soaring to the magic 1000 mark in October, the Dow-Jones industrial index plummeted below 900 amid fears about 1974 profits, fuel shortages, crippling interest rates and the months-long Watergate malaise.

Brokers note that a recent survey showed the number of small investors has declined by one-third since 1970. Increasingly, Wall Street is being left to the institutional investors and, contrary to conventional wisdom, they have proved as skittish as any widow brooding her pension.

Although recent uneasiness about the U.S economy has concentrated on the effects of the oil boycott, many economists acknowledge an even greater concern about inflation.

The over-all inflationary rate in the U.S this year was about 5.5 per cent, considered reasonable by comparison with most industrial nations. But consumer prices were up eight per cent and food as much as 21 per cent from a year ago.

The government's authority to regulate wages and prices is due to expire April 30. Informed analysts expect President Nixon to try to get the government out of the regulating field as quickly as possible.

But few believe controls can be ended for good without painful dislocations for everyone—consumers, workers and the business community.

Sugar, Salt Harming Polynesians

AUCKLAND (Reuter) — Research teams in the South Pacific have been studying how sugar and salt may affect the health of Polynesian islanders.

Studies, now being assessed here, took place in the Cook and Tokelau Island groups. Researchers are also observing effects of the changed diets of islanders who migrate here.

Teams found that islanders living on remote atolls in traditional subsistence-type environments have much lower blood pressure than islanders with ready access to salty European foods and sugar.

Dr. Ian Prior, director of the epidemiology unit at Wellington Hospital, said that on the island of Rarotonga, the administrative capital of the Cook Islands, the islanders tend to obesity and high blood pressure.

"The Rarotongans are eating large quantities of European-style salty foods, particularly canned goods and highly-salted corned beef," he said.

Dr. Prior said Maoris suffered a higher rate of heart disease than white New Zealanders

"This is in spite of the fact that Maoris have been found to have lower levels than Europeans of blood cholesterol—something usually regarded as an indication of a lower risk of heart disease."

But on the island of Pukapuka on the northern edge of the Cook Island group and on the equally remote Tokelau Islands consumption of salt and sugar was small.

Dr. Prior, who released his preliminary findings at a recent conference on epidemiology here, said Tokelau residents migrating to New Zealand under a scheme to stop overcrowding on the small islands were found to be consuming larger quantities than before of salt, sugar and animal fats.

A research unit is keeping a close check to see what effect this has on their health.

Dr. Prior said he suspected the Tokelau islanders' dietary changes might "cause them to begin to follow the Maori health pattern" "In New Zealand, characterised by a high incidence of obesity, coronary heart disease, gout and diabetes.

1973 Called Best Year Quebec Has Ever Had

MONTREAL (CP) — With a couple of reservations, economic observers predict that Quebec's economy should continue healthy in 1974 although growth rates will be lower than in 1973.

Economists agree that the province, basking in the world-wide economic upswing of 1972, had one of its best years in a long time.

But the energy crisis, material shortages and a growing manpower shortage loom as factors that may hinder growth.

"As far as economic indicators go, 1973 was the best year Quebec has ever seen," said Guy Saint-Pierre, industry and commerce minister.

His department's year-end review, based on figures for the first nine months, forecasts the gross provincial product will rise to $28.6 billion from $25.2 billion in 1972, representing real growth of 7.1 per cent.

Charles Perrault, president of the Conseil du Patronat du Quebec, an association of manager groups, agrees that "it was a very good year."

For the first time in seven years, the unemployment rate dropped—to 7.3 per cent from 8.3 per cent in 1972 in the labor force of 2.6 million.

About 130,000 new jobs were created, including 30,000 in the vital manufacturing sector where there had been no growth for seven years.

Despite the high rate of unemployment, industrialists say labor is becoming scarce in Quebec, particularly for highly-skilled jobs and jobs in forest operations.

"Those who aren't working now either can't work or don't want to work," said one industrialist.

Capital investment in manufacturing climbed by 32.1 per cent to $830 million from $624 million in 1972, a higher growth rate than registered in Ontario or Canada as a whole.

The value of shipments of goods manufactured in Quebec is expected to rise by 13 per cent to $16.6 billion from $14.3 billion in 1972.

Observers agree that Quebec, which expects on improved cr.. will not suffer from the energy crisis as greatly as the United States, which was having energy problems before the Arab state chose oil as a weapon in the battle against Israel.

Montreal stockbroker Guy Desmarais said the federal government decision to extend the Trans-Canada pipeline to Montreal from Sarnia will help the business climate.

Serious economic upsets in other major world economies may have repercussions in Quebec, Mr. Perrault said.

"It is very difficult to predict at this stage but Canada is not as vulnerable as others in the energy field."

The energy crisis is not all gloom, however.

"In the medium and long term, the Arab action is a good thing because it will force us to look at things other than oil," Mr. Pilion said.

Heavy world demand for forest products, machinery and aluminum helped those sectors of the economy.

"It was an especially good year for the pulp and paper industry which had suffered losses for the last three or four years," said Gerard Pilon, president of Marine Industries Ltd.

The industry was, however, hampered by long strikes in the summer and fall at mills owned by Canadian International Paper and Price Co. Ltd.

Mr. Pilion expects 1974 to be another good year, although "the economy is overheated and needs to slow down."

Senior Citizens Play In Chamber Orchestra

TORONTO (CP) — Ben Barsh Douglas Webb and incidental still devotes as much time to expenses such as hiring buses practising and playing the viola to transport the group outside in concerts as he used to when Toronto.

he played for the Toronto Symphony Orchestra.

She said the orchestra is performing concerts at least once a week.

Mr. Barsh, 94, is one of about 50 senior citizens—most of whom are over 65—who play in the New Horizons Orchestra of Ontario. Since its inception last April, the chamber orchestra has played dozens of concerts in Toronto and the surrounding area.

Under the New Horizons project, the federal government funds worthwhile activities run for or initiated by senior citizens, she said. Although participants receive no salaries, the program is open to Canadians 55 and older, and covers their expenses.

Hazel Goldenberg, co-ordinator for senior citizens' activities at the Young Men's and Women's Hebrew Association, started the orchestra.

Mr. Barsh said he receives so much stimulation from being an orchestra member, he's happy to practise two or three hours a day besides attending rehearsals and concerts.

"We applied for a New Horizons grant from the federal government and were alloted $8,300," she said. "This covers the salary of conductor Dr. Abe Elenbogen, the rental of instruments and music and other incidentals.

"I get 100-per-cent enjoyment from it," he said. "I'm living alone and it gives me something to do that I've enjoyed all my life."

Mrs. Goldenberg said that, although the orchestra was set up by the Jewish community, it is non-sectarian.

"We have musicians of all faiths, making this more of an outreach community program," she said.

"So far, the orchestra has performed mostly for senior citizens, however, we hope to see it expand to play at Toronto's Nathan Phillips Square and Ontario Place next summer," Mrs. Goldenberg said.

This is to pay an antique "quit rent" to the Queen's Remembrancer for the site of a 16th-century forge in the area. Although the forge no longer exists, the original token rent of horseshoes still must be paid by law.

Dear Friends and Customers–

On behalf of REID'S Dairy of Belleville and Riverside Dairy of Trenton, I would like to extend to you my sincere thanks and appreciation for your patronage and support.

It is gratifying to me that good people of the Quinte district believe in supporting local business enterprises. Reid's and Riverside Dairies have been in business since 1910., processing quality dairy products. It is my honest belief that your chance for getting farm fresh milk are best when the distance from the farm to the dairy to the home, is the shortest. Reid's Dairy is the only dairy plant in Hastings and surrounding counties and one of a handful of Canadian owned Dairies in Ontario.

The dairy industry like so many others is largely dominated by foreign owned multi-national companies whose profits leave this community and this country.

A recent study on nutrition of Canadians by the Department of Health and Welfare revealed that our children are generally undernourished. It is my pledge to you that in the coming year I will do everything in my power to correct this problem of poor nutrition through a process of education concerning the value of dairy products in everyone's diet.

To reach this objective the company has commenced the professional production of a motion picture entitled "Bottled Sunshine". Copies of this movie will be available May '74 to all the schools.

In closing I would like to wish you all a Merry Christmas and a Happy Prosperous New Year.

Hydro Lineman Killed

ATHOL — An Ontario Hydro employee, working near Outlet Provincial Park was electrocuted Friday afternoon when the line he was attempting to repair touched a live connection.

Dead is Robert Lawrence Sweet, 48, of Napanee, member of a work crew based in the Picton area.

A provincial police spokesman at Picton said fellow workers tried to revive Mr. Sweet with mouth-to-mouth resuscitation and failed. A resuscitator also was brought from the nearby Ministry of Natural Resources at the park, but without success.

BGH Nurses Seeking Conciliation

Contract negotiations between Belleville General Hospital and the 125-member staff has now gone to conciliation.

BGH board of governors was informed of the move Friday by Philip Rickard, executive director.

About 280 nurses are involved and the conciliation request follows two unsuccessful meetings in the past month.

Frances Lathlean, president of BGH Nurses Association said a major issue is securing a salary increase that will maintain living standards.

The hospital also is subject to provincial government restrictions on budget increases. Therefore, the request for conciliation "seems reasonable."

She said the first conciliation meeting had been set for Jan. 18.

Need For More Health Care Aides

The health care aide is a new position recently established by Belleville General Hospital in response to the pressure of growing numbers of those awaiting nursing home admission.

Now participants in the first training program have been graduated, and the hospital's board of governors Friday heard praise that more will be trained.

The school was established a year ago when it became obvious an additional member was required on hospital health teams to care for the increasing number of those awaiting nursing beds.

The training program was taken over by Loyalist College which now administers nursing education.

The first eight aides received their diplomas recently. Phillip Rickard, BGH executive director told the board.

Noting the increased demand for nursing home care, board chairman Ald. Ben Corke hoped the college in future will develop more large classes of aides to work in the homes.

Mr. Rickard said he was sure it would become an "expanding program."

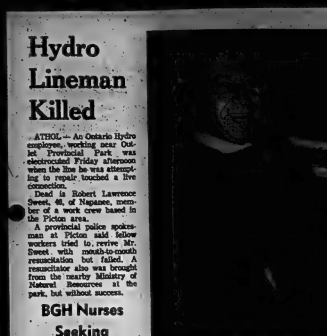
Finance Director Appointed

A new director of finance has been appointed for Belleville General Hospital.

He is John J. Campbell, 38, who received his high school education at Belleville Collegiate and is now comptroller of the Scarborough Public Utilities Commission.

His BGH appointment is effective Feb. 1, the hospital's board of governors was told Friday.

Mr. Campbell succeeds H. A. Mason, who leaves the post Jan. 18.



Three in Mishap

Three people were released after hospital treatment for injuries sustained in a two-car crash at Highway 14 and Sidney Township's fifth Concession Friday.

William Glenn, 64 of Foxboro was east bound on the concession. He stopped his half-ton truck at the stop sign at Highway 14 before proceeding into the intersection where it was in collision with a car driven by James Sled, 22, also of Foxboro.

Mr. Sled and passenger David Grant, 22, 74 Bertaine St., Belleville, were treated for minor head contusions. Mr. Glenn was also treated for lacerations to the head.

Police estimate damage to the Sled vehicle at $1,000, to the Glenn vehicle, at $500. Mr. Glenn was charged with failing to yield the right of way.

Half-century Up Front

For 54 years Harold Emerson has been up front — driving the daily bus run between Tweed and Belleville. A spry, energetic 73, after marking up countless miles he now is steering toward retirement at last.

Public Transport Veteran Heads For Last Bus Drive

TWEED — Buses weren't long in style when Harold Emerson wanted to drive one.

He finally landed the job just before he turned 18.

That was in 1919.

These days, he's making his runs along the route he's covered daily for 54 years.

At the end of this month he'll drive his bus between Tweed and Belleville for the last time.

One of Ontario's veterans of public transportation, Mr. Emerson still handles his bus as spryly and energetically as ever.

"I've had women ask me if I should still be driving a bus," he says. "As far as I'm concerned I'm as capable behind the wheel as I ever was."

That capability is underlined by his record. He's only had one lecture from the law — once upon a Sunday drive with his wife, Mabel, when a police officer claimed he was travelling too slow!

He couldn't count the people, and he's never kept track of the miles his daily bus runs involved.

But, enjoying contact with people, he never has found it monotonous, says Mr. Emerson.

So much so, he's never bothered much with holidays, taking only a few days off at any one time.

"I enjoyed every day of it - and I still do," he says.

His ambition to be a bus driver was fostered when the first bus service - - - run Tweed route in 1915. Four years later Harold was a "boy" for a new driver - - and Mr. Emerson was the job.

In those days it took anywhere up to 90 minutes to bus between the two communities - - - a run that nowadays can be done in 40-45 minutes, weather permitting.

It was just that buses were slower and the unpaved roads of the time wouldn't permit faster travel, says Mr. Emerson. But vehicles have greatly improved with the years.

"They're so much better today. You haven't to shove your foot through the floor going up a hill."

In 1943 he became his own boss when he bought out the service and - - - getting a mail contract - - increased the daily trips to two. Then in 1968 he sold in turn to Franklin Coach Lines, Marmora.

The bus run still mainly serves passengers coming into Belleville for business, shopping or to make bus connections to other cities.

n retirement he intends "taking it easy" - - at least for a while - - around his native Tweed where the Emersons raised two daughters.

His long experience has

Education Beat

The Great Strike In Retrospect

By LENNY WILLIAMSON

The day of the great teachers' strike has passed and in retrospect has lost a lot of its initial importance.

But Dec. 18 may prove to be a historic day. For the first time, the five affiliates of the Ontario Teachers' Federation pulled together and found their 120,000 members constitute a political power in the province.

If this co-operative action extends to other aspects of their trade, the teachers' strike will mark a great break through in educational progress that will benefit everyone concerned.

We use the word trade deliberately. By going on strike and hastily singing Solidarity Forever in front of Queen's Park, teachers have made it clear they want a trade union status.

But they can't have it both ways. They will have to emerge from behind the shield of their federations, give up job security and tenure and get certification as a union. With certification and a strike clause in their contracts, teachers can then go merrily out on strike and the public will have no comeback.

They might even find out about "unbelievable" legislation if, as happened with railway employees, the government orders them back to work after a week or two. A back-to-work order isn't much different from Bill 274, the one that declared essay strikes illegal and triggered the Tuesday walkout.

Clearly the present situation cannot continue. As their federations are now constituted, teachers have all the privileges and none of the responsibilities of organized labor, including a closed shop.

Come to think of it, we haven't heard the old "It's not a union, it's a federation" much recently.

We still think compulsory arbitration is the best solution — best for the teachers and best for the taxpayers. It's the trend now being taken by the big international unions. Strike action benefits no one and creates public resentment.

But, by their actions Tuesday, teachers have proved the majority of them reject arbitration and want a bona fide union.

They have a precedent.

When federal civil servants were organized under the Public Service Alliance, each affiliate was given the right to choose, by majority vote, the right to strike or compulsory arbitration.

Most civil servants considered themselves in a position of public trust because their wages are collected from taxpayers. They rejected strike action and voted for arbitration. Except for two affiliates — postal employees and teachers.

If teachers use their newly realized political power to overthrow the government at the next election, they may find themselves unionized sooner than they expected.

Jim Foulds, NDP education critic, has gone on record as saying that teachers have never come to grips with the fact that they bargain collectively as a group.

If members have the right to strike, and if that means local brethren have to embrace the principles and practices of trade unionism, then so be it," said Mr. Foulds in the legislature.

After that come the layoffs, the fear of which is the big factor behind the current teacher crisis.

PUC Refuses Rebate To Fisher Industry

TRENTON — The Public Utilities Commission here this week refused to alter a "mutual agreement" with Fisher Brothers Inc. now feels wasnt to its benefit.

Earlier this fall — while the company was anxious to begin production of its apple cutters — FBI met with the utilities commission asking for a special water arrangement.

According to Doug Manlow, manager of the PUC, an error by contractors had delayed installation of water meters at the Carrying Place Road plant.

Both parties signed a mutual agreement that the PUC would supply water to the complex at a flat rate of $35 a day. This is an unusual agreement, made only to help get the business going in its peak season without delay, according to Charles Hilton, incoming chairman of the commission.

The company — checking more recent water bills since meter installation — have had second thoughts on what they term "the mutual agreement."

The company, after averaging recent water bills, says it should not be charged $35 a day but $32.50. It won't the difference refunded. Because they feel they used less water then the flat rate estimate, the company contends it introduced less sewage and wants a rebate on sewer charges as well.

The commission, at its meeting ruled no one knows for sure how much water the plant used during the unmetered period and the agreement will stand.

"If we found out through the water bills the company was using more than $35 a day, we wouldn't be writing letters to them asking for more money," said Mr. Hilton.

With water being a chief resource for the fruit juice producing plant, the commission did'a favor applying a flat rate.

As far as the commission is concerned, the rate stands.

OWRC Letter Used in Attack On City Hospital Officials

Pollution Charges

The spokesman for a local environmental group has been told Belleville General Hospital's board of governors the institution has been a considerable polluter of the Bay of Quinte.

The allegation was made by Clarence Young, of People Against A Contaminated Environment (PACE). Mr. Young pinned harsh criticism of hospital officials around a letter from the Ontario Water Resources Commission which reported heavily adverse results from two tests of BGH storm sewer early last year.

Mr. Young claimed BGH officials had reacted with "smug complacency" instead of instituting objective studies of potential contamination situations.

The statements of Mr. Young — appearing before the board for the first time after frequent probing of BGH drainage installations in the past year — evoked restrained reaction.

Msgr. J. P. Sullivan said he would not reply to much of Mr. Young's statements in the interests of harmony.

"But," he told Mr. Young, "it's inconceivable to me that an agency charged with delivery of health care can be callde an enemy of the environment."

PACE was a community group contributing to the environment, BGH a community hospital and therefore our aims are the same," said Msgr. Sullivan.

However, later the chairman read a formal statement reviewing waste control measures in effect at the hospital in the past year — including the 1972 tests quoted by Mr. Young.

The hospital had taken several steps to eliminate the situation, said the chairman.

The tests showed high coliform count in the drainage ditch, said Mr. Young. The first revealed a total coliform count of 80,000 carts and fecal coliform of 8,000 parts. The second test, taken in June, showed counts of 8,000 and 3,000 respectively.

Officially acceptable levels for such counts were 2,400 and 400, said Mr. Young.

This meant the fecal count in the ditch was "enough to kill an elephant," said Mr. Young.

The OWRC letter, addressed to the hospital's engineering consultants, "Gore and Storrie" in hospital files," he suggested.

Such "insidious secrecy" undermines public confidence in the hospital's medical and public servants.

Two Hurt In Crash

MARMORA (Special) — A three-car mishap at an intersection Friday afternoon resulted in minor injuries to two people and caused $1,700 in property damage.

Police said that cars driven by Brian V. Hicks, 19, of Medley, Alta., and Kenneth H. Wannamaker, 39, RR 5 Stirling, collided, at the corner off Matthew and Forsythe Sts. Mr. Hicks' car then slid into the third vehicle driven by Dennis J. Alger, 32, of the Belle Vista Motel.

Mr. Hicks was treated at the office of Dr. H. C. Parkin for cuts and bruises and a fracture. A passenger in the Alger car, Alice May Alger, also received cuts and bruises.

Cars Collide

Two people escaped serious injury Friday in a head-on collision on Sidney Township third concession, a mile west of Wallbridge-Loyalist Road.

Police said a car driven by Rickey Storey, 21, of Charlotte St., came to a hand in the road at the same time as one driven by Mrs. Joanna Rhode, R.R. 3, Trenton. Police said the icy road surface did not allow the cars to halt.

"Mr. Storey sustained injuries to his head and hand. Mrs. Rhode received a sore leg. Damage was $1200.

Mails

A Belleville post office spokesman says there will be no postal delivery Christmas Day, Boxing Day or New Year's Day. Normal services will be supplied on Mondays prior to Christmas and New Year's Day.

Mail will not be collected from street boxes on Christmas Day and New Year's Eve. But boxes will be cleared on both holidays.

Chairman's Review

BGH Policy: To 'Work Closely' With Environment Authorities

It is the policy of Belleville General Hospital to work closely with environmental authorities, Msgr.J. P. Sullivan, hospital board chairman said Friday.

The chairman's remarks were made during a review of measures taken at BGH in the past year to correct drainage contamination near the adjacent Bay of Quinte.

Msgr. Sullivan read a formal statement before the board after it had heard from a spokesman from People Against A Contaminated Environment (PACE), a local environmental group, that the hospital had not shown sufficient responsibility in dealing with possible pollution problems.

Clarence Young quoted a letter sent the hospital in 1972 in which the Ontario Water Resources Commission reported two water samples from a ditch had shown highly adverse results.

In his statement, Msgr. Sullivan noted the two samples were between the hospital institution last year. The hospital's engineering department corrected the situation. It later was advised by the environmental ministry that further samples established the contamination was considerably discontinued," said Msgr. Sullivan.

The carts are now washed indoors and water drains to a sanitary installation. Since November, water samples have been taken weekly at the sewer outfall. This will continue indefinitely to establish conclusively" any objectionable waste is being discharged.

"Reports to date show no significant difference from that is normally expected in a storm runoff," said the chairman.

Traps in a drainage ditch may be the result of natural accumulation, the ministry officials have suggested. But chemical analyses are still being conducted. Dye tests have established there is no connection between the hospital kitchens and laundry and the storm sewer.

The board is "naturally concerned at the possibility of any contamination of the Bay of Quinte," said Msgr. Sullivan. "It is the hospital's policy to work closely with the Ministry of the Environment and the city bylaw enforcement officer to correct any adverse situation which may exist or develop."

UIC Claims Centre Is Back in Belleville

Local processing of unemployment insurance claims has returned to Belleville.

U n employment Insurance claims has reopened an office - - closed five years ago - - to bring more personalized service to claimants in Hastings and Prince Edward counties, previously served from Kingston.

The new Belleville centre also new reactivation of a federal building in the city that has been vacant some time. The UIC facility is established in quarters that once housed the entomological Research Institute at 228 Dundas St. East.

The Belleville office is among 29 new UIC centres scheduled to open across Ontario during the next few months - - a move in keeping with increased decentralization announced by Manpower and Immigration Minister Robert Andras earlier this year.

Vaughan Storey, director of the Belleville unit, says it originally has been planned to own the office sometime in March. However, the date was advanced to facilitate the public as specially as possible.

As a result, operations, temporarily housed on the building's upper level while contractors prepare the ground floor for use.

Processing of local claims was transferred out of Belleville to Kingston in 1968 - - a centralization measure that caused criticism at the time.

The opening of new local offices will bring direct contact with claimants and should expedite many of the inquiries hitherto processed said Mr. Storey.

"All information can be given on the spot," he said. "We're here to provide full service and ,we want to do it by direct communication with the public."

A claimant may now file his application personally with the assistance of, a UIC agent and leave the office knowing if his claim is justified, the rate and duration of benefits. The initial application data have been distributed throughout varying claimants. But, where possible, people "are encouraged to come into the office" and take advantage of the direct contact Mr. Storey says Mr. Storey.

Claims data are kept current by daily and weekly computer tapes that can be retrieved instantly to answer inquiries from claimants on their benefit status.

Mr. Storey, a veteran of the public service, directs a staff now numbered at 8 - - none of them from the original Belleville office.

Mr. Storey's postings have included Kingston, Dichenor and managing of the UIC's Nova Scotia district.

Instant Information

Computer tapes provide instant information for claimants questions at new local Unemployment Insurance office. Manager Vaughan Storey and staffer Gerry Lawlor checks data on scanning apparatus.

The Toros claimed a share of second place in the East Division by scoring a 3-1 home-ice victory over the hard-charging Houston Aeros, while the Oilers stopped Vancouver Blazers 4-1.

No Christmas Present for Eagles

By MIKE BRADSHAW
Sports Staff

With just 14 players and a goaltender, the Belleville Eagles took on the Cambridge Hornets at the Memorial Arena last night, and despite the fact that during the festive season good things are supposed to emerge from small packages Coach Larry Hughes and the Eagles, somewhat limited roster, were beaten by a 5-3 score in their Ontario Hockey Association Senior A game.

But, for the Eagles something good did come in a small package, in the form of John McConnell. McConnell sparkled in his play last night and if other members of his team would follow suit, they might be getting somewhere in the Senior A league.

John was a standout on offence, doing most of the work on two of the locals' goals. He was always in the corners digging out the puck or harrassing one of the Hornets through constant pressure in forechecking.

McConnell was used on all three penalty killing squads and once on the power play unit along with taking his regular shift.

On defence, McConnell was always there, taking out his own man, and somebody else's, and making the Cambridge team force their plays while in the Belleville end.

Bobby Hull, coach of the Winnipeg Jets of the World Hockey Association, once said that in order to have a good hockey team, "you've got to have players who want to work 60 minutes of the game and skate both ways on the ice."

John appears to have mastered the necessary consistency needed for his part on the Eagles team, if only the rest of the team would do the same.

Cambridge held a lead by the end of the first period on a goal by Pete Panagakos. Goalie Karl Bagnell, who was also a standout for the locals, had no chance on Panagakos's tally.

By the end of the middle frame the Hornets were still ahead, this time the score was 3-1.

Gary Brewer scored the first of his two goals for Cambridge with John Brennerman adding the other second period marker.

For Belleville, Lorne O'Donnell got the only second period tally.

In the third period, the two teams returned a pair of goals: Brewer and Peter Brennan scored for the, visitors, and Les Colligan and Bob Edmunds rounded out the scoring for the game and the Eagles at 5-3.

In other Senior A action last night, Barrie edged Brantford in overtime 6-5 and Orillia got past Welland 4-3.

The Eagles next game is a 7:15 encounter in Welland this Sunday.

Huskies Provide Only Exciting Hockey

By ALAN TENWORTH

Exciting hockey. That's what most people go to the local arena for.

What one can't understand, then is why more people don't turn up for the Frankford Huskies' home games.

The Frankford Huskies are an OHA Lakeshore Junior C team that provides some of the most action-packed hockey in the country.

Competing in the Lakeshore League, the Huskies have collected 13 points this season in 18 games, a relatively respectable total for a first year hockey team in any league.

Under the coaching reins of Steve Bedard, the Huskies compete in the league, which includes teams from Cobourg, Lindsay, Port Perry, Bowmanville, Port Hope, and Sutton.

Bedard has led his team to a record of four wins, nine losses, and five ties for 13 points, good enough for fifth place in the league. They are only two points back of Bowmanville, with two games in hand, after defeating them 8-7 in a game last night in Frankford.

The actual caliber of the hockey may not be that high. People used to watching professional leagues will find the hockey rough, at times sloppy, as any league, but they mainly will find it exciting, something which at times is sadly lacking in the higher calibre leagues.

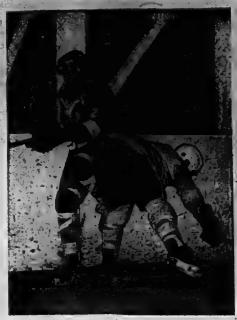
And the action is continuous. Right from the drop of the first puck, to the final buzzer, and sometimes afterwards.

Take last night's game for example. Bowmanville came out and scored two goals, by Bruce Osborne and Ted Puk, within six minutes of the game's opening faceoff, but by the end of the period, Frankford had replied with two markers of their own, Louie Doucette and Bill Jackson scored for the Huskies.

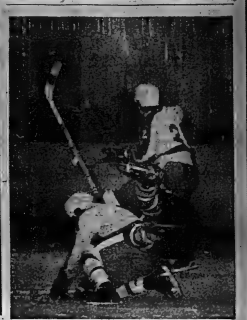
Eight goals were scored in the second period, with Frankford taking in five of them to take a 7-5 lead.

Doucette filled out his hat trick with a pair in the period with Dave Peak, Gary Payne, and Wayne Clapp adding the others in the period.

Pearse Wilco, Glen Rice, and Puk added the Bowmanville goals.



The action continued in the third period, with Bowmanville coming up with two goals early to knot the score at seven goals apiece, but Frankford came back with markers by Payne and Clapp to take the win.



But all the action is not in the goalscoring department. Penalties are a large part of the games, but not as one might think at first thought.

Although one fight did happen in last night's game, the nature of the penalties usually resulted from the fast skating action.

There were 17 minor penalties assessed by referees John Emerson and Red Gravelle, mostly of the elbowing or high sticking type.

Rough and bruising hockey, the type most people enjoy. The Frankford Huskies have it, then would like you to see it. Their next home game will be Friday, January 4th, when they take on Port Hope in an 8:15 game.

Cats Lose 3rd In A Row

It must have been a long trip home from the Victoria Park Arena in Brampies last night for the Belleville Bobcats, as they dropped their third straight game in league play, losing to the blues of Bramalea, 6-2.

Bramalea Dan Walker opened the scoring after only two minutes and 20 seconds passed on the clock, but the Cats came back to even the score at 8.21 of the period on a goal by Mike Watt.

Bramalea once again took the lead, with unassisted marker by Scott Pollard, at 17.34.

The Cats tied it up once again just 17 seconds later, with Mark Coates combining with Norm Jones to score the marker, but that was it as far as scoring went of the Bobcats.

The Blues added three unanswered goals in the second frame, as well as one in the third.

Walker, Bill Joyce, Gary Evans and Doug Crawford added the other Bramalea scores.

The Blues outshot the Bobcats 46-33 in the game, the first time this season the Cats have been outshot.

The Cats will try to shake their slump Sunday night, as they entertain Etobicoke in an 8 p.m. game at the arena.

All Action in Frankford

It was all action at the Frankford Huskies — Bowmanville Eagles game last night, and these pictures proved the point. On the left, Frankford's John Locke takes Bowmanville captain Bruce Osborne out of the play along the boards, while on the right, two unidentified players end up with one over the other's back.

Despite action most of the time like this, the Huskies still don't draw the kind of crowds they would like to see at their games. They won this contest last night, 8-7.

Padres Back in San Diego —At Least For Moment

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The Padres are back in San Diego—at least for the moment. National League president Charles S. Feeney ruled Friday that a group who wanted to move the team to Washington, D.C., had not met the provisions for the transfer and so the team reverts to San Diego.

Feeney said a transfer to Washington is still a possibility but it is also possible that the league itself will operate the team in San Diego in 1974.

"Apparently we go back to where we were a month ago," said R.E. (Buzzy) Bavasi, president of the Padres.

Feeney's decision was announced in a conference call with the league's 12 owners.

The approval paved the way for the group, headed by grocery store magnate Joseph Danzansky, to resolve a dispute with the city of San Diego.

The city still holds a 20-year lease with 15 years remaining on the Padres for the use of the stadium. The city has filed a $13-million breach of contract suit against all parties concerned in the switch.

"We are very much in the picture," Danzansky told the Washington Post. "We have been briefed by stay in and this thing out."

Feeney refused to elaborate on following three paragraph statement:

"At the National League meeting in Houston on Dec. 6, the league approved the transfer of the San Diego Padres franchise to Washington, D.C. subject to the condition that satisfactory provisions be made to hold the league harmless from any liability resulting from the transfer.

"At that time, the league indicated that because of the urgent need to resolve the question of the location of the Padres, such conditions should be satisfied by Dec. 21, 1973, in Houston, the league also decided that should this condition not be satisfied by Dec. 21, the league would then be free to consider this complaint of Padres and take such action as it believed appropriate, including the operation of the franchise in San Diego by the league itself in 1974, if and when necessary.

"We have now been advised that the required conditions have not been met within the time period. Accordingly, the league is now free to consider the aspects of the San Diego situation and take such action as it believes appropriate."

But a league spokesman said no meetings have been scheduled on the matter.

Bengals at Miami

NFL Playoffs Open Today

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Teacher and pupil clash Sunday in the National Football League playoffs when Cincinnati Bengals meet Miami's defending Super Bowl champions, the Dolphins.

The teacher is Paul Brown, coach of the Bengals. The pupil is Don Shula, Miami's bench boss who broke into professional football as a defensive back under Brown with Cleveland during the 1950s.

At stake is a berth in the American Football Conference championship game and the first step on the road to the Super Bowl.

Sunday's other playoff clash sends Dallas Cowboys against Los Angeles Rams in a National Conference matchup.

Miami and Cincinnati meet today, Pittsburgh Steelers played at Oakland Raiders in another AFC last, and Washington Redskins opposed Minnesota Vikings in the NFC.

This is the start of the NFL's Second Season and there's a tidy payoff waiting at the end of it for the team that wins the Super Bowl. Shula and Brown remember that well from last year.

"Our objective has been reached—to make the playoffs," said Shula. "Now it's a new season. Cincinnati is a club on the rise. Paul Brown and his staff have turned in one of the best coaching jobs in the NFL this year the way they have brought this team along."

The Dolphins captured the AFC East with a 12-2 record and have won 26 of 28 games over the last two seasons. They've also captured 21 consecutive games at home in the Orange Bowl.

That's a tough record for Brown's young Bengals to tackle. Cincinnati captured the AFC Central title with a 10-4 mark.

The quarterback matchup give Cincinnati a statistical edge. The Bengals' Ken Anderson had a 54.4-completion percentage and 18 touchdowns to 53.2 and 17 TDs for Bob Griese.

Both teams have a pair of power runners. Essex Johnson gained 507 yards and Robbie Clark 386 for Cincinnati. Larry Csonka churned out 1,003, his third straight 1,000-yard season, and Mercury Morris added 954.

The Los Angeles-Dallas game matches the NFL's two highest-scoring teams. The Rams, back in the playoffs for the first time since 1968, lost only two games this year. Dallas won 10 of 14 contests, statistically, in Roger Staubach, who had a 62.6 completion percentage and pegged 2 3 touchdowns. John Hadl hurled, 20 TD passes for the Rams.

Both clubs have 1,000-yard runners in their backfields. Calvin Hill set a Cowboy rushing record with 1,142 yards and Larry McCutcheon did the same for the Rams, grounding out 1,097.

Provincial All-Stars Take Win From Finns

TORONTO (CP) — Three-goal performances by centres Danny Grenier and Mike Hartman led the Ontario Hockey Association Provincial Junior A All-Stars to a 10-4 victory over Finland's national junior team Friday night.

A crowd of 1,800 watched the All-Stars score six goals in each of the second and third periods after leading 2-1 at the end of the first.

Doug Prince scored a pair of goals for the winners and singles went to Mike Keating, Bob Keeley, Ron Wilson, Doug Hilp, Brian Kurliak and Doug Calmen.

Ginger Markku Kilmalainen scored both goals for Finland.

The All-Stars outshot the Finns 71 to 25.

The loss was the Finns second in seven games on their international exhibition tour. They have won four and tied one. The Finns play against the Southern Ontario Hockey Association junior All-Stars Sunday in Chatham, Ont.

NATO Chief Expecting 'Stable Year' in 1974

BRUSSELS (CP) — Secretary-General Luns of NATO predicts that 1974 will prove to be a calmer stable year for the North Atlantic alliance after the recent strains between its European members and the United States.

But whatever the degree of internal stability achieved in the coming months 1974 will definitely not be uneventful for the Brussels-based defence organization.

For instance, Luns thinks it more than likely that drafting of the new restatement of the principles governing the Atlantic alliance will be finished in the first two months of the new year. Canadian efforts are helping to make it broader in scope than originally envisaged.

Luns also expects there will be a summit meeting of NATO during the expected European visit of President Nixon, who would be here to sign the Atlantic Declaration.

With special celebrations of NATO's 25th anniversary April 4 due as well, efforts will be continuing to improve the machinery of consultation among the allies after the demonstration of its inadequacy by Washington's controversial alert of its forces last October.

Despite the public declarations by member-state foreign ministers of a determination to resolve the consultation problem and their actual decision to reinforce the consulting process at NATO headquarters, there are limitations to what can be achieved, say some experts on the alliance.

For one thing, the Common Market countries belonging to NATO are together with the Irish, trying to cultivate a greater European singleness of approach to foreign-policy and defence matters.

This means a tendency to consult among themselves on various issues before discussing them at NATO.

The development of such a European caucus at NATO arrangements for mutual consultation among all 15 allies.

The call by the U.S. Congress for a February report to it by President Nixon on progress in having the European shoulder more of the alliance load makes the newly-intensified consultations on this issue at NATO all the more necessary.

Said Arthur Menzies, Canadian ambassador to NATO, in a reference to burden-sharing:

"I believe we're going to have to work pretty hard on finding ways of meeting this requirement, or going some way to meeting it, in the new year."

Menzies sees the burden-sharing problem as entwined with the issues of mutual East-West reductions of forces in Central Europe being discussed by representatives of Warsaw Pact and NATO nations—including Canada—in Vienna.

Menzies said he thinks a compromise agreement may be reached in Vienna by late next summer or early autumn on a definition of the sort of reductions that can be made on either side without endangering security.

Looking to another East-West meeting vital to NATO—the all-important committee stage of the European security conference in Geneva—Menzies said the next few months will see Canada and other Western countries pressing for "something more solid" on matters such as freer human contacts across divided Europe.

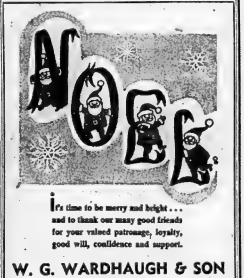
On the success of these efforts will depend whether a third, summit-level stage of the conference—much sought by Russia—will take place.

Meanwhile, the Geneva conference of Atlantic Alliance NATO foreign ministers has given Canada a chance to voice its worries about possibly being left out of American-European NATO dealings—a statement which External Affairs Minister Sharp says "registered" with Canada's allies.

Furthermore, the conference proved the occasion for an additional mellowing of relations between Paris and Ottawa, with Sharp praising the French for accepting amendments to their Atlantic Declaration draft—a document which probably will be the basis for the statement as it finally emerges.

Canada's suggestions for changes reflect a long-standing Canadian desire that NATO's scope should include not only defence but consideration of other issues such as protection of the environment and economic problems.

"Our intention is to have a declaration as broad as possible," said a Canadian official.



In any event, at least one prominent 1974 role for Canada in NATO already is scheduled—paying host to next September's meeting of the North Atlantic Assembly.

It's likely that the assembly, a consultative body composed of parliamentarians from NATO states, will discuss transatlantic relations as well as how to arouse greater public interest in defence matters.

At first glance it would appear that actress Connie Stevens is imprinting her hands, in cement in the forecourt of Grauman's Chinese theatre in Hollywood. It happened Monday at the theatre, alright, but a non-hardening substance was used and it was only for a scene in a movie, "Sex Symbol," based on the life of Marilyn Monroe. Tourists will never see it. (AP Wirephoto)

Compromise on Energy Bill Gets MPs Home for Holiday

OTTAWA (CP) — MPs made a last-ditch compromise on the government's controversial energy bill Friday, then went home for a 12-day Christmas recess that remained doubtful until the last minute.

The Commons finally adjourned at 8:55 p.m. until Jan. 7, but it took a feverish negotiating session in the office of Government House Leader Allan MacEachen to hammer out an agreement.

A snag developed after party House leaders had agreed to adjourn the House on the condition that three contentious bills would get speedy passage after Jan. 7.

MPs were about to approve the deal when Energy Minister Donald Macdonald threw in a last-minute rider the Conservatives said they couldn't accept. The contentious issues was the energy bill which would create widespread powers to cope with oil shortages.

The agreement by House leaders included a government concession that would let the Commons have veto over any cabinet decision to declare an emergency situation.

The change would make a Commons debate mandatory within seven days of an emergency declaration if the House was in session. If not, the debate would come within seven days of the start of the next sitting.

Mr. Macdonald said the provision would not force the government to recall Parliament automatically, only to meet the seven-day stipulation once the next sitting opened.

Gerald Baldwin (PC—Peace River), one of the main critics of the bill, objected immediately and the vote on the adjournment agreement was put off for another hasty negotiating session.

It took place in Mr. MacEachen's office with no changes in the original agreement.

Conservative House Leader Tom Bell said the gentlemen's understanding on how agreement would be interpreted in the event of an emergency declaration.

"We're satisfied with what they promised. I can't say anything more than that. Details still have to be worked out."

Mr. Baldwin said he made his point in negotiations without forcing a change in the wording of the original agreement.

The agreement provides for passage without debate of electric expenses legislation when the House resumes, and a six-day debate limit on the energy bill.

The third bill, formally approving the government's export tax on crude oil, will be limited to three days debate.

The way was cleared for approval of the election expenses bill when the government amended the measure to meet opposition objection and the New Democratic Party withdrew the bulk of 41 amendments it had proposed.

THOUGHTS AT CHRISTMAS TIME,

AT TIMES, WE MAY COME TO THE CHRISTMAS SEASON WITH A SENSE OF BURDEN, BECAUSE OF INCREASED DEMANDS ON OUR TIME AND ENERGY. IT IS GOOD TO REMEMBER THAT IT CAN BE A TIME FOR ERASING ARTIFICIAL BARRIERS, AND FOR FEELING THAT THE WHOLE WORLD IS OUR FAMILY. WE TAKE DELIGHT IN MAKING SOMEONE ELSE HAPPY, WE MAY, FOR A TIME, CEASE INTENSE COMPETITION AND KNOW WHAT THE FEELING OF GOOD WILL IS LIKE. THE SPIRIT OF CHRISTMAS MAY PENETRATE OUR WHOLE BEING, AND EXALT AND GLORIFY THAT, WHICH WE HAVE BEEN TAKING FOR GRANTED.

McFARLANE — In memory of a dear friend, Glenn McFarlane who passed away December 30th, 1972.

Always a friend when one was down, always true, thoughtful and kind. A wonderful memory we lost today.

Remembered by Gail, Sue, Sandra, Pat and Larry.

JOHNSTON — In loving memory of our dear husband and father, who passed away December 22nd, 1972.

In tears we say you sighing, In the years that pass by, We think of you dear husband, You fought so hard to stay, So close, we say, yet so far away, So peacefully free from pain, God took you home, it was His claim, To suffer that day.

—Lovingly remembered by his wife Dorothy and family.

In Land Communists Covet Farm Aristocrats Are Rich

VAL di CHIANA, Italy (CP) — A melancholy cloth settled over the ancient estate of Alexander Forteguerri's father, calming the cattle in the cavernous old brick barns and making still further the busy roll of the quiet countryside.

Peasant farmers loaded their tools on wooden carts and trudged home behind oxen through the vineyards, leaving the fields to old women who had come out in the evening to glean.

Far away, bells tolled softly from an ageless church tower, their peal a benediction floating down on those who live off this old land.

Alexander Forteguerri considered the scene for a while without speaking, then said: "It's dangerous to farm here."

A gun boomed in the valley beneath him, underlining his point, and a hunter's dog dove into the bush.

"The Communists want it."

Alexander, 25, is heir to the 2,150-acre estate 133 miles north of Rome where his father, an Italian noble, breeds a massive white Chianina cattle, makes wine for domestic use and export and shepherds the lives of 24 peasant farmers and their families who work for him.

The family is as wealthy as most Italian farmers are poor. While they don't refer to money, friends of the Fortegurris say they made considerably more than $250,000 from the sale of 37 Chianinas last year.

Total farm and financial dealings of the family were considered "more than lucrative."

The noble's neighbors live handsomely if they sell only one Chianina, at the going price of about $3,000.

Observers say it is unlikely that the Italian Communist party—largest in the Western world—will take power in this politically-confused country in the foreseeable future.

The party has never formed part of the four-party central government, but it does control provincial governments in north of here.

The Communist party now is attempting to bargain with the country's largest, the Christian Democrats, for some form of political coalition, apparently convinced that the path to success lies within, rather than outside, the tenuous political framework.

Nothing is certain in a nation that has had 46 different governments since the Fascist rule of Benito Mussolini ended during the Second World War. Political observers say the country may be heading for some sort of coalition among the five largest parties—two in Italy—Catholics, Communists and workers.

Others, with longer memories, see other possibilities, recalling that even when Mussolini made the trains run on time."

Alexander, a law student in Rome but free to do much of his studying on the estate, sees both sides, but worries most about the apparent move toward more socialism.

The days of the landed aristocracy may be numbered and he says he wants out—to travel, to see the world, to lead a different life.

But like many Canadian farm fathers, the Marquis Guccio Bichi-Ruspoli Fortegurri wants his son to stay on the land and tend the 18th century estate.

He won't allow Alexander a passport and chides him gently about being lazy, saying the young man's compulsory 15-month stint in the Italian army next year will help straighten him out.

The marquis and other aristocrats, who control the bulk of Italy's 2.5 million acres of farmland, argue that they have added stability to the country's agriculture system through the introduction of modern farming methods.

Their peasants are considerably better off than those who try to make a go of it on their own on two or three acres of rocky hillside.

Some hardline Socialists in Rome agree that it would be

All In The Family

WATERLOOVILLE, England (CP) — It was all in the family when Ann Ashcroft made the raffle draw at a football club near Portsmouth. Elder son Graham announced the winning ticket; husband Ken, the club treasurer, signed the cheque, and youngest son Colin carried off the prize—a Spanish holiday.

MOST HAVE THEATRES

In 1972-73, every Canadian province, with the exception of Newfoundland, could boast of a regional professional theatre.

share of the wealth generated by their employers.

Much of it depends on peasant farmers themselves, many of whom now accept their lot as inevitable or emigrate to other countries.

Today's band is of little interest to rubber-bridge players. Almost any pair would get to three no-trump and score an easy game.

Duplicate players would do the same, but there is a lot of difference between making it over-trick and two.

At first glance five no-trump looks like a wrap up. South is sure of the ace and king of each major suit, here is diamond trick and the ace of clubs. Yet West has a play at his disposal to give South a chance to wind up with one trick less than other declarers.

The play isn't at all difficult. South can win the first spade or hold up and take the second. In any event, he should lead a diamond and here is where West can throw that monkey wrench in South's machine.

He plays his king of diamonds! This play won't make any difference to anyone who sees all the cards as we do.

At the table South is only looking at his own hand and dummy. He will only make three diamond tricks if that king was a real singleton and he wins the trick. He can be sure of five diamond tricks if he lets the king hold.

Most declarers would let that king hold on the theory that their no-trump made won't be a bad score but three no-trump down one will be and the West player smart enough to play th king will have shown a nice match-point gain by his play.

What do you do now?

ANSWER: Your partner has said he can take care of the hearts. Let him try for the nine trick game.

TODAY'S QUESTION

Instead of bidding three notrump your partner has bid three hearts over your three diamonds. What do you do now?

Answer Monday

Wedding-Day Wit

DOVER, England (CP) — On the day Princess Anne's wedding to Capt. Mark Phillips, British Railways' hovercraft Princess Anne sailed from here to Calais with her name altered to "Mrs. Phillips." The craft also trailed two old boots in traditional joke style. Officials ordered engineers to restore the real title.

Your Horoscope

Sunday, Dec. 22

By BERNICE BEDE OSOL

Aries (March 21-April 19) Follow your impulses today, especially generous ones. You'll know instinctively the right thing to do for one you love.

Taurus (April 20-May 20) You will profit in the long run if you put the needs of your mate or sweetheart above your own all this time.

Gemini (May 21-June 20) Although your mind is able to grasp facts quickly, today it will be even more so. Quick decisions will be your best.

Cancer (June 21-July 22) You'll feel better if you can get out in the fresh air for a little mild exercise. Even a brief session will be beneficial.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22) You don't want to be around people today who take things too seriously. The youngster in you will be happier with others who think fun.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Toward afternoon you may get some drop-ins you weren't planning on. Better have some snacks set aside.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Some one you haven't heard from for a while wants to get in touch. He has some last-minute plans to share.

Scorpio (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Conditions that have an effect upon your basic security continue to hold promise. This will enhance your attitude and optimism.

Sagittarius (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) You'll be rather restless! Don't get into a situation where you'll feel too pinned-down. Have your exit lines ready.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) You can rely on your intuition today. It will help you perceive things more clearly. Trust the little guy inside.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Those you'll find most enjoyable are people who express new ideas you can learn from. Conservative traditionalists will annoy you.

Pisces (Feb. 20-March 20) You could be in for a surprise when one you thought you could never impress hangs on your every word and praises your ideas.

Monday, Dec. 24

By BERNICE BEDE OSOL

Aries (March 21-April 19) The demands placed upon you today by others will be rather severe. Do your best, but remember, it's impossible to please everyone.

Taurus (April 20-May 20) Give of yourself without expecting anything in return. Then you'll be able to appreciate more fully whatever anyone does for you.

Gemini (May 21-June 20) Don't let your impulsive generality lead you into debt. It will be harder difficult to get out from under.

Cancer (June 21-July 22) You and your mate will be overly sensitive as to how each treats the other. Don't wait for him to make the initial move.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22) Poor preparation could make more work for you than necessary today. Plan carefully. Find the best way to handle things.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Normally you're self-disciplined. Today, you could get your guard down a little too far. Be moderate in your activities.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Family responsibilities will be much heavier than usual. Approach matters philosophically. Make them a labor of love, not a chore.

Scorpio (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) You could easily misinterpret remarks of others and respond with hostility. Be patient. Above all, be forgiving.

Sagittarius (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) You're going to have to keep very tight rein over your finances at this time. It's not a good period to assume obligations.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Be tolerant of the wishes of others. You'll be much bigger person if you make concessions to maintain harmony.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) If you're attending a social function today don't overindulge! And then insist on driving. Let someone else drive or take a cab.

Pisces (Feb. 20-March 20) You could be a bit too flirtatious at the office party and have regrets. Don't let inspiration overpower your common sense.

Christmas

OUR CANADIAN CHRISTMAS

We Canadians are once again approaching the holiday season surrounding Christmas and New Year's. But, this year it is a little different ,not quite so bright for some, possibly a little closer to the true meaning for others. The reason for the difference is the changes that have taken place over the past year . . . rising prices, shortages, the energy crisis, and the prospect of more to come. Canadians are being made aware that things are not always prosperous and that certain necessities are not really of such devastating importance.

Our industry is no stranger to these problems and we have found it necessary to learn to cope with each situation as it arises. There is a blessing beneath these hardships, in that by having to do without certain things we learn to appreciate their value.

Christmas in Canada has been a time of abundance and joy for many years. If you feel that you are being shortchanged this year, may I suggest that you look within for that abundance and look within for that joy. Perhaps you will find that our lot is not so terrible. Perhaps you will come closer to the real reason our year ends with this very special holiday.

On behalf of everyone here at Rollins Construction, we wish you and yours a very Merry Christmas and Happiness throughout the New Year. Thank you for your patronage and patience in 1973.

YOURS SINCERELY

Persian Gulf States Boost Taxes on Oil by 128 Per Cent

LONDON (AP) — The economies of Western Europe and Japan are in for more hard blows as a result of another big increase in the price of oil by the Persian Gulf governments.

And government sources in Caracas said Venezuela, which supplies more than 10 per cent of the oil processed in the United States, will raise the tax-reference price on its crude Jan. 1.

Canada relies on Venezuelan oil for about 45 per cent of its daily crude-oil imports of 1 800 000 barrels. Most Venezuelan oil goes to eastern Canada.

The six Persian Gulf producers—Iran, Iraq, Saudi Arabia, Kuwait, Abu Dhabi and Qatar—announced Sunday after a two-day meeting in Tehran that effective Jan. 1 they will increase the taxes and royalties they collect on the oil produced from their fields to $7 a barrel from $3.06, an increase of 128 per cent.

They did this by increasing the "posted" price of crude oil to $11.651 a barrel from $5.11. The posted price is an artificial price set by the producing companies as the basis for calculation of the taxes and royalties paid them by the Western companies that produce or market their oil.

The price of $5.11 was set in October. The posted price last January was only $2.59 a barrel.

Venezuelan sources did not disclose what increase can be expected in the tax reference price, used for calculating taxes paid by foreign oil companies.

The newspaper El Nacional predicted, however, that it will go to $10 a barrel from the current average of $7.74 a barrel. It was $3.11 a barrel last January.

Canadian oil company officials said today Americans will probably have to wait at least a month before finding out what effects the Persian Gulf increases will have.

"When costs go up, the consumer price must go up proportionately," a spokesman for Shell Canada Ltd. said in Halifax.

However, oil company spokesman could not say how much the increase will be.

"No one really knows at this point," said a spokesman for Imperial Oil Ltd.

"The consumer can consider himself fortunate that we held to a government take of $7 a barrel," said Finance Minister Majahid Aamusegar of Iran.

"The cost of production is only 12 cents a barrel, so oil is now costing the companies $7.12 a barrel."

Aamusegar said the countries did not try to set a market price because of the chaotic condition of the market. He cited the price of $17 a barrel recently paid at auction for a quantity of Iranian oil and said major Western companies are offering Iran $11 or $13 a barrel.

The industrial world will have to realize that the era of the terrific progress and even more terrific income and wealth based on cheap oil is finished," said the Shah of Iran. "They must find alternative sources of energy."

The shah indicated that the world might be in for another price increase soon. He said the $7 figure will be submitted to the other governments of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries—including Libya, Algeria, Nigeria and Venezuela—at a meeting Jan. 7, and they will decide whether it should be increased to bring the price of oil in line with such more expensive methods of producing energy as extracting oil from shale, liquefying or gasifying coal and producing nuclear power.

The Times of London said the oil increase will add as much as $2.4 billion to the soaring deficit in Britain's balance of payments and was another blow to Prime Minister Edward Heath's fight against inflation. The Times predicted that the cost of gasoline, now selling for about 31 p in Britain, will rise 14 cents.

Petroleum industry sources in West Germany predicted an increase of more than 30 cents in the price of gas there, to about $1.31 a gallon for regular and $1.46 for premium.

Ice Storms Hit Hard

40,000 in Quebec Lack Electricity

QUEBEC (CP) — More than 40,000 Quebecers were without electricity today after snow and freezing rain hit the province, snapping power lines and plunging temperatures to 15 below zero in some areas.

Severe snow storms dumped up to 16 inches of snow and freezing rain, which fell between Thursday and Saturday, snapped overcrowded cables supplying electricity here and in eastern Quebec.

Hydro-Quebec spokesmen said approximately 30,000 residents in suburban Ste. Foy and 20,000 people in 15 communities in the Rimouski area were still without electricity today. Another 12 communities were partially affected.

Finance Minister Raymond Garneau set up a 25-man "government emergency action committee" to provide transportation, food and shelter to residents of the affected areas.

At one point Saturday, more than 300,000 homes throughout the province were without electricity, with 200,000 homes in the Montreal area experiencing failures of up to an hour. In Quebec City about 120,000 homes were affected.

More than 250 hydro employees worked continuously to restore some of the power to residents here. About 40,000 people in suburban Ste. Foy also lost their water supply Friday when power failures shut down a filtration plant, making the water unsafe for drinking.

Trees weighted down by freezing rain and toppled by high winds, were hampering repair operations throughout the Quebec City area.

Mont Joli was also without telephone service, while two Rimouski radio stations remained off the air.

Flying conditions were chaotic at Montreal International Airport during the weekend but a spokesman said the backlog had been largely cleared up by Sunday night.

Hundreds of persons were stranded in airport waiting rooms or billeted by airlines in hotel rooms as cancellations increased by the hour.

Air Canada cancelled 52 flights Sunday, while other flights were delayed up to five hours.

An Air Canada spokesman said it will take a few days to straighten out the baggage handling system.

Provincial police attributed nine deaths to the storm.

Christmas Day Parley Carries Hopes of Peace

GENEVA (Reuter) — Preparations continued today for a meeting between Egypt and Israel that sponsors hope will lay the groundwork for a lasting peace in the Middle East.

The Egyptians, the Israelis and the United Nations made last-minute arrangements for a meeting—expected Tuesday—of a special military group on disengagement of forces set up by last week's Middle East peace conference.

Egyptian Foreign Minister Ismail Fahmy told Arab journalists Sunday that military men from both sides will meet in Geneva Christmas Day in an effort to separate forces entangled along the Suez canal since the fighting there last October.

They will be joined, he said, by Finnish Gen. Ensio Siilasvuo, head of the United Nations peacekeeping force who arranged and participated in abortive disengagement talks at Kilometre 101 on the Cairo-Suez road.

Fahmy, whose country has demanded that disengagement be the first issue dealt with by the five-nation peace conference, named Tuesday as the first negotiating day, but he said technical hitches may delay the session until Wednesday.

Though Fahmy was firm on the date for the talks, Israeli sources said only that a delegation will arrive here in the next few days.

The Egyptian foreign minister's announcement was the first entry in a timetable for further negotiations to seek peace settlement between the Arabs and Israel.

The military committee meeting were set up by the peace conference, held at the weekend under United Nations auspices and attended by the foreign ministers of Egypt, Israel, Jordan, the United States and the Soviet Union.

Graham Says He Told Nixon 'Admit Errors'

NEW YORK (AP) — Billy Graham says that many of President Nixon's "judgments have been very poor," that he has made mistakes in connection with the Watergate affair and ought to admit them.

He said he advised the president in conversation last week that "when you have made a mistake, it's far better to admit it," Graham said.

He said however, that "until there is more proof to the contrary, I have confidence in the president's integrity. But some of his judgments have been wrong, and I just don't agree with them."

Graham, a long-time friend of Nixon's and frequent White House visitor, expressed his views in an interview with evangelical weekly, Christianity Today.

World Tries To Be Merry Amid Worries

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Christians today prepared to celebrate Christmas as best they can despite shortages of gasoline, heating oil and electricity, an uncertain economic outlook and the threat of terrorist attacks in some areas.

In Bethlehem, the little town where Christmas began with the birth of Jesus more than 2,000 years ago, merchants prepared for the annual influx of pilgrims for midnight mass in the Church of the Nativity.

But the general prediction was for fewer than last year's poor turnout of 5,000 because of the October war and the Palestinian terrorist attack in Rome and Athens last week.

"This is the worst Christmas in years," said one souvenir shop owner. "We sometimes get more tourists in mid-summer."

From Tokyo to Paris and Berlin shoppers scurried to complete their last-minute shopping with stores generally reporting increased sales despite inflation. Some store managers in Europe and the United States noted, however, that expensive items were not selling as well as usual.

The fuel shortage kept a lot of Americans home this year as most gas stations were closed Sunday and planned to shut Christmas Day.

In Europe, several governments suspended the Sunday driving ban. Motorists in Italy, France and West Germany took to the highways in record numbers and Alpine ski resorts reported heavy bookings. Many persons in West Berlin prepared presents for relatives they will wait for the second Christmas in a row in East Berlin.

Security was tight in Britain and Northern Ireland as the Irish Republican Army kept up a Yuletide bombing attack. Seven bombs exploded in London Sunday night. Police patrols were redoubled in London and Dublin, and all suspicious cars and parcels were searched for explosives.

But in Northern Ireland hundreds of Roman Catholic and Protestant parents came with their children Sunday night to sing Christmas carols near the barbed wire "peace line" that separates their warring Belfast communities.

Pope Paul was breaking tradition by celebrating Christmas Eve midnight mass before thousands in St. Peter's Basilica. For the last 26 years the papal Christmas Eve mass was held in the Sistine Chapel for diplomats accredited to the Holy See.

United Nations' peacekeeping troops along the Suez ceasefire line will be eating traditional roast turkey and holiday pudding, but Lieut. John Byrne from Ireland commented:

"It's hard to feel the holiday spirit out here, wedged between two armies. It would be nice to see both sides come out of their positions and shake hands on Christmas . . . but that could never happen here. The Jews and the Arabs don't believe in Christmas. It's out of place here."

"We're hoping to keep it all relatively low key," said a Canadian member of the UN force. "We've got an unusually large number of very young men here and it will be their first Christmas away from Canada."

Energy shortages dimmed the holiday lights in Japan and toys were more costly. Stores were jammed, but merchants estimated an increase in sales of only about 20 per cent over Christmas 1972, due largely to price increases.

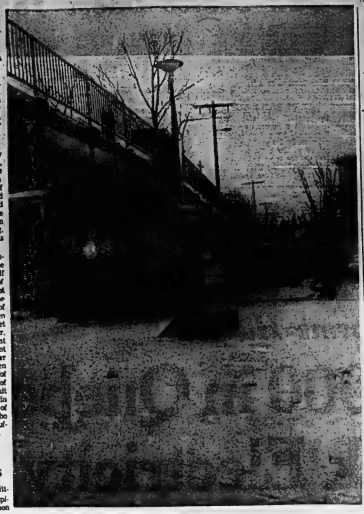
Remembered at Christmas

The city's veterans are not remembered only on Remembrance Day but thought about at Christmas as well. At Hastings Manor on Saturday afternoon Legionnaire Dorothy Barriage, secretary-treasurer of the Legion's Poppy Committee, gives First Great War veteran Claude Tice a kiss to go with his Christmas gift.

Holiday Drivers Hit by Law

TWEED (Special) — A Queensboro man has been charged with impaired driving following an accident in Madoc Dec. 22. Cecil Wright, 37, was in collision with a parked car owned by Clifford Carswell of Madoc. Damage to the Carswell car was $100 and to the Wright car $300.

At 9 p.m. the same day Harry Reid, 22, of RR 2, Stirling, ran into a telephone pole about two-tenths of a mile off Highway 14 north of Stirling. The pole snapped and six wires were left suspended from three to 12 feet off the ground. Mr. Reid has been charged with careless driving. Damage to the pole was estimated at $40.



Damage to two cars involved in an accident on the Stone-Marlbank road, a half mile off Highway 14 north of Stirling at 10:30 a.m. Dec. 22. The incident occurred when two cars, one driven by Lee Healey of Belleville and the other driven by John Breen of Tweed met on the narrow road. Mr. Healey pulled out and went into the ditch. Mr. Breen went to his aid was not in his car when another vehicle, driven by Dale McTaggart, 21, of Tweed came over the crest of a hill. The McTaggart car hit the Breen car, resulting in damage to the front end of each vehicle. Mr. Breen, who was waiting in the car, suffered lacerations and shock.

Man Suffers Broken Knees

A Trenton man was admitted to Trenton Memorial hospital early Sunday afternoon with broken knees suffered as result of a two-car head-on crash on the Frankford-Glen Ross county road.

Provincial police at Belleville said that John Nichol suffered the injury when his car was in collision with another car driven by Floyd Van Volkenburg, RR 2 Frankford. Mr. Nichol was taken to hospital by Rushnell ambulance from Trenton.

The Frankford area accident was one of two highway mishaps resulting in injury investigated by provincial police over the weekend.

What's It Doing There?

Walkers using the footbridge will notice something a bit different in the Moira River if they look down. Sure there has been everything from shopping carts to bags of garbage in the waters but now something new rests there. Over the weekend a large red wooden storage box, used to hold sand for spreading over the icy footbridge, has mysteriously appeared below the footbridge. No one seems to know how it got there but if it's still there when the snow and ice thaw it should make someone a nice boat.

Substance Seized

BRIGHTON— Brighton Provincial Police Saturday night seized a small quantity of material believed to be marijuana during a routine motor vehicle check at the intersection of highways 33 and 401.

Two males were questioned concerning the seizure but were not held, according to an OPP spokesman.

Pipes Fire Cause

Overheated pipes from a woodburning stove were believed responsible for a fire that Sunday night gutted the upper storey of a combined garage and workshop at 36 Colleges St. West.

Five Chief Leo Culhane said the blaze, reported at about 10:30 caused considerable damage to the upper storey of the building with water damage on the lower floor.

The workshop was owned by Harvey Noyes.

Otherwise city firemen had a quiet weekend as did the city police department.

"It was one of the quietest weekends we've had," reported a police official.

And both fire and police officials hoped the quiet would continue over the Christmas holiday.

A Christmas Story

Tonight children everywhere will be nestled snug in their beds while visions of sugar plums dance in their heads. But on Saturday morning, 8, was story hour at children's section of Corby Public Library. As Cheryl Lloyd reads about the story of Christmas she finds a rapt audience will be eagerly waiting for the jolly gentleman tonight.

Picton Man's Coach

A Cinderella Touch For Quinte Weddings

PICTON — A Picton bride added a fairy tale touch of romance to her wedding this Saturday afternoon when she arrived at The Church of St. Mary Magdalene in a horse drawn coach.

Sallie Elizabeth Open formerly of Cheshire, England, wed Douglas Gale McPherson in a candlelight service then travelled again by horse and carriage to a reception at Inn On The Bay.

Her Cinderella coach has a history beginning in northern Holland where it was purchased this summer by a Prince Edward County resident, Rudi Flinterman.

Mr. Flinterman brought the carriage to Rotterdam and from there it was shipped to Montreal. It arrived in Picton in excellent condition despite the long journey.

The second horsedrawn vehicle to be imported to Prince Edward by Mr. Flinterman, the coach required minor repairs. It was taken to a storage garage at the Lockyer Flower Shoppe in Picton and here Mr. Flinterman painted it in preparation for today's wedding.

The spokes in the wheels of the carriage were loose and for this repair Mr. Flinterman travelled to a Mennonite settlement near Kitchener. Here, craftsmen tightened the wheel spokes of the century-old coach.

Christmas bride Sallie Owen is a horse enthusiast and it was suggested to her that the Flinterman carriage might be ideal for her wedding day. A horse owned and driven by Milford farmer, Laverne Way, was hitched in the shafts. To make the journey through icy streets of town the animal was sharp shod.

Mr. Flinterman originally purchased two horse drawn vehicles from his native land for the enjoyment of their restoration. The first, a landau similar to the one used by Canada's governor-general on state occasions, was sold to Picton florist Chris Lockyer.

The carriage that Mr. Flinterman obtained this summer was originally a family coach with two bench seats. It has been speculated that later it was used as a taxi for public transportation, much like the stagecoaches of the old west.

Its owner did not plan to provide a horse-and-buggy wedding service when he first bought the coach. But he has now decided to offer his vehicle to couples, interested in this return to an old tradition.

At present, Mr. Flinterman must hire a horse and driver as his own horse is not yet harness broken. He hopes to put himself in the driver's seat as soon as his Standardbred stallion is ready for the road.

If the demand for the wedding coach is wide Mr. Flinterman will construct a special trailer to transport it in the Picton - Belleville - Kingston areas. The cost for rental of this Cinderella coach is approximately $150.

Marriage Carriage

Prince Edward County resident Rudi Flinterman is fits wheels to century-old carriage used by a Picton wedding party Saturday. The coach was imported from Holland and has been restored for use on special occasions.

Bookworms Growing

During the Christmas season, page flippers in Belleville bookstores are almost as plentiful as the very bookspeople are considering for Yuletide gifts. A recent survey by The Intelligencer revealed the public is increasingly buying books as gifts of lasting value and interest.

Book Buying Booms

Books have taken up a much larger part of Christmas shopping lists in Belleville than in previous years. In increasing numbers, people are turning to books as gifts of lasting value and interest.

In a survey of local booksellers conducted by The Intelligencer, it was discovered more and more people are buying and giving books as Christmas gifts. Some have even taken to purchasing only hardcovers for the Yuletide gift-giving.

"They make marvellous, lasting gifts if people love books," says Dorothy Matthews, of James Texts.

Topping the list of better sellers are books published or written by Quinte residents about the Bay Region. Ever popular are the "coffee table" volumes — large, expensive, illustrated books on quality paper published annually for the Christmas season.

Although Belleville readers buy books of local origin year-round, the Christmas season proves to be a bumper period for authors.

The late Mary Pumpton's The Rambling River, a history of Thurlow township goes well, as does publisher Nick Mika's book, Belleville, The Friendly City. This year, Al Capon's Stories of Prince Edward County, released this month, is selling well say booksellers.

"Canadian books have been selling tremendously this year," says Miss Matthews, "Especially the big, pricey books such as Furniture of Old Ontario."

The latter volume is completely sold out in Belleville. Booksellers do not exect delivery of further books till the middle of next year.

In the "coffee table" variety, Irene Carson, manager of Coles' bookstore says The Best of Life, edited by Hadley Donovan, was being bought for Christmas giving, by many people. The book, lavishly and extensively illustrated, contains decades of material from the now defunct weekly magazine, Life.

Historial, non-fictional and illustrated books dealing with anything from the paintings of Alex Carville to dogs and cast to airplanes have been wrapped and tucked under trees.

In the paperbacks, the hard-hitting, hard-muscled detective novels are purchased by Bellevillians says Cec Brown, Manager of Reading 'N' Greeting. Perennial favorites, the Ann of Green Gables series, Charlie Brown and his Doppy-eared beagle Friends, Snoopy, were being bought for youngsters he says.

Although the season is a fallow one for birds, Mr. Brown says Richard Bach's Jonathan Livingston Seagull has taken off. Also selling well is Alvin Toffler's Future Shock.

Along a more religious vein William Denison, owner of the Fish and Dove Book Store, says he has noticed a trend toward books dealing with an investigation of things concerning the end of the world. In his Christian oriented store, Hal Lindsey's The Late Great Planet Earth has been purchased by a great many people.

Christmas 1973

As Christmas approaches once again we are chastened by the discovery, frankly, that the means of life and our very survival on this planet are neither as pure nor as infinite as we had so blithely supposed.

The symbols lie in such words and phrases as "pollution" and "the energy crisis", about which most of us probably have heard more than enough. By now we are, or should be, fully aware of their implications.

Briefly, what is expected of us at this time, is summed up in words like "conservation" and "thrift."

Yet, let us not forget the significance of "light" in the Christmas story. It may be in the public interest to burn as little electricity as possible at this time, yet it remains a major factor in the expression of the spirit of Christmas. Just as the story, The Gift of the Magi, expresses the inner, spiritual aspect of the season, the giving of ourselves or what little we have.

In Scandinavia and in cities in Canada with large Scandinavian populations, the Festival of Light is celebrated.

Consider too the thought expressed in these words: Better to light a candle than curse the darkness.

If the lights are fewer this Christmas it does not mean everything is snuffed out. Far from it.

When King George VI was on the Throne he quoted in a New Year message these words of Minnie Haskins: "I said to the man who stood at the gate of the year, 'Give me a light that I may tread safely into the unknown,' and he replied: 'Go forth into the darkness and put your hand into the hand of God, that shall be to you better than light and safer than any known way'."

Again, in the Christmas story there are the wise men who followed the star in the east, to the place where the Christ child was to be found.

Light then — in all its phases — remains a Symbol of this holy time.

Earthly circumstances change. This year there has been an end to United States involvement in Southeast Asia, although hostilities continue among the combatants in Vietnam and Cambodia. In the U.S. domestic scene, the political storm at the root of the national fibre and political morality, a tender shoot at best, has suffered further taint.

There is the energy crisis, already mentioned, which in its near total absorption of community interest betrays our almost megalomaniacal involvement with things material and wordly.

The calumet freedom that allows pornography to be sold side by side with the classics of old is of a scope never before thought possible.

The flesh and the devil hammer at what is left of traditional values, as what Dr. Benjamin Spock has described as our "carefully constructed inhibitions . . ."

Compounding the problems arising from the "new morality", the era of the liberine and of permissiveness, is the frightening ignorance of many members of the younger generation, leading to such multi-faceted tragedies as illegitimacy, abortion and the social diseases that investigate their every nook. If many of those involved regard them as merely hazards along life's way.

Yet we live in hope of restoration of a more stable social order — not a return to the past but to some of the discipline of earlier times.

Mankind itself is bound by ego-old limitations, barely glossed over by the evolution of the centuries and the thin membrane boundaries of what passes for civilized behavior.

As Dr. Spock has observed: "Man is distinctly more aggressive, cruel, and relentless than any of the other species."

* * *

Or as one of the French philosophers has put it: "Above the numerous families of man, is placed — man, whose destructive hand spares nothing that he sees. He kills to obtain food, he kills himself, he kills to protect himself, he kills to attack, he kills to defend, he kills for his edification, he kills for his amusement, he arrogates to himself the magnificent right, he needs everything, and nothing withstands him."

* * *

But nearly 2,000 years ago there was an event of unprecedented moment. The birth of Christ. This happening was to alter the course of life on earth, crucifixion and resurrection, remain throughout all history, through triumph and tragedy, man's greatest hope.

Hees—Trudeau Vendetta at Full Blast in the Commons

By RICHARD JACKSON

OTTAWA—It may have been the season to be jolly in most places, but definitely not in the House of Commons.

Prime Minister Trudeau has been "bullying", as he insists it is, his Tory backiers.

And former Conservative Trade Minister George Hees, reverting to his days with the Toronto Argonauts, when if you could not kick 'em out behind the grandstand you could not kick 'em on the field, has been inviting Trudeau and friends to "step outside," presumably for a punch.

The Prime Minister's aides, admitting he has been in what they call "an odd mood" insist that fatigue is to blame.

Whatever is lashed, one of them allibied after the suddenly short-tuned Prime Minister had brusquely brushed off the press when they crowded around, after a lively Daily Question Period in the Commons, to push a few more queries at him.

The brush-off was strange, especially as Trudeau usually is down with his fit of "the moods," as the Prime Ministers personality feeling lonely and neglected, had sent out emissaries to remind the press that he was always "available."

But there he was, telling people both inside and outside the Commons.

James McGrath, the combative Conservative MP from Newfoundland's St. John's East, was the one to get the "fuddling."

(Incidentally, for their sinceabandoned Christmas show, a sort of political musical comedy the New Democrats had chosen appropriate to the parliamentary times, the title of "Fuddler on the Roof." Former Liberal West New Democratic MP Mark Rose, a musician of national note, had been chosen for "Fuddler," but the production was abandoned when the NDP, in a self-induced panic, dropped everything to prepare for the winter election they feared was upon them.)

Jim McGrath received his "fuddling" when he asked the Prime Minister what his federal financial soothsayers were doing about sky-rocketing food prices.

It had raised quite a storm of protest before which had blown up from the coast before dying down, but here was the Prime Minister, once again "mouthing" his answer in two words, quite plainly he-read from the galleries of the House.

This time he did not even have the grace to explain that all he had been telling Jim McGrath was to "fuddle around."

He just sat there, glaring defiance at the reaping Opposition.

Of course, there were cries of "shame" and "coverup" and "resignation" from the Press Gallery, as hard reporters diplomatically neglected to put on Parliament's record.

Conservative Leader Robert Stanfield, waiting for silence finally got enough to be heard and used it to nail down the "fuddling."

"I watched the Prime Minister very carefully," he told the House. "And he deliberately said one or two words very quickly. I was listening with my earphone amplifier on, and it was a deliberate attempt to be unclear."

Stanfield then called for a Parliament.

In charged George Hees, bellowing his distaste for a Prime Minister he quite obviously yearned to punch as a fop, or as he once phrased it, "a pompadoured sissy."

"Come he sits," shouted George Hees, "and sulks. He is an absolute disgrace. And I am still a member of the Conservative Party (cheers from the Liberal side of the House) want to stop outside. I'm ready."

But the Prime Minister did not and glared.

"Come on, Little Lord Fauntleroy," howled Hees, "get on your feet."

But the Prime Minister did not, until a couple of days later when he got the chance to take a shot of verbal vengeance at his tormentor.

"George," he told Hees, speaking very, very softly, almost in his "fuddling" voice, "I think you should go back to the times when you contented yourself with just being Gorgeous George'. . ."

He did not know," glowed George Hees in delight, that he had got under your skin so easily."

"You do not get under my skin," replied the Prime Minister lofty, "with the knife you put under the skin of your former leader" this in reference to the Hees' resignation which, coupled with other calamitous Conservative developments, broke the Diefenbaker cabinet.

Now, 'tis the season to be lolly, but not on Parliament Hill.

Information People Alive and Well And Living in Stormbound Ottawa

By STEWART MacLEOD

OTTAWA (CP) — With original Christmas gifts so difficult to find, it's a shame the library board didn't make public its progress report on the career government information services' development program.

You could sit by the fireside and learn how the conceptual model of the manpower planning system is getting along. And, should you stumble over unfamiliar expressions, the report has a handy little glossary of terms.

If, for instance, the term "public speaking" perturbed you, a quick check of the glossary would reveal that public speaking refers to disseminating information through the spoken word in the presence of an audience."

The report is the work of 19 committees which are studying information services. The committees have a total membership of 197, and while this progress report does not outline their work, it clearly represents a tidy summary.

The staffing study committee concluded that to improve the government's massive information branches, there is a need to place greater emphasis on the potential of a candidate when recruiting." In-depth interviews at career checkpoints are also recommended.

Another committee worked on classification and, among other things, recommended "the use of bench-marks identifiable only by a specialist title."

If that is confusing it takes only a moment to look at the word "specialist" in the glossary.

"A specialist is an experienced individual who, regardless of his supervisory or managerial abilities, is recognized by his superiors and peers as an authority in his speciality field."

These definitions are handy because one of the studies established that "there was little communication between the (Information Service) group member, line managers and staffing officers because of a lack of common terminology."

Ironically, the study on definitions also recommended a new definition for the group."

In addition to all this, it should be noted that "two information officers were selected by the Public Service Commission to serve on a data stream vocabulary revision team."

One reason for great emphasis on terminology is that one of the studies established that "editors appear to have the most difficulty with technical terms connected with their duties."

The glossary proves it. The explanation under the word "editing," includes this:

"The work ranges from improving sentence structure to maintaining control of quality, and includes improving clarity, organization of material, terminology, conciseness, consistency, accuracy, relevance and the soundness of the conclusions."

Statement by County Teachers Comes in for Sharp Criticism

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

It is with anger and dismay that I read "A Statement of Concern By The Teachers of Hastings County". The many fallacies contained in it, along with reliable information made available to me prove only that: both the Ontario Ministry of Education and the concerned teachers are acting irresponsibly. It is the taxpayer who must suffer in the long run.

I should like to point to just a couple of fallacies contained within the teachers "Statement of Concern".

"A. It imposes on the civil rights of the teachers by limiting our ability to resign from teaching positions we find unacceptable". This statement is not true. The Ontario Education's publication "Dimensions" reported in its November publication that: "During 1971-72, a total of 7,417 elementary teachers left the elementary school system in Ontario and 3,273 secondary teachers left the secondary school system". What did it cost the Ontario taxpayer to send these teachers to the glorified Teachers' College of their choice? How many of these same teachers would be the first to admit that they learned very little at Teachers' College that they did not already know. In view of the fact that our educators are toying with the idea of making teacher training a two-year endeavor rather than the traditional one-year course, and begin to see how elitist our educational system is becoming.

This elitism shows itself clearer than ever when the teachers rally support from "The Ontario Medical Association", to have just one small segment of the Canadian population. Most of us are under the assumption that our children need the formal education that schools provide. This just isn't so, and Ivan Illich who is to education what Ralph Nader is the car industry has pointed to the fact that: "Everywhere in the world school costs have risen faster than the GNP, . . ." Illich goes on to say that discriminatory society has become due to our present educational system. "Neither learning nor justice is promoted by schooling because educators insist on packaging instruction with certification". He has become increasingly difficult to obtain employment in our society regardless of informal education unless one presents the "proper credentials".

It is more than ironic that in the Dec. 18 issue of The Intelligencer there is a report on Belleville school guards who earn $3.25 a week and will soon get a $2.35 a week raise. (regardless of pension or other income) The Commissioner issue of November reports that "The median salaries of full-time teachers and principals are $8,745 in elementary schools and $12,591 in secondary schools. Both these sums are higher than the average Canadian's income. You get just a little hot under the collay thinking of crossing guards who need a raise to get over a day in winter in sub-zero temperatures for $26.00 a week.

Would they earn as much as the teachers if they received their degrees?

This is not to say that the teachers are without just cause for complaint. Certainly William Davis, while minister of education (with his eye on the premiership) gave education all the funding it needed. In turn, many educators gave Davis the support he needed to become premier. But now that Thomas Wells is the Minister of Education and Davis is where he wants to be the purse strings have begun to draw tighter.

Regardless of the support from other big business groups (education is big business) such as the CLC, CUPE and the OMA (whose doctors were recently curtailed as to their earning power), there is definitely a need to curtail both the spending and the power plays by our teachers. Strikes prove nothing (as Great Britain has found) although the teachers may disagree. They are less important however (as both the postmen and refuse collectors have proven) and do not help the general economic situation)

I wonder if arbitration and Bill 264 are such a bad idea after all. It might bring together both teachers and negotiating ministers in an intelligent confrontation of individuals. The present policy whereby teachers and ministers point accusing fingers at each other serves no purpose and rectifies no ills. It is only through meetings rather than strikes that any useful solution will be reached.

Signed, GLEN KYLE

Who's Who on the Lecture Circuit

By DON O'HEARN
Queen's Park Bureau
Thomson News Service

TORONTO — This is a time of year when club secretaries and others are finding up their programs for the season ahead and a question one frequently gets asked is: "Who has been a just who are the best potential speakers for lunch and dinner meetings and the grapefruit circuit generally.

Front bench government side you can hardly go wrong by trying to book Minister of Transportation and Industrial Affairs John Clement.

Clement always has something to say. His speeches are full of fact and are well thought out.

He is not a great orator in the old-line style but he can be depended on to hold the audience's interest.

The also in the government's line-up in the speaking league are Kreggy Minister Darcy McKeough, treasurer John While, and, of course, the premier himself.

The premier may be a little hard to book, for he is a busy man and spends a lot of speaking with enough advance notice shouldn't be too difficult to fit him in.

Moving to the other side of the house there are the stars.

NDP Leader Stephen Lewis, of course, is one of the best orators in the province.

When he is in top form it is a pleasure just to listen to his delivery and choice of words.

When sitting beside him is Patrick D. Lawlor, Toronto lawyer representing Lakeshore.

And Mr. Lawlor combines wit and style to the best of the old tradition.

He will both entertain you and inform you, though perhaps giving you a good portion of socialism on the way.

The Liberals speaking strength is also in two weaknesses.

Leader Robert Nixon, of course, can keep pace in any league.

Charles Bullbrook of Sarnia is a very able lawyer and certainly well keep your attention.

The Liberal backbenches generally don't have that star quality which can hold and sell an audience.

Christmas Lonely for Some

By JIM SMELLIE
Staff Reporter

For most of us Christmas is a time for renewing Friendships and being with those who mean a lot to us. But for others it can also be a time of loneliness and despair.

For some people Christmas is just another working day. The policeman still has his beat to pound, waitresses still have to serve customers and the nurse still has to work that day making comfortable a patient who perhaps may not see the next day.

For some people Christmas is a time for reflecting on past Christmases, when things were brighter than they are now. Consider the youthful offender spending Christmas in jail or the hospital patient spending a Christmas he may be too drugged to remember.

And then there are those without families or those alienated from their families. The teenager who has left his home and family behind and he can't go back.

There is the alcoholic whose meaning of Christmas spirits takes on a different significance. He tries to black out the memory of past happier Christmases with a cheap bottle of wine.

There are those who spend Christmas in a drugged state where reality and fantasy are blended so one is indistinguishable from the other.

There is the young patient in the mental ward whose mind can't understand what Christmas is about.

There are the poor who have to rely on Christmas baskets and find it difficult to tell their children why there is no Christmas tree or turkey this year.

And consider the lonely pensioner living in a boarding house. He has many Christmases to look back on, some happy others not so happy. But now he may be widowed and thinking back to the last Christmas he spent with a wife who is now gone and missed very much.

Consider also the person who has no family to spend the day with. Perhaps he strings up a few lights around the room and with a mirror or glasses a small tree on a table to give the illusion of year past when the tree was real and the lights a bit brighter than they are now.

Even the Christmas music on the radio and the gaudy Christmas cards are not necessarily conducive to the Christmas mood.

Christmas is many things to many people. It's a time to be with those you love. But take a few minutes out on that day to consider sipping drinks or carving the turkey and think of those for whom Christmas is a mind plastic tree on a television top. A day spent alone wishing it would quickly pass?

Pop Group Plays City

Edward Bear, popular in southern Ontario since they made it big six years ago, will be making their third appearance in Belleville after Christmas.

Slated for Centennial Secondary School Dec. 28, the three-man band will be backed by New Potatoes, a five-man combo set to release its first album early in 1974.

The one-nighter here is one of four Bear takes on before the year ends. Thursday, they're in Peterborough, Saturday in Niagara-on-the-Lake, and Monday in Bancroft.

Currently off their biggest Canadian hit 'Last Song,' composed by drummer Larry Ever, the band will be releasing a single, "Same Old Feeling" in January. "Last Song" has sold over 75,000, a Gold Record in Canada, and is pushing one and a quarter million in the States.

On organ is Bob Kendall; Bearded Roger Ellis takes up the guitar.

Into the new year, Bear goes on a northern Ontario swing before taping a show with the National Jan. 27.

Canadian Command To Change

CAIRO (CP) — The Canadian contingent, with the United Nations Emergency Force, will come under a new commander in mid-January, barely two months after its arrival in the Middle East.

Brig.-Gen. Douglas S. Nicholson, 53, who came to Cairo Nov. 5 with the first 11-man Canadian mission and has overseen the problem-filled growth of the contingent to its current strength of 1,000 men, said Sunday he is returning to Ottawa to resume his former duties as director-general of material administration and programs.

His replacement will be Col. Donald E. Holmes, an infantry officer with the Mobile Command in Ottawa who is to be promoted to the rank of brigadier-general before assuming command, here.

Holmes' career includes a recent tour as military attache at the Canadian Embassy in Warsaw. His knowledge of Polish is expected to be a significant advantage, since the Canadians share UN supply and maintenance functions with a Polish contingent encamped next to the Canadian base on the outskirts of Cairo.

Nicholson admitted in an interview to mixed feelings about his return.

"On the one hand the contingent will still be here," he said, stirring a cup of coffee at the senior officers' mess. "But still, I'm pleased to be going home."

Arriving at a time when the size and role of the Canadian force in the Middle East was still being negotiated, Nicholson has presided over one of the toughest assignments in his 32-year career of active military service.

The Canadians were eventually assigned the tasks of providing communications facilities for the entire UN force, along with the bulk of the transport, maintenance and supply services.

Although the Canadians will continue to live in makeshift conditions under canvas for the foreseeable future, they have become probably the smoothest-functioning, best-supplied and most-effective contingent in the multinational UN force watching over the delicate ceasefire between Israelis and Egyptians.

Persian Oil Price Boost Seen Reason to End Freeze

CALGARY (CP) — Oil industry spokesmen said Sunday that a crude oil price increase by Persian Gulf states should convince the Canadian government to reconsider the domestic price freeze on petroleum products and allow a greater financial return to industry.

John Poyen, president of the Canadian Petroleum Association, said in an interview it was "high time the political people in Canada . . . raised their morality to the Arabian view that the value of crude oil is much higher than these artificially low prices."

"The government of Canada can't continue to take a larger and larger share of the revenue and deny the industry that revenue to get on with the job of finding new high-cost reserves."

In response to a statement by Shah Mohammed Reza Pahlevi of Iran that the price of crude oil would be doubled, effective Jan. 1, Mr. Poyen said:

"I think they're starting to get realistic to what the real value of crude oil is to the world economy.

"And what they are saying to all of the users or consumer nations is that crude oil really has much higher value than has been reflected in the marketplace in the past.

"I think on that basis Canada should listen a bit, we should not continue to keep ourselves locked in to this very vicious circle of denying the Canadian industry a valid return on its crude oil supplies. . . ."

Carl Nickle, president of Conventures Ltd., an independent Canadian exploration company, said the effect of the Persian Gulf increase would be to increase the export prices of all other countries belonging to the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries.

"In other words, the world price of oil is doubling as of January, which is going to have the effect of raising the actual cost to the world's consumer by roughly $125 million for every 24 hours.

Christmas Depression Is Common

NEW YORK (AP) — If you get pangs of sadness at Christmas, you're not alone. In fact, psychologists find that the holiday of accentuated "joy" often has the reverse effect on many people.

"Christmas depression," it's called.

For those who suffer it, "the season to be jolly is instead a time of discouragement, fatigue, anxiety and unhappiness," says Rev. Dr. Gary Collins, a pastoral psychologist of Deerfield, Ill.

He notes that suicide rates jump sharply in the days preceding Christmas and there also is an increase in the number of persons consulting psychiatrists.

Dr. Collins, of Trinity Evangelical Divinity School, writes in the weekly Christianity today, that there are several reasons for the emotional tensions of the season, including:

Loneliness, particularly among those separated from family and loved ones; feelings of inadequacy about one's own childhood; increased pressures of shopping, visiting and other holiday activities.

"For some people, the traditional Christmas gathering of the family increases the feeling of pressure," he says. "Old resentments, family rivalries and insecurities that normally are kept hidden suddenly appear."

Reuter Better

TORONTO (CP) — Allan Reuter, speaker of the Ontario legislature, has been released from hospital "in satisfactory condition," a hospital spokesman said Sunday.

Man Missing

OWEN SOUND, Ont. (CP) Police and a private plane were to continue their search today for a man missing since Wednesday after he apparently abandoned his car when it slid into a ditch near Hanover, 35 miles southeast of here.

Ray Stewart, 47, of Hanover, last was seen leaving his car and walking toward the town about six miles away.

TOMMY DOUGLAS

PCs Doomed?

OTTAWA (CP) — Former NDP leader Tommy Douglas predicts the Conservative Party will disappear as Canada moves towards a two-party political system.

Mr. Douglas, interviewed on the CTV program Question Period for broadcast Sunday, said the New Democratic Party is rapidly becoming one of the major parties in the country.

Student Dies

BOSTON (AP) — A Canadian student from the University of New Hampshire died Saturday night from injuries suffered in a highway accident in which two of his team-mates on the school hockey team were also injured.

The victim, Warren Brown, 19, of Scarborough, Ont., and two team-mates were driving home to Ontario after a game at Boston College Friday night when their car was in collision with a truck on the Massachusetts Turnpike in Blandford.

Parents Slain

ROCKWELL, N.C. (AP) — A 13-year-old boy was charged with shooting his mother and father to death Sunday, police said.

The bodies of Douglas Lofton, a 48-year-old truck driver, and his wife, Betty, 36, were found on the floor of their mobile home. Each victim had been shot once with a .38-calibre pistol, a 20-gauge shotgun and a high-powered rifle, Deputy H. A. Thompson said.

Seven Hurt

SUDBURY, Ont. (CP) — Seven children between the ages of five and 11 were admitted to hospital Sunday after a bus carrying more than 30 children was involved in a collision with a Canadian National Railways freight train.

The bus, owned by the First Baptist Church, was taking the children from their homes to Sunday school when it stalled with its back end over the tracks.

Police said the train was travelling at less than 20 miles an hour when it was in collision with the bus, which ended upright in a ditch.

POPE PAUL

Pope Hopes for Peace of World

VATICAN CITY (Reuter) — Pope Paul said Sunday Christmas is a festival of peace and expressed hope for peace in the world.

The pope, addressing crowds of pilgrims in St. Peter's Square, also sent his Christmas wishes to all, especially the old, poor and infirm.

"Christmas is a festival of peace," declared the 76-year-old Roman Catholic pontiff, "and we hope for peace in the world, between nations and social peace."

Quinte Cuisine

Bob Harris, history teacher at Quinte Secondary School, has a reputation for gourmet cooking that he shares with his wife, Pat. Both Harrises enjoy trying new recipes, but have many favorites they like to repeat, such as Kidney Supreme. In your holiday meal schedule, this dish might make a nice change from cold turkey for a special occasion.

Kidney Supreme

1 beef kidney (about 1 lb.)
3 slices bacon
3 onions, sliced
¼ cup red wine
salt and pepper

Prepare kidney by soaking it in salted water for an hour. Drain and remove the fat and tissue. Cut into one-inch chunks.

Slice the bacon into one-inch pieces. Cook over medium heat until the bacon is transparent. Do not allow it to crisp.

Push the bacon to one side of the pan and add the kidney. Cook it about five minutes a side. Toss in the onions and cover the pan.

Do not stir in all the ingredients together until the onions are tender (about five minutes). Then add the wine, salt and pepper, and mix all the ingredients together.

Cover and cook over low heat for another ten minutes.

Served with noodles and sprinkled with grated parmesan cheese, this dish makes an excellent lunch, brunch or supper.

Do you know any good cooks? The Intelligencer is looking for cooks in the area willing to share their recipes with our readers. If you're a good cook, or if you know one, write The Women's Department, The Intelligencer. Be sure to include his or her address and phone number.

Mrs. G.V. Fitzgibbon of Pine Street, Belleville, is spending the Christmas holidays with her sons Michael and Gary in Paris, France, where Michael is a graduate student at the Sorbonne.

Christmas at the Belleville General Hospital was the theme of most reports received by Hospital Auxiliary President Mrs. C.D. Ashley at the dessert luncheon and meeting held Tuesday at Education Hall.

The luncheon, organized by Mrs. J.H. Morey, featured a display of goods sold for the Auxiliary gift shop and gift cart. These services are under the chairmanship of Mrs. S.B. Bochnek.

Also on display were the favors made by local C.G.I.T. groups, which will be put on the Christmas eve trays in the hospital, by Mrs. Alan Twegg and her committee. On Christmas morning the committee will distribute gifts donated by the Auxiliary to the patients.

The Opportunity Shop had a bride doll on display, dressed and donated by Heather Wilson of Picton. The doll was raffled off and won by Roseann Pelley. Co-chairman of the Opportunity Shop, Mrs. F.H. Bowler, presented the Auxiliary with $1000.

Chairman of the Volunteer Hospital Services Mrs. G.A. Wilson reported on the Christmas parties held in the hospital December 18, organized by the Auxiliary. Visits by Santa Claus, Loyalist College students and the Reid Combo provided fun for patients of every age.

The Chairman of the nominating committee Mrs. W.G. Harvey presented the 1974 slate of officers who will be installed January 22. They are: Mrs. C.D Ashley, president; Mrs. J.E. Neiles, past-pres.; Mrs. S.B Bochnek, first vice-pres; vice-pres.; Mrs E. Stewart, third vice-pres.; Mrs. Carl Bateman, recording secretary; Mrs. P.M. Till, corresponding secretary and Mrs. T.R. Colden, treasurer.

The Melrose Women's Institute held the Christmas meeting at China Village Restaurant where they had dinner. After a program of carols and games, everyone exchanged gifts. Later in the evening the ladies toured Glanmore House, which is decorated appropriately for a Victorian Christmas.

Victoria Willing Workers recently catered the turkey dinner held by the Prince Edward-Belleville Ladies Club at the Recreation Centre, attended by 177 members and friends.

Draws on two Christmas cakes were won by Hilda Burch and Jean Duff.

Rev. J. E. Uttley showed slides of the Holy Land, interspersing his talk with the singing of Christmas carols which he accompanies on the accordion.

Women Mobilize Defense

MONTREAL (CP) — Sexual harassment and rape are increasingly plaguing Montreal women and requiring them to mobilize for their own defence and protection.

Montreal police department officials said reported rape cases have increased in 1972 by 70 per cent over 1971.

Julietta Appleton, a social worker, at Dawson College, said there is an urgent need to bring "the real issues of rape and harassment to the public consciousness."

Beneath the police statistics of rape, there are an estimated 30 times as many rape victims too frightened or ashamed to tell anyone, Miss Appleton said.

"Most women assume rape can never happen to them—until it does."

Montreal is a safe city, compared with Philadelphia which had 100 times as many rape cases in 1971 as did Montreal.

But few women would accept Montreal's lower ratio as tolerable and comfortable.

Miss Appleton is writing a handbook of medical, legal and self-defence advice and helping to organize a rape crisis distress line with a 24-hour staff of trained counsellors to advise and comfort women in need of help.

Women are also conducting an anti-harassment campaign, planning a women's self-help clinic and collecting a "flying squad" of volunteer counsellors to be available to women who call for help—to take them to the police or just talk to them."

Experiences of rape victims seeking police and legal help indicate there is little solace and assistance from society's protective institutions.

"You can't win," one rape victim said. "You have to be battle-scarred to prove you were raped—but the police tell you not to resist an attacker. If you don't resist you don't have scars."

When before the courts, "the onus is on the woman to prove that her whole life and moral character are ruined," said Linda Vance, author of a handbook on women's legal rights in Quebec.

Only half of reported rapists are caught, and of these only from two to five per cent are convicted, she said.

Juries are traditionally all-male because it is believed that female jurors might identify with the victims.

The question of whether male jurors judge identify with the man charged with rape doesn't seem to arise, she added.

Until such a program can be set up in Montreal, the Women's Information Referral group urges women to combat rape in the following ways:

—Watch for identification markings, such as licence plates, by people who shout obscenities from cars. They can be charged with obscenity.

—If you must hitch-hike, never go alone.

—Don't loiter within down-town alone.

If a victim of a rape:

—Don't take a bath. Police need semen and blood samples for their detective work.

—Report to the police, with a friend or counsellor.

The police will take you to a hospital or provincial police headquarters for a medical examination.

If offered the "morning after" pill, don't take it. Recent medical reports say it doesn't always work.

Be sure you are inspected for venereal infections.

Ann Landers

'Hard Work Never Killed Anybody'

Dear Ann Landers: I know you have a lot of men readers because I have seen talk about your column a great deal. I also know you speak to a good many men's clubs around the country. So will you please, Ann, address yourself to the male members of your reading audience and ask them this question:

Why are you killing yourselves trying to corner all the money in the world? What good will it do if you are the richest man in the cemetery?

I read the obituaries every night and it makes me sick. So many young executives dropping dead of heart attacks. I'm afraid I'll be seeing my husband's name in there any day now.

How can I get the idea across to a man who is so obsessed with making money that he is putting himself in an early grave? Of course I enjoy the luxuries that come from the fruits of his labors, but I'd rather do without them and have a husband for another 15 or 20 years.

Will you help me and other wives with driven husbands who put in 10-and 12-hour days?—Afraid Of The Future

Dear Afraid: Hard work never killed anybody. If your husband enjoys what he's doing and is tension-free, leave him alone.

Work doesn't bring on heart attacks. The real killers are overweight, cigarette smoking, failure to exercise, tension and excessively high cholesterol. Picking the wrong ancestors can also mean trouble, but that's the one factor you can't control.

Dear Ann Landers: Why don't you and Mayor Lindsay take a walk—into the Hudson?

His letter on guns and your hysterical attack about the millions of innocent people who are forced to death to walk from a bus stop to their homes makes no sense.

Why don't you and Hizzoner go back and read the Second Amendment, contained in the Bill of Rights? It says, "A well regulated militia being necessary to the security of a free State, the right of the people to keep and bear arms shall not be infringed." Sign me—Student of American History At Columbia U.

Dear Student: You flunked. In the Colonial period and on into the 19th century, militia units organized at the state level served as reserve forces for the military. These militias were taken over by the federal government in 1903, and ultimately abolished through the National Defence Acts of 1920 and 1933; the National Guard now serves in the capacity of

Successful Living

Even Blind Can See Christmas

By DORIS CLARK

I hear someone ask: "What pleasure can Christmas hold for children who cannot see their gifts or the sparkling tree or the ruddy smile of Santa Claus?"

The question would be answered if you could see the Christmas of the blind children. The only really blind person at Christmastime is he who has not Christmas in his heart.

-From "The Faith of Helen Keller."

Dear Doris: Thanks for the excerpt about living with the limitations that age seems to inevitably bring. I kinda think May and I have been doing just that for some time.

Mind you, we think -- and some of our friends agree -- that we have retained much more of our capabilities than most folk who are toting 70 or more years.

It is good to know what a useful -- and hopeful attitude it is to sort of accept and live with the fact that we don't spend summer afternoons and evenings on the tennis court -- but find an afternoon nap a sheer delight.

Thoughts.

Dear Thoughts: Now there's the attitude that will get you well on the way to a hundred before you fold up! Acceptance.

When I see men -- and women -- in their sixties or seventies insisting on pushing themselves at the same pace they maintained in their twenties and thirties with ease, then flopping with fatigue or the flu or something worse, I feel an urge to burst into one of my sermons about acting your age.

Trouble is, they don't listen. Instead they remark, bitterly, "Just my luck!" Or something equally foolish.

Dear Doris: Can I do something about our "magnetic" phone? When our phone rings, down comes some other receiver and we have noise on the line to bother us, especially Long Distance. This has been going on since our phone was installed. We have no privacy at all.

Is there anyone I could contact who would take care of this big problem for us? We know who it is and have notified around here with no success.

Lonesome Mother.

Dear Mother: The telephone company tells me the direct approach is best. If an official of the company calls this tends to breed hostility.

If you know who is doing this are you quite sure the party line owner herself knows about it? It might just be that her children are playing with the line while she is off doing the washing. The telephone is a great toy, you know.

Most companies have a booklet they will send out to party line users, suggesting good telephone manners, such as listening first then hanging up, gently, if the line is in use; giving the user the same privacy they themselves would appreciate; and simply never banging the receiver up and down in somebody's ear.

Talk to your telephone magnet. Give her the benefit of the doubt.

(Putting it down on paper helps -- in a letter to Doris, a Canadian journalist, with a master's degree in social work -- in care of this newspaper.)

Bobcats Say "Merry Christmas" to Hunter

By ALAN TEBWORTH
Sports Staff

"I'm glad we won a game," stated coach Reg Hunter, "we've given away all the Christmas presents we're going to."

The satisfied Hunter seemed greatly relieved after his Belleville Bobcats came up with their first win in four games last night, a 5-3 win over the Etobicoke Selects at Memorial Arena.

"We got a bit more effort from everybody tonight, as well as having a balanced attack for a change, rather than relying on one big line", added Hunter.

Part of the effort was from defenceman Vern Amey, playing in first game in more than three weeks, after suffering a back injury in the Cats game with St. Mike's November 30.

Amey came up with a very steady game on the blueline, and along with the other members of the defensive corps, held the Selects to only three goals.

In the Belleville nets, Bob Moore came up with one of his better performances this season, stopping 31 shots.

To round out the team effort, the offensive talents on the club fired 46 shots at Etobicoke goaltender Fran Martino.

Five different players scored for Belleville, with a total of 10 players drawing points on the night, as opposed to earlier games in the season when it was three or four players doing all the scoring.

The Cats opened the scoring at the 11 minute mark of the first period.

Martino put the puck into his own net after making a save off Robbie Crumble, who had taken a pass from Andy Ricketts. Ricketts made a good play to keep the puck inside at the blueline.

Etobicoke rode it a tie game just 27 seconds later, as Gord Crymble fired the puck into the wide open Belleville net. Moore had made two saves, before he was caught out of the net, a sloppy Cats' defence failed to clear the puck after Moore had made the first two saves.

take 2

The first period ended with the score at one goal each. It was an extremely rough period of hockey.

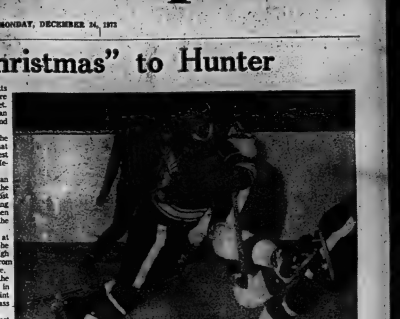
Referee Keith MacDonald called 14 penalties in the period, including fighting majors to Brian Cousins of the Cats', and Romano Carriucci of the Selects, and misconducts to Cats' Mark Coates and Selects' Dan Vesudry. The play was much more chippy than even the penalties indicate.

The Bobcats came back in the second period to salt away the victory with three unanswered goals. Dave Taylor coupled his third goal of the season, opening the scoring in the period at 10:40.

Taylor blasted a wicked shot past Martino from the right point after taking a perfect pass from Kevin Joudrey.

Andy Ricketts scored the third Belleville goal from a scramble in front of the Selects' net. The puck came loose just long enough for Ricketts to get his stick on it and fire it into the open Etobicoke net. Brian Cousins was given an assist on the play, the second one he drew in the game.

Mark Coates scored the fourth Belleville goal on what has to be one of the prettiest plays ever seen in the Memorial Arena.



Stealing the puck from an Etobicoke defenseman at the blueline, Coates skated alone in the crease before faking Martino to the right, and then flipping the puck high on the stick side for the score.

Al Colquhoun made it 4-2 at 7:20 of the third period, as he put the puck past Moore high in the glove side on a shot from the back of the face-off circle.

Tim Yohn rounded out the scoring at 15:27, blasting in a shot from the right point after taking a backhand pass from Mike Watt.

Lack of an all-around effort by the Cats, exactly what Hunter had said earlier in the week, was the trouble in the team's mini-slump. The solid effort was a Christmas present for Hunter.

The Cats next game is Wednesday night, when they travel to Oak Ridges for a 7:30 contest.

Doan added the other goals for Welland.

In the other Senior A games on the weekend, Barrie defeated Brantford 7-3 Saturday night, while the Orillia Terriers fell to the Cambridge Hornets 9-3.

Leo St. Louis

Luck Plays Part In 400 Scores

By MIKE BRADSHAW
Sports Staff

Very seldom does a five-pin bowler come up with a 400 or better score in a single game, but for Leo St. Louis it is becoming a regular occurrence.

Leo, a custodian at George Vanier School, bowled 401 on September 20 and on November 15 struck for a 410 game.

"Anytime you bowl over 400," he says, "you have to figure that at least 35 per cent of it is luck."

The two occasions he has surpassed the mark aren't the first for Leo, as a matter of fact on January 4, 1968 his name was added to the limited, but coveted, list of Belleville bowlers who have rolled a rare 90's a perfect score.

From age 11, while still a pin boy at the Bowl-O-Drome, Leo has been interested in the game, but never began playing until age 16.

"When I first started, I used to bowl at least four times a week. Now," he says, at age 31, "after six years of marriage and three children, I bowl three times a week and that's maximum."

The three bowling nights he gets in are with three different city leagues: the Quinte Classic League, Men's Major A League and the Catholic Mixed Bowling League.

To bowl in the Quinte Classic League, you have to carry a 215 average throughout a year of league competition. Leo has been doing this easily for the past five years.

The second league he is in, the Men's Major A, is strictly a class of top match bowlers. Class being classified in the top category, the A league.

Leo calls his involvement in the Catholic Mixed Bowling League his "relaxation" bowling. It's a night where the wife and I can get out and have a good time, and I'm not under any pressure while I'm bowling. To be a good bowler though," he adds, "you have in bowl in tough competition and lots of tournaments."

Leo has other accomplishments in the game which include being the city's Mr. Bowling in 1961 and holding Belleville's highest average for a five-pin bowler in 1972 with a 221.1, this year he is on top again with a 227 average. All-in-all he has over 25 trophies recognizing his bowling feats.

"I haven't really made any money at the game. All the money is in the big tournaments and I just don't seem to put it together at the right times," said Leo. He hopes to remedy that this weekend at the Bowl-O-Drome's Holiday Classic which carries over $400 in prize money.

To the question of making money at bowling Mr. St. Louis added, "I wouldn't even have to think about it if I had a penny for every game I've ever bowled."

"I'll bet you bought me a shiny ball. Four games and I haven't knocked a pin down yet!"

Rollins Peewees Post Twin Wins

The Rollins' Construction Peewee Majors came up with two big 5-4 win over Oshawa this weekend, defeating Trenton 7-6 Saturday, and coming up with a 5-4 win over Oshawa Sunday in league play.

Mark Crawford fired one goal and added a pair of assists Saturday, while Billy Rowe, Chad Sproat, Steve Mofina, Brad Miller, Clarence Brockma, and Bruce McIlsein all added one goal each.

Curt Smith scored four times for the losing Trenton team, while Ben Leave and David Campbell scored one goal each. Tom Koopman drew four assists.

Billy Rowe, Clarence Broekma and Rich Cartwright each scored treble in Sunday's 5-4 win over Oshawa's victory with Brad Miller, and Kevin Mofatt both adding one goals each.

Kevin Sinclair scored twice for Oshawa, with Greg Rudka and Trent Wood each bagging one.

Bobby Hedge played an outstanding game in net for the Construction Majors.

The Lions Midget Majors were not quite so fortunate in their weekend encounters, dropping a pair of games in Peterborough.

Saturday, they lost a 6-3 decision to the winners, with Powell fired two goals for the Lions, with Ken Lynch adding the other.

Larry Gibson scored two goals for the winners, with Bill Palmquist and Dan Statie scoring the other goals.

Sunday in Peterborough, the Lions blew a 4-2 record lead to lose to the Lift-Rock city team 7-6.

Eric Powell scored twice in a losing cause, with Ken Lynch, Mike Crawford, Birk Hirbeau and Gary Thompson adding the other markers.

Barry Day fired the final three tallies for Peterborough, with Larry Gibson adding two. Dave Greenlaws and Paul Johnson scored one each.

The Lions leave Thursday for the Aerial Grillis Midget Tournament. Their first competitive there will be a team from Port Huron, Michigan with game time 6.20 Thursday evening.

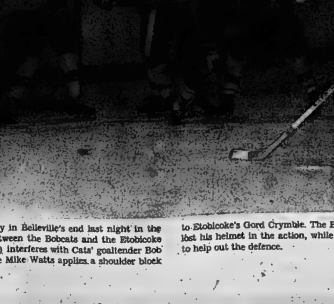
Ski Trails At Mosport

Mosport Park, internationally renowned for auto racing, will open its more than 700 acres of parkland to cross-country skiers on weekends and holidays starting Saturday.



Located 50 minutes north-east of Toronto, Mosport Cross-Country Ski Park offers novice and expert trails, some 200 rental sets of cross-country equipment available in all sizes, family lounge, snack bar and changing facilities in the one control tower.

Mosport with its rolling hills, valleys, limited, open space and forests is ideally suited for cross-country skiing," said Mosport president and general manager Hervey Hunter.

"We feel there is a growing demand for this type of recreational facility. We're fortunate to have land that is just right for it," he concluded.

Trails, varying in length from 2 to 10 kilometres have been marked on the property. They will constantly groomed during the winter season to provide optimum conditions for the skier.

Expert instruction will be available from Oberbolzvalkan-born ski pro Peter Rebor.

The traffic was heavy in Belleville's end last night in the Metro Junior B game between the Bobcats and the Etobicoke Selects. Don Gardner (19) interferes with Cats' goaltender Bob Moore in his crease, while Mike Watts applies a shoulder block to Etobicoke's Gord Crymble. The Bobcats' Barney Holmes has lost his helmet in the action, while Robbie Fosler cruises back to help out the defence.

Punishing Check

Standing up at the blueline is what defencemen are supposed to do . . . as Belleville Bobcats' defenceman Dave Taylor has learned well. Here he applies a punishing blow to Etobicoke's John Mole to send him through the air. Taylor was one of the defensive standouts in last night's Metro Junior B game at the arena, won by the Bobcats 5-3.

Colligan Plays Santa

Welland— (Special)— The Belleville Eagles received an early Christmas present of sorts last night, making the trip to Welland and coming out of it victorious to the tune of a 7-6 overtime win from from the Merchants.

Les Colligan was the Santa Claus for the Eagles, scoring the winning goal at the two minute mark of the overtime period.

George Godson proved to be quite a hockey stuffer himself, firing the hat trick for the Eagles.

Other Belleville goals went to Tom Goodfellow, Wayne Weller and Don Riley.

Tom Cadeaux and Bill Sirnpel scored two goals each for the Merchants, who held a 4-3 lead going into the third frame.

Trenton Takes Title

TRENTON — For the second year a row, Trenton Flirt's Handy Stand has captured the championship in the Trenton Minor Hockey Association's annual Juvenile Tournament.

Flirt's, preparing for a series of games in Halsted late this month and is early January, took the grand championship Sunday night, turning back Barrie 6-4.

A pair of goals by Bill Glover showed the way for Flirt's last night. Former Belleville Junior B Bobcat defenceman Harold Roberts fired the winning goal with the others going to Wayne Calberry, Curt McLean and team captain Don Armstrong.

Keeping the Barrie were Jerod Stevenson, Steve Livingston, Doug Thomson and Dave Pearson.

In their first tournament start, coach Charlie Drake's skaters showed Barrie into the B section with a 4-1 win and in the A final, squeezed past Peterborough 2-1 Those games were played Saturday.

Belleville Western Threven were forced to pull out of the tournament because several of the players had to work Saturday, said a club spokesman.

The Birt's team leaves for Finland Thursday for a six-game series.

Edmonton Selected As Site for Games

Edmonton, Alberta has been selected as the site for the first Junior Olympic Games to be held in Canada.

The games, which are to be staged in August 1974, are a creation of the Canadian Olympic Association which made the announcement in conjunction with the Junior Olympics' national sponsor, The Royal Bank of Canada.

The games will mark a milestone in the history of Canadian amateur sports as junior athletes gather next August 10 through 16 for a national multi-sport championship, competing in Olympic sports only.

The city will be hosting over 850 athletes who are expected to represent every province, the Northwest Territories and the Yukon. During the five-day event, the junior competitors will be participating in eight Olympic sports ... track and field, swimming, diving, gymnastics, boxing, judo, wrestling and water polo.

According to national Junior Olympics director, Russ Snedden, all interested cities presented strong bids. Edmonton, however, was able to clearly demonstrate its ability to handle the games by virtue of its suitable facilities, technical expertise, financial backing and community support, all of which are needed for such a massive undertaking.

The cost of the games, which includes transportation, meals and lodging for athletes, has been estimated at $175,000, part of which will be provided by Junior Olympics sponsor, The Royal Bank.

Speaking on behalf of the Royal Bank, W. J. Yule, district development supervisor for Alberta, noted that the Royal's sponsorship of the largest youth program ever undertaken by the COA was a "reflection of the bank's genuine interest in Canada's young people and its wish to encourage their active participation in sports." In endorsing Edmonton as the site, Mr. Yule pledged the full cooperation of the Alberta district in terms of manpower and organizational help.

Funding is also expected from the national bodies of participating sports and through municipal, provincial and federal governments who will be approached for assistance. The city of Edmonton will make its major contribution in offsetting costs through donation of facilities and fund-raising campaigns directed at the business community.

Tony Gets a Rest, Hawks Down Canucks

By GLENN COLE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Earlier in December, after his club had blanked Montreal Canadiens 5-0 in Montreal, coach Billy Reay was asked if he planned to start Tony Esposito in goal for all 78 National Hockey League games this year.

The veteran coach's answer was simple.

"Why not? They have magnified this goaltending thing.

"Ten to 12 years ago, teams only dressed one goalie. . . A lot of work never hurt anybody. Too little work will ruin a player."

Up until Sunday night, Esposito had played in all but nine minutes of his team's 36 games. However the former Michigan Tech University star watched from the bench as his understudy Mike Veisor made his first NHL start a winning one as the Hawks clipped Vancouver Canucks 5-2.

In other action, Montreal Canadiens and New York Islanders battled to a 1-1 draw, Boston Bruins nipped Toronto Maple Leafs 4-3, New York Rangers drooped a 3-1 verdict to Atlanta Flames, Buffalo Sabres edged Pittsburgh Penguins 3-2 and Minnesota North Stars and California Golden Seals played to a 2-2 tie.

Saturday, Montreal hammered Buffalo 7-1, Vancouver clipped Toronto 6-4, Detroit Red Wings surprised Boston 4-2, the Islanders downed St. Louis Blues 4-2, Philadelphia Flyers edged Chicago 4-2, the Rangers dumped Pittsburgh 4-1 and Los Angeles defeated Minnesota 5-3 in a game that saw eight majors, two misconducts, two game misconducts and a match penalty assessed.

Veisor, who starred Junior hockey in Ontario with Peterborough Petes and was the Central Hockey League's rookie of the year while toiling for Dallas last season, kicked out 25 shots to record the win.

He had a shutout going until the final minute of the second period when Gerry O'Flaherty popped in his own rebound.

Jean-Pierre Bordeleau paced the Hawks' attack with a pair of goals.

Canadiens 1 Islanders 1

Chuck Lefley's goal from the left of the faceoff circle at 7:08 of the second period gave the Canadiens their tie with New York.

"I was, pinned . . . in the net," said goalie Gerry Desjardins, describing the play. "I saw the shot but could do nothing about it.

"When you see that kind of shot, you just hope it doesn't go in. I just wasn't in position.

Ernie Hicke provided the Islanders with a 1-0 lead at 2:09 of the middle period poking in a rebound after Montreal goalie

Bruins 4 Maple Leafs 3

Defenceman Darryl Edestrand broke in alone to score the winning goal at 4:01 of the third period as the Bruins handed Toronto its second loss in as many nights.

The Bruins now have won 19 games and tied one at home and have a five-point lead on Montreal in the battle for first in the East Division.

Flames 3 Rangers 1

Jacques Richard scored his back into a third-place tie with ninth and 19th goals of the year St. Louis in the West.

John Stewart got what proved to be the winning goal at 8:25 the final period, 36 seconds before Richard's second goal.

Rod Gilbert got the lone New York goal during a first-period power play.

Sabres 3 Penguins 2

Craig Ramsay scored twice to key a three-goal rally in the second period that carried Buffalo past Pittsburgh. Richard Martin notched his 21st goal for the Sabres, who snapped a six-game winless streak.

Rookie Wayne Bianchin scored his first NHL goal for the Penguins in the second period and team-mate Jean Pronovost popped a 45-foot shot past goalie Dave Dryden in the third.

Buffalo centre Gilbert Perreault made his first appearance in the lineup since breaking his left leg Oct. 28. He was pointless.

Golden Seals 2 North Stars 2

The Seals skated to a 2-0 lead on goals by Ivan Boldirev and Ray McKay but Fred Stanfield and Jean-Paul Parise came back with goals in the second and third periods respectively to give Minnesota the tie.

Maroons Dump Finns

CHATHAM, Ont. (CP) — Chatham Maroons of the Southern Ontario Junior Hockey League scored five third period goals without a reply to defeat the Finland national junior team 10-5 in an international exhibition game before 2,100 fans Sunday night.

Dave Easton led the Maroons with three goals, while Scott McKenzie got two. Singles went to Ian Campbell, Doug Simpson, Doug Bisson, Bert Fornier and Bob Wagner.

Team captain Matti Hagman scored three goals for the Finns. Jarmo Lillus and Jouni Peltonen each had one.

The game marked the end of the tour for the Finnish team which wound up with a 4-3-1 record. The team included the best players from 11 teams in Finland.

Stapleton's Cougars Keep Coming Back

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Chicago Cougars will have a short distance to go to achieve their goal in the World Hockey Association this season, but the outlook is encouraging for coach Pat Stapleton.

After the Cougars rallied to defeat Toronto Toros 6-5 Sunday night, Stapleton expressed satisfaction in the knowledge that his team just didn't quit.

"My guys keep coming back," the Cougars' playing boss said, noting that the team many times seems to fail a few goals behind.

"I think we caught the Toros when they were really tired," Stapleton said," but our team has been playing well in the past five games."

Chicago has won three, tied one and lost one, after snapping a seven-game losing streak that jeopardized its chances for a playoff berth—Stapleton's "goal for this year."

The Cougars now are five points behind the fourth-place Quebec Nordiques, but their victory Sunday prevented the Toronto team from climbing into a tie with leading New England Whalers in the East Division.

Centre Ralph Backstrom's 12th goal of the season with 39 seconds remaining turned the trick for the Cougars, after Stapleton tied the score at 5-5 at 15:45 of the final period.

In other games Sunday, Cleveland Crusaders defeated Minnesota Fighting Saints 4-2 and New Jersey Knights upset Winnipeg Jets 6-3.

Saturday night's action, featured Gordie Howe's four goals and an assist for Houston Aeros, who regained a share of first place in the West Division with Minnesota Stars by whipping Los Angeles Sharks 8-2. In other games, the Toros defeated Nordiques 6-4, the Jets shut out the Whalers 2-0, the Crusaders edged Minnesota 5-4 and Vancouver Blazers topped the Oilers 6-3.

In tonight's only game, the Blazers visit the Whalers.

New Jersey 6 Winnipeg 3

Brian Bradley gave the Knights' coach Harry Howell just what he wanted for Christmas—an offensive threat—to keep New Jersey on a winning track.

"It was a great Christmas present," Howell said. "Wasn't Bradley something? He scored twice and did an outstanding forechecking job."

The victory was the second straight for the lowly Knights, who defeated the Cougars 5-1 on Friday.

Bradley reciprocated by praising his coach.

"He's given me confidence," he said of Howell. "Earlier this year I lost confidence in myself and I'd stopped shooting.

"Howell has restored that confidence and given me more chance to play."

Cleveland 4 Minnesota 2

Third-period goals by Gerry Pinder, Grant Erickson and Russ Walker sparked the Crusaders to victory over the Saints and moved them into third place in the East, one point behind the Toros and one ahead of the Nordiques.

Referee Ron Ego handed out 64 minutes in penalties in the first two periods, but after his crackdown only one minor penalty was required in the third.

HOGANSON OUT

ST. PAUL, Minn. (AP) — Defenceman Dale Hoganson of Quebec Nordiques, recuperating from a shoulder injury, will not be available for the World Hockey Association all-star game here Jan. 2. Jack Kelly of New England Whalers, coach of the East Division all-stars, said that his place will be taken by Jim Dorey of the Whalers.

BROWN BEATS McGILL

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (AP) — Norm Howarth scored two goals Saturday night as Brown Over. whalmed McGill University Redmen of Montreal 9-3 in a college hockey game.

Vikings Get the Message from Carl Eller

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The National Football League Super Bowl countdown is at four and holding.

Minnesota Vikings and Dallas Cowboys are still alive in the National Conference and Oakland Raiders and Miami Dolphins are the American Conference survivors after the opening weekend of playoff games designated by home teams.

Minnesota had the closest call, outlasting Washington-Redskins 27-20 on a pair of fourth quarter touchdown passes from Fran Tarkenton to John Gilliam. Dallas will host the Vikings for the NFC title next Sunday after eliminating Los Angeles Rams 27-16 with Roger Staubach hitting Drew Pearson on two scoring pitches.

George Blanda's four field goals helped Oakland romp to a 32-14 victory over Pittsburgh Steelers that put the Raiders in the AFC championship game against defending Super Bowl champion Miami next Sunday. The Dolphins advanced by whacking Cincinnati Bengals 34-21.

Vikings 27 Redskins 20

Minnesota managed only nine rushing yards in the first half and went into the dressing room trailing 7-3. That was when defensive end Carl Eller decided to shake things up. He made a little speech to his team-mates, smashing a blackboard in the process.

"Carl was throwing the blackboard around in the locker room," said running back Oscar Reed, who gained 96 yards. "We were really uptight in the first half, and he told us we were going to have to get off our behinds and play football or only he said it a little stronger than that."

That bit of inspiration helped the Vikings turn the game around in the fourth quarter when Tarkenton, who's never been in the playoffs before in 13 pro seasons, tossed scoring passes of 28 and six yards to Gilliam.

Cowboys 27 Rams 16

Dallas forced turnovers on Los Angeles' first two offensive plays and crashed in for a pair of touchdowns en route to a 17-0 lead. Then the Rams rushed back, slashing away all but one point of the margin.

But rookie Drew Pearson, who had caught a four-yard TD pass earlier, grabbed an 85-yarder from Roger Staubach to finish off LA.

"That's something I've always wanted to do—catch a touchdown pass when it really meant something," said Pearson. "And I tell you, it feels great."

It was a costly victory for Dallas. Running back Calvin Hill suffered a dislocated left elbow and most likely will miss next Sunday's game against Minnesota.

Raiders 32 Steelers 14

Blanda kicked field goals from 25, 31, 22 and 19 yards, putting points on the scoreboard everytime the Raiders got him in range.

When Oakland defender Willie Brown deflected a pass, he caught it himself and returned it 54 yards for a Raider TD.

Quarterback Ken Stabler completed 14 of 17 passes for 142 yards but credited the Raider defence with making the big plays.

Dolphins 34 Bengals 21

Cincinnati frightened Miami, scoring 13 points on two Horst Muhlmann field goals and an interception which sadly Ned Craig returned for a TD, in the final 3½ minutes of the first half. That cut a comfortable 15 point Dolphin lead down to a less-awesome five points.

The Same Old Faces But Davis Produces

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

"Dwight Davis relishes a good personal performance, but he would prefer some new faces on the opposing team.

"I enjoy doing well, but I'm getting tired of playing against these guys," Davis said after he scored a game-high 25 points and paced Cleveland Cavaliers to a 99-91 National Basketball Association victory over Houston Rockets Sunday night.

"We've played against them six times already, that's a lot of times to play the same team."

Cleveland broke away from a 77-77 tie with nine minutes remaining, hit eight points in three minutes and stayed in command the rest of the way.

In other NBA games, Capital Bullets defeated Buffalo Braves 119-83 in Toronto, Kansas City-Omaha Kings beat Golden State Warriors 101-83 and Boston Celtics slipped past Seattle Super-Sonics 98-95.

In the American Basketball Association, Kentucky Colonels nipped San Diego Conquistadors 123-120.

Kings 101 Warriors 83

Jimmy Walker collected game-scoring honors with 26 points and aided the Kings in their comeback from a 19-point third-period deficit.

Bullets 119 Braves 83

The Bullets erased a 53-48 Buffalo halftime lead and outperformed the Braves 30-19 in the third period for the victory.

Phil Chenier led the Bullets with 27 points, while McMillian paced Buffalo with 22.

Celtics 98 SuperSonics 95

The Celtics overcame a Seattle halftime advantage, erased a slim lead down the stretch and held on for the victory with a flawless stall in the final 20 seconds.

Seattle's Spencer Haywood led all scorers with 25 points.

John Havlicek paced Boston with 22.

Colonels 123 Conquistadores 120

Dan Issel protected Kentucky's victory by sinking a short jump shot with 30 seconds remaining.

"Those 3½ minutes nullified Grisee and a pair of long range everything we had done in the first half," said Miami quarter-back Bob Griese. "At halftime, the Bengals we had to re-win the football game all over again."

Paul Warfield and Jim Mandich caught Griese's TD passes so, the defending world champions and Mercury Morris, who ran wins did just that. They shot for 108 yards and Larry Csonka out Cincinnati in the second half who churned out 71, scored the and got a second TD pass from other Dolphin TDs.

Thunderbirds Win All Seven

PEKING (Reuter) — The from the University of British Columbia left China today after finishing all seven matches of their China tour.

Before they left, Thunderbirds' coach and manager Bob Hindmarch said China has some talented players and could in time rank among the world's best teams.

The Canadians, who played two matches in Peking against the Chinese national team, and five games against provincial and local sides in northeast China—the home of Chinese ice hockey—never looked as if they would lose though they found their Chinese opponents improving steadily throughout the tour.

Hawks Win Game But Lose Coach

By THE CANADIN' PRESS

St. Catharines coach Paul Emms didn't approve of the way referee Ken Bodendistel was handling the Ontario Hockey Association Major Junior A Series game between the Black Hawks and Sault Ste. Marie Greyhounds Sunday.

After a bench penalty was called against the Hawks midway through the third period, the irate Emms left the bench and ran across the ice in pursuit of Bodendistel.

He was restrained by his players and later ejected from the game by the referee.

The incident was only one of many skirmishes in the fight-filled game, won by St. Catharines 5-3.

Bodendistel called 118 minutes in penalties, including two misconducts and nine majors.

During a second-period fight, Wilf Paiement of the Hawks hit league-leading scorer Jack Valiquette of the Greyhounds with a right to the face, possibly fracturing Valiquette's cheekbone.

The win moved St. Catharines to within four points of first-place Peterborough Petes who were idle.

Paiement and Rick Adduono scored two goals each for the winners with Dave Gorman getting the other.

Doug McKinnon, Carr Farelli and Charlie Simmer scored for the Greyhounds.

In other league games Sunday, London Knights romped to an 11-3 victory over Kingston Canadians and Toronto Marlboros gave Hamilton Red Wings a similar shellacking, 12-4.

In the only league game Saturday, Oshawa Generals topped the Greyhounds 5-1.

Knights 11, Canadians 3

Terry Martin and Andy Spruce each scored twice to lead London to its 19th victory of the season.

Holiday Spirit Lacking As Reds Whip Americans

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The holiday spirit was lacking Sunday night in Providence, at least in an American Hockey League game between Rochester Americans and the Reds.

The Reds whipped the visitors 12-2 before 4,504 fans who also witnessed a 37-minute brawl in the third period. Over-all there were 161 minutes in penalties with Providence picking up 85 minutes.

In other games, Cincinnati Swords edged Virginia Red Wings 5-2 and New Haven-Nsthawks defeated Jacksonville Barons 6-4.

A game scheduled Sunday for Halifax between Nova Scotia Voyageurs and Richmond Robins was postponed earlier last week and rescheduled for Feb. 19. The Robins' chartered flight to Halifax was cancelled because of the fuel shortage.

Saturday's scores were: Baltimore 5, Nova Scotia 1; Virginia 6, Hershey 5; and Rochester 1, Springfield 1.

Providence 12 Rochester 2

Jerry Butler paced the Reds with three goals as Providence snapped a 1-1 first-period tie with seven goals in the second period.

Gene Carr, who also had three assists, and Rick Middleton each scored twice for the winners with Norm Dennis, Pierre Laganiere, Doug Horbul, Andre Peloffy and Don Borgesson getting the others.

John Bednarski picked up four assists for Providence and Randy Legge had three.

Art Stratton and John Wensink connected for Rochester.

The brawl began when Peloffy and Frank Quinnet of the Americans traded punches midway through the third period. After they went to the penalty box, Bert Wilson of the Reds and Stratton started punching and both benches emptied.

Nepean Raiders Take Lead

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Nepean Raiders won two weekend games to jump into the lead in the Central Junior Hockey League ahead of fallen Smiths Falls Bears who lost their only weekend game and fell to second spot.

The Raiders had a strong weekend, crushing Brockville Warriors 13-4 on Saturday and then downing Rockland Nationals 7-3 Sunday night.

The Bears had been leading the league following Friday's results, but then went down to disaster Sunday, losing 11-3 to Pembroke Lumber Kings.

Gloucester Rangers, idle on the weekend, are in third place ahead of Pembroke. Brockville is in fifth place, two points ahead of Rockland, now occupying the cellar.

In Saturday's game, Paul Millman paced Nepean with three goals. Bert Saucier, Larry Skinner, Syd Parchuk and Kyle Smith scored two goals each and Terry Chalmers and Randy Dorken added one goal apiece.

Peter Culp, Jim Johnson, Bob Bingley and Bob Mitchell were the Brockville marksmen.

Dorken improved his goal-getting Sunday, netting two. Simon Underhill, Art Powell, Skinner, Millman and Parchuk scored one goal each.

In the other game Sunday, the Lumber Kings shut the Raiders into first place by routing the Bears 11-3.

Paul Sawyer scored three goals for the Kings, with Terry Wormsley, Keith Trudel, Don Yanitha, Tim Daley, Ed McQueen Randy Burman, Dave Waddington and Tim Herrington scoring one goal apiece.

The league now takes a three-day Christmas break before resuming Thursday night with two games.

In those matches, Smiths Falls in at Gloucester while Rockland travels to Pembroke.

Sorel Catches Quebec Remparts

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Sorel Black Hawks have finally caught up with Quebec Remparts in the Quebec Major Junior A Hockey League's East Division thanks in part to Sherbrooke Beavers.

The Beavers scored their second win over Quebec in three days Sunday night getting a 7-4 win in Quebec while Sorel bombed Chicoutimi Sagueneens 13-2.

The win moved Sorel into a first place tie with Quebec. Each team has 35 points in 35 games.

Elsewhere Sunday, Montreal Juniors outlasted Trois-Rivieres Draveurs 8-5, Laval Nationals edged Hull Festivals 5 and Shawinigan Dynamos nipped Drummondville Rangers 5-4 in overtime.

At Quebec, the Beavers, who defeated the Remparts 3-1 Friday night, struck for three unanswered goals in the third period to wrap up the win.

Marcel Dumais scored twice for Sherbrooke with Sid Veysey, Denis Martel, Peter Marsh, Richard Dubreuil and Dwayne Byers getting the others.

Jacques Lecar, Daniel Lecours and Florent Fortier replied for Quebec.

Pierre Larouche and Pierre Mondou scored three goals apiece as Sorel hammered Chicoutimi. Robert Ritchie and Lucien deBlois each had two goals for the Hawks with Jacques Cossette, Denis Carufel and Michel Deziel adding singles.

Sorel win over Quebec in three days Sunday night, getting a 7-3 Each team has 35 points in 35

Christmas

Humble shepherds, tending their flocks by night, harkened to the angels' glorious message of the Saviour's birth and came in from the fields and found Him asleep in a manger...and they adored Him. Wise Men, journeying from the East, followed the Star to Bethlehem seeking the newborn King to bestow on Him their gifts of gold, frankincense and myrrh...and to worship Him. As we rejoice this Christmas, let us cherish the spiritual rewards of love and friendship, peace and contentment. It is with heartfelt gratitude for your continued confidence, that we extend the season's best wishes.

IN MEMORIAM

BEVERLEAVE — In loving memory of a dear Grandfather Gloria who passed away Dec. 30, 1972.
Days of sadness still come over us
Tears in silence we shed
For memories of you are always with us
And loving you more each day.
— Loving granddaughters, Mrs. Fred, Joyce, Carol, Janice and Charlie.

KINCAID — In memory of a dear sister Carrie Kincaid who passed away Dec. 28, 1972.
Sleep on dear sister and mother, memory,
Lovely is your heart today.
For the one I loved so nearly,
Has forever been called away.
I think and her in silence,
Ponder o'er the days gone by,
But many silent tears are shed,
When others are asleep.
— Lovingly remembered by sister Lizzie Roberson, brother-in-law Roland.

OAKROW, John — In loving memory of a dear husband who passed away Dec. 24, 1971.
Not a day goes but not forgotten,
And as years number past,
In our lonely hours of thinking,
Memories bring you near to us dear,
There is always still memory of you,
Many think the wound is healed,
But they little know the sorrow,
That lies in the heart concealed.
— Ever remembered by wife Helen.

HACKERMAN — In loving memory of a dear husband and father who passed away Dec. 24, 1969.
Sweet memories are treasures
Time is time happy days
Do.
Not for us, there seems no limit to years
We had no time to say goodbye,
We only know why?
The Christmas times past, we'll remember
The things we will miss
Most of all.
— Remembered by Marion, Barbara, Carl and grandchildren.

ALLEN — In loving memory of a dear husband Harold John who passed away December 27, 1972.
Sweet memories are treasures
Time is time happy days
Do.
Not for us, there seems no limit to years
We had no time to say goodbye,
We only know why?
The Christmas times past, we'll remember
The things we will miss
Most of all.
— Remembered by Marion, Barbara, Carl and grandchildren.

ALLEN — In loving memory of a dear father, Harold Allen, who passed away December 27, 1972.
Sadly missed by your memory lingers,
Always tender, fond and true,
Always in our thoughts dear father,
We do not think of you.
— Sadly missed by son Donald.

FRUESIE — In loving memory of a dear father Cassidy Fruesie who passed away Dec. 25, 1971.
Memories are treasures today,
As in the hour our hearts were broken,
— Lovingly remembered by daughter Elma and son-in-law Jim Bonner.

MUNNIE — In loving memory of a dear husband, father and grandfather Thomas Munnie who passed away Dec. 27, 1971.
Dear Lord, when we needed you,
A million times we've cried,
If love could have saved you dear,
You never would have died.
There are two last dearest things to say,
Our dearest dad, we loved you,
In a very special way.
Our thoughts are with you lifetime wish,
One dream that could come true,
Word pray to God with all our heart
That someday with you,
Always remembered by wife Blodwyn and family.

BARRAN — In loving memory of a dear brother Byron who passed away Dec. 25, 1971.
Time is prayer from those who loved him,
Full a memory fond and true,
That we know we still remember,
Because we thought the world of him.
— Always remembered by sister Lavra, brother-in-law Vern and family.

CARD OF THANKS

We wish to extend our deepest appreciation to our many friends, neighbours, and friends and neighbours of the River Road for their many acts of kindness and expressions of sympathy during the illness and passing of our husband, father and grandfather, Mrs. Glenn Schneider. Devotee of Recording Studio

Glenn Gould, Toronto-born musician, is devoted to the recording studio as a hermit in a cave - - and usually without shoes. Gould, who retired from giving concerts 10 years ago, remains very much a private man. Gould's genius is to bring his own creative interpretation to keyboard rather than re-creating the composer's music on concert stage. (CP Photo)

Opening lead—Q♣

By Oswald and James Jacoby

Here is a rather peculiar Christmas hand. South was kind to poor West. Who else could take two clubs tricks with that nine card suit to the queen. At the same time it was little generosity. West got two tricks, but East lost three he would have made otherwise.

We won't spend much time on the bidding. Anything can happen with freak hands and if this were a duplicate game there might well be as many bidding series as players.

South played the king of clubs from dummy rather unhappily. It looked as if there would be no way to avoid the loss of three tricks in the red suits. Then East played a red card and after long thought. South saw that he was going to make his contract after all.

He overtook dummy's king of clubs with his ace. Then he drew trumps with three leads and cashed his king of diamonds.

West discarded a club whereupon South led a heart to dummy's ace and threw West in with a club.

That was West's first Christmas trick. West had to lead another club. South let West hold that trick also while discarding a heart loser from dummy and a diamond loser from his own hand. West led another club. South discarded dummy's last heart; ruffed in his hand and claimed his contract.

To Your Good Health

One Beer Equal To Whisky Shot

By G. C. THOMPSON, MD.

Dear Dr. Thompson: How much alcohol is in 12 ounces of beer? My husband was told that his liver was very bad and he should not drink anything with alcohol.

He didn't drink for several years but about six months ago he started to drink again, mostly beer. He said he drinks about three cans a day and it shouldn't hurt him as his liver was cured after not drinking for a while. Was he really cured? — Mrs. J. K.K.

Each beer contains about the same amount of alcohol as a shot glass of whisky.

His liver doubtless recovered to some extent while he was abstaining, but it'll rather not dwell on the number of people who have done just what he is doing. They say they are "cured" and start drinking again and sooner or later they are back where they started, with a failing liver. Only it's worse the second time around.

Dear Dr. Thompson: Do you have any information on the diseases called tinnitus? I know what it is because I have it—a constant roaring sound in the ears with a loss of hearing— Mrs. A.B.

It isn't a disease. It's a condition which can be caused by a variety of things, some treatable and some not.

Dear Dr. Thompson: I'm in a credibility bind. I've stated as fact to my associates two facts which I had read not over two years ago. Now I find I can't prove them. They think I'm losing my mind.

1.—The problem of women eating clay or starch, some needing— surgery to unblock them.

2.—The fact that Negro people have a small gland between the eyebrows, which causes their dark pigmentation.—W.R.O.

Considerable numbers of women are known to eat clay; lots of women get into the habit of eating starch; I have never heard of surgery being required, although I can conceive of abnormal situations in which too much clay (but not starch) might necessitate it.

As to the "small gland between the eyebrows," perhaps you read some such thing, but it wasn't fact. Just no scientific basis at all.
